ICE POLO.

The recent cold weather has offered an exceptionally early opportunity for skating and ice polo. With the rink in fine condition, it was possible to start the ice polo half the fact with delight. In view of the general interest in the game, we venture the following description of it:

Ice polo is probably a development from roller polo, and is played almost exclusively in New England. Though the object as sought in ice polo is much the same as in ice hockey, i.e., "to score to lift, slide, push, or knock the puck out of the opponent's goal," there is a great difference in the method of play.

The stick is used instead of a puck, and a much heavier and stouter stick is employed, but the cardinal point wherein these sports differ is the absence of any unballbuilding off-side play in ice polo and the almost universal one-handed use of the ice polo stick. Consequently ice polo is a more open game, the field of players being continually separated and the theirs-for-goal being made from passes from unlimited directions.

Five men constitute an ice polo team, as follows: one goal-tend, one half-back, one centre and two rushers. The rushers must be rapid skaters, adept in dibbling and passing, as well as accurate goal shots. They are called upon to shoot the ball at the goal when it is in the swiftest, from one of their own team. The centre is a support for the rushers and either tries for goal himself or passes the ball to the rusher. Generally these three carry the ball down the rink in a triangular formation, equilateral or with the base of the triangle from the opposing goal, thus allowing of continual passing, one to the other, when the man carrying the ball is opposed. The half-back should be the most robust member of the team, as he must block the opponent's rushes, being the first defense man they meet in their movement toward the goal in attack. His is a most difficult position, as he must also intercept the majority of the three's for goal or pass the ball to the rusher. We clip the following summary from Miss Langhui's report on Domestic Service.

"Summary.—To summarize the conclusions reached: Conditions in domestic service are at present unsatisfactory. The testimony of people generally, and the facts stated by those who come most closely into touch with domestic labor, seem to establish that in a large proportion of cases the service rendered by domestic employees is unsatisfactory and that the supply of competent domestic workers is far below the demand. In short, domestic service is largely in the hands of untrained and incompetent women. It is unequal to the majority of intelligent women wage-earners. The reason for this is found in the wages paid, for it is admitted that wages in domestic service are all things considered, higher than are the wages paid in many more popular lines of work. The position is found to be one of semi-dependent in which the social position is that of an inferior. To improve the character of domestic service, the supply of intelligent workers conditions must be increased; to increase the supply of intelligent workers conditions must be modified to make the conditions in domestic service conform, to a great extent, to conditions existing in other places. The conditions in domestic service are, and especially so modified as to put the social position of the domestic employee on a par with that of other wage-earners. In other words, domestic service must be put on a business basis. This can be done only through cooperation on the part of both employers and employees, cooperation based on a better and more scientific conception of the character of household labor. The process must be primarily educational, both as regards employer and employee. Instruction in the public schools in the elementary principles which bear upon household affairs would do much to give to the next generation a better understanding of the importance of household labor and of the principles underlying it. The establishment of training schools in which young girls could obtain training in household work as a true vocation in conjunction with the offering by employers of business conditions, bring into domestic service an intelligent class of workers trained to perform the work for which they were hired. The scientific study and investigation of household labor in the higher institutions of learning would, in time, result in the discovery and application of better methods in household labor and tend to improve household service, as such study and investigations have resulted in respect to agricultural labor.

The evils existing in domestic service are clearly shown in Miss Chapin's work, and it is to apply to such service modern economic principles. These evils must be remedied by the slow process of evolution through education. The evils which grow out of the methods in vogue at many, if not most, intelligence offices, and which have already re-

COLLEGE NOTES.

Rehearsals are in progress for the Christmas vespers, which will occur on the last Sunday evening, Dec. 15, before the college closes for the holiday recess.

Miss L. M. Hodgkins and Miss Julia Bonnifield, of Foo Chow, China, were recently entertained at luncheon, at the College, by Miss Whiting.

Mrs. Virginia Yeaman Remitz, '84-'86, has a story in November Harper's. Miss Florence Wilkinson, also has a story, "The Calling of Jerome," in the same number.

Miss Wilkinson is a New York girl, and her father is the celebrated William Cleaver Wilkinson of the Chicago University. She was graduated from Wellesley in 1882, and since that time has done magazine and other literary work. She taught Greek and Latin in the institute near Franklin, Ky., for a short time after graduation, but came North again in 1886, when she was an editor on a Chicago magazine.

She wrote the senior play, "I'fassassin and Nicotte," for the senior class at Wellesley in 1900.

"The Strength of the Hills" is not her first book, "The Lady of the Flag Flowers" having been published a few years ago.

A Roman Melodrama, in the November Magazine, written by Edith Lehman, 1900, is a most realistic bit of description, and written in a delightful manner.

Emily H. Freese, formerly 1902, spent a part of last week with Miss Lebanon, '02 and Miss Spink, '02.

Emma Alden, formerly 1902, visited friends at College last week. The Supper Club, of which Miss Alden was a member, freshman year, gave a luncheon at Wood Cottage, in her honor.

Bertha di Zerla spent Thanksgiving at College, Miss Ethel Yet Ginib, '04, Miss Edith Nocera, '00 and Miss Mabelie Phillips, '00, alums of Tau Zeta Epsilon, were back to the regular meeting of that society, on last Saturday night.

Among the Shakespeare alums, present at the meeting on last Saturday night, were Miss Corinne Wagner, '99, Miss Marion Cook, '00, Miss Ethel Bowman, '00, and Miss Bertha di Zerla, '04.

Miss Lucile Eaton Hill has been appointed Supervisor of Athletic Sports, by the Trustees of the College.

The sale of seats for the golf game began last Saturday at one o'clock. Promptly at that hour, a line formed, and by two o'clock the greater part of the fifty cent seats were sold. Other office hours were held on Wednesday at nine, in the mer ling, and will be again, on Friday, at one o'clock. The play will begin promptly at 7:30.

On Monday afternoon, from four to six, the Christian Association gave a reception at the Elht for the new members of the Association.

Miss Mabel Pierce, '03, received with Miss Sara Sicker, formerly '01, at Miss Eicker's coming out party, in Newark, N. J. last week. R. H. Russell, of New York, has just published an attractive football calendar for the coming year, beginning, however, with November, 1901. These calendars were designed by Mr. I. B. Heselton of Wellesley Hills and Mr. E. B. Bird.

The illustrations represent the foot-ball fields at different colleges, and different positions of the players during a game. The calendars are for sale at the Tea Room.

"Carmen" at the Bijou Opera House, in Boston, is being received with hearty appreciation. Miss Lane makes an exceedingly effective Carmen, both dramatically and musically, and has received a well-merited recognition.

Skating goods for sale at the Tea Room. Peck and Snylder and Barney and Berry skates, polo balls and hockey sticks. Orders will be most promptly filled.
