Quarterm-Centennial Meeting of Collegiate Alumnae.

A brief account of the Quarterm-Centennial meeting of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, and especially of the afternoon spent at Wellesley, may be of interest to Wellesley students and Alumnae. This is the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Association, and as it was founded in Boston and incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, the annual meeting of the Association was held in Boston, November 5th to 9th, by invitation of the Boston Branch. Every effort was made to make the occasion a memorable one in the history of the Association, and the program included speeches of prominence and distinction from different sections of the country. The meetings open to the public were held on Tuesday evening, Wednesday evening and Friday evening. President Hazard made an address of welcome at the opening meeting on Tuesday evening, held at the Boston Public Library.

On Monday evening, November 4, the New England Women's Club received the resident and visiting members of the Association at the Grundmann Studios, Clarendon street. On Tuesday afternoon, the Association and its guests were entertained by the College Club of Boston at the Club House, from four to six o'clock. Wednesday morning, there were excursions to places of historical interest around Boston and Concord, and visits to the Institute of Technology, Boston University, Simmons College, the Museum of Fine Arts and the Boston Public Library. Thursday afternoon the Boston Branch entertained the members in Cambridge. A special car started from the Public Library, going directly to the Craigie House, where the members were received by the invitation of Miss Alice M. Longfellow. At a visit was then made to the Harvard College Library, and to the Harvard Observatory, where women have special opportunities for advanced work. By invitation of the authorities of Radcliffe College, the members visited the halls of residence, Bertram Hall and Grace Hopkins Eliot Hall, from 4:30 to 5:30, and met at Agassiz House for supper at 6 o'clock.

On Friday afternoon the Association visited Wellesley College. The delegation was met at the station, and conducted through the college grounds in barges. All of the houses on the campus were open, and special stops were made at the Whiton Observatory, the Houghton Memorial Chapel, Billings Hall and the Art Building. They reached College Hall about four o'clock, and were received in the Brown- ing room by President Hazard, Mrs. Durant and Miss Pendleton. Refreshments were served in Center and in the Faculty Parlor. Late in the afternoon a special train carried the delegation back to Boston.

On Friday evening, after the session at the Hotel Somerset, a reception was given by the Boston Branch to the visiting members and alumni, at 7:45 P.M., the Boston Branch entertained the visitors at a luncheon served at the Hotel Somerset.

Christian Association Meeting.

At the meeting of the Christian Association, Thursday, November 7, several of the people who went to Silver Bay gave different phases of the message of the conference. The first to speak, after Miss Shonk, the leader, was Miss Love. She brought out very clearly that the spirit of Silver Bay is characterized by cheerfulness, unselshiness, sincerity and willingness to help others, as well as by the good-fellowship arising from the common interest and purpose. Then Miss Stevenson spoke of the outdoor life of the many opportunities for boating or walking, of the different sports, such as we have here, and finally of College Day, when all the girls come together socially, and show by songs and costumes which is their Alma Mater. Miss McFarland next told us something about missions, and Miss Cushman reminded us that the difficulties which we meet at Silver Bay or anywhere are going to make us stronger, better women. Another of the benefits of the Conference was brought out by Miss Anna Brown, when she spoke of the inspiration and help it brings to a girl to see, know and talk to the leaders at Silver Bay and the girls from other delegations. Then Miss Burns told us of the meetings there, and the attitude of the girls toward these: how that each girl went, not from a sense of duty, but because she wished to hear the special message which each meeting was sure to bring. The next speaker was Miss Wallower, who gave the message which Bible study brought to her. The last message of the evening was given by Miss Pfeifer in answer to questions which might arise in the girls' minds as to the possibility of so large a delegation's being united in purpose. The key to the solution is prayer. It was in all and through all, in play as well as work, in the contests, in the committee meetings, in the Bible classes, and in the platform meetings.

The Conference brings out very forcibly the joy of loving service, and we hope that those who have not had the privilege of being there, will feel that no life is so truly happy as that which is consecrated to the service of Jesus Christ.

THE HARVEST DANCE.

Although we all know that Wellesley is a place where "no matter what you wear, you'll always find someone else wearing the same thing," we must admit that some fashions were strikingly worn at the Barn Saturday night. Overalls were the evening dress for gentlemen, not quite correct unless broad straw hats were added. Some of the ultrafashionable smoked corn-bob pipes, and the more gallant carried bow. Coquetish, blushing ladies acted quite unconscious of their two-button kid gloves, graceful veils and elegant bows, and chatted kindly with ladies in gingham aprons. Black mammies and their "ole men" romped gleeingly through the assembly of fashion; pert boys flirted with shy little girls; and those who were hopelessly out of fashion made note of the others' gay costumes.

A hardy gurdy played for the dancers to bump and romp through the hall. Overhead apples and doughnuts hung within reach of the ladies' hands and gentlemen's mouths—little girls could run to the platform and tables to find big heaps of them. Distinguished guests watched the dancing. Tweedledee and Tweedle-dee, always ready to quarrel, and Sir John Hopkins in blithe humor. Is it any wonder that the farmer lads and lasses had a jolly time?

THE CONSUMERS' LEAGUE.

The Consumers' League wishes to state in answer to the many questions that have been asked, that the reason we did not have a table on Pay Day is not owing to our being in a dead, dying, or comatose state, but because we decided not to have the annual canvass for new members until January this year. Our main object is not to have a large membership who have joined and paid their quarters just to get rid of the canvassers. We want every girl in college to belong to the league because she realizes so clearly what it stands for that she can't stay out of it. We don't ask for you to decide now; but we do ask every Wellesley girl who means anything when she says, "I'm going to be a consumer," to look with seeing eyes at the girls and the little messenger boys, and cash girls who are ministering to us in the most hidden and especially during the coming "holiday rush," as it is called. Try and put yourself in their place so that when you are asked to join the league after Christmas you can at least be ready to answer thoughtfully and intelligently whether you want to belong or not.

EDITORIAL.

As we all know, (and many of us to our sorrow,) that college girls are continually being criticized, either directly or vaguely, sometimes in fun and often in all seriousness, it may be interesting to trace why it is so. One can hardly go anywhere without hearing, "Why are you a college girl, can’t you do that?"—"that," including innumerable things, anything, in fact, from cooking a dinner to playing rag-time.

When the college girl goes home the family expect wide, accurate and immediate information upon almost any subject; her friends expect her to be able to carry out a dozen practical projects with enthusiasm and efficiency, and others stand ready to pass judgment upon her manners and general deportment. So much is expected of her that she feels as if she were in a "class by herself," and had a difficult standard to maintain, and, what is more, one that is not of her own choosing. A college education is a great opportunity, but it cannot, and ought not to be expected to do everything.

The other day two girls, unmistakably college girls, were coming out from Boston.

One boarded the train, dashed ahead of the other, and elbowed her way to the front of the car. Her friend had been crowded into the car behind, and presently the passengers in both carriages were edified to hear No. 1 shriek back to No. 2 (back through the entire length of one car to the next) "Here Maude, here's a seat!"

One gentleman turned to another: "How can the college permit such things?" he said in disgust.

The gentleman had a right to be disgusted but he ought not to have considered the college responsible. The college does not teach deportment, either for train, street or parlor—the individual is responsible for that. Although, alas, the reprehensible conduct of one girl will reflect discredit upon the whole college. The truth of the matter is that the college should not be held accountable for every deficiency of its thousand members, and neither should each girl feel it necessary to proclaim herself a fully developed and thoroughly educated woman at the end of her four years' course. Not that we do this consciously, or realize that by a thousand little turns and tricks that we are continually making evident that we are "college girls," and therefore have a right to be exempt from many demands, and have a claim to peculiar privileges.

We do do this, and this is why so much is expected of us that we cannot fulfill. It is better to be oneself, as an individual than a "college girl." The girl who is modest, willing to listen to others and interested in their interests, who says by her attitude, if not by words—"College has but shown me how little I know and how much there is to learn," the girl who realizes that her faults and virtues are as much, and even more, the result of her own character and home-training—such girl neither brings discredit to her college, nor finds herself overwhelmed by the expectations of the world.

COLLEGE NOTES.

On Saturday evening, November 2, the Class of 1910 held a Rally at the Barn. Doughnuts, cider and a general good time were the order of the evening.

On Saturday evening, November 2, at T. Z. E. House, was held the first meeting of the Deutsche Verein. A long table was set in the center of the room and around it sat the guests of honor, Mrs. Münsterberg and her two daughters and niece, the Misses Münsterberg, a few members of the Faculty and a few fortunate students. The rest of the Association sat around the room, and everybody ate sausages. Miss Dorothy Pope, president of the organization, gave the welcoming address, setting forth the ideals of the Verein, asking for co-operation—urguing everybody to pay their dues. Miss Frida Semler then toasted The Guests. Fraulein Miller began her speech by saying that she would speak on a subject that lay very near to all of us, and one that might pursue some of us into our deepest dreams—the German Sausage. Fraulein Miller showed what a great part it had played in the affairs of Germany, and how it permeates German proverb. Mrs. Münsterberg spoke on the hospitality of the Deutsche Verein and hoped that some day it might have a club house of its own. Then she toasted the "Club House." Fraulein Miller replied that we cannot have a club house until we have ten or twenty thousand dollars. Mrs. Münsterberg then toasted "The Man who will give us the Twenty Thousand Dollars.” The meeting closed with the singing of German songs.

On Monday, November 4, from 2 to 5 P.M., at the Barn, occurred the 1909 Class Social. It was the usual meeting, greeting and eating.

One of the Artist Recitals, a song recital by Mr. David Bispham, was given in College Hall Chapel on Monday evening, November 4. The program was as follows:

Waltz—Caprice, "Man lebt nur Einmal." Strauss-Tausig Mr. Smith.

For one encore Mr. Bispham sang the wonderful "Edward" of the Percy Reliques, which a limited number of tickets may be obtained from the Zoology Department.

...to find a better definition of it than that it is a vague feeling of longing and admiration for someone, which may be expressed either by silent adoration, or by profuse and lavish gifts. It seems to be quite the proper thing for every Freshman to have a "crush" on an upperclassman, for several Sophomores have told me with due pride about their experiences last year, and seemed heartily to pity those who are not following their example.

The most peculiar part of it is that although a girl may even boast about her former "crushes," she is extremely sensitive to any remarks during her infatuatation.

Psychologically I cannot account for this strange condition unless it is an inherited instinct from the ancient hero-worship. It seems almost a crime to contaminate the beauty and simplicity of friendship by such a farce, and I hope that the Class of 1910 will have the moral courage to resist any such repugnant tendency.

A cablegram recently received announces the death at Madura, India, of Miss Bessie Browning Noyes, sister of Rev. Charles L. Noyes, pastor of the Winter Hill Congregational Church of Somerville. Miss Noyes was, with her sister, Miss Mary Noyes, in charge of a girls' high and normal school conducted by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. She had many friends in this city and vicinity, all of whom were interested in the great work which she was doing and who will learn of her death with many regrets. A month ago Miss Noyes was stricken with fever, and it is presumed her death resulted from this attack. No details have as yet been received. Miss Noyes was the daughter of Rev. T. J. Noyes, who with his wife, was serving at the time of her birth as a missionary at Madura, and who were valued workers of many years' service. She was born July 20, 1869, and graduated at Wellesley College, 1882. After leaving college she was for a year a teacher in the South, under the American Missionary Association. After that she went back to Madura and, with her sister, took charge of the Madura Girls' Normal School. Miss Noyes had two furloughs, the last of which ended when she returned to her work a year ago. (From the Boston Transcript.)
