Deloff is not at home. I do not believe he feels cross about the boundary. It was mine, I would make a trade. I think I would. I would give him off of the back entrance leaving only sufficient to feed the weed and coal, and get from him in place of it more ground in front. His stables are old and will have to be removed before long, but the new fence in front ought to be put in if the right there. That is, I mean, he would give you for the land given him on the alley way, which is under there is necessary for a more alley, and to slant for a garden or to sell for a lot. Then your lot would look better in front, and sell for more, if you must sell it. But if we get clear of this we will have to rent some place, and would rather rent of you than of any other. And I am sure would feel an interest in keeping it in order, greater than strangers would. Dear child, I do not wish to annoy you, I mean this, that you may think of it, and take it for what it is worth. There has been nothing said about it and will not be unless you should request it. My son at Columbus say as they have agreed to sell me out of debt this year, and have something else for improvements, but all will not come it for three years more. So you say I cannot build for some time, without going in debt, which I do not intend to do. I do not wish to much in house building these days, but I do sometimes see myself being comfortably out of the new lot, with the out of debt and lacking his care, and the clear children and grand children with us. Earnest work and wear alarms, Pete not think this much of it. I think will be able to spare some time to use, from a castle either, but something likely to happen just beginning to write to them. I wish instead to come early and write to them, and Franks but, found myself with a head headache, which is now better, but by no means well. And I fear Stella and Frank well have to wait a few days, for which I am very sorry, because it is a pleasure to talk to them, upon you. Give my love to them and tell them so.

Sue was engaged yesterday mending clothes after the method I like it well, and it is said to keep much better than the usual way and is quicker and whiter, Mrs. DeGriff says she makes all her justly with it and cook also. The rule is, to 50 lbs. pound of two qts. of white boy, instead of water it was precious at first, for an getting but it seems like boiling thickened milk. At room temperature like sour milk from why, and become clear as sky water, all the cracked in put together was not more.
Ian a small mass of stuff of a silver looking stuff, which I coiled myself in two hands. Every impurity in the leaf lectured seemed reflected in the stuff looking mass, moved mention this to let them know what I have been doing. And if they should ever live in a similar way again, they may remember it. It seems to me much faster than most of the butter we eat.
I am sorry for the trouble with the girl. Did she get my embroidered handwriting? The cl is not says, I thought best to tell Holida. She seemed distressed and happy; as the clinks, and if it is desired, I think we will live with them. I have no doubt we shall have to go some time before long, and I herself now. I told her she had another girl, and cannot build on the new lot this year. I fear, it would not be right to send her away, that I only mentioned it that she might tell her sister, if she thought best, the true state of the case.
I think I shall have to say to her what I tell Mary the stoliken. It may come to nothing, but he has been thinking of it some time, and a few days ago spoke character to the subject, and I think Father to me, the would first take my last letter, and next would like to get out of the way of the building it over, that she may answer all my questions, and which Stanny would first use. The few says attention to any directions or requests I may make. I he will see about the first street house soon see in Elizabeth's letter she does not know what kind Father has not had anything from nearly him out of a purse clasp. I went for Father, I mentioned, but hopes he will be able to figure long.
