

College Notes.
Dr. Phillips Brooks conducted the service on Thursday, the Day of the Week for College, for the Birmingham students.

Some of the students have suggested the recent notice by alternating examinations with those from Boston and other colleges in the American Alps.

Mr. Lamson, of the American Alpine Club, is to give an address on the second evening, June 12, at the request of the faculty.

"Should Academic Business Be Forbidding?"
Miss L. E. Metcalf, '89, holds a position as a librarian in the College Library.

Mrs. Mary Jeffords Holscher, '84, will return tomorrow from Europe, but Mr. Holscher has received a call to a pastor's position in the latter part of the month.

There is a rumor at the Lawrence Academy, Prof. J. Q. Whiting, of Wellesley, who was at this academy last week on the subject of "The Constitution and its Relation to Education," and who was also a member of the committee of the scientific society of the academy.

"The Congress of American Socialists" was held in the Chapel Tuesday evening.

Dr. Proctor has been appointed to the presidency of the college.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Woodruff held a reception for their friends in Washington, D. C., June 7.

"The Effect of Indifference on the Mind of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.

"The History of the World" was the subject of a lecture given by Dr. W. A. P. Woodruff, of the divinity school, at the undergraduate club, June 9.
COLLEGE SOCIETIES.

The Social Need.

A LILY GRAY, W.N.

In an article which appeared in the "Daily Review" for January 18th, social societies were shown to be a properly admirable light for the young college student. It was stated in the "Review" that the college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.

The college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.

One of the prime reasons for the existence of such social activities would be to foster college spirit. If there were a well-defined program and if there were a definite plan of action, then the college student would be more likely to participate in these activities. It is important that the college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.

There is a great deal of college work which can be arranged on a social level. One of the main reasons for the existence of such social activities would be to foster the college spirit. If there were a well-defined program and if there were a definite plan of action, then the college student would be more likely to participate in these activities. It is important that the college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.

In an article which appeared in the "Daily Review" for January 18th, social societies were shown to be a properly admirable light for the young college student. It was stated in the "Review" that the college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.

The college student should be well versed in the art of making friends and should be well acquainted with the customs, interests, and social activities of his college.
I vant worthy of mention.

The Franciscan, the only Roman Catholic church which we visited, was the first to attract our attention as we entered St. Petersburg. The interior of the church was filled with light from the stained-glass windows, and the magnificence of its interior was enhanced by the sculpture and frescoes covering the walls and ceiling. The church was dedicated to St. Francis of Assisi and was constructed in the late 18th century in the style of the Roman Baroque.

I visited City of the Night, representing possibly the most famous and beautiful of the Holy Ghosts. The church was open late at night, and we were allowed to wander through its dimly-lit interior, where candlelight flickered softly, creating a mystical atmosphere. The architecture was impressive, with ornate columns and intricate carvings.

There were also a feeling of safety when the time came to leave this place. I felt content and at peace, knowing that my spirit had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.

The church was built in the 13th century and is considered one of the most important Gothic buildings in Europe. It is located in the historic center of Krakow and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

I went to visit other places, including the City of the Night and the Church of St. Paul. We went feeling good that we had seen and experienced the beauty that Krakow has to offer.

But we went feeling glad that we had seen and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World. We felt content and at peace, knowing that our spirits had been nourished by the beauty of the sacred space. But we were feeling grateful that we had seen, visited, and absorbed the atmosphere from the spirit of the Night World.
COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

---

COURANT

Boston, March 19, 1932

To the Editor—

In the February issue of the Spectator, under the title "The License of the Peace," I was pleased to find this passage, "It is, of course, the duty of the Government to afford facilities for the free distribution of literature and ideas of all kinds, and to that end to protect the freedom of speech and of the press." This is an admirable statement of principle, and I am surprised that it has not been more widely adopted in this country.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]