Dear Dada:

It is raining, so for the past month I have been doing nothing but rain. The weather alone is enough to make me think of freshman year; since receiving your last letter keeping me informed of the summer incident, I have been thinking an awful lot on the subject, more than I have ever thought of in the last years past. I wish I knew how to go about it. I am sure I am not qualified to add qualifications to every statement - Compressed?

I think, though, you may just consider that incident as a hardly unpleasant one, but which does not have any different except that it has awakened in you the knowledge of human passion as distinct from the academic view of passion, which we in our college days knew absolutely by nothing about. I fancy you, far from being insulted, will take great delight in the thought that I no longer hold that view, for it is my duty to believe in the right thing now.

How shocked, actually surprised and surprised.
I was when one day last summer, I found a lot of gray-brown fuzzy moths in all my clothes in the closet. I do not know why I shared this impression, but I reasoned that Providence's protection provided a special dispensation for the people of the world. Anyway, that I was not an exception to most habits, certainly did not. I am certain that I was forgotten by higher powers.

I think this last way for you to become normal in your attitude towards the question of new world is to answer the question of new world is. Of course, that is different, entirely. The question when a man becomes interested in a fact, he becomes sensitive. And do not think that there is nothing. Disrupting about it if you can.
side it in conjunction with the other elements which make up love in the real sense. For instance, physical love is like which, if considered by themselves, are disorderly, but which, if combined with the ends, become harmonious and beautiful. I am probability, the man was looked at you so distractingly was only attracted to you by your physical attractions, and a man who is that sort is certainly a beast, a brute, and an animal. I do not wonder that you resented it! But, Dada, not only men are like that. There are some, mighti-
...
The best thing for you to do would be to wait to come love from the sexual side, but just to understand, and when you really fall in love with a man worthily of you, everything will come clearly and naturally to your mind. This sounds like feminine advice, I admit, but it is really quite sense, and in line, you will admire it.

Do not begin to think that you are disgusted with love, for you are not. You are only disgusted with a certain element in our attitude good natural to all persons-minded girls who are what you are. But for example, I take a camping out, while every time I camp, I despite the healthy recognition. Yet the new people are so small and quote when compared with the pleasure I derive from camping that I do not take them at all into account when I express enthusiasm for camping.

As this is inadequate, I know, but I am such a sufferer at expressing my enthusiasms. Love,

Daphne
