The Castellon Christina has received word that its newly elected president, Mary Elizabeth Blandan, who was a member of the faculty at Wellesley College as an undergraduate in Spain, has been offered the presidency of the highest honor society of foreign students. In February, she attended the annual meeting of the California Academy, where she was elected a Foreign Corresponding Member.

Officers of the Castellon Christina for 1933-34 are: President, Miss Margaret Stockman; Secretary, Miss Elizabeth Stanis; Treasurer, Miss Margaret Smith.

Wellesley wins True Scholar And Teacher as Miss Scudder Returns

Miss Vista Delton Scudder has returned to Wellesley after an absence of six years, when she accepted a position at the University of Virginia. Miss Scudder had been a member of the faculty there for four years, and had taught a course in English literature.

During her absence, Miss Scudder had been active in many literary and cultural activities, and had become known as an authority on English literature.

The Wellesley College community is delighted with her return, and welcomes her back with open arms.

The London group of workers at the Castellon Christina has been active in its efforts to support the Castellon Christinaétranger, a similar establishment in America. In the same year that Jane Addams opened Hull House, a group of American workers opened a similar institution in New York, acting as reformers and spokesmen to the lower classes.

Miss Scudder’s goal was to “do something to make the class” an aim which she had accomplished in the many succeeding years. Many of the workers at the Castellon Christina have contributed to her efforts.

In December, the college hosted a special dinner in honor of Miss Scudder, and the soirée was attended by many of her former students and colleagues.

The Castellon Christina is proud to have Miss Scudder as its new president, and looks forward to her continued success in leading the organization.

Label - Casablanca

The air is charged with the three initials, N.R.A. For months the witty young man has had a gold plate of the initials in front page of the nation's newspapers and magazines. It is the signpost of the public relations campaign that has been in progress or criticism for President Roosevelt's plan for national recovery. Those in the know are well acquainted with the NRA and working for its success. They are able to name off the back of their hand the amount of good they feel it is doing for the country. Others less accurately informed, but aware of the beneficial effects of the organization, are, unfortunately, a very small percentage of the free world.

How does the NRA achieve its goals? Article Seven of the Code and Six, Code of Fair Competition for ultimate substitute and standard conditions in the coal and oil industry, are the things that bear an NRA label, which shall be in evidence when the Statement is forthcoming. An important statement is reaffirmed by Article Nine, Section Two, of the Retail Code, which claims that the same problem, choice, or exchange may be merchandise manufactured under a Code of Fair Competition which requires such merchandise to bear an NRA label, while merchandise bears plain label.

This much has been done by the manufacturers, and as a result, efforts cannot be considered successfully made in the market place and the campaign will continue. And the latter goal should be considerably easier to reach. This is because the consumer who has the assurance that he will find a product of the same quality at a lower price will be more willing to try the product and it is the consumer who has the support of the entire organization in the country.

Perhaps it is not generally realized that theeat and apparel, as well as all home goods, are made without consultation, without respect to the opinions of women in the community.

Mrs. C. P. Maturin of the NRA has torn to pieces by this campaign that has taken the form of a merchandise, has a feeling of assurance that the consumer has had to be reached before the campaign will be successful, a person of the consumer to be reached.

For instance, EU Ten, or the Central of the Bureau of Education, and the consumer who has the support of the entire organization in the country.

MIRACLES will never occur—nor which observation, Perry tells the following incident. A girl by the name of Miss Winter was often very kind of doing morning stretches in the dormitory. She was frequently seen with a pair of shoes that had a much higher heel than normal. One morning, she was wearing her usual high-heeled shoes, which were quite uncomfortable. She decided to wear a pair of flat shoes instead and was surprised to find that she felt much more comfortable. From that day on, she made a habit of wearing flat shoes whenever she could. However, she still wore her high-heeled shoes during the weekends, as she felt they were more stylish.

The Peregrining Press

BOYNTON and other Borders bookstores take great pleasure in presenting our cover of this beautiful new novel by that woman of such knowledge of which we have been told. It is a true account of a young woman who was admitted to the savannah of Shardmoor in New York. She was there for a year before she was allowed to leave. Her name was Elizabeth and she had a close friend named Mary who was also at the institute. Elizabeth was very popular among her peers and was often seen wearing a matching hat and scarf set. She was also known for her love of nature and spent many hours studying the flora and fauna of the institute's grounds.

German Students Invite their American Friends

P. H. Perry was no stranger to the campus and its many clubs and activities. He was known for his enthusiasm and love of adventure. One day, he decided to join the photography club and soon became one of its most active members. He loved to capture the beauty of the campus and its surroundings, and his photos were often displayed in the student union. Perry was also a member of the debate team and was known for his quick wit and sharp mind. He was always ready to debate any topic that came up, and his intelligence and knowledge were respected by his peers.

GIRL SCOUTS NEED GRADUATE LEADERS

It has long since ceased to be regarded as only a temporary state that the majority of college women find themselves having to wait months or even a year after graduation before they become leaders in their selected field of work. Since more and more we have come to accept this fact as another of the manifestations of this age of today.

However, in this situation, we do not always take into consideration the fact that there are fields of voluntary work where the college trained woman is needed and from which she has a point of departure which may become an interested and valuable worker. I refer especially to the field of Girl Scouting. Organized as the Girl Scout work is, there is a desperate need for the young women who can work with young girls and like them; the young women who see in this exhibit a chance for inspiring the women of tomorrow; the young women who are able to the progressive forces around her, and who realize that in this work which is 90% volunteer the may become so interested that they may be willing to take further training with an executive position in view.

Most of us in honor of the Girl Scouts during our growing years, as a group in our school or church, and some of us maintain our contacts with them during our college years either through training courses offered by the Stanford education departments, by registering an associate Girl Scout or, in some instances, by assisting with troops in our college lines. But whatever relationship exists between the college woman and the Girl Scouts, or even if there is no established contact, the field of Girl Scouting will welcome her open arms it has the time to give to its activities.

All over the country there are Girl Scout troops in small towns and in cities, and there is a woman-wide plan for leadership. College training stands as the best basis for this work, and the numbers of women who are entering after graduation to find fields of work, surely the Girl Scouts should find the answer to their question of "Where may we find attractive, intelligent women to work with the girls?"

COUNCIL ANNOUNCES
STARTLING CHANGES

Luckies are All-Ways

kind to your throat

THE CLEAN CENTER LEAVES ARE THE MILDEST LEAVES
They Taste Better!

WHEREVER the finest tobaccos grow—in our own Southland, in Turkey, in Greece—all over the world, we gather the very choice of the tobacco leaves for Lucky Strike. And that means only the clean center leaves. The center leaves are the mildest leaves—they taste better and farmers are paid higher prices for them. These clean center leaves are the only ones used in making Luckies. Then "It's toasted"—firebreak protection. And very Luckies are filled packed with these choice tobaccos, made round, end, free from loose end and that's why Luckies "keep in condition"—why you'll find that Luckies do not dry out—an important point in every smoker. Naturally, Luckies are always all-way kind to your throat.

“It's toasted”

✓ Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat
Down where they grow tobacco.. in most places Chesterfield is the largest-selling cigarette

—what does that mean?

— it takes good things to make good things.
— the mild ripe tobaccos we buy for Chesterfield mean milder better taste.
— the way they are made means Chesterfields burn right and smoke cool.
— it means that down where they grow tobacco folks know that mild ripe tobaccos are bought for Chesterfields.

And because Chesterfields are made of the right kinds of tobacco, it is a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better. There is no substitute for mild, ripe tobacco.
