Dear Augustus,

My last to you was dated June 30th.

I have received interesting sayings, and dreams of the dear little ones. I would like much to look in upon you, occasionally as I used to in Dayton, and go with you through every part, or any other thing you might have on hand, but I cannot be远处 away to enjoy so much, or all these things with you.

If my answer is favorable, she will be with you.

The following is a letter from my dear friend, Mr. Williams, who resides in the country, and is a very kind, considerate man: "I am glad to hear from you. I trust you are well. The weather has been very pleasant."

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]

July 6th, 1862

Mary
he was serviceable and gave her confidence to go to the Institute, and spend some time at the Institute if possible. We think, though, it is not now in session, that by seeing the Directors, she would be permitted to enter the school, so as to become acquainted with the arrangement of the room, manner of teaching, best materials, and the thought of the teachers, although it is vacation. I am willing to take her as she is, but she wishes to see and learn a little more. Now we wish the first part of these things can be had and done, and at what cost. But if proper boarding convenient to the Institute can be had and at what cost, I do not know for our means are so limited, I would write to Miss Harrison to assist her, but I do not know how this would be managed, and willing to give her loose whether she would feel able or willing. Perhaps then privately in some other way. (Mr. A says Eleanor not might ask her to assist then, telling her our means not sufficient to support any Institute or school of education, and that Mary's object is to teach, Miss Harrison not in that view had taken private lessons.) Miss Stevens professed she did not take the place, and has taken great interest in it.

Assume it all up. The wishes to learn the best manner in the way of materia of teaching, and what will be needed to enable her to teach properly what she knows and may learn, and she would like to take some lessons in sketching from nature. She drawing own own objects, such as chairs, tables, pictures, of a room in her house, and some sketches in figures, the wishes to learn how to draw. She would like to take some lessons in sketching from nature. She drawing own own objects, such as chairs, tables, pictures, of a room in her house, and some sketches in figures, the wishes to learn how to draw. She would like to take some lessons in sketching from nature. She drawing own own objects, such as chairs, tables, pictures, of a room in her house, and some sketches in figures, the wishes to learn how to draw.