THE FIRST BARNSWALLS.

Saturday evening, September 26, was the occasion of the annual Barnswallow reception to the new students. By half past seven it seemed as if every one in college must have arrived, but people continued to come for a half hour. The guests were formally received by Miss Ruth Hart, president of the Barnswallows, Miss Durant and Miss Pendleton. Miss Hazard was unable to be present.

When everyone had been introduced, Miss Hart welcomed the past and the future members of the Barnswallows. She spoke of the pleasure and benefit to be derived from membership in this organization and urged all to join. Miss Hart's speech was followed by the application of Miss Durant and Miss Pendleton spoke enthusiastically of the Barnswallow evenings, advising us to mingle play and work.

After the speeches, the orchestra struck up and the promenades began. A few courageous spirits danced in the center of the floor, but the majority preferred to get about the room with less difficult maneuvering. The night was mild and beautiful and many left the crowded room to wander about out-doors. A new and very successful plan was arranged for the meeting of partners. The letters of the alphabet, on large pieces of cardboard, were attacked in order around the room. At the end of each promenade, each Freshman was left near the letter beginning her last name. As all the Freshmen had their names pinned on in plain sight, it was comparatively easy to find partners. The new method is a great improvement on the old.

The lights went out, as they do so often, before we were half through the program—we were quite ready to leave the Barn. Judging by the number who attended and by the pleasant things which were said, the evening was a real success, and we are glad to look forward to the good times in store for us as Barnswallows this year.

THE FRESHMAN CONCERT.

The first in the series of College concerts for the year, known as the Freshman concert, was given in College Hall Chapel, Monday evening, September 28. The Freshman Concert was given for the first time last September, but the success of last year, more than equalled this year, proves that this first concert is an occasion of much pleasure to upper-class students as well as to Freshmen. The program for the concert this year was unusually attractive, consisting of numbers by the Allison Quartette, already well-known to Wellesley students, and by Mr. Jacques Hoffman, who has won the admiration of the students through his delightful playing. The program was a musical treat throughout and the numbers were all so good that to make distinction were difficult. The "Theresa Waltzes," by the Quartette in the first group of songs were full of charming rhythm and called forth as an encore a beautiful evening-song, Mr. Babcock's "I am a Roamer," was especially fitted to show off the powerful and rich quality of his voice, and Mr. Bartlett in rendering his own composition, "The Dream," met with an ovation. Mr. Hoffman's playing as always was a delight; his Gracie in red and green, the reception of work, and especially skilful and exquisitely rendered were his "L'Abelle" and the encore to his Concerto.

The program for the concert was as follows:

THE NOANETT.

Now that it is finished, the new dormitory in the Village meets with general approval. The halls are artistically decorated, the rooms in white and green. In the main hall there is a large and comfortable fire-place. The dining room is an especially pleasant room because of its west, south and east exposures. The beds are daintily papiered and artistically furnished in weathered oak.

Aside from the artistic the new dormitory meets all other requirements; the plumbing is all open and is designed according to the best hygienic theories. The building is lighted both by gas and electricity.

Noanett, the name given to the building, is that of an English Royalist who masqueraded for many years as an Indian in the section of Massachusetts for a long time. Mr. F. G. Stimson of Dedham has written a book, "King Noanett," giving the exploits of this man.

The name is pronounced with the accent on the first syllable.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF PRIZES.

The editors are requested to reprint the following notice which appeared in The News last spring.

Believing that the best stories and plays of which Wellesley undergraduates are capable are still to be written and desiring to see such work seriously undertaken, the Legenda Board of the class of '96 hereby offers two competitive prizes amounting to fifty dollars for the best plays or stories submitted to its committee of judges, under such conditions as that committee shall hereafter announce. No manuscript is to be submitted earlier than May 20, 1904. One prize is to be offered to next year's Freshman class. Associate Professor Hart is chairman of the Committee of Judges. Announcement will be made shortly of the other judges.

SENIOR ELECTION.

At a meeting of the class of nineteen hundred and four, October 2, the following officers were elected.

Vice-President ............ ANN ORR
Recording Secretary ...... FAITH TALCOTT
Corresponding Secretary .. ELIZABETH TAYLOR
Treasurer ................. MAUDE JESSUP
Executive Committee { MARY FOLLETT
                         ELIZABETH TAYLOR
                         ANNA SCOTT
                         JANE LENNOX
                         LUCY PROCTOR
Most of us, all of us, perhaps have come to College this year with many gift-edged resolutions, and may we be able to keep at least a few of them! We would recommend that one resolution be made which perhaps has not occurred to some of us. We remember the proverb concerning people who live in glass houses, but we are willing to sacrifice ourselves and suffer the gibes and taunts of those who know our own shortcomings for the sake of furthering a possible reform. The subject of this sermon is Punctuality; the resolution to be drawn therefrom is obvious. In general, we meet our class opportunities with reasonable punctuality, but there are innumerable engagements which we do not meet promptly.

Why is it that Student Government and class meetings can never begin on time—four-thirty when the time is invariably set for four-fifteen? There is a deplorable lack of punctuality on the athletic field, as chapel, in all social engagements, large and small. Our inexcusable tardiness often causes great annoyance, sometimes resulting in really serious delays which in most cases might easily have been avoided by a little thought and planning. It is a certain carelessness and lazy self-indulgence that makes us put off things that can be postponed for a shorter or longer time without seriously interfering with our own plans.

It is significant and also humiliating to notice that the girls who live in the Village are more punctual, as a rule, than those on the campus. Unless the Village girls plan their time carefully, they cannot meet the various appointments of the day and yet we often find them waiting for the girls who live on the grounds.

Aside from the inconvenience and annoyance which tardiness causes in our college life, the habit is a vicious one and sure to make us trouble later on. In business life punctuality in all things is one of the cardinal virtues, and it contributes inestimably to success in any serious work. A prompt, business-like attitude toward work is recognized and lauded the world over. Finally, brethren, it is easier in the end and certainly very much more pleasant to meet obligations at the proper time in the proper way than to wait until apologies and explanations are necessary.

We have said our say; now let those whom the coat fits, put it on.

At a recent meeting of the Southern Club the following officers were elected: President, Julia Tyler. Vice-President, Sue Schoolfield. Secretary, Lallie Joe Moody. Treasurer, Myra Foster.

At a meeting of the Philosophy Club, October 2d, the following officers were elected:
President, LOUISE HUNTER, Vice-President, MISS CALKINS, Secretary, HELEN COOK

Though there are very many things that the girls who went last summer to the Christian Association Conference at Silver Bay on Lake George, want to talk about and do, there is one especially about which we cannot longer keep silent, that is the plan of having in our College a general secretary of the Christian Association.

The idea is undoubtedly a new one to many of us, as indeed it was to some of the girls at the conference; a little explanation of the duties and use of a General Secretary might therefore be fitting. In an Association as large as ours it is exceedingly hard to get through it a benefit to each of its members because it is well nigh impossible for girls whose time is taken by academic work and the many other college interests to devote the necessary time to the welfare of the Association. It was the realization of this inadequacy that first led us to consider having a secretary; and the knowledge of the success of the general secretaries in other colleges has made our enthusiasm and heightened it. Of the colleges in which conditions are most similar to our own, Mt. Holyoke and Smith, both have general secretaries of the Christian Association and not only the girls are enthusiastic about it but President Worcli of Mt. Holyoke is most hearty in her praise of the secretary's work and in her recommendation that the Wellesley Association try this plan. The secretary would be a college graduate, either of Wellesley or some other college, and would receive a salary from the Association. She would give her entire time to the Christian Association work; and to accomplish the best results she would necessarily not do much else but work for many more girls than are now active, and would broaden the Association interests in so doing.

Each member wants our Christian Association to mean more to her in Christian fellowship than it has ever meant before. And if we may rely upon the judgment and experience of those who are pre-eminent fitted to know, we must feel that one of the surest ways to bring this about is through securing a general secretary.

As an evidence of the enthusiasm of the Silver Bay delegation on this subject it is necessary only to say that the thirty pledges which girls at Silver Bay made toward the secretary's salary (if the Association voted to have a secretary this year) amounted to two hundred and fifty-six dollars. That, we feel, shows how much those who have thought of the question a great deal favor having a general secretary of the Christian Association.

We are very anxious to have the matter thought about and talked over carefully among all members of the Association before it is discussed formally at a business meeting. Any one of the girls who went to Silver Bay will be glad to explain about the Secretary's work and need for her; the Free Press, too, is an excellent way to give the College your thought about this question.

MARY P. EATON.

II.

Aren't we, as college students, in our visits to the Village, sometimes most thoughtless of the impression made by our conduct?

We forget where we are, and go along the street talking loudly, and laughing even boisterously, perhaps eating an apple, or indulging in a cracker. No doubt it is only a careless expression of fact that lessons are over for the day, and that now it is playtime. This fact may excuse our hilarity to other college girls, but cannot and does not excuse such conduct to outsiders, or to people living in the Village. Consequently, a false estimation is made of the Wellesley College girl. At home, in people places, we would not think of disregarding all conventional restraint, why should we then in the streets of Wellesley Village? I am sure each one of us, who has thus indulged her light-hearted feelings has been conscious of doing not just the right thing. Perhaps this added a little zest to the fun.

Pelf for a pride for Wellesley is deep in our hearts, and if we but pause a moment, I am sure we shall not wish to do ourselves, or to tolerate in others, what cannot but reflect upon our College.

LITERARY NOTE.

The Craftsman, in its October issue, enters upon the third year of a successful existence. Its leading article upon L'Art Nouveau is from the pen of S. Bing, in whose studio in the rue de Provence, Paris, the modern movement received its first impetus and its name.

Another article of great interest is "The Halo in Art," by Caryl Coleman, which, owing to late arrival, could not be produced in September.

Irene Sargent continues the Craftsman Ceramic Series with an account of the Newcomb Pottery.

"The Use of Wood in Switzerland," is the title of finely illustrated paper by Wendell G. Corbell.

The recently added department devoted to the Nursery contains original designs for paper wall-hangings made with special reference to the pleasure and instruction of children, and the Needlework Section gives illustrations of cross-stitch, lace-making and tapestries.
THE PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS.

THE RULING FASHION.

I put it to you plainly—
What shall Alumnae do?
Who come back here to Wellesley
And contemplate that new
And beauteous dormitory
Presented to our view?

Most things we know the name of,—
But watch us get upset
When one girl blandly tells us—
"Oh, that's the Noanett."
Then another village Freshman
Who acts as if she ran it,
Tells us how pleased she is to live
Down at the new Noanett.
That dazed, we ask a third girl's aid,
"Tis marvel she would deign it,—
"Why, everybody knows that house,—
I board there,—the Noanett!"

Query: When Freshmen disagree,
Who shall decide it?

Loan Collection of Framed Photographs.

Those who wish to decorate their rooms will find an attractive loan collection of framed photographs in the Art Building. These pictures representing great paintings, sculpture and views of English scenery are especially chosen for the purpose, and are carefully framed so as to make the collection as varied and pleasing as possible.

The number of pictures to be taken at one time is not limited. They are loaned to any member of the College, either by the month, semester or year, thus giving an opportunity to become familiar with various pictures.

A small charge is made for the rent of each picture, according to the length of time it is borrowed. This sum, after paying for the original collection forms a fund for adding new pictures.

The Art Department is glad to consider any suggestions as to desirable subjects, which may be added to the collection.

The Art Building continues to attract an increasing number of visitors, especially during the visiting seasons of the College year.

During the week from June 16th to 21st there was an average daily attendance of fifty-seven, the highest attendance reached on any one day being one hundred and twenty.

Wellesley College should be proud that the report of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, mentions this College as coming first in the number of institutions in the number of students who visit the Museum freely.
