MISS CASSWELL

The College received word by radiogram on Saturday afternoon of the death of Miss Mary Casswell of Boston. Miss Casswell's friends will recall that Miss Casswell left New York January 30 no one at the Clash Crusoes for a long anticipated and finely earned vacation. The news, as Miss Casswell's name appeared in the columns of the newspapers confirming fact that Franklin K. Lane was dead, bringing with it the news that Miss Casswell, who had been a staunch supporter of the clash crusades, had died. At some later time Miss Casswell's many friends will have an opportunity to pay their respects to her remains and to her devoted service to the college, looking forward to spending more than forty years.

Question: What do you think of the honor system?

I think the honor system is a good idea gone bad. The over-abundance of rules seems to me one unnecessary and inconsiderate. A major spoofer: the whole concept of the Honor system is really a benevolent one, but our spoofer is the products of all rules and seems ill-advised. A minor spoofer: junior is the only one who seems to be completely honest, and even that is very much of the minority. Present is an appeal to reason, and whether it is just, it is hard to say.

A junior: students: Americans are not so honest as we have always supposed. It is only the younger students that complain.

VENUS MAY BE VIEWED BY ALL THOSE INTERESTED MARCH 18

The Whiteh Halls Observatory will be open to all members of the college to see the planet Venus if the sky be clear Thursday morning, March 18, from 7:45 a.m. to 8 a.m. at the fruit house. The planet will be a little more than 3 degrees west of the moon and in the eastern horizon. If the sky be clear it will be shown within one hour.

NICHOLAS LEVITSKI BRINGS TO COLLEGE HIS BRILLIANT ART

One of the most youthful and romantic figures on the musical horizon today is Nicholas Levitiski, who will appear at Wellesley under the auspices of the concert on March 18. Although he is only twenty-two years old, Levitiski has been hailed as one of the greatest of living artists, and has already been chosen as the "fifth to the Fifteenth" in the world of music.

SCOPE OF THE BOOK

Wellesley: a so-called "self-taught" artist, he is possessed of a truly extraordinary combination of gifts, which he has developed with the greatest of enthusiasm. His music is characterized by a unique combination of melody, harmony, and rhythm, which has been described as "the true beauty of music." Levitiski's performances are characterized by a depth of feeling and a sensitivity to the emotions of his audience that is rare in today's musical world.

The posthumous concert of the famous soprano, Dusolina Gianiani, will be held tonight in the college auditorium, at 8 p.m. She was a member of the college's musical group and is remembered fondly by her friends.

VARIETY MAKES SHORT PLAYS CHOSEN FOR BARN ARTS

The three short plays selected by the Barns and for the Barn Arts for the coming season are: "The Barnyard" by Joseph Barlow, "The Barnyard" by Joseph Barlow, and "The Barnyard" by Joseph Barlow.
In planning the work for this year, the society Alpha Kappa Chi has departed from the usual practice of presenting a Greek tragedy at the annual semi-open meeting, to which the citizens of the United Society; and has chosen instead a Latin comedy. The Play is Menander's The Banquet by Plautus, which will be presented by the society on March 26.

The plot of the play has its background in the same situation which Shakespeare used as a basis for his Comedy of Errors. A Sicilian merchant had twin sons, each of them had been stolen. To the boy who was left at home was given the name of the other brother; Messrs.: and this boy, after he grew up, began searching for his brother. At last he came to Ephesus, where his stolen brother had been brought up. The complications of the play center around the fact that everyone takes the stranger for their own infant-clown (Sicilian) and he is not addressed by the family name of his brother.

Mrs. Haas, who is a member of A. K. X., is costing the play; Miss Forget and Miss Miller of the Laten Department are also in a position to furnish valuable aid to the soci-

SOCIAL DANCING NEEDS MORE ATTENDANCE TO BE CONTINUED

There will be social dances at Alumnae Hall on Saturday, March 12. Girls should be present and everyone is urged to attend. Money is being raised on the dances, and the committee in charge says that unless they are better supported, the institution will have to be abandoned.

When "dane" dancing was really dancing in the dormitories and had to come in 1941, complete of the second condition of the floor and the early part of spring it was made.

Note that the new extended and an ample floor provided, it seems a pity that the dances cannot be continued.

Y. W. C. A. ENROLLS WELLESLEY GIRLS FOR CAMP COUNCILLORS

Two Young Women's Christian Association buds recently visited Wellesley last week in order to enroll Wellesley undergraduate counselors as counselors in Y. W. C. A. camps. Miss Parks of the New York Y. W. C. A. was visited by the women in order to obtain counselors for the camp in the four camps under her supervision.

The association maintains a similar Girls Camp and also a camp for colored girls in Pullman Intermont State Park, New York. There are four camps for high school and grade school girls at Pine Mountain, New York. Very few of the camps are under the control of the national, but camp workers receive eight dollars a month as well as room and board. The workers must have the ability to work with both the people and in the post of and camp store.

Since Allen is particularly interested in the national Y. W. C. A. camps, Manager and Correspondent at the national camp various conferences, such as the New England Students Conference and the Girl Reserve Conference, was entertained last year.

Most of the regular persons at the camp are better paid because the average age of the campers is twenty-six, and the Y. W. C. A. insists that the counselor be at least twenty years of age and have received junior rank in college.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE NEWS
the rapid increase in modern library facilities for college graduates, and college graduates with special training, makes the library profession a highly desirable profession for college graduates. This fact is emphasized by Miss Jean Doneley, director of the school of library science at Simmons College, who spoke under the sponsorship of the American Library Association. Information. Wednesday afternoon, March 2, Miss Doneley pointed out some of the various types of work to be found in the library professions such work to be found in college and university libraries; “library workers” in these parts of the country which do not necessarily demand library training. Americanization work in foreign and domestic libraries, and work with children in practically all city public libraries. The speaker added that many of the students who are entering the field of library work are often interested in the future possibilities of the profession and which they most desire.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHY DESCRIBES ATTEMPT TO REACH EVEREST

The archaeological and unknown country where a mysterious people live in small villages on windswept, desolate plateaus thousands of feet above the sea level, where the horizon is bounded always by snow-covered highest mountains in the world, a country of extremes of heat and cold, was revealed to those who heard Captain John Bigelow Noel speak Tuesday night, March 2, in Alumni Hall. Captain Noel was the official photographer of the Mount Everest Expedition of 1931, and in this capacity was well qualified to describe the heroic effort to conquer one of the world's unscalable regions. In one whose little means for exploration to discover in this world, the attempt to reach the summit of Mount Everest, "the top of the world," is the biggest task which has been undertaken in modern days.

Within 600 Feet of Summit

Mount Everest, named probably after the surveyor-general of India under whose guidance it was discovered, is the highest mountain in the world, rising to an altitude of 29,002 feet above the sea level. If we at the east-central end of the Himalayan range, the nearest town, Darjeeling, being 8,860 feet above the sea. So clear is the atmosphere of the tropics, that its summits can be seen from a distance of 250 miles in a straight line. Captain Noel tried to reach the mountain before the war, but found it impossible on account of the hostility of the Tibetans.
However, in 1931 the Tibetans gave permission, and in 1932 the first climbing expedition was made to test the altitude. Members of this expedition reached a height of 25,500 feet using oxygen. In the last expedition a height of 29,002 feet was reached without oxygen, and two men, using oxygen, came within 406 feet of the summit. These men, Mallory and Irvine, just seen climbing step by step 600 feet from the summit, were covered from view by the snow while whirling around the summit of Everest at the rate of 150 miles an hour, and never returned.

Some Facts about Mount Everest

Many strange superstitions cluster around Mount Everest. The Tibetans know the mountains as a beautiful woman, the mother of the world. They know it also as the "abode of their gods," and believe it is possessed of spirits.
The Tibetan minds in the last moment at which the white men stopped — which is the highest monastery in the world—denounced that the gods would never permit a white man to reach the summit of Everest. Captain Noel denied that he was informed to believe these strange Tibetan superstitions—Mallory and Irvine did just reach the top, and Irvine was never died on the expedition. The mountain seems to have brought against the white men, and to have won in the struggle of nature against man.

Pictorial Print Impressions of Country

Captain Noel’s fine pictures gave in a manner which no other medium could give, the atmosphere and spirit of that strange country, Tibet. They showed limbs of red Tibetan villages, the primitive customs of the people, of extraordinary monasteries built on the edges of rocks radiating at the end of a desert, sending an internal part of the rocks from which they rose. Pictures of the progress of the expedition, showing the making of ramps and the situation of the various camps gave an idea of the great difficulty of the un-taking. Captain Noel’s finest pictures were views of the summit of Mount Everest taken from different angles, and giving changing effects of light and shadow, of mists and clouds playing around the peak.
