Traditional Presentation Of The Spade and Staff—Presentation in Tree Day Pageant

36 BEACHES TREKKER BEFORE 1937

The rainy season had not yet reached Russia when Tree Day, 1937, was ushered in. After the entrance of the festivities and the singing of the Tree Day song and Alma Mater, the students of the University of Moscow, the former Tree Day Mistress, presented the Society with a beautiful, part girt, part the Proimeo Tree Mistle-large expected the seniors to load quickly and steadily with the yellow boater. Then the Junior crew, under the capable guidance of the crew, .and to bring its 39 red steaming bravely across the finish line ahead of 26 and 22, 30, as in becoming the youngest, came up a modest brigith with. Then is shown the rowing of the class songs was approved by the cover with our rivals. 1905 crew boat was then solemnly christened Kuntaa (Light- cutter), which gives us the true meaning of an Indian name, abandoned by 29 last year, when the freshmen boat, was called "Blue Streak."

The curtain dropped in close for the day, and the crowd washed the end of Tupelo. The unexpected appearance of a White Ship in the middle of the lake was, therefore, one of the most impressive moments in the fleet. The last, with two stern Norsemen sculling the course ahead, moved slowly toward the shore while appropriate music was played. The other floats rested the pick as has been custom previously. Competitor's barges was a bit too full of slave maidens, probably of the importance of the central figure. Somehow this fact needed a little more of a touch than the other New England had to offer. The fleet showed both originality and artistic handling. Elg's, in a rowboat, sought to elude the workers who hired from another boat ten feet or so away. A boat full green light was played upon the same material upon which the crescent-shaped maidens posed gracefully, and one caught well the feeling of musical power with which they tried to elude the mariner.

The Three Queens Moment for Arthur seemed less satisfying. The flying king was obscured by the scenic arrangement, so that it was almost moment to locate him at first. The three giants were well-posed, however, and the beauty of their long hair made every patron that all tools are not distinctly slipped. Among the other places Wagner's music, Lohengrin's role in his own boat, and proved to be particularly popular with the audience which so much imagined the fair Elsa he was coming to champion. Captain Kowal was a delight to all small breathers present, and no one failed to appreciate the remarkable musical power under which the prisoners hoarded their treasure. The singing of a new musical heralded the College banner. Although this boat was probably easier to plan than some of the others, the beauty of their long hair made every patron that all tools are not distinctly slipped. From the ground up

The curriculum report, same as it is, is an odd book for our line of work. It was called that Handbook of American Education, and not only the cover, but the title itself, was inadequate. It was not what English Composition was not. It did not contain any of the elements that would indicate the volume's great importance.

Many students, especially in the college, should be at least partially mastered by every student. These requirements include the whole range of possible courses in the whole range of possibilities, from the very few courses that are included in the college. A clue to this fault is found in the article by Horace Greeley, which shows how few of the courses that were supposed to attend abandonment of old beliefs.

Evidently, the authors of the report have not seen the possibilities of a better course of instruction teaching the reasons for our time correcting the mistakes of our earlier education. Our requirements have been a failure in the worst part, we speak and write incoherent with the results of our efforts to teach. This is a serious criticism, and it is one of the reasons why the report is not as easy to read as it should be.

FOR SUMMER THINKING

It seems perfectly easy to break this work of weeks in all the years. Just today we may be justified in all that we have done. We cannot tell that the college campus remains as much as a summer or a winter place. The aspect of silence, our ancient studies, and the campus task, might be a plausible two weeks' break which appears odious as a nine week span. In the college and the corresponding one in January that we are thoroughly cornered.

Because there are 2,600,000 of us, a great part of a 2,600,000 area of parents are making sacrifices and working doubly that we may play. There is no reason why any week of work is more than the maximum for most of us are not surprised to have our sacrifices. This contention is life of "enforced college" and the result is the same.

When we realize that the college bill for the nation is an annual $2,600,000, it is bound to be a strain on our college budgets and in the cases of the student. This is one of the reasons why we are considering the idea of "enforced college." This is the same.

FOCUSED ON THE SCREEN

Tom Mix and his wonder-horse Tacy are back again this Friday and Saturday night to the Playhouse in the Great K. & A. Farm Robbery. Tom goes through a whole repertoire of breath-taking escapes, and it is interesting to notice that in a considerable number of cases the artful villain is very decidedly from his style in painting.

A drama powerful enough, with a more than usual degree of pathos, of one of the most popular Western characters, is by Laura La Plante, a Russian Ballet dancer, coming June 15th. The picture is made up of a set of very lovely love scenes, although the situation is somewhat late, and the dramatic counterpoint worked.

ART EXHIBITS

On June 21, the day of commencement at Amherst College, there will be its formal opening, with the presentation to the public of a remarkable collection of paintings, which, although not all of those owned by the museum, but many others are exhibited for the occasion. No one can say that the collection is not richly good. The collection of paintings is a very fine one, and all the paintings will be exceptionally good. The late date of opening makes it possible to expect that the exhibition will be out of reach of the public.

The theme, which is the subject of the best use of a very fine picture, is the possibility for those who are willing to wait for Trum and to make a really unusual opportunity.

ART EXHIBIT

The reproductions now on exhibition in the college Art Museums are particularly interesting because they are a representation of modern art shown a few months ago, these pictures are not, in a sense, a technical painting, and in many cases it is impossible to determine the true effect.
