SENIOR ELECTIONS.

On Tuesday, October tenth, the Class of 1908 held a class meeting for the election of their Senior officers, with the exception of the president, who was elected in May of last term. The officers are as follows:

President, Sue Barrow
Vice-president, Katherine Dennison
Corresponding Secretary, Helen Eustis
Recording Secretary, Elizabeth Andrews
Treasurer, Jane Balderston
Advisory Board, Katherine Scott, Roma Love
Executive Board, Elizabeth Perot, Mary Daley
Factotum, Adele Gray, Lucy Tatum

JUNIOR ELECTIONS.

At a meeting held on Thursday, October 10, at 4:15, the Class of 1909 elected its Junior officers as follows:

President, Josephine Butterfield
Vice-president, Stella Taylor
Corresponding Secretary, Eila Chapin
Recording Secretary, Frances Hill
Treasurer, Irving Hersh
Advisory Board, Alice Appenzeller, Amy Brown
Executive Board, Jennie Van Etten, Sidney Clapp, Virginia Coulston
Factotum, Maude Frantz, Helen Hussey

College Settlements Association

Elections.

President, Ruth Carpenter, '08
Vice-presidents, Dorothea Lockwood, '08, Harriet Clapp, '08
Belle Mapes, Edith Koon, '11
Secretary and Treasurer, Marie Spahr, Faculty Member, Miss Emily G. Balch

THE BIBLES.

On Monday evening, October 7, Mr. Bliss gave the first of a series of four lectures on the "Identification of Biblical Sites." Although Palestine is holy, not only as the home of Christianity, but as the center of the Mohammedan religion, and of the national interest of the Hebrew, the material for identifying its villages and towns with their manifold associations is very slight. The Bible mentioned them for people who knew them well, and had no need or interest for geographical references, so that archaeologists have to depend principally upon their excavations for the location of towns. With the slight aid of a Bible reference, and with the suggestion held in the similarity between a modern and a Biblical name, the archaeologist works to prove the identity of a mound by the pottery and inscriptions which it contains. The work of identifying Biblical locations was fastened when it should have been most advanced, by the traditions to which students were most inclined to believe.

THE WORK OF THE GENERAL AID COMMITTEE.

It is not often that one ministers by being ministered unto, but this comfortable state of affairs is brought about by the General Aid Committee of the Christian Association. This committee finds out what students need to earn some part of their expenses, and asks the Employment Bureau, the fees of which are paid in coin, which rusts not. There are plenty of courageous students who are determined to gain their college years by any sacrifice, and are more than glad to use their leisure time in earning something. These girls often have to face the large expenses, as board and tuition, as well as the smaller ones of books, travel and clothing. They ask for work in a business-like spirit and expect to give good service. The furniture and book exchanging yield some profit in commissions to the girls who manage them. Any plain sewing, mending and dainty laundry work are done. The committee has recently bought a sewing machine which is rented at a small fee to girls sewing for themselves or others. In all, it is estimated that at least one student will do typewriting. In fine, all the miscellaneous tasks women can do, these girls will do for you if you just ask them.

This is not charity at all, but service.

L'ALLIANCE FRANCAISE.

The "Alliance Francaise" in Wellesley is a branch of the "Federation de L'Alliance Francaise," founded for the purpose of furthering the cultivation of the French language and of promoting interest in its literature, art, its institutions. As the meetings are held in French, it is the object of the club to give to students the opportunity of meeting in an informal way and by this social intercourse with the members of the Faculty, and with one another to gain practice and fluency in speaking the language.

The French Department is the educational department of the French section. The "Alliance Francaise" is in fact the students organ of the French Department, works with the German Department and the other student organizations, and does much to help the campus life.
EDITORIALS.

It is the time-honored prerogative of everybody in college to give advice to Freshmen. When we stood on the threshold of our academic career we received some, and we modestly and piously trust that we were much benefited thereby. Well do we remember one occasion. We had just added the finishing touch to our room, a shining motto "Do It Now," gleaming white against a background of flagrant crimson. We remember thinking how well it toned in with our Harvard banner and the sweet little roses in our wall paper. Just then an upper class friend who had our welfare deep at heart happened in. She surveyed our apartment with judicial calm until her eye fell on the motto. "Ahh!" she exclaimed pointing toward it with dramatic forefinger, "My child, I do perceive thou hast a writing on the wall. Canst read it? Knowest thou the true interpretation? There be those more blind than the astrologers, Chaldseans and soothsayers of old, who will bid thee to congregations of the light-minded, yea to fudge-parties, tea-parties and the like, saying, "Do it now." But, to the interpretation is false, and they who read it so shall not prosper.—But to them who read it rightly shall be given honors, verily much high honors in the halls of Alma Mater. For this is the interpretation. Thy task for today is light. Do it now. Thou wilt find there lie the experiences of many. There remain unto thee the little space for eating and for boating and for arraying thyself in much great beauty. And when mid-years is come and others wail over accumulated labors, thou canst gracefully make thy summer shirt-waist.

On the whole it was such bad advice—and the application is not only to Freshmen. To the upper classes coming back these first few weeks are full of temptations. There is so much "auld acquaintance" to be renewed. There are so many new acquaintances to be shown the glories and taught the proprieties of Wellesley. There are class meetings and committee meetings and one's own special candidate for president to exploit. And though we have been reminded in every class that Wellesley was founded primarily that we might study, and that if we do not make study our first aim here we are wantonly wasting priceless benefits, still the daily lesson seems comparatively insignificant.

We will begin work next week and it will be easy to begin at the beginning. So we slide carelessly along, forgetful of the little drops of water and the little grains of sand until we suddenly reach the not too beauteous land of back work which lies hard by the troublous ocean of mid-years. Of what wet-toweling and headache powders we might avoid, and still have time to keep warm a corner in the hearts of our friends if we would but remember the academic, to "Do it now!"

NOTICE.

Copy for College News should be in the hands of the editors by Friday noon of each week. It is desirable that all communications be written in ink, rather than in pencil, and on one side of the sheet only. The departments are in charge of the following editors:

- General Correspondence: Agnes E. Rothery
- College Notes: Bessie Eskey
- College Calendar
- Society Notes: Marion E. Markley
- Music Notes
- Art Notes
- Free Press
- Athletic Notes: Mary Lewis
- Library Notes
- Parliament of Pools: Emma L. Havridge
- Exchanges
- Alumnae Notes: Miss Fletcher
- 1909 Member, Amy Brown. 1910 Member, Miriam Loder.

PICTURE FRAMING.

The change that is taking place in the framing of pictures is particularly impressed upon one when viewing the season's offerings in framed pictures. Dull effects in gold, simple ornamentation or the plain wood frame to show the grain seem to be the desirable patterns. Bar- nished ornaments should be subordinated to the picture and it should be remembered that the first duty of a frame is to enhance the beauty of the picture, not to make one exclaim "What a handsome frame!"

Colored prints are shown quite often in a simple wood frame stained to harmonize. I am showing some good reproductions of old-style hand-carved frames.

G. L. ABEll, Photographer, Wellesley.

GLOVES
may be right and not be Fownes' but they can't be FOWNES and not be right.

This Space Reserved for

J.A. Washburn Co.,
Natick, Mass.

Selles HOSIERY NEVER SLIPS, TEARS NOR UNFASTENS Every Pair Warranted

The VELVET GRIP Cushion Button

SAVES HOSIERY

If your Dealer does not sell you this Supporter he does not sell the Best. Every Clasp has the name Stamped on the Metal Loop

GEORGE FROST CO., Makers, Boston, Mass.
COLLEGE CALENDAR.

Wednesday, October 16, 7.30 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, Fourth Lecture on Palestine by Mr. Bliss.

Thursday, October 17, 7.30 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, prayer-meeting. Speaker, Dr. C. A. R. Janvier, of Philadelphia.

Sunday, October 20, 11 A.M., services in Houghton Memorial Chapel. Sermon by Rev. James D. W. Perry, jr., of St. Paul's Church, New Haven, Conn.

7 P.M., vespers.

Monday, October 21, 7.30 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, lecture on Palestine by President Hazard.

Tuesday, October 22, 4.15 P.M., College Hall Chapel, address to Freshmen.

COLLEGE NOTES.

On Monday evening, October 7, the class of 1911 put on white apparel, lighted gay Japanese lanterns and sallied forth to return the serenade of 1910. The occasion gained a certain added interest from the fact that all the Sophomores were, or should have been, attending a required lecture. There were enough stragglers in every house, however, to raise a lusty cheer when the bright phalanx had sung its medley songs. Even the upper classmen deigned to express the time-honored but none the less hearty approval.

"Nineteen 'leven we're proud of you
You are worthy of the Wellesley blue."

The Book Room and Post-Office in College Hall have exchanged residences, and both have been enlarged and beautified. The rooms are in charge of Miss Bertha M. Beckford, assisted by Miss Leila B. Nye in the Post-office and by Misses Mae Stevens and Helen Wilson in the Book Room. As has been previously mentioned in this column, a money order and registry station has been established at the post-office. This will be an increasingly great convenience to students as the way to the "Vil" becomes colder and slipperier.

The new dormitory in the Cazenove-Pomeroy quadrangle progresses daily. It is now over two stories high.

On Wednesday, October 9, at 7.30 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, Mr. Frederick T. Bliss delivered the second of his series of lectures on Palestine, entitled "Culvary and the Tomb," and on Monday, October 14, at the same time and place, the third lecture, entitled "The Mounds of Palestine." The fourth and last lecture by Mr. Bliss will be on Wednesday, October 16. On Monday, October 21, also at 7.30 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, Miss Hazard will deliver a lecture on Palestine illustrated by her own water-color sketches. This lecture will close the series.

Mary Lewis, 1909 has been elected Literary editor of College News. Bessie Eskey has been appointed Associate editor to fill the place of A. Margaret Fleisher who is this year attending Bryn Mawr College.

Mr. Ledyard Bill of Paxton, Mass., whose name is associated with the Bill Scholarship belonging to the College, died at Worcester October 6. The gift stands in the name of Charles Bill, a brother of Mr. Leyard Bill earlier deceased, but as the executor of his brother's will, Mr. Bill was deeply interested in the scholarship and the students who had the use of it.

On Thursday afternoon, October 10, the 1910 tree-day dancers in costume repeated their tree-day dances in order to show the new class, 1911, what our unique natural dancing is.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Frances Lance Ferrero, '92, the Department of Botany has just received two packages of plants. The plants were collected in the neighborhood of Berlin, by Mr. and Mrs. Ferrero, and have been classified by them. The college herbarium has been further enriched during the past week by the addition of about half of the six hundred classified specimens, the gift of Mrs. Maud Cipperly Wiegand.

The following students have been elected House presidents of College Houses:

College Hall .................... Lisbeth Laughton
Stone .......................... Mildred McIntosh
Pomeroy ........................ Ada Davis
Cazenove ....................... Josie Belle Herbert
Freeman ........................ Virginia McGerry
Norumbega ...................... Jane Hall
Simpson ........................ Patience Wilson
Wood ........................... Catharine Paul
Wildr .......................... Mabel Cooper
Fiske .......................... Olive Moulton
Eliot .......................... Mary Hazlett
Nunnett ........................ Elizabeth Andrews
Webb ........................... Martha Grunewald

The first meeting of the Science Club was held in Whitin Observatory, October 8, at 7.30 P.M. Dr. Riddle spoke on "Some Fungi Parasites on Insects." There was a large attendance.

A new dining-room which accommodates about seventy-five students has been opened at the Ridgeway. It is in charge of Miss Swift who is also head of Crofton.

On Tuesday, October 15, at 4.15 P.M., in College Hall Chapel, Miss Pendleton delivered the second of a series of addresses to Freshmen by the President of the College and Members of the Faculty.

Professor Colin spent the summer in Paris, with the exception of the month of August, which was devoted to special studies in Brittany. Mlle. Puthod has matriculated at the Sorbonne, for the higher degree, having obtained a leave of absence for this purpose. Three new instructors of French enter upon work: Mlle. Magdeleine Carret, Licence-es-Lettres, Université de Paris, sometime instructor at Lycée d'Alger; Mlle. Pauline Regina, Licence-es-Lettres, Université de Paris, sometime instructor in a German preparatory school at Goslar and at the Cours Cherche-Midi, Paris; Madame Gusti Schmidt, a student at the Universities of Paris and Zürich. Mlle. Laigle has resigned and will spend the winter in Davos, Switzerland, for a well-deserved rest.

Beginning with the present year, students who wish to be recommended as teachers of French in secondary schools are expected to elect from a list of literary and philological courses or Dr. C. A. R. Janvier, who is to speak at the prayer-meeting on Thursday evening, October 17, was one of the speakers at Silver Bay last June.

L. P. HOLLANDER & CO.

Outfitters for Young Women

OUR FALL ASSORTMENT OF YOUNG WOMEN'S SUITS, COATS AND WAISTS

a great many of which are manufactured by us on the premises, are now ready for inspection and are Especially Adapted for Street and College Wear.

202 to 216 BOYLSTON STREET.
NOYES BROS.
In Our Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department.

ENGLISH AND FRENCH FLANNEL WAISTS,
Madras, Cheviot, Silk and Lingerie, from $3.50

LADIES' STOCKS, CHOICE NECKWEAR AND BELTS.

LADIES' GLOVES, Fownes' Make, Heavy Hand-Sewn, $1.50
Chamois, Gray Suede and Tan, from 1.75

Steamer Rugs, White Rubber Coats and English Ulsters.
Kimonos and Lounging Wraps, from $3.75

FREE PRESS.

I.
In regard to the Free Press in last week's News concerning the painful ignorance of college girls about the current events of the day, we would suggest that there could be an alleviation, if not a cure, for the malady. This would consist in a column or a half-column that would give a digest of the vital events going on in the world, which compact outline would serve as an index in case one's interest were great enough to look up the details of a certain event.

In spite of opinions to the contrary, it is not always possible to find an hour in which to peruse the daily papers, and, in fact, it would require at least two hours to sort out the really important issues from the mass of extraneous matter with which the papers are padded; and most girls have not the time, even if they have the inclination to do this. In consequence we simply pass by the reading room, and if we do go so far as the bulletin blackboard, we are usually en route to the library or a recitation, or else there are so many people crowded about it that we cannot catch a glimpse of its contents. Most of us make it a business to read our News, and if a column of current events is substituted for a column of advertisements, (unless it were the girl with the cap and gown) we would be grateful for some ideas, however small, of what is going on in the outside world.

In one of the most popular songs which we always sing at the Barn and the steps, there is an anachronism, of which everybody is aware. In the third stanza of "Where, O Where are the Verdant Freshmen?" we sing now—

"Where, oh Where are the Jolly Juniors?"

They've gone out from their three Forensics Safe now in the Senior Class!

As we all know, the third line quoted above is no longer applicable to present-day college affairs, for 1906 was the last class to be thus tortured. It seems as though it would be much more appropriate to make a change in this stanza, and make the song more pertinent. Why not substitute "Hobbies and Descarnes" or some such appropriate allusion, as Psychology and Philoso-phy are now the distinctive Junior courses?

How shall we use our spending-money here at college? Each of us has a certain sum, large or small, to do with as she pleases. Now, if we were all multi-millionaires we could manage our fortunes very wisely, but this matter of regulating a small monthly allowance is, of course, different. It seems only right and girlish to use up our means in dinners and parties the first week or two, and then patiently wait for the next moon to bring us more. Is this, however, the most satisfactory method of spending our money? To me it seems that no matter how large or small our fortune, whether it is five talents, two, or one, we can do more good with it and derive more pleasure for ourselves by handling it systematically and thoughtfully. For the small sums that we have at our disposal, each one of us is responsible. This last summer I had occasion to see an exceptionally small sum of money might be used. Two little "old maids" lived near us. One day one of them told me about their housekeeping arrangement. "Our money comes to us the first of each month," she said, "we divide it into thirds, use one part for charities, one part for necessities and the rest we try to save." That seemed to me very generous and praiseworthy management. In spite of the number of times we have already heard the statement, we are still at the beginning of the academic year, and if we wish to spend our funds generously and wisely, the opportunity at least is ours.

E., 1908.

II.
As we sit in the library, planning a literary paper or finally arranging the material in an Economics note book which is due the next hour, what sort of a feeling does it arouse in us when our neighbors on either hand begin to make notes for some general joculation? We are in no amiable frame of mind when we are obliged to gather our possessions together, and climb the dizzy staircase to some corner above. The library is a place above all others for merrymaking, and we are rather shy and un-likable, when we make unnecessary noise there while others are trying to study.

Do not in a required course rush for a back seat. It is so easy to blink in at the last moment, and go to sleep until the bell calls you back to reality, but this does not pay. It means more work at night and sleep then is really more beneficial than it is during the daytime. Save yourself and pay attention during the period.

IV.
It is a fortunate thing, for some of us, that the subject of a certain lecture recently delivered in College Hall Chapel was announced to us beforehand. We might otherwise have mistaken that academic appointment for a certain type of social gathering, where fancy work and gossip are the only objects of important interest. Against the fascinating interest of certain work bags, the map of Jerusalem paled in interest; the relative values of the "Colonial" and the "Tremont" were combated upon with considerably more enthusiasm than was displayed when the Mosque of Omar and the Church or the Holy Sepulchre were the buildings in question. We do not attempt to deny that work-bags and theaters are objects of vital interest; we would merely suggest that a discussion of their charm be relegated respectively to our rooms and the 1.07 train. It seems a little unfortunate that an audience of college girls—upper-class girls—find it impossible to concentrate their attention, for a scant hour, upon a lecturer and his subject. To the casual observer it would indicate a lack of mental ability—unless, indeed, it conveyed the equally bad, and far more probable impression of thoughtless discourtesy.
CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION MEETING.

The Christian Association meeting of Thursday evening, October 16th, held in Collins Hall Chapel, was led by Miss Dorothy Fuller, the president of the Association. Miss Fuller chose for her subject, "The Christian Association Girl in College," and read the Scripture lesson from Romans 12. Miss Fuller began by saying that girls who are new members should have toward the Association. She said that one hears criticism, but that the girls should come out with it, and try to help the Association by showing their improvements could be made. She then invited all who could to join, and showed the advantages of membership. The help we all get from a part in the coming of God's kingdom on the earth, and in helping others to know that the knowledge of Christ is a joy that can get in no other way. Then Miss Fuller spoke of the duties that must come with membership in this, as well as in any other great organization. They do not consist essentially in attending the religious meetings, nor in being enrolled in classes, for these things are but outward expressions of the inner life; but the true deepening of the spirit of Christ in every day-life, especially through prayer, Miss Fuller emphasized as the vital duties of the members of the Association. But along with these duties come a very great power, and a very great privilege. The power of influence which each one of us has to a greater extent than we realize, especially in this intimate college life, can be helped and trained by our Christian life. Then the privilege of helping girls in a deeper, more real way, and the sense of fellowship existing among the girls is a great joy. Miss Fuller showed that the Christian Association girl is the best girl in college, because she has more to work for, and more to help her than other girls have. She should be a better student, because she knows that her Master requires faithfulness. She should be a better athlete, because she realizes that she can serve God better if her body is strong. Dramatics and all the fun of life should be entered into more heartily, because she knows that her Father has given all these things to enjoy. Above all, the Christian life is the most sane, and the most natural life in the world. Why should girls hesitate to go to God in prayer, to ask His advice on different matters, when they would do no less for the things of the world? These things should be harder to find time for prayer and for a study of God's Word, than it is to go to a committee meeting, or to read the letters from our fathers and mothers? These things should be made of as much importance as any other things to those who wish Christ to be a joy to them, and they bring a true joy which nothing else can give. Miss Fuller then gave an opportunity to any who wished to speak, and after several responses to the invitation, the meeting was closed.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION AT LOWELL.

On Thursday, October 16th, in the annual convention of the Massachusetts Sunday-school Association at Lowell, Miss Knapp with five girls and President Hazard as an honored guest, represented the student bodies among the C. A. building we were soon greeted by about fifteen enthusiastic alumnae, all of whom are engaged in active and important service in and near Lowell. There was an informal reception to President Faunce of Brown, the speaker of the afternoon, and to the Association officers.

In introducing the speakers, Judge Raymond, president of the Association, mentioned three facts which led to the organization of the College Conference in the Sunday-school convention:—First, a trained teacher is fundamental in efficient Sunday-school work; second, in order to secure this teacher an alliance must be made with the college work; third, graduates who desire something in the social world is needed in the great field of Sunday-school work. In carrying out the recognition of these facts, President Hazard emphasized the need of a trained, enlightened, consecrated mind to know how to use the results of the present-day searching of the Scripture by all the forces of modern education, and give to the child the interpretation of the real spirit of Scripture in President Huntington spoke of interpretation as the great work of the world to-day. He commended the use of charts, maps and reference books, but emphasized the power of personal realization and the heart interpretation of the Scriptures. The keynote was: A new emphasis upon the need of the perpetual union of education and Christianity, of knowledge with action. As an illustration, he said that after Jacob Riis had written, "How the Other Half Lives," President Roosevelt climbed the dark, narrow stairs to the attic room and left this note: "I have read the book, and have come to help." This is what we must do: we know, and we must act. President W. W. White of the Bible Teachers' Training School in New York said that "the best we can do is the best under the circumstances." Our best now, as teachers in the Sunday-school, is to meet, by our required adaptability, the situation among the children.

During refreshments, served by the Lowell College Club, the twenty or more Wellesley girls gathered about President Hazard and gave the musical cheer. This was soon followed by the lusty cheers of several men's colleges, but no other woman's college responded.

At seven-thirty the joyful college groups mingled with the larger one in the First Congregational Church and there we listened to the addresses of "Educational Night" of the convention. President Faunce defined the aim of the Sunday-school to be to educate the scholars in the meaning and methods of Christian faith, outlook and service. This is to be accomplished by the development of thought concerning the facts, the grave problems and the truths of life in the six days of preparation for the first day, and by the interpretation of these in their relation to our own life. Dr. White closed the day with an interesting talk on "The Therefore of the Golden Rule." The emphasis throughout the conference on the educational opportunity and social significance of Sunday-school work, and the possibility of our own spiritual growth makes this an important sphere of work for college women to consider.

F. M. B., '09.

FREE PRESS—Continued.

VII.

I wonder why we are so conservative in our choice of afternoon walks! After our 3:30's, when we feel the imperative need of at least a little fresh air, our almost invariable cry is "Come on down to the 'Vil' with me." And unless we happen to be "out on a sport" ourselves that afternoon we acquiesce, take the familiar board-walk, purchase a picture-postal from Mr. Abell, some lavender belting from Mrs. Davis, and return over the beaten track. Now my earnest wish is merely this: that you walk in the opposite direction, take the path to the West Woods, and put enthusiasm into the players and yourselves by watching and cheering the tennis, hockey and basketball practices 1911! This is a splendid way to decide for which sport you will sign up in the spring! 1908, 1909, 1910! There is an exhilaration about these playgrounds which we realize with the return of Field Day but now are apt to forget!

I should like to remind everyone, too, of the preliminary matches in each sport to decide who shall be the contestants on Field Day itself. These will be held in the week between November fourth and November eleventh. Watch the Athletics Bulletin Board for announcements!
PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS.

NE PLUS ULTRA.

A Senior and a Sophomore
An ocean voyage did sail,
And as they neared a desert isle
There came a fearful gale.
The ship was cast upon the rocks,
With horrid desolation,
And all the crew and passengers
Excepting two, were drowned.
The Senior and the Sophomore
Had learned to swim full well,
And of their strong and mighty strokes
No common muse could tell.
They reached the shore quite easily
And sat down on the shore.
(The Senior full a hundred feet Above the Sophomore.)

Then suddenly appeared a storm,
A whirlwind, out to sea,
Descending on the desert isle
With fierce rapidity.
There was an opening to a cave
Behind the Sophomore;
It was the only sheltered place
On all that barren shore.
She quickly stepped aside, to let
The Senior go in first,
(Though she was many yards behind
The storm, about to burst.)

The hurricane came on apace,
The Sophomore still stood by
While down the shore the Senior sped
With cap and gown awry.

At last, with quickly panting breath,
She dashed into the cave;
But at that moment came the blast,
And a tremendous wave
Came rolling, tumbling, dashing up,
Up to the very door,
And in a trice engulfed the brave
And loyal Sophomore.

The Senior sighed, "Tis sad," she said,
"That she should get so wet,
But then, it is a noble thing
To die for etiquette."

"How are we," the Psych teacher said,
"To the 'kerosene consciousness' led?"
The bright maiden rose
"Something goes up the nose
Through the oil factory nerve, to the head!"

A CRUSH.

Oh lucky little grasshopper!
She held you in her hand!
I wouldn't care if I were you
To be upon her stand.
She'd have my picture in her book,—
Oh, wouldn't it be grand!

She'd look into my compound eyes
She'd watch my habits all.
I wouldn't mind if I should die,
Her knife would cause my fall.
And then she'd keep my maxilla
In her own alcohol!

THEATER NOTES.

MAJESTIC: Cecilia Loftus and Laurence D'Orsey in "The Lancets."
COLONIAL: Anna Held in "The Parisian Model."
HOLLIS: Eleanor Robson in "Salome Jane."
PARK: Marie Doro in "Morals of Marcus."

For elegant and good style Millinery buy at

GRACE'S,
11 Summer Street, Boston
}
ALUMNAE NOTES.

In addition to notes concerning graduates, the Alumnae Column contains items of interest about members of the Faculty, past and present, and former students.

Miss Margaret E. Stratton, formerly Dean of the College, and Mrs. Mary P. Manley, Instructor in Rhetoric and English Composition 1888-84, 1885-92, expect to sail for Italy next month and to remain abroad during the year.

Miss Anna Haynes, 1887-89, who was a few years ago assistant in the Zoology department at Wellesley, and has worked up a flourishing department of biology in the High School of Kalamazoo, Michigan, has this year resigned that position to accept the charge of the work in biology at the State Normal School of Hyannis, Massachusetts.

Mount Holyoke has added to its faculty another Wellesley alumna, Miss M. Blinn, 1897, who has been working for three years at the University of Pennsylvania for the doctor's degree. Miss Evans receives her appointment as instructor in English literature. Miss Frances Kousmaniere, 1900, M. A., 1904, who last year served the college as instructor in mathematics, has been appointed instructor in philosophy.

Miss Annie Woodman Stocking, 1902, who has been working for a year in Teheran, Persia, under the Presbyterian Board, has gone to Teheran, Persia, to work in a school there. Until next summer her address will be Reesh, Persia. Miss Lucy M. Woodward, 1902, who went out with Miss Stocking's party in August, 1906, has the splendid record of three years of work in Teheran. Miss Woodward is in Tabriz, Persia, teaching in several subjects to the children of several American Missionaries and of some Europeans. There are among her pupils daughters of Miss B. T. Wilson, who will come to America, perhaps to Wellesley to complete their education.

Miss Helen M. Cooke, 1903, has been appointed general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association of Springfield, Mass., from which institution she graduated. She has been State Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association of Virginia, but was obliged to give up her work last year on account of her health. She will begin her duties in Springfield the first of January.

Miss Grace Waymouth and Miss Grace Miller, both of 1895, have given up the school which they have conducted in Akron, Ohio, three years ago. Miss Waymouth has been working for the last year in the department of the Hathaway-Brown School of Cleveland. Miss Waymouth is also to assist the principal, Miss Canfield.

Miss Mabel Wellman, 1893, is teaching chemistry and domestic science in St. Boniface, Chicago.

Miss Olive Gilbreath, 1906, entered Michigan University this fall to work for a master's degree. Her address is 836 Tappan Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Miss Ethel Canfield, 1907, is studying the "living wage" problem under the auspices of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union of Boston, and living at the Hemenway settlement house conducted by Miss Bertha Hazard, 100 Tyler street, Boston.

Miss Margaret Fleischer, formerly of 1906, is studying this year at Bryn Mawr.

Miss Marion Blannford, 1893, has accepted a position as assistant in the Latin department of the Hartford, (Connecticut) High School. Her address for the year is 885 Asylum Ave., Hartford.

Miss Cora B. Squire, 1905, is teaching Latin and Mathematics in the Classical High School of Worcester, Massachusetts.

Miss Lillian H. Bruce, 1903, is teaching physical training in the Iowa State Normal School at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Miss Clare S. Richards, 1903, has accepted a position at Brewster Academy, Wolfeboro, New Hampshire.

Miss Lue Huntington, 1900, has resigned her position in Porto Rico and will study this year at Columbia. At the same University are Miss Carrie M. Holt, 1903, formerly of the department of Zoology, who has been awarded a scholarship in zoology; Miss Cora L. Buxtorf, 1904, who has a scholarship in music; Miss Helen G. Chase, 1906, Dorothy Storey, 1907, and Katharine Tobey, 1907. Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Of these all but Miss Storey are in Whittier Hall. Miss Grace Langford, of the department of physics, who is furnishing the third year work for her degree and a year of work to — Miss Lucille Smith, 1904, and Katharine Tobey, 1907.

Change of Address.

Miss Maria Kneen Drew, 1893, Lynnhaven, Va.

Engagement.

Miss Edna M. Brin, formerly of 1898, to Mr. W. Carleton Packard of Denver, Co.

Marriages.

Haughway-Ware. September 4, 1907, in Wayne, Pennsylvania, Miss G. Katrina Ware, 1896, to Mr. George Haughway, associate editor of the University of Denver, Colo. Miss Grace Muzzy-Nevins. October 3, 1907, in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Every Requisite for a

Dainty Lunch

At

COBB, BATES & YERXA CO.,

55 to 61 Summer Street,

(Only one block from Washington St.)

STURTEVANT & HALEY,

BEEF AND SUPPLY CO.,

38 and 40 Fanueil Hall Market,

BOSTON.

Telephone 933 Richmond.

Hotel supplies a specialty.

CHIROPODIST

MANICURE

SCALP TREATMENT A SPECIALTY

Shampooing, Waving, Singing and Clipping, Electrical Face, Scalp and Neck Massage, Complexion Steams.

IRENE BLISSARD,

"The Norman," - Wellesley Square

KANRICH'S ORCHESTRA

The very best musicians for Dances, Theatricals, Receptions, etc., etc. Orchestration.

ALBERT M. KANRICH,

Tel. Oxford 1907-3

1644 Tremont St., Boston.

Vania, Miss Olive Adair Nevin, 1895, to Mr. Herbert Thompson Muzzy. At home after December 1st. Bellefonte Apartments, Elmer street, Pittsburg.

New Birth.

October 4, 1907, in Albany, N. Y., a daughter, Margaret Sutherland to Mrs. Gardner C. Leonard (Grace Watson Sutherland, 1905).

Last year the superintendent of public schools of Seattle, Washington, expressed the wish to make connections with Wellesley candidates for high school positions. Various subjects were mentioned. Graduation from college and at least one year's successful teaching in a high school were requirements. The salaries named were excellent, and any Wellesley graduate of experience in high school teaching who wishes to go to the Pacific coast is advised to apply to the principal of the high school of Seattle, Mr. William F. Geiger.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Morr, Switzerland, June 11, 1907.

To the Alumnae Editor of College News:

In my trip around the world this year, I have run across so many Wellesley girls, that I thought word of them might be interesting to some readers of College News.

I found Mrs. Edith Knowlton Deming, (1903) on the steamer crossing the Pacific last September, on her way with her husband, to their mission field in Central China.

In Tokyo, I trumbled in my arms the chubby baby girl of Mrs. Franc Warren Pershing (1901), and found her to take after her mother, though in embryonic fashion, in her ability to laugh. Franc, herself, was not changed a bit in spite of the excitement of keeping the families of several different "cook boys," "wash boys" and "sweep boys" in a state of quiescent hostility below stairs.

I had a four hours' hunt in a "rickshaw" in Tokyo for the Girls School where Elizabeth Campke (1902) is teaching, during which the light of day departed and left me to enjoy the picturesque scene of the glowing Japanese lanterns and the garishness of some very Western electric lights.

I extricated myself most ungracefully from the Japanese school where I was first deposited, only to be left forlorn, like the proverbial bear in the China shop, sitting with my shoes on, in a chair overtopping the foot-high tables and soft mats of the Presbyterian Girls' School. But my third attempt found Elizabeth just the same as ever. She had a Wellesley luncheon for us, at which were Miss Milliken, the head of the school, Mrs. Pushing and Aune Orr (1904) who was visiting her, and myself. I also went down with her to the Japanese church, heard its native preacher, and attended Elizabeth's Bible class for Japanese young men.
ALUMN/E NOTES—Continued.

We next took Anne Orr with us, and twelve cooly kago-bearers and a guide, and set out for a three-days' trip over the mountains to lakes and down the forty miles of rapids of the river which surround the base of Fuji-san. We felt like lords of creation in a tiny horse tram car built for six, which forced all other traffic off the line when we met on a single track. We folded our lengthy and bulky forms into the hanging baskets called "kago," made for dainty Japanese ladies. We rode in "Sanpan," both hard and soft, on lake and river; and Shank's mares did a good twenty-miles stilt one day along a ridge overlooking the lakes to Fuji one way, and a never-to-be-forgotten panorama of rough high peaks, the other. We dipped down into several thatched-roofed villages in the valley for tea, and passed the time of day with more than one cheery worker of the soil in his tiny terraced rice-field. And our narrow escape from death in the rapids of the Fuji-Karra was the cause of our grateful cooiles having a tiny cup of "sake" at a river-side temple for the gods. At Kobe, my mother, Miss McIntosh Kinney (1875-1877), had a chance to talk over old days with Miss Susan Searle (1881), and to see Kobe College for Girls, of which she is president. Among many others, we visited the Japanese rooms where Japanese social etiquette, the tea ceremony, and arrangement of cut flowers are taught, that girls may not prove misfits in their own homes; and we heard of the beginning of a veritable Student Government among them.

At Calcutta, Miss Just, whom so many of us knew at the Inn, and as Miss Hill's assistant in basket-ball in 1905-06, recognized my pin and asked me if I was Anne Orr! I pleaded "not guilty" and tried to make good on my own account in order to glean some stray bit of college gossip. She was going the "other way round."

At Ahmednagar in India, I expected to find several Wellesley people—the Humes and Bissells, whose names are so familiar to all Wellesley girls, but they were all off for much needed rest in the hills except Dr. Julia Bissell's sister, Miss Emily Bissell, and Dr. Stevenson (1895), who has sisters in 1906 and 1908. I believe. With them I chatted once again, and saw "the hospital," a pretty stone building, with its small formal garden in front, and a wide view from its upper verandahs over the rolling brownness which makes up the country in this part of India. The natives nurses, in the graceful native dress of white and green, (which, by the way, should make most effectual costuming in a Tree Day Dance) were feeding the convalescents on the verandah enormous chunked pancakes of dark brown bread—which I tasted and stopped turning up my nose at—and rice, with some sort of a curry powder on it. There were little innumerable brown youngsters about getting over humps and falls, and the effects of being hungry all the time; and several young girls who had already had too large a share of suffering and sorrow in their lives. Then I saw the schools, kindergartens, normal, tea making, carpentering, weaving and brass, where so many children, first cared for by Dr. Bissell, in the hospital, have stayed to grow up into self-reliant men and women. I heard, too, some of the tales which become part of the experience of every white man who lives long in these tropical services rendered as everything from administration of justice to matchmakers for families whose sons and daughters have not yet found suitable mates.

In Paris, this last month, I've been mixing shops and museums in pleasant doses with Eleanor Stimson (1906), and just at present Bertha Hart (1909) and Ruth Hart (1904), and I am astounding simple Swiss peasants with a somewhat original German, when we ask the way to our hotel which we have lost while climbing the many mountains.

I haven't mentioned yet the Boston gentleman, met in Madras, whose name is quite familiar to those of us who used to go in search of dry statistics. When I told him where I had heard of him, I received this reply which has in it, I think, a morsel of food for thought: "So you are from Wellesley! Well, you can live it down!"

Most sincerely yours,

MARIAN KINNEY, (1904).

Care Thomas Cook & Son,
London, England, until September 1st.

MUSIC NOTES.

Wellesley College Service List. The Memorial Chapel.

Sunday Evening, October 13, 1907.

Service Prelude.
Procesional, 928.
Invocation.
Hymn, 851.
Service Anthem: "God Is Love." H. R. Shelley.
Psalm 80. (Gloria Patri.)
Scripture Lesson.
Address.
Prayer.
Choir: "Saviour, Again to Thy Dear Name." Terry.
Capriccio Allegretto in E.
"The Answer."
Prayers (with choral responses).
Recessional, 813.
The Wellesley College Choir.
Associate Professor Hamilton, Organist.
The date of the pianoforte recital by Harold Bauer in the Artist Recital series is January 20, 1907—not February 20, as advertised on the notices.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The Millinery and Handwork Departments of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union announce a sale to be held at the Wellesley Inn, on Monday, October 14th, from 2 until 10 P.M.

Hats and negliges in choice designs, needlework creations in many fashions. Everything a real girl wants. From dainty, useful articles to silver chains and rings.

AUTOMOBILE TRIPS

TO

Wayside Inn, Concord and Lexington, Harvard College, Echo Bridge and other points of interest.

Large Car. Seats Seven. Competent Chauffeur.

F. L. HARRIS

WELLESLEY,

Tel. 23-7

Amateur Photography, Developing & Velox Printing.
Orders may be left with Mr. Ellis' Express Office, College.

MISS SADIE E. ELLIS.

GLOVES, VEILINGS, NECKWEAR, SHOES, Etc.

INVITE INSPECTION OF THEIR COLLECTION OF GOWNS, TAILORED SUITS, DRESSES, OUTERGARMENTS, MUSLIN UNDERWEAR, CORSETS, MILLINERY, WAISTS, HOSIERY, GLOVES, VEILINGS, NECKWEAR, SHOES, Etc.

ALXANDER CO.
352 to 362 Boylston Street, Boston,

NEWS