The Shakespeare Society.

The following program was well carried out on the evening of March 25th in the Music Hall of the University.

The program consisted of:

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

The 19th Annual.

How many of us learn the language of being a playwright, the elaborate riddles and the poetic license of the world? It is in the will of our time to forget our dreams and our desires.

And though we may forget the source of our dreams, we can never escape the reality of ourselves.

The Church was especially fine, displaying its advantage in the way of the artistic drama. Miss O'Brien is a very close- minded person, perhaps with some far-reaching plan for the future of the Church. It was a great example to her followers and her students.

The next program is to be given on April 1, and will consist of two parts: first, a study of the history of Shakespeare, and second, a review of the latest plays and poems. Miss O'Brien will be in charge of the first part, and Mr. Morgan will conduct the second.

College Notes.

The spring term of the year began Tuesday, April 1, very bright and sunny after a gloomy winter. First and last day and all the first day of the second term. The morning was relatively cool, but the sun shone brightly in the afternoon.

The weather was beautiful, and the College grounds were green and inviting. The College grounds were beautifully maintained, and the students were enjoying the pleasant weather and the beautiful surroundings.

Miss O'Brien's Concerts.

The pianos recital was given by Miss O'Brien on the last Monday of the term, and was exceptionally well attended. Miss O'Brien has given many such recitals, and always attracts a large audience.

The program consisted of an orchestral piece, a solo, and a song. The orchestral piece was played by the members of the Orchestra, and the solo was performed by Miss O'Brien herself. The song was sung by Miss O'Brien with the help of a choir.

The recital was very well received, and the audience was enthusiastic.

The Phillips School.

PRAISE

ANNOUNCING PASSOVER.

LENTEN PRISE.

ELLEN H. WYETH.

Chaste, I thank Thee, Lord, for this last Aaron's day,
A day of dirge, and rescue
A holy Thursday, and the power of God.

When we un-god Thee, says Peter,
Here in the sun of God.
Today Thy law and Thy grace.

Such stores to lessen bread.

Therefore, the blue sky is of God.
For the blue sky is the joy of God.

Ye that will still be God's, therefore,
Be ye in the sun of God.

May by some act of power
Be made by any act of man.

I have spent three in the hour
With what in mind only fruit.
All the learn and loudly boasted
And might, to do what is right.

What to see the sight.
...as we are of the earth.
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour.

All the learn and loudly boasted
And might, to do what is right.

What to see the sight.
...as we are of the earth.
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour.

Cordially.

CHARLOTTE E. BISHOP.

The o'er in the sun of God.
...as we are of the earth.
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour.

What has become of us, and what is the extent of our cir-
...as we are of the earth.
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour
Our eyes have seen Thee from the hour.

Cordially.
