PREVIEW OF ETERNITY
The curtain of fog made earth an eerie place
Where neither voice nor footstep could be heard,
Where all one saw was blank, unending space,
And only sensed the whisper of a word.

WITNESSES
God is great.
He rules the earth,
Causes the sun to set, the moon to rise --
The stars to stare coldly down from the heights
On a man,
Struggling against the wind.

DANDELIONs
Dots of sunshine pricked the green
On roughened grass;
Pieces of gold, scattered, like rain
Impartially.

Susi Dorntge

Printed by hand on
The Wellesley College Library Press
November 13, 1945