Saturday Evening Vaudeville at the Barn.

On Saturday evening, October 17, the Barn audience was most enthusiastic. The first informal Barn affair was extremely clever in plan and in execution, as one girl said "more fun than a real vaudeville." The first number aimed to instruct as well as to amuse. "Parch's Weekly" of important current events was intelligently presented from the great prominence given to Wellesley on this particular week. Wellesley's Record Crew appeared in costume and in action—recited action that was fearful and wonderful to lookers in the audience. After this the painful process of Senior Legenda photography was portrayed for the instruction of the lower classes. To Seniors, this was too true to be funny, but the rest seemed to enjoy it.

Then before our eyes went the Passing Show of 1914, with all those ghosts which have haunted us for months—1910's long yellow Restoration Fund Penell moved in company with a lively stock of mollies, sand, and behind them came our "Vacuum Cleaner," in dust-colored robes and a hose dangling by her side. All these, they may be said, were pathetically realistic.

From current events we passed to comedy. "Queen of the Movies" appeared on the posters, as a young and loving couple arranged themselves in various poses in the frame of the reel. The accommodation to this setting was one of the best features of the evening—no Jeanette Wolfe that was as good a representation of vaudeville singing as we wanted. The written word cannot attempt to describe this method of singing; it had to be heard to be appreciated.

Nor were we without celebrities on the Barn stage, for Harry Lander gave us a most entertaining sketch. Dorothy Higgins, in Scotch plaid and kilts, was a favorite among the audience and won much applause by her Scotch songs. The enthusiasm became so widespread that the audience "joined in the chorus" of "Roaming Through the Glazingle" with enjoyment and volume.

The music of the Barn stands did not fail us. Ringing's best were there to fill us with envy at their strength and grace (?) and were followed by several couples who did the Flourite Walk as if they owned it.

The last number was an exhibition of modern dancing by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle (Patty Travers and Allience Dorothy) and some of the Castle House dancers. This was well done, and the striking resemblance to the originals was marked. After this, Mr. Castle made a short but "hesitating" speech, "without purpose in speaking" as was perfectly apparent, but finally announced and dancing competition open to the audience. A few couples entered, but all were gradually eliminated except Helen Moses and Carlotta Smith, to whom Mr. Castle presented the silver cup.

A great deal of the pleasure that he performance is due all the participants and also to the committee composed of the following girls:
Chairman, Dorothy Ruttle, 1916.
Dorothy Beall, 1917.
Ruth Powell.
Gracie Keenan, 1916.
Helen Rump.
Mary Elyott.
Helen Jordon.

RALPH ADAMS CRAM.

On Friday afternoon, October 30, at 4:30 Mr. Ralph Adams Cram, the distinguished architect and writer, will lecture in the Farnsworth Museum on "The Planning and Architectural Treatment of College Buildings."

This lecture was given in Boston, last winter, and had been secured for Wellesley before the fire. It was afterwards deferred, but is all the more appropriate this autumn.

Mr. Cram has lately been called to be the head of the Department of Architecture at the Institute of Technology, and is one of the greatest architectural designers of the country.

An exhibition of his architectural works is now open in the gallery of the Farnsworth Museum, Oct.

Saturday, November 7.

Professor Gow's Lecture.

On Thursday evening, October 15, Professor Gow of Vassar gave a delightfully informal talk, which he described as the "passing on of accumulated enthusiasm," on the subject, "Rhythm, the Life of Music." Rhythm, he said, is not per se music, but merely an appeal to the act of attention through a sense. It is only as rhythm is brought into understandable relation with the other elements of music that it becomes music itself. The essence of rhythm is the recurrence of periodic attention. The mind groups repeated shiboles into threes, fours, thus giving rise to the various forms of duplum and triple rhythm, simple and compound. The development of musical rhythm is seen through the means taken to establish it, as, for example, by (i) volume, (ii) use of long tones on accented beats, (iii) use of short tones on accented beats, (iv) double rhythm; i.e., the use of two different groupings at the same time, (v) variations in melody, (vi) variations in harmony, (vii) rhythm patterns for motive, i.e., syncopation. In connection with this last method, it is interesting to note that Professor Gow defines rag-time as merely the beautiful device of syncopation "gone mad." Rhythm, thus considered, is more than just the initial shock. It may be likened to the surface of the sea with its great tidal waves, and lesser waves, whose contour is broken everywhere with countless tiny ripples. Perhaps the most pleasing part of Professor Gow's talk was his wealth of musical illustration, both vocal and instrumental. Although he introduced himself as neither a player nor a singer, the audience was inclined to discount his conservative estimate of his abilities, and thoroughly enjoyed the simple and natural way in which he made his points effective.

H. L. S., 1915.

First Subscription Concert.

The first of the four subscription concerts, successors to the traditional artist recitals, was held in Billings Hall, Friday evening, October 16, when Frederick Martin and Alexander Block gave a varied program of songs and violin solos. Mr. Martin's work was particularly enjoyed in his various unusual selections from the old classics, which showed careful study resulting in admirable handling of resonance, flexibility, intensity and range. Mr. Block played with brilliance and dispatch, possibly overemphasizing technique at the expense of interpretation. The Winansville "Polonaise" was perhaps the most thoroughly appreciated of his three selections.

Following is the programme in full:

I. Old Classics.

Creation's hymn.
Daniel's song.
Elwin's song.

2. Songs of German and French.

De Leyer, "Sonnenschlupf." Franz Schubert
Wohin. Franz Schubert

Alban Berg: "Wagner-Wilhelmine." Winansville
Polonaise in D major.

The Pipes of Pan. Edward Elgar
The Sea. Edward MacDowell
Robin Goodfellow. Orlando Morgan

THE SOCIAL SCHEDULE.

On Thursday, October 15, the heads of organizations held a meeting at which they were presented with copies of the so-called "automatisms" which according to this schedule each organization has assigned to its certain dates upon which it may hold meetings without further permission. It seems to be a definite organization and simplification has been made for which we are grateful. Whether the working of this schedule will be satisfactory or not it is too early to say, but all who have considered it at thoughtfully must have felt that the time has come when some change had to be made in the mechanism which controlled our non-academic activities. Members of the Faculty who have held those unceivable positions on the Committee on Non-Academic Interests, as well as the students who have been distracted by endeavoring to meet all the requirements laid upon them by the controlling organizations and their committees and sub-committees, have all suffered from the unnecessary complexities of past conditions. There has been a needless waste of time resulting from the unbusinesslike methods of procedure on both sides and from the multiplicity of detail, for which the reasons have never been made clear to us. From the same causes have also resulted an unreasonable amount of friction which has not been sufficiently disposed of by way of a clearly defined antagonism between persons making and persons granting requests. That such a condition exist is deplorable for at least two reasons.

The waste of time and energy on harassing details and emergencies arising from the lack of a simple system of controlling the social life of the College tends to produce a restless condition among the undergraduates that, in absolute contradistinction to that much-lauded "serenity of mind," interferes with accomplishment of scholarly academic work and prevents the exemplification, here at Wellesley, of our finest ideal of an "intellectual atmosphere." The girls who are most influential in their classes are most distraught by these considerations and their unrest speaks rapidly. We do hope, however, that in College of non-academic interests is healthful; it is a truism that a normal life is made up of work and play. But we also feel that in many respects the present condition in the social life of the College is fraught with petty annoyances which tend to introduce an undesirable smallness and discontent into our academic life and we believe that these conditions can be remedied when they have been brought to the attention of the College.

In the second place, the friction and uncertainty attendant upon our non-academic activities strikes at the root of Student Government. Without sympathetic cooperation between the Faculty and the students, even the spirit of Student Government would be impossible. At present, through lack of understanding or unwillingness to make concessions, the attempt to fuse these two elements in College life are questions worthy of our most serious consideration.

That the organization of our non-academic life has been far from perfect, is a fact accepted by both the Faculty and students, and both are anxious to remedy it. But how and under what conditions shall we proceed? Let us hope that the automatic social schedule introduced this year by the Faculty is the precursor of improvements which will establish Student Government more securely and elevate the intellectual atmosphere of the College.

ONE SOURCE OF REST.

In the summer, most college girls aim to live out of doors a good share of the time, belonging to a fresh-air loving generation. Tennis courts and bathing beaches are their law of possession, and we are glad that some of us are fortunate enough to have lived this summer close to nature, up in northern woods, where the frequency of summer resorts never penetrates, that we have had a chance to know the meaning of a real friendship with trees and woods, such as a boating acquaintance with them never gives, and to realize the courage that comes from close association with them. Somewhat, pettiness disappears from the mind when you have mementoes before you every day, and big thoughts come oftener there to most of us than in crowded dormitories or hot class rooms. Nature, in the bigness of her solitude, can comfort our thoughts and transforms them, and then gives us moments of clearer vision to see "into the light of things."

These moments seem clear enough at the time to light our way a little, and may hold us together for years off in the course of time and needs renewing.

After the first month of college, when the routine is established, we seem in danger of forgetting that these joys of summer are for all seasons, ready at our becking. At least, some of us forget this. Others there are, wiser than most, who have found a source of rest in a few minutes snatched from a full schedule spent out of doors. This is not an advertisement for the Athletic Association nor a sermon on nature; we are not urging you to lend your support to your class teams nor even to cheer on Field Day, but we do ask every one-minded girl to consider the idea of taking time to be out doors. We hear on every side of the strain and inconvenience which we have to cope with this year because of temporary quarters and we do not feel it is not up to each and every one of us to keep herself under perfect control in order that our every-day life may run smoother. You may say you have no time to take walks—we see crowds of you going to the village or to town every afternoon and while you may thus get fresh air to breathe, you will hardly find at these times that quiet which brings peace. Again you may say that solitude is far removed from this campus. So it seems at times, we admit, but there are plenty of places fairly near which can be discovered if you are willing to open your eyes to them. The country around Wellesley is too fine to miss and can be to you all, as the English hill country with its "Amen corner," a "non-perishable principle of joy." Go out once in a while, try it for yourself, and see if your effort will not be repaid in refreshment of mind and deepening of understanding.

CONCERNING MAGAZINE MATERIAL.

OPEN LETTER.

To the Editor of Wellesley College News.

The very admirable "Portrait Directory of Nineteen Eighteen" has received so little attention from members of the College that I venture to bring it again to the notice of all Misses readers who have not already purchased the pamphlet. Perhaps it is not generally known that we owe this work to Miss Dorothy Havens, 1914. Miss Havens not only created the directory as a labor of love for the College, but also guaranteed the expense of printing a thousand copies, with the provision that all profits beyond the cost of printing shall go to the Fire Fund.

This work certainly deserves the support of every member of the College. Its value is obvious at a glance. It furnishes to undergraduates and Freshman instructors the biographical data of members of 1914 at the beginning of their career; and it should be invaluable in the future to those of us who meet in our classes for the first time in their sophomore, junior or senior years.

Needless to say, the Fire Fund deserves our support, but less obviously, perhaps, Miss Havens deserves encouragement to continue this extremely useful piece of constructive work in future years.

It happens that only about one-fifth of the edition has been sold,—not nearly enough to pay expenses, to say nothing of carrying out the chief purposes of the Directory. No doubt many lacked time to examine it in its first year, and only the first days of the year; and the posted announcement that it would not be in stock throughout the year may have given the impression that it is no longer for sale. Copies may be had from Miss Juliet Bell, 1915, at Freeman Cottage, or from the College Bookstore. May I urge immediate purchase? The whole edition should be taken this week.

Yours sincerely,

Arthur C. Norton.

APPEAL FOR RELIEF OF THE BELGIANs.

A widespread appeal is being circulated for contributions to relieve the sufferers in Belgium. Thousands of people are homeless and on account of the devastation wrought by bombardment. There is dire lack of food, clothing and employment; the cold weather is coming on; the suffering of women, children and other non-combatants is eliciting the sympathies of the world. On America, the peace nation, falls the heavy responsibility of relieving this suffering. A Central Committee has been formed in America by Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore, is honorary president and the Belgian Minister, Mr. E. Havemith, in Washington, D. C., is active president. Checks and money orders may be drawn to the order of Mr. Havemith at the Belgian Legation, 21 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

SUNDAY RELIES—A GENTLE QUERY.

Far be it from the intention of a loyal student to break down the dam of Wellesley tradition! But is it not legitimate to at least open the flood-gates of thought? Thus the editor of the Observer is a strong advocate for the free discussion of any great increase in the number of students. Boating on Sunday can certainly be enjoyed with as much quiet and dignity as a breakfast party at the Hill. Most of us are, however, prone to observe Sunday as a day of rest and recreation for another week of toil (provided our Monday schedule isn’t very heavy); but each has her own individual way of doing it. Whether we see our friends, travel, boat, read, walk to church or attend concerts, or even special lectures in Boston, we are all resting or recuperating; and, if we do not miss the letter of the law for the spirit.

A MILD SERMON IN VERSE.

"Oh, my dear, you’re one—
Did you hear about the fire?"

"Then whisper, whisper,
For an hour.

Susan looks up, quite offended,
But until the story’s ended,
There’s no lasting kindred spirits
In the Lib.

Down the aisle to get some books,
—Whispered secrets, smiling looks—
Social atmosphere is scattered
All the way.

Susan tries to concentrate,
But she can’t eliminate
From her thought-waves that insistent
Social chat.

It is hard on disposition;
It is hard on erudition;
It is nothing but a habit—
Is it, now?

PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS.

PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS COMPETITION.

Some weeks ago the White Rabbit, Lord High Chancellor of the Parliament of Fools, announced a competition. The subject, as given out, was Field Day. It is the well-known policy of the Parliament of Fools to have events written up at least two weeks before their occurrence.

Knowing that many of our readers prefer the Harvard-Michigan game to the gentler Field Day, we aim to give them both.

FRESHMEN ON PARADE.

As King of the Field.

"What are the classes cheerein' for?"--said Freshman-on-Parade.

"To fill your heart with sister-pride," said the Upper-Chauman.

"What makes us dress so queer, so queer?"--said Freshman-on-Parade.

"Because it's Field Day, silly dear,"--the Upper-Chauman.

For Field Day comes but once a year; it is a grand event; you cheer and cheer till all the air from out your lungs is spent; and then you turn to Next-in-Line and wonder what it meant; for it's the grand event that Field Day is.

SUSIE WHITE.

According to Wordsworth.

Oft I had heard of Susie White, and ere the game was played, I saw her like a streak of light--The atha-letic maid.

No laws, no rules did Susie steem.

She made them as she went--A fact that to a hockey team An air of interest lent.

You yet may spy the arrow's flight;

The golfer on the Green;

but the simple face of Susie White Will never more be seen!

INCIDENT OF THE TRACK TEAM.

According to R. Browning.

You know, we started from the Gym:

A mile or so away,

On a little mound, the goal-post

Stood firmly in the clay:

With judges there, you fancy how,

Assuming more and more,

As emasculated a brow

As Mona Lisa wore.

Just as perhaps they mused "That one

A "W" will win

"Unless that skinny one should score."

The skinny one sped in.

"You've won!" "Tis true," the runner's pride,

Touched to the quick, she gasped:

She found herself a heroine--

A "W" she clapsed.

That on Oct. 31st there should be no rain.

Twas so in their youth, I heard Seniors say,

And their old age called it back that day.

At three-bells' stroke the field they cleared,

While th'assembled multitude clapped and cheered.

Then out there trotted the basket-ball team.

As goodly a sight as you've seen, I ween.

A song—nay, a shriek that rent the sky.

That loosed o'er the ranks—th'excit'd cry

Of 'tween hundred watching the ball on high.

An instant shriek that sprang toward the Blue

As into the basket the brown ball flew.

'Tis said that aye—a frantic whistle—

But who minded the referee more than a thistle?

And such was the Great Game that decided who

ALL COLLEGE TRY-OUTS.

A new system of selection for Barn plays is in practice this year, that of "All College Try-outs," wherein every one has an equal chance. The response has been excellent from all classes. 1917 showed a strong dramatic spirit by its enthusiasm and good acting. Excellent material was found, which, if not available for this present cast, will prove useful in the future. The plan appears very satisfactory.

THEATRE NOTES.

WILMERT.

The seventh week of William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur Theater in Boston shows even greater popularity. We see Mr. Hodge again as his old familiar, likable self. It is a play with a moral which one enjoys. Mr. Hodge acts admirably.—Adv.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE.

"Wanted $22,000" on next Monday will enter upon its third week at the Plymouth Theater in Boston. This latest play to be presented by Cohan and Harris is the joint work of A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton. The actual writing was mainly the work of Mr. Thomas, but the idea of a young literary genius literally writing a play to save his own life was original with Mr. Hamilton. How he does so amid unexpected conditions in a race against time and death is set forth in four exciting acts.

FIRST STEP SINGING.

On Tuesday evening, October 15, the four classes gathered on the chapel steps for the first time this year to sing together. The different class and crew songs came first, then a rehearsal of special songs for Miss Pendleton's Second. The large number of freshmen present showed great interest on the part of 1918, which we heartily command and which we hope will continue throughout the year.

In Hoosick Falls, N. Y., on October 4, 1914, Morgan F. Percy, father of Carolyn Percy, 1912.

REV. WILLIAM E. LOCKE.

Rev. William E. Locke, father of Miss Locke of our Biblical History Department, died last Sunday evening at his home in Wellesley.

The active years of Mr. Locke’s life were spent in the foreign missionary field. It was in 1868 that, as a young man, a graduate of Amherst College and of Union Theological Seminary, he went out with his wife to the new work of the American Board in Eastern Europe. For twenty-four years he lived in Bulgaria, teaching and preaching and bearing an important part of the financial and administrative responsibility in the affairs of the mission. Although he retired in 1892 he never lost his active interest in the welfare of that country, as those who know who have in recent years listened to his wise and been keen on events in the Balkans. The impress of the mission upon that little kingdom has been deep if not wide, and the Bulgarians have never forgotten Mr. Locke’s work among them.

Since 1900 Mr. Locke’s home has been here in Wellesley, where all good works in the village or the church have found in him a warm supporter. Next Friday evening, October 23, a memorial service will be held in the Congregational Church, when some of his friends will have the opportunity to bear witness to the meaning of his life here and abroad.

Those of us in College who knew him best will miss his cordial hospitality and friendship; others, who did not know him will miss the familiar tall figure and kindly face so often seen among us. He had a deep interest in all that concerned the good of the College and we share with the community and the church in the sense of a good friend.

FACULTY NOTES.

Miss Helen Merrill, 1880, Associate Professor of Mathematics, was compelled by illness to abandon her plans for study abroad for this year. Early in the summer Miss Merrill attended the tercentenary of the discovery of logarithms, held in Edinburgh. Among the delegates from all over the world, she was the only representative of a woman’s college, and the only woman delegate.

Miss Helen Hughes, for the last two years instructor in English 2, is doing graduate work in English at Chicago, and teaching one division of freshmen. Miss Hughes had gone to England this summer, with the expectation of spending the year in study at Oxford, but was compelled by the war to change her plans.

Miss Agnes Perkins, Associate Professor of English composition, has returned to this country after her two stirring years at the American Women’s College in Constantinople. Though in the town of Wellesley, Miss Perkins is not this year teaching at the College, but is assisting Miss Cook at Dana Hall.

NEWS NOTES.

Mabel Gair Curtis, 1890, is doing some field work for the Appointment Bureau of the Women’s Educational and Industrial Union, Boston.

Abbie L. Paije, 1906, is counselor for employees at First National Bank.

In the October “Scrivener’s” is a story by Abbie Carter Goodloe, 1899, “Darius and Alexander,” a love story of old Kentucky.

Susan D. Huntington, 1900, was called home by her mother’s illness this summer. She and Mary Rockwell, 1903, with whom she had been staying in Italy, were overtaken at sea by the declaration of war, and came into New York with lights out and wireless telegraph stilled. After a month in Boston, Miss Huntington sailed for Spain to reopen the International Institute. The school is steadily growing.

Mrs. Wendell Phillips Rainie, (Alice Chase, 1900), spent a delightful day in Boston with Alice Rowe, Geraldine Gordon and Caroline Rogers Hill, on her way home from Maine recently. She is still living at 4268 Baltimore Avenue, Philadelphia, where she hopes this winter to see many of her college friends.

Roma Nickerson, 1907, is acting as secretary to the editor of “The Spinning Wheel,” a new magazine published in Bronxville, N. Y. This publication is to contain as its special features a college department, to which undergraduates of the various colleges will contribute.

Sarah P. Caswell, 1912, is doing graduate work in chemistry at Cornell.

“The Masque of Love,” by Margaret Spalding Perry, 1901, is very favorably noticed in the October “Atlantic” review of recent fiction.

Katherine Davis, 1914, is organizing a performance of “The Pirates of Penzance,” with the assistance of the College Club of St. Joseph, Mo. The performance is naturally for the benefit of the fire fund.

Katherine Bingham, 1912, is general secretary of the Cleveland Day Nursery and Free Kindergarten Association.

Mrs. Ina Nelson Morris, (Constance Rothschild, 1906), sailed in August for Italy. Mr. Morris has been appointed minister to Italy.

Adahnie Hawley, 1881, will spend the winter in California.

Ethel Sturtevant, 1916, and Selma Somerville, 1911, received the degree of M. A. from Columbia in May.

Edith Midwood, 1910, is secretary at the Lincoln School, a private school for girls in Providence.

Elizabeth Linton, 1914, is in the reference department of the public library at Bridgeport, Conn.

Marjorie Peek, 1911, is private secretary to Professor Dodge of Columbia University.

At the wedding, in Pittsfield on October 12, of Vera Colton, 1911, to Paul B. Halstead, the bride’s attendants included Ethel Hersey, 1911, Mrs. George Gray (Ada Bruner, 1911), and Julia Drew, 1912.

Phyllis Leon, 1914, is working with a firm of interior decorators in Boston.

Frances Dages, 1912, is teaching English and physical geography in the Douglas High School, Columbus, Ohio.

Helen Frank, 1913, is teaching English and mathematics in the High School at Greenfield, Ohio.

Elizabeth Ford, 1914, is teaching mathematics, chemistry and physics in the High School at Liberty, N. Y.

Della Smith, 1912, attended the summer school of gymnastics at Dartmouth College, and is taking a course in physical culture at Teachers' College in New York, this winter.

Esther Stillhamer, 1914, is teaching in Ridgefield, N. J.

WELLESLEY CLUBS.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

On June 7, 1913, several Wellesley representatives from Concord, Nashua and Manchester met at the home of Miss Elsie Fairbanks, 1898, in Manchester, to meet Miss Ruth Goodwin and to consider forming a club. After a very interesting talk from Miss Goodwin regarding Wellesley, its relationship toward the Alumnae, and the purpose of the Graduate Council, it was unanimously decided to form the Merrimac Valley Wellesley Club. The officers elected were:

President, Miss Cora J. Russell, 1898, Manchester.
Vice-president, Miss Anna F. Cross, 1900, Nashua.
Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. George M. Belcher, (Edith Bryant, 1909), Manchester.
Recording Secretary, Miss Henrietta A. Powell, of the class of 1914, Concord.

The second meeting was held in Manchester on October 4, 1913. The model constitution, submitted by the Graduate Council, and by-laws adopted to local conditions, were adopted. The winter meeting was held on December 6 in Manchester, at the home of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Edith B. Belcher. Miss Cora Russell, president of the club, was elected Graduate Councillor. G. Sookeswell, secretary to President Pendleton, gave a talk on Wellesley as it is to-day, and on the Wellesley Alumnae clubs and their association with the College. On February 25 the club met at Concord at the home of the Secretary, Miss Henrietta Powell. We decided to co-operate in supplying the local papers with true reports of current happenings at Wellesley. Miss Russell then made a most interesting report of the recent Graduate Council meetings.

The club held its annual meeting on May 9 at the home of Miss Dorothy Danforth, 1911, of Nashua. Miss Sophie Hart of the English Department told about plans for the reconstruction and an informal hour followed. The annual reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read. The Endowment Committee reported that $476 had been raised. This meeting ended a most successful year for the Merrimac Valley Wellesley Club.

The fall meeting of the Merrimac Valley Wellesley Club was held on October 10 in Pembroke, N. H., at the home of Miss Gay Hubbard. (Grace Harris, 1897-98). Reports of the Graduate Council meetings in June were read and it was voted to hold the May meeting of the club at Wellesley.

Henrietta A. Powell, Secretary.

FITCHBURG.

The Fitchburg Wellesley Club has held up to date three regular meetings: The fall meeting, September 17, at Miss Ellen Cushin's, with fourteen present; the January meeting, January 17, at Miss Crosby's; the spring meeting at Geraldine Howarth's, April 6.

The important business of the fall meeting comprised the election of a committee to send out circulars for the Endowment Fund; a report of our Graduate Councillor, Mrs. Miller; an amendment to the constitution; and a vote to approve the plan of electing Alumnae trustees.

The important business of the January meeting was the appointment of committees on membership and on meetings; amendments to Article 11 of the constitution; a vote to approve the plan of electing Alumnae trustees; a discussion of plans for an entertainment to be given by the club with the purpose of making money.

The important business of the spring meeting was a motion favoring the adoption of a model uniform constitution of classes; and the election of committees to work on club entertainments.

As a result of the steamer lecture and of the good-will felt to Wellesley by friends of the College, the club has raised about $290; as a result of a benefit performance given by the Majestic Theater, a moving-picture house, $115 was raised, and from the circular letters to Alumnae about $260 was raised.

Norah Foote, Recording Secretary.
