Out From Dreams and Theories

The School of Practical Arts — Teachers College offers a wide variety of professional programs in Home and Family Life for women, graduate, or undergraduate students who are interested in the principles and art of successful family life and the home. A full time program, or part-time study, in one or more of these courses may be undertaken and a Home and Family Life major program for the academic year in residence at the University of California is available.

WOMEN IN CHEMISTRY — An article of interest to students who wish to enter the field of chemistry is found in Industrial and Experiencing Chemical Education, Vol. XIV, No. 2. The types of occupations in chemistry such as teaching, governmental, editorial, and are discussed, as are the qualifications of salaries to graduate work and degrees. The information given is based on questionnaires filled out by 237 women chemists. A copy of the Journal may be found in the Personnel Reading Room.

omen in the League Secretariat — The following summary of an article in the Women's Work and Education gives some of the positions held by women in the Secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva. Lady Humphreys is at the head of a staff of 25 interpreters and translators, every one of whom is at home in English and French. In the group most of the European languages are represented, and some speak several languages. The work of the staff is taken down verbally in reports, and careful supervision is maintained. There is a training class and exams are given regularly.

Miss Gertrude D. Allen, an Englishwoman, edits the League's Official Journal and many other publications. A Swedish woman, Miss K. Rasmussen, is in charge of the Secretariat in London, dealing with books, radio signals, letter transmitters, language facilities, etc.

Prime Minister Poincare carried on close relations with women's organizations and made it possible to participate in the traffic in women and children.

Miss Edna de Boulogne is in the Osaka Section. She has had experience in the Polish diplomatic service in Paris, Scandinavia, London, and Berlin. Miss Oppenheimer, in the Minorities Section, supplements her native Dutch with many other languages. She reads the major newspapers and other publications which reflect the thinking of minorities in Poland, Roumania, and other countries, and translates and understands impecablv the position of the French.

Miss Alice M. Bell, one of the few Americans on the staff, is deputy librarian of the League.

The responsibilities of few other positions held by women, but the opportunities are limited through few are of sufficient importance. The secretaries and women in the Secretariat may be found in the Christian Science Herald, March 15, 22, and 29.

Student Employment — The following students have been appointed for summer positions and are for the years 1923-1924. Group I: January-June.

J. L. Henderson

The College wishes to express its sympathy to all the alumni who were present at the memorial service of Jean L. Henderson, a member of the Class of 1931, on and around the campus Wednesday evening, May 19. She succumbed within an hour after being stricken with what doctors diagnosed as an embolism.

She attended high school in Yoeville, New York, and continued her education at Wellesley in the fall of 1911. Her good sportsmanship and enthusiasm for the college won her for many of her friends here. She was particularly interested in people, their thoughts and their philosophies. A good disinterested discernment and brotherhood marked her to believe that nearly all things are possible.

A major in the Department of English, Miss Henderson was well versed in writing and frequently composed verse based on thought which she found in the college life. Her affectionate nature, her liking for personality, and her interest in the significance of individuals, led her in a wide range of subjects made for a valuable friend to all who knew her.

Attention, Millionaires!

Two weeks ago representatives of the seven leading women’s colleges of the West—Berkeley, Loretta, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar, and Wellesley—met here to discuss the important matter of securing a larger and larger contribution to the welfare of the public health of the nation and of the world. The three and one-half million women who attend college in the United States are the pride and envy of the country.

HEAD MAKES APPEAL FOR CO-OPERATION

"People don't want to read other people's dreams," has been the statement by which the Weekly Review, as it now stands, of Minds Capital

We are built on the assumption that every man has a collection of personal dreams, and that what we write is interesting to you, that what you write is interesting to us, we encourage the exchange of personal dreams. Our readers are encouraged to exchange dreams, jokes, and personal information. We feel that everyone has something to offer.

The average student of mathematics is likely to follow the straight road of formalism without stopping to explore or inquire about the many and various little by little paths that lead from it. Professor Emerson Helen Merril of the Wesleyan Mathematics Department at the University of Wisconsin published a book which the examiner to a guide-book for the learned who wants to see the road, not the signposts. It is a book rather than a handbook to be followed as a way to learning the subject. It is
