THE ICE CARNIVAL.

On Friday morning it was decided not to have the ice carnival until Saturday night, February 1st. It seemed best to the committee in charge to postpone the event; the ice was far from good; several other events were going on the same evening; and finally, owing to the lateness of decision, it would have been very difficult for the girls to arrange for guests. The ice carnival committee consists of the following people: Katharine Hatz, Chairman, M. Berry Wood, Annie D. McClellan, Amy Adams, Mary Follett, Olive Nevin.

Generous contributions have already been collected from the students and faculty. A cadet band and hardy-gulyard will furnish music for the occasion. Bonfires, candle lights and fireworks are arranged for; and weather permitting, Lake Waban will assume a most festive attitude.

The ice carnival has come to be one of the most popular and enjoyable events of the college year at Wellesley, and is looked forward to with great enthusiasm. There is but one regrettable feature concerning it, and that is that, in regularly introducing the carnival, we are adding one more social event dependent upon the weather: for it is certainly the task of a wizard to select any date within half a day ahead, here in this New England climate, when it is reasonably certain of being pleasant. However, the carnivals of 1900 and 1901 have proved the affair such a decided success that it is worth having, even at short notice.

The Department of Physical Training has added ice hockey and novice skating to its already long list of sports. Through the kindness of Mr. Fletcher of Brookline, who salvaged the design, a very useful frame has been made for the use of beginners. It is merely a long bar, supported with a leg at each end, on which are two skates. The bar is at a convenient distance from the ice for the novice to take hold of when the arena are extended nearly straight in front of the body. Four or five people can use the frame at one time, and not interfere with one another's stroke.

The concert tour of Florizel, the ten-year-old American boy violinist, has been so arranged by Major J. R. Pond that he will make his Boston début at Symphony Hall on the evening of Thursday, February 6th. Seats go on sale next Thursday morning.

Mr. Paderewski will give a recital at Symphony Hall on Wednesday afternoon, February 16th. His programme will contain much that is new and interesting.

COLLEGE NOTES

The Day of Prayer will be observed on February Sunday, the second Sunday in February. Rev. Robert McDonald, D.D., will preach. There will be musical vapors in the evening. Hitherto, the Day of Prayer has been observed on the last Thursday in January, preceding the mid-year examinations, but was changed by act of the Student Government Association.

On Saturday afternoon, January 25th, at 3:30, Mr. W. H. Lincoln spoke in College Hall chapel on "The Teamsters' Strike." Mr. Lincoln has been an arbitrator in the recent troubles, and was therefore in a position to make his talk extremely interesting. Formerly, he was an instructor in the Faculty Hall.

Miss Hazard has granted the petition of the Student Government Association, asking that village freshmen be allowed to take advantages of the dining-room vacancies, free of charge.

THE CONSUMERS' LEAGUE.

The Consumers' League held a public meeting in College Hall chapel on Monday evening, January 26th. Miss Coman presided. Mrs. Florence Kelley, National Secretary of the league, spoke with her usual power of arousing interest and enthusiasm in the work. She made an especial appeal for a renewed demand for goods, bearing the Label, pointing out the fact that many well-known firms are simply waiting to see whether people really care to have their garments made under decent conditions. Mr. John Cummings read a paper, treating of the sweat-shop question from an economic standpoint. The chief interest of the hearing centered in Mr. Morris Rosenfeld, the "tailor-poet," who read some of his poems, written while he himself was a tailor in one of the darkest sweat-shops of the New York ghetto. Mr. Rosenfeld was introduced by Professor Wiener of Harvard University. Professor Wiener was the first to discover Mr. Rosenfeld's wonderful gift, and to translate his work into English from the original Yiddish.

On Friday and Saturday, January 31st and February 1st, in the Phi Sigma Society House, there will be held an exhibit of goods, bearing the Consumers' League Label. The principal firms of Boston will display daintily underwear and various kinds of garments. All are cordially asked to attend the exhibition. It is hoped that on Friday afternoon Mrs. Kelley herself will be present to meet all who are interested.

NOTES.

NEW YORK WELLESLEY CLUB.

"The New York Wellesley Club held its annual luncheon at the Manhattan, Saturday evening, January 18th. Walter H. Page asasts to the publication world, saying that any volumes of poetry which any of them might have put forth would be 'infinitely welcome' to the publishing world, of which he is a representative. Mr. Page immediately qualified by saying that the volumes must have been written since college days and must be 'poetry.'"

"Miss Caroline Hazard, the President of Wellesley, spoke on the college, which she said was in a very prosperous condition, having gained in funds $250,000 during the last year. Col. Francis Wentworth Higgins spoke on, "The Moving Finger Writes." He said college life had afforded the college girl more material about which to write and given her opportunities of adventure 'more varied and less perilous than matrimony, which was formerly her only possible adventure.' Colonel Higgins then told a story about a man of science who had declared that if he married it would be to a woman who would not be able to add two and two together. 'I am glad to say,' said the speaker, 'that he died an old bachelor, and so never learned how to add one and one together.' Other speakers were Charles Battell Loomis, who told how to spend the summer evenings, and Mrs. Harriet B. S. Devan, who spoke on the spirit and purpose of the club.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Washington D. C. Wellesley Association was held at the residence of Mrs. Louise Taylor Jones, '90, on Friday, January the third. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Louise Grant Saxton, '91; Vice-president, Mrs. Louise Taylor Jones, '90; Secretary, Miss Edna Spaulding, '92; Treasurer, Mr. Julius M. Green, '93; Business Manager, Miss Freda E. Baynal, '97.

At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served and a pleasant hour spent in discussing Wellesley news. Owing to the illness of the Annualist, Miss Constance Deprer, '92, told in an informal manner the most important changes at college.

Over thirty members were present and a number of guests, among whom were three prospective members of 1896.

Miss Casswell of Willard Y. settlement of Boston spoke in College Hall chapel, Thursday evening, January 23rd, concerning her work.

"It is to be questioned whether the students were not labouring under a misapprehension not to let any pictures of college girls appear in magazines without the individual consent of every student in the photograph. A student in college loses the proper perspective and does not realize that those pictures, which seem familiar to her, are often of great interest to outsiders, whose knowledge of a woman's college is gained only through magazine articles and pictures, and much legitimate advertising of a college is gained by the pictures of that college and students, which appear from month to month in the various periodicals. And not Wellesley going to suffer by a lapse from the public mind, when some prominent monthly devotes a page to photographs of athletic sports at different woman's colleges and Wellesley is not represented? It is certainly evident that the individual consent cannot be obtained when some of the figures are not even recognizable. And equally difficult would it be to obtain this consent when a desirable photograph might be of a graduated group. For the good of the college this question seems almost important enough to be worthy of reconsideration." 1902.

We are a rather sorry looking lot when mid-years are in progress. The freshmen can not be blamed for meeting their first mid-years with a greatly feared and dread. But, for the upper classmen, there is no excuse. By them, the good example should be set, of encountering the examinations with peace and calm of mind. Women can never hope to be truly scholarly unless they learn to do their work with less subjection to their nerves,

COLLEGE NOTES.

On Tuesday evening, January 28, Miss Hazard held an "at home" at Norumbega, to welcome the Dean, and to meet the members of the Faculty.

The Graduate Club has issued invitations for a reception, to be held on Friday evening, January 31st, the occasion being to welcome the new members. According to a change in the constitution, all members of the Faculty, who are Wellesley graduates, and all graduates living in Wellesley, or vicinity, are invited to become associate members of the club. The membership fee of the club has been changed from $2.00 to $5.00 each, and the meetings are now held in the various members' rooms instead of the room at Music Hall.

On Thursday, January 24th, a birthday dinner was given Miss Florence Hutsinparillar, in the private dining room, at The Tea Room. Covers were laid for eight. The table was decorated with violets, and the place cards had most appropriate quotations upon them.

Tar Baby has sent out invitations for a party on Monday night at 8:00, in Simpson Cottage. The occasion is a two-year-old birthday celebration.

Misses Sibyl Baker, Jeanette Kelly and Julia Tyler gave the second of a series of receptions, to Sophonores and Freshmen, on Thursday afternoon, from 4 to 6, in Room 4, College Hall. Misses Clara More, Maudie Arnold and Bonnie Hunter assisted.

Mrs. Durant and Miss Fenham, the Dean of "The American College for Women" in Constantinople, were entertained by Dr. Parker, at the Eliot, on Sunday, January 26th. After dinner, Miss Fenham gave an informal address on the work done by her college and showed the girls interesting pictures of the students and buildings. Many village girls also were present.

Miss Catherine Knowel, '02, has resumed her home, Irvington on Hudson, where she spent a few days of last week.

Miss Louise Sargent, formerly of '03, spent a few days in Wellesley last week.

We are glad to welcome back to college Miss Alice Wilcox, and to learn that the "dislocation" of her shoulder was only a bad sprain.

Sarah Scoovill Whit Tesla, Radcliffe, '04, and Ph. D., Yale, '08, who resides in New Haven, has been chosen to give some of Miss Katherine Connor's courses at Wellesley next year, during the latter's absence abroad. While at Radcliffe, Miss Whit Tesla devoted herself largely to the higher mathematics, and made a record as a tennis player of exceptional skill. At Yale, however, she worked almost entirely in economics, winning her Ph. D., by a remarkable thesis on Massachusetts Labor Legislation, which was afterwards published in book form by the Massachusetts Labor Bureau.

President Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College gave a lecture on Monday, the 20th, before the Amherst Women's Club. Her subject was "Our English Cousin as a College Woman." The lecture was drawn from personal observations made at the leading women's colleges in England and was full of interest and information.

Miss Mary A. Siowell, pianist, gave a concert on Monday evening last. Miss Siowell was assisted by Mr. Gito Roth and Mr. Carl Barth.

"The Mikado" is being given at the Bijou Opera House this week.
This unique work has long been the standard of genuine comic opera, and it has never wanted in popular approval. Its book contains some of W. S. Gilbert's brightest and most keen wit while its score abounds in musical numbers that require skilled singers to thoroughly interpret them. The company at the Bijou has long since demonstrated its talent and capability and it will not be found wanting in the present instance.
ABOUT COLLEGE WOMEN.

A Serious Estimate of Their Work and Marriage by President Thomas of Bryn Mawr.

"The estimate by President Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr College of what collegebred women are now, and what they may be, both mentally and physically, forms an interesting paper which deserves to be read carefully as the deliberate opinion of an astute woman, who weighs past progress and looks forward to the possibilities of the future:

"The college woman is proving herself the most efficient of all women; she makes so successful a teacher that she is swiftly driving untrained women teachers out of the private and public secondary schools and will soon begin to drive them from the elementary schools; she is also driving men from the schools.

"It is probable that women are fitted in a peculiar manner to become the teachers of the race. The college woman is also slowly entering other professions as well as teaching; as librarians college women already outnumber men.

"A great deal is said, and a great deal too much is said, of the marriage or non-marriage of college women. Will college life make women dissatisfied to marry? Do as many college women as other women marry?

"Will not college education make them unloving wives and unloving mothers?

"No, a thousand times, no. The very asking of such questions shows our lack of perspective.

"How can women be educated primarily to be wives and mothers? I do not know. I have never met a woman that did know. I have asked many devoted wives and mothers, who have laughed at the preposterous idea. What requires the perfection of all our human powers can scarcely be taught to women in high schools or in colleges by rule of thumb. Women are now steadily gaining on men; in the college departments of some co-educational university like Chicago, they are already in the majority.

"If we may judge from the continuous increase of women teachers in the schools for the last thirty years, college women of the future will compete with men for professorships in colleges and universities. When this is the case, I believe there will be women scholars of the highest rank, devoting themselves to research and invention and original investigation, as there are now women singers, and actresses, and poets, and novelists. In addition to teaching and library work, as at present, the college woman of the future will have found certain trades and professions peculiarly suited to her, in which she can succeed as well, if not better than men. I venture to predict that architecture and medicine will be two of these. Certain divisions of business, such as accounts and chemical and electrical analysis, now becoming so important, will tend to fall into her hands, as typewriting and telegraphy have already become the professions of women.

"The college women of the future will not only be self-supporting, but they will be married to college men, as generally as working women and women of the wealthy classes are now married to men in the same circumstances as themselves.

"For the woman who is able to stand shoulder to shoulder with the man she loves in the support of the family there will be one hundred per cent., as no longer fifty per cent, of marriages. She will indeed be the only woman the man of moderate income can afford to marry. And the college woman with inherited wealth can afford to use her wealth more wisely than now, for in the future all women of the leisure classes will go to college, like their brothers, as a matter of course; and this tendency is even now clearly marked."
