Through Republican Glasses.

Wellesley will cast a heavier vote for Theodore Roosevelt on November 3, 1904, than she did for McKinley in 1900. This sounds at first like a hasty statement, but is well grounded on fact. College Hall which has always represented the conservative element has gone seventy-five per cent. Republican, as shown by the membership of the Teddy's Tooters Club. Gertrude Knight reports that Norumbega will cast a solid Republican vote. Wood and Freeman, which have always been known to be Republican, report even a larger majority for Roosevelt than had been anticipated. Stone Hall reports a heavy Republican majority. Fiske and Eliot have declared that they will support Roosevelt this year with even a greater force than they did McKinley in 1900. Pomeroy and Wilder have been claimed by both parties, but a recent canvass of the Republican votes shows Pomeroy to be a Republican stronghold, while Wilder has been in spite of the most sanguine prophecies of the Democrats, eighty-nine per cent. for Roosevelt. Simpson has not been heard from and may be said to be doubtful. The Village has not been entirely heard from, but from the generous contributions that quarter has made to the Republican Campaign Fund, it is safe to claim that even if the Democrats pull a majority it will be but a small one. The Nealett and the Inn have reported that they are solid for Roosevelt.

With College Hall, Stone Hall, Fiske, Eliot and the Hill going Republican it means that the majority of electoral votes have been accounted for, and that Roosevelt will be elected even if the Village, Simpson and Waban go Democratic. Through the earnest work of Norumbega's Roosevelt's Ready Rooters, Nealett's Roosevelt Rooters and the other Republican clubs, it is expected that many who have not as yet expressed their political opinions will be won over to support the Republican candidates and thus make the elections an even greater Republican majority than has been counted.

Democrats Enthusiastic.

Much enthusiasm is manifested by the loyal supporters of the Democratic party in Wellesley. With a slight disadvantage in the matter of numbers they show themselves possessed of such spirit and zeal that their minority is of secondary importance. Their sentiment is the occasion of wonder and envy on the part of their lukewarm opponents. The enthusiasm of the latter, in proportion to their superior numbers, is lukewarm from over confidence.

In College Hall much gratification is felt by the "Parker Props" at their ability to combine successfully with "Teddy's Tooters" in the production of roof-raising cheers. It is glorious to witness the outbursts of enthusiasm that the name of the sage of Esopus awakens, and the bystander must be torpid indeed who can fail to be exalted by the earnest conviction manifest in the shout "Alton B. Parker! Parker! Parker! Alton B. Parker! Parker!" From the very nature of things it is obviously impossible that the two girls—one of whom inquired who Parker was, and was told by the other that he was the Democratic candidate for Vice-President—should be Democrats. To be Democratic is to be enthusiastic. The Republicans in college attend Democratic rallies to catch some of their ardor and transport it to their own decorous assemblies. Party feeling runs high. In Stone, the "Pteranodon Parties" have had opportunities to collect several souvenirs of the campaign from the Roosevelt faction. In none of the other houses have active collisions occurred: but they are imminent. The Democrats are well organized on the Hill. In Pomeroy and Nealett and plans for a lively campaign are ready. The general expression of opinion indicates confidence for the outcome, which not even the unexpected defection of a prominent citizen from the State of that great apostle of Democracy, Henry Watterson, can dampen.

Honorary Mention, 1907.

Honorable mention for those who attain excellence of scholarship in their freshman year has been established to promote the same ends as those sought in the honor scholarships.

This honor is to be given annually at the beginning of the sophomore year on the basis of one year's work.

The standard is somewhat lower than that for the honor scholarships.

3. The standard is absolute, not competitive. The name of every student who attains the standard is placed on the list.

The names are arranged in alphabetical order.

A certain Latin motto was made much of in our preparatory school days, of which, to avoid the appearance of ostentation, we shall give only the English meaning—"A great part of learning is to know where to find a thing." Now we are assigned a great deal of reading here, to be done in the library, and yet, aside from a knowledge of the card catalogue and Poole's Index, there are certainly some of us who do not really know where to find things. And this is partly because we have never stolen time to "browse" in the by-paths and alcoves of our finest room at Wellesley. Sometimes next door to the book we are expected to read before a class appointment is a quaint and rich old volume with its fine musty pages suggesting residence on the shelves of a dozen departed booklovers—a volume to bring mild and satisfied enjoyment, or chuckles of delight. Some of these books bear the thin scrawl of Rufus Choate on their title pages; and some are richly annotated with the reflections of a bygone scholar, whose name we might never have heard, yet whose personality becomes thus to us a reality; and others have catalogue lists of rare folios pasted in their front pages. There is a century-and-a-half-old Magnolia with the signature of one of the Mathers written upon it. Such close half contact with minds whom another generation perhaps has known and venerated, or may scarcely have heard of, brings something more than education—it flashes gentle illumination. This loose and desultory browsing may not make us well read, but we soon become well bred in the presence of all manner of book company. And picking up one volume now, and another then, we in time come to have a pleasant fellowship with almost every shelf in the library, and can say, "Here is a whimsical old friend whom few know but myself, and we few, though we may not recognize one another, yet have this bond in common." It is a good thing to find a book on the reserved shelf when many are seeking it; it is a good thing to know how to enjoy required reading, but it is very pleasant, too, to snatch quarter-hours with new-old books which take us pleasantly into another century.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Miss Pendleton addressed the Freshmen Tuesday afternoon, October 18.
The Magazine Board recently appointed Marie Warren as Sophomore Editor of the College News.
A meeting of canvassers and speakers for the Consumers' League was held last Tuesday evening, at the Agora House. Miss Coman gave an interesting and helpful talk on the purpose and work of the League, and plans for the annual canvass were discussed. The talks of the League work will be held in the various college houses, the last of this and the first of next week. Exact dates and places and speakers will be bulletin later. The brief talks will be given directly after dinner and it is hoped that with speakers in ten houses convenient meeting places for all will be supplied.
Mr. Samuel Arthur King of London University, who lectured at Wellesley last year, has been secured to deliver a series of ten lectures here this winter, on the subject "Pronunciation and Enunciation." They will occur at intervals between November and March.
The Science Club met at the Observatory, Tuesday evening, October 18. Professor Hayes lectured on the subject, "Nature, Master of Man."
Wednesday evening, October 19, President Hazard lighted the fires for the first time in two of the fire-places at Pomroy Hall, the new dormitory. After the lighting, the girls gathered about the fire in the dining-room, while Miss Hazard gave the history of the house and explained some of the details of its building and furnishing.
Mrs. Edward W. Bacon, formerly Superintendent of Simpson Cottage, died Wednesday, October 19, at Arlington Heights.
At the mid-week prayer meeting of the Christian Association October 20, the new members were received into membership. The President of the Association presided. The Mission and Bible Study Committees hope to organize their classes Sunday, October 20.
The Deutsche Verein met at the Tau Zeta Epsilon House, Monday evening, October 24.
In the Art Gallery is an interesting exhibition of photographs, recently acquired by the Art Department, representing many fine examples of architecture and sculpture of various periods in Italian art. The Della Robbia reliefs predominate, but Byzantine carvings as well as Greek and Roman sculpture and architecture have a prominent place.
Any student wishing to identify herself more actively with the Christian Association is invited to speak to Miss Slack, General Secretary of the Christian Association, in the Association Office, first floor, East, College Hall.
Office Hours: Tuesday, 9:30 to 11 A.M.
Wednesday, 9:30 to 11 A.M.
Thursday, 9:30 to 11 A.M.
Friday, 9:30 to 11 A.M.
CLASS ELECTIONS.

Following the senior elections came a class meeting of 1906, Tuesday, October 18, to elect Junior officers. At the end of the usual three ballots, Louise Sturtevant, who with sister Madelina Sturtevant, 1884, was chosen two years ago to the same office, was again chosen President, and the class adjourned to the fourth floor Centre to cheer her. A few members from other classes hastily gathered and applauded the choice of 1906. Then followed the choosing of the other officers, which were as follows: Vice-President, Nell Carey; Corresponding Secretary, Olive Green; Recording Secretary, Sadie Samuel; Treasurer, Lillian Brooks. Executive Board, Helen Baird, Georgia Harrison, Helen Segar. Advisory Committee, Edith Sturtevant, Connie Guion. Factotums, Louise Curtis, Helen White.

The Sophomore elections came with great promptness on the 20th of October.

President, Olive Smith.

Vice-President, Madeline Hanson.

Corresponding Secretary, Caroline Gilbert.

Recording Secretary, Vera Loomis.

Treasurer, Roma Nicholson.

Executive Board, Helen Goddard, Clara Griffin, Gertrude Capie.

Advisory Committee, Florence Pimmler, Clara Cabell.

Factotums, Nettie Wansamaker, Helen Hutchins.

ZOOLOGY LECTURE.

Principal Lloyd Morgan of University College, England, who will lecture this week before the Department of Zoology, is among the foremost of British scientists and the leader in an entirely new line of inquiry, fascinating alike to the amateur and to the professional scientist—the study of the mind of animals. The thorough-going evolutionist believes, of course, that the mind, no less than the body, of an animal, is the outcome of a slow and gradual development. The course of this development Mr. Morgan will attempt to trace in his lecture on "Instinct and Intelligence."

All members of the College are cordially invited to attend the lecture. Though given before the Department of Zoology, it presupposes no special knowledge and will, it is believed, be both interesting and valuable to any who may be attracted by the subject.

It will be given in College Hall Chapel at 4.40 on Wednesday, October 26.

CURRENT ART NOTES.

A great honor has recently been shown to women artists in the United States, by the selection of Miss Violet Oakley of Philadelphia, to decorate the new capitol building of the State of Pennsylvania, at Harrisburg. The only other artist chosen for this important commission is Mr. Abbey. Miss Oakley is not yet thirty, and has been doing art work for only eight years, beginning her studies with Carrol Beckwith at the Art Students' League. Owing to the influence of Mr. Pyle she took up stained glass designing, several years later, and has since executed important commissions for various New York churches. It is interesting to remember that she is the granddaughter of Oakley, the English water-colour painter and also that she is one of the trio at the "Red Rose Inn" near Philadelphia, of which the other two are Elizabeth Shippen Green and Jessie Wilcox Smith.

The Society of Arts and Crafts has removed to the galleries, No. 9 Park street, Boston, formerly occupied by Walter Kimball & Co., as an art store. This society which was incorporated to promote artistic work in all branches of handicraft, includes three classes:—Masters, a title of distinction awarded by the council; craftsmen are either designers or workers in applied decorative art, and Associates, who are interested in the work, but not employed in them. The Society is now almost self-supporting and maintains beside its show-rooms, a small handicraft shop for mental workers.

The Worcester Art Museum is holding its seventh annual exhibition of oils and paintings, which will continue until December 26. The exhibition contains five hundred and fifty-three paintings and numbers among its contributors, William M. Paxton, Childe Hassam, Charles H. Woodbury and Walter Clark. Ruth de Rochemont.

MR. WOOD'S LECTURE.

The first lecture of the series to be given by Mr. Robert A. Woods of the South End House, Boston, was an introduction, serving to give a knowledge of the forces that have made for industrial evolution, as a background for analyzing social conditions of today. Mr. Woods took up the subject chronologically, showing that the development from the hunting to the agricultural state, the origin of barter and slavery, the evolution of feudalism, of town life and of the guild system, and the change from the "domestication" of industrial life to the factory system of the present time, all has come about as the result of economic conditions.

The speaker's reputation as a thoughtful writer and analyst of the present social situation, his constant use of familiar examples to illustrate each point and the informal delivery combined to make the lecture enjoyable.

SERENADING.

When Friday, October fourteenth, finally made up its mind not to be rainy, the class of 1907 put on its most beaming smile, cleared its throat and prepared to enjoy the long-deferred serenading of the Freshmen. It was a circumstance most interesting to the members of the class, the fourteenth happened to be the anniversary of the evening when 1907 as Freshmen serenaded 1906. The Sophonores gathered, a couple of hundred strong, at the East Lodge after dinner, and made a business-like tour of the Village, stopping at each Freshman house. Their lyric greetings were answered by some clever, impromptu cheering by 1908, by lemonade and peanuts.

The 1907 songs were in part, as follows:

Tune, "Good-bye My Lady-Love;"
   Welcome to 1908!
   We now congratulate.
   You on your coming to dear Wellesley.
   May your year happy be.
   From flunks and crushes free,
   Measles and mumps and whooping cough.
   Good night dear 1908!
   Don't stay up studying late.
   Eight hours sleep is the minimum amount.
   Wake in the morning bright.
   Each Freshman's heart so light,
   And full of love for 1907.

Tune, "Blue Bells;"
   Freshmen, you're now at college,
   But are you going to stay?
   Mid-terms demand vast knowledge,
   Study while yet you may.
   No time for recreation.
   No time for making jingle;
   Cram for each recitation,
   Faculty's an awesome judge!

Chorus:
   Don't worry, Freshmen,
   Don't get the dumbs.
   Swallow most bravely;
   Salty tears and throaty lumps,
   We once were Freshmen too,
   Look at us now!
   Follow our example,
   For we know how!

On the following Tuesday evening, (October 18th,) 1908 enthusiastically returned the compliment. The Freshmen serenaders were a very pretty sight, for most of the class wore white, and all carried lighted Japanese lanterns, swung to long poles. Delighted cheering greeted the picturesque procession, as it took its way through the College grounds, stopping at each house. The following words set to familiar airs, were sung by the Freshmen:

Tune, "Mr. Dooley;"
   The night is clear, the stars are out and so
   We thought that we
   The unsophisticated infant class of Wellesley,
   Would walk across the campus and while
   We marched along.
   Would raise our voices in a grateful little song.
   To 1907
   Dear 1907
   Who stayed awake till hours late,
   With voices ringing,
   In tuneful singing.
   For grateful little Freshmen, 1908.

Tune, "Soldier's Farewell;"
   How can we bear to leave thee?
   Our parting song we give thee,
   And then what e'er befalls us,
   We go where grim Math calls us,
   Farewell, farewell dear 1907.
   Farewell, farewell dear Sophonores.

1908 chorus.
   We are, we are, we are, great!
   Sure as, sure as, sure as fate!
   Wellesley, Wellesley, 1908
   1-9-0-8, Wellesley!

Naught eight, hurrah!
Naught eight, hurrah!
1-9-0-8 Rah, Rah, Rah!
Wellesley!

IN COLLEGE HALL.

It's noisy in the morning before the first bell rings; For everybody wants a tub and everybody sings.

It's noisy in the corridors: the freshmen can't recite; Instructors have to go outside and glare from left to right.

It's noisy in the afternoon when many folks are out; The noisy ones are always round and through the windows shout.

You'd think it would be quiet in the evening after ten, But no, alas! they visit round and do their dishes then.

On Sunday before church time the corridors resound; No time for rest and quiet can anywhere be found.

O noisy ones, when you are gone we wonder if it's true That peace will reign in College Hall instead of only you.

With apologies to Carolyn Wells and "The Saturday Evening Post."

A dear little freshman named Lee,

Said, "Is there no way I can see,

If that girl who's just dear,

Is a classmate so near,

Or one of the grand Faculty?"

As Kipling might say it (as he is not here to deny it). Oh, could I but be certain if that lady over there.

Be Faculty or student—no need to tear my hair.

Sure, it's good to know for certain—to have no painful doubt,

Then the danger is much lessened that the powers will turn me out.

As Chaucer might have said it.

A maid ther was, that coude ne never tellen

Though she had pondered o'er it verray well,

Whanne she saw so verray fair

With verray semely, long and yellow heer,

Was she a lady lik hersel ye trowe,

Who coude no problems do ne why ne howe,

Or was she canny with a ful degree

Of lerninge and with goggles on her ye.

As Swinburne might have said it.

Shall I ask, shall I ask you, Leewana,

A question that troubles my soule,

Shall I have, from your red lips an answer,

Can my pleadings your lenience cajole?

Or will you, so scornfully heartless

Just answer you know not nor care

If the maiden be learner so simple

Or one of the Faculty fair.

ALUMNI NOTES.

Among the Alumni who have spent the past summer abroad are Mrs. Stella Wrenn Barnes, 1888, Miss Lucy J. Dow, 1892, Mrs. Louise Edwards Fabry, 1903, Mrs. Katharine Winton Murray, 1892, Miss Antoniette Bigelow, 1893, Miss Gertrude Angell, 1899, Miss Isabel S. Campbell, 1894, Mrs. Mabel Eddy Hoard, 1894-1897, Miss L. Constance Emerson, 1896, Miss Elizabeth S. Adams, 1896, Miss Ethel May, 1897, Miss Helen G. Burnam, 1898, Miss Helen Temple Cooke, 1893-1896, Miss Paula Schoellkopf, 1900, Miss Ethel W. Putney, 1902.

Miss Amelia A. Hall, 1884, Miss Susan W. Peabody, 1886, Miss Katharine J. Lane, 1888, and Miss Elise Thalheimer, 1889, spent Summer in July or August at the College. Miss Hall has leave of absence this year from the Walnut Hill School.

Mrs. Gertrude Chandler Wycuff, 1879, her husband and daughter, return to India this fall after a two years' vacation. The family left from New York on October 22 on the Furnesia.

On Thursday, July 28, Mrs. Anna Brown Lindsay, 1884, and Dr. Lindsay brought out to the College a large party of Porto Rican teachers who were spending the summer in this country for study and travel. Miss Pendleton, assisted by other members of the Faculty who could be present, received them, and showed them the buildings and grounds.

Miss Harriet Merrow, 1886, spent a few days at the College the last of September. Miss Merrow has leave of absence from the position she has held since 1894 as Professor of Botany in the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts at Kingston, and will spend the first half of the year working at Cornell.

Miss Nettie G. Pullen, 1902, spent the summer in Chicago with Miss Frances Pullen Chapman, 1899, and did some work in German and history during July and August.

Mrs. Carrie Frost Hendy, 1892, spent the summer in California and returns this fall to a new home near Chicago in Western Springer, Illinois.

Miss Martha G. McCaulley, 1892, sailed with a party on June 18, via the Romanic, to spend the summer in Europe. Misses Anna and Mary Vail and Miss Berry Wood, all of 1902, were in the party. The Misses Vail planned to meet their uncle, Dr. Caspar Gregory, and go to Athens. Miss Eva Sherwood Reid, 1894, spent the summer on Staten Island.

Miss Marion Taylor, 1895, attended the summer session at Chicago University.

Miss Christy Brooks, 1905, visited her sister, Mrs. Peerce, this summer in Crippled Creek, Colorado.

Miss Emma Wells, 1895, has recently been through the Yellowstone with Mrs. Clara Northrop Ingham, 1890-1892, and then visited Mrs. Ingham in Portland, Oregon. Miss Ada M. Belfield, 1896, has been east during the summer. She was present at the wedding of Miss Ethel Judson, 1894, and then visited Mrs. Gertrude Rushmore Patterson, 1896, at Watch Hill, Rhode Island.
