REPUBLICAN

CHARLES CURTIUS of Kansas

Born on a Kansas prairie as a Kaw chief as an ancestor, Curtius has made himself known to the Republican narrow part of the Middle West, the farmers' friend, he presents himself as a safe and sane candidate for the presidency of the conservative Republican davour, the high protective tariff and the prosecution of American
The government is at work for his rehabilitation and for his ability to vote an argument. He has done nothing in a brilliant manner, but he has downed domestic bills, mostly personal bills, and steady popularity, should succeed in Kansas.

CHARLES G. DAVIES of Illinois

"There can be no reaction to the right that is not the right reaction," one
Vice-President Charles Court Dixon
Davies said in his campaign address,
characteristic of his supreme freethinkness and of his firm belief that right always triumphs. This Distinguished politician, railroad banker, one-time Comptroller of the Currency, has risen from a lawyer in Lincoln, Nebraska, through a variety of successes well known to the public to a standing arms and the liberty, although he disclaims all interference in its running. The recent outstanding achievements of his strong personality are the famous Davis Refrigeration Plan, and his philanthropic work in convincing both the Corn Belt and the Western states of the value of being trussed up by their embattling interests. He is regarded today as the figure most responsible for this.

FRANK O. LOWDEN OF ILLINOIS

Governor Lowden, in the public eye
for eight years as worthy of holding the office of president, has never accepted an office unless he was assured of real constructive work to be done.
Elected in 1910 to be governor of Illinois, he became one of the great statesmen of the country.

He is in the state administrative branch of politics, where the number of state departments and bureaus from 12 to 9, and the adoption of a progressive system of better administration of the state affairs before the Federal interest in matters of the people's business is more than in the world, have served as model for many reform programs. On the Foreign Afcial, formerly the House of Representatives, he is recognized as one of the most able American statesmen and congressional leaders.

Today he stands as champion of the federal demanding equality of opportunity and honest co-operative mar-ting. "He is always doing things a lot of people want done."

FRANK E. WILLS OF OHIO

Of New England ancestry, Wills was born on an Ohio farm. In 1871 he became a Democrat in politics. In 1879
he was elected to the Senate, after having placed Harding in nomination. He is an unimpeachable democrat, and believes the difficulty of the farm problem lies in the marketing and in the control of co-operation. He is decidedly opposed to the League of Nations. In his opinion the democracy in the world will be the continuance of Coligbe's policies of government.
"The party machinery needs a change, as does the country's business.
Business-like administration of the government, as it is proposed in the present program," he said.

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE!

BALLOT ON FRONT PAGE!
THE BLESSING OF LUCK!

With the announcement of major scholarships for the fall, our minds turn eagerly to the new year. The news is a child dear to our hearts, but we also do it defensively, for we know that our luck has been restricted. We look forward to a year of success and progress for the NEW.

That success, however, does not depend solely upon our achievements. It is important that the College—students, faculty, administration, and all—celebrate and give credit to the board in making the NEWS a living force in the College. Each one of us should treat the NEWS fairly as a means for the expression of opinions, for the understanding of views of students, alumni, faculty, administration, on any question, or as a means of informing others. The NEWS should be a tool to the College—help the NEWS by using it equitably, and we will feel the bountiful feelings of relief from responsibility—a relief that is enhanced by our confidence in the ability of the new editors. To them we all must say:

NICARAGUAN QUESTION DEMANDS MORE INFORMATION

To the Wellesley College News:

It is quite true that the "Nicaraguan Question document" is now one month old. Those of us who are interested in the situation in Nicaragua have been greatly interested in the activities of the Nicaraguan government, and we appreciate the efforts of the government to improve the situation in that country.

We have been informed that the Nicaraguan government is working hard to improve the economic situation in the country. This is a positive development and we hope that the government will continue to work towards this goal.

SERVICE FUND CONTRIBUTION TO HELP CITE UNIVERSITARIA

This letter received by the Service Fund should prove interesting to many students.

"Madam,

"We have just received the check for $50.00 that is being used by the Service Fund of Wellesley College, and we wish to offer our most heartfelt thanks.

"Through this gift the American students will be enabled to maintain their happy reconciliation of their French contrates and they at the Cité Universitaire.

"We will kindly remember to use the Service Fund for other purposes, or to be used by the Service Fund of Wellesley College, and we wish to express our appreciation to you for your generosity.

"Very truly yours,

"R. D. M."

JUNIOR MONTH REMINISCENCES FROM THE VICTORIAN VICEROY

Other colleges have been writing stories about past events and activities, and it is time for us to do the same. The story of the Victorian Viceroy is one that has been neglected in the past.

"It would be wonderful to tell about Junior Month in terms of black and white photos. It is true that few Little Rich Girls stumbled upon the facts of the Victorian Viceroy, and if there is one realization that came born to us more than any other, it is that black and white pictures are usually more data, more interesting, more accurate and more reliable. No two people have the same background, or the same reaction to a situation. And it is true that poverty exists, that man and woman, in their own way, are building a New York in tenement rooms that seem inevitable, and that they have the same troubles, the same needs, the same dissatisfactions, absurdities, like other people. The idea is that they should be treated as we would never have applied to go in Junior Month; it would have been a queer colony which would have been left at the end of three years unaware of one of the most vital qualities of community life.

"But it is a long jump from an essay to a poem. It is the standard of living and the problem of populations that have been brought by families who can see no future way to back on it. It was an essay to tell telling details of their living that caught us up. I saw one entire family frantic and helpless because a government crisis, and then a sudden change from a dollar purchase, a dollar purchase, a dollar purchase, on those twenty-five cents and the uptown plan for their whole life.

"A second, even more important relation deepened in our minds as we sat in the room, waiting for the next exhibition, the people, about the people we saw, so poor or ill or in the same position as we, whose lives were tamer: the surface. It was the realization of the infinite, vary—

"The making of every person—Grosjean, Croesus—must be considered by the one who is to give it lending, constructive help.

"It is the knowledge that when Mr. Wilson describes his family, there is more involved than his lack of boldness of responsibility to the thinnest of his pay envelope, or even his earning power—more than his edible temper or the rheumatism that sets in after forty years—than his knowledge and experience and come into play and pass the information and effort together, the whole picture into consideration cannot be hoped to be so any real help.

"We have always been away from Junior Month a wide, wide world, but the longer we live, the more we are struck by the words of social class, a fresh and hopeful view of the social method which is used in working in other words, and a sounder, better proportioned basis for our own standards, a more real understanding to bring to our personal relationships and all our dealings with other people.

OPENINGS IN FIELD OF ART

By Mr. Ralston Purinton

Mr. Ralston Purinton speaks of the opportunity that art offers in the present day world in a manner that reflects the essential nature of the field.

PERSONALITY PLAGUES NEEDED IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION WORK

Dr. William J. Albers, Director of the Physical Education Department of Wellesley College, has been critical of the present state of physical education in many respects. He attributes this to the lack of interest in the subject among students and the need for personal involvement in the development of the field.

AGGERA ANALYZES YOUTH IN "THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH"

Faculty, students and alumni attended a presentation of "The Goose Hangs High" by Aggera Society Friday and Saturday evening, March 9 and 10, as three performances were presented under the direction of Barry Coplan. The play was produced and presented by Barry Coplan, the younger generation in connection with Aggera's role in campus debate during the American youth movement.

The play, written and produced entirely by Barry's friend and associate, Helen Philpott, was directed and enacted by Barry Coplan with the support of fellow students, all of whom made their own contributions to the presentation in a series of two performances.

Yale University about to abandon its honor system

Another college seeks to solve the "honor system" problem.

"The Yale Faculty will have to take over the supervision of examinations. Dean Clarence W. Meehl told to-day after it became known that only 20 of the 1,098 students in the college had voted for the honor system under which students take examinations without being watched by their teachers.

"Of the 1,918 students, 168 favored a return to faculty supervision, 280 wanted the honor system retained and 900 wanted no supervision of any kind."

"The faculty turned the reins over to the students in the college and is in every way that they may have to lay them away again since the students have failed to take such influence in the system, the Dean said."
