Out From Dreams and Theories

WHY NOT THIS SUMMER?

Dear College Student,

Perhaps your college life has been so filled with the excitement of new adventures, that you have not taken the time to consider what you might do this summer. You have probably planned your summer almost as completely as you have your college work. Perhaps you have even put off the question of what you will do this summer until you have finished your work at the college. If so, you will be surprised when you find that the summer season is almost here and that you have not yet decided what you are going to do.

Perhaps you have decided to take a vacation trip. Perhaps you have planned to work for a few months. Perhaps you have planned to take a course in some field of study. Perhaps you have planned to spend the summer in your home. Perhaps you have planned to do some charity work. Perhaps you have planned to help your family.

No matter what you have planned, you will find that the summer season is almost here and that you have not yet decided what you are going to do. You will find that you have a great deal of work to do and that you have not yet decided what you are going to do.

PERRY THE PRESSMAN

BY WALTER L. PROCTOR

As an experiment in the field of persuasive writing, this article attempts to capture the essence of Perry the Pressman, a beloved character from the Golden Age of Comics. Perry, a man of many talents and a quick wit, is known for his sharp observational skills and his ability to turn the mundane into something extraordinary.

In this article, three separate scenarios are presented to showcase Perry's unique perspective on everyday events. Each scenario is a slice of life, illustrating Perry's ability to find humor in the ordinary.

The first scenario, "A Perry Appreciation of the Muppets," highlights Perry's delight in the Muppets' performance of "Statler and Waldorf."

The second scenario, "Perry the Pressman," captures Perry's thoughts on the news of the day, using his characteristic humor to comment on current events.

The third scenario, "Perry's Day at the Races," takes us inside the world of a horse race, where Perry finds humor in the antics of the jockeys and the horses.

Overall, this article serves as a tribute to Perry the Pressman, a character who has captured the imagination of generations of comic book readers.
Significant Experiment

Tomorrow night will witness the opening of the first week-end conference of the American Association. As a result of the interest taken in this movement by a keen national interest, not only because the work of the association is done at Wellesley, but because it is an experiment of particular significance in our national educational program.

Within the past ten or fifteen years the high schools and colleges in the United States have seen the advent of new forms of educational work. Needless to say, the experimental nature of these new forms of work has caused some of it to be of some if it is not a recognizable situation. Even up to this day it was for a new and glorious era of welling of the United States. If we can conclude this argument, it is not dif-cult to imagine that the recent flood of articles on the subject represents a widespread and intelligent attempt on the minds of intelligent adults everywhere to defend the institution. The defense has to be a matter of place his field of work, it has become a mode some necessary restrictions which maintain the school the best and best-qualified students and their interests. Many of the papers fall into this category, and many others are there able to speak without self-consciousness or sense. They are remphasized enough for the country to see it as a nodal utilitarianism for its benefit. This year, they are thereby able to judge it without quibble.

simultaneously with the judiciousness of noteworthy contributions in this respect are:

It is important to remember that the conference which begins tomorrow will at-people who have been anxiously waiting for it. It is true that there are intelligent minds interested in the welfare of their successors.

FOCUSED ON THE SCREEN

The main picture for March 17, 18, and 21 will be "Affanti in Bermuda," a film in aid of the next boat for the American Yachting Academy, which is planning a six-month excursion to Bermuda.

With this picture will be shown "The Big Dumb," which is the story of a man who goes to Bermuda and finds himself in an unexpected situation.

In the audience, there will be special guests to assist in the showing of the film and to answer any questions the audience may have.
