MADAME ROSIKA SCHWIMMER.

Madame Rosika Schwimmer gave the College the privilege of hearing her speak at Billings Hall on Wednesday evening, March 24. There was a large and enthusiastic audience present. Miss Schwimmer, as usual, won enthusiastic applause as the representative of sixteen European countries from whom she has come, and she sang with the beautiful voice and the characteristic expression of a woman of genius. She was born in Switzerland, where she studied in the best schools. She has traveled extensively through Europe and has given numerous recitals, and her performances have been received with the highest approval. She is also an accomplished pianist, and has given concerts in various cities. She is a member of the Royal Society of Musicians, and has received numerous honors and distinctions. She is a woman of rare talent and beauty, and her performances are always highly appreciated.

Dr. Julius B. Brown of Union Theological Seminary gave a lecture Monday evening, March 22, in Billings Hall, on "The Significance of the Psalter in the Religion of Israel." Most scholars agree that the Psalms played their important part in the primitive period of Israelite history. It is in the Psalms that we find light shed upon the ideals of the Hebrews, and their lives. Certain songs of the psalms may be distinctly clasped as connected with the temple worship, expressing the joy of the pilgrimage journey to Jerusalem three times a year, and with the praise of Jehovah at the city gates. There are psalms of thanksgiving, psalms of grief, and psalms of prophecy. Other psalms are to be found in the crown and ceremony of the Hebrew nation, and reveal the psalmist's details to be mastered for a thorough knowledge of the religion. A strange feeling of mystic fellowship seems to pervade these glorification of the law as well as pride before other nations. Yet for its narrowness of detail, there were universal tendencies in Judaism, as we see in the nature and psalms, or those of the wise men. A few echo the desire of the songs for Jehovah worship by all nations; others are universal. Psalms have a world magnificence that the universal desire; Psalms forty-nine shows the wise-men's interest in man as man.

The movement culminated immediately into a determined gathering in England, and will continue to work at an international union's peace conference called for some time in April by Queen Wilhelmina.

Miss Schwimmer drew a parallel between the case of two families buying knives and forks for protection before any quarrel arose, and the investment of millions of dollars yearly by every nation, in war-ships, weapons and armies. The principle of armament—preparation for war in times of peace—is wrong. The international disarmament movement must prevail.

If we desire, as we do, to save such a massacre and slaughter, such destruction of life and property as now exists in Europe, the women of the country have as their duty to bring up their sons with ideas of peace, in that spirit of international welfare which is far above the old patriotism.

MISS BALCH DELEGATE TO PEACE CONFERENCE.

Miss Emily Green Balch, head of the Economics Department of the College, has been appointed a delegate to the Women's International Peace Conference, which is to be held in The Hague in October. Miss Balch is one of the foremost American women in the field of social work, and has been active in the Women's Peace Party for many years. She is a member of the Executive Committee of the Women's Peace Union, and has represented the United States at several international conferences on peace. Her appointment as a delegate to the Peace Conference is a recognition of her work and her influence in the cause of international harmony.

A LETTER FROM AUNT DINAH PACE.

It has been reported to me that the late Mrs. Balch, a prominent American philanthropist, was to have been elected to the Senate of the University of Pennsylvania. It is a sad commentary on the state of affairs in this country that such a position should have been offered to a woman who was refused admission to the University.

OURSELVES.

It is poor policy, usually, to talk about yourself and we think the News is not often guilty. But just at this time, when the old Board’s work is over, and that of the new not quite commenced, it seems quite justifiable to run on for a little about ourselves. Justifiable? Nay, it may prove valuable in helping us to find our way in the new year—a sort of sweeping-out-place from analytical heights, before we come down to the practical and dull—about the very thing you want to talk about anyway, is just plain responsibility. That look into Webster, though, gave us an idea or two that we didn’t have before; and so, even though we use again as our title-phrase, a word that seldom manages to keep out of news, we will turn to talk about News. We editors may be able to apply it a bit differently to one or two things to which we must admit it has been applied at various times before—this is part of what Webster says about responsibility, to be sure, but we will take an individual responsibility to the trust which has been given her as a self-governing individual. And the trust is an individual matter. If the girl across the hall, and the girl next door do know what they are voting for in Mary Smith, you who have been sitting on the top fence—well, she need not feel justified in sliding down on the Mary Smith side. It’s everybody’s business to use her own head in the matter, to adopt an absolute responsibility for her own decisions regardless of other people’s ideas. Sliding down into the Mary Smith field with no more provocation than the opinion of other people who may, indeed, be voicing their own honest and quite reasonable opinion, is no more justifiable than it was to acknowledge the superiority of somebody else’s brain; and it’s not being accountable for an individual trust.

Living up to an individual trust in this particular instance is something that Wellesley College elections mean, also not leaving it to the sagacity of an interested or faithful few to make first ballot nominations; it means absolute absence from any kind or condition of electioneering; and it means, we think, in particular, the need for an absolutely honest, disinterested comment, as satisfactory, because they represent the wishes of the majority, which are the rule of any democracy.

Application two: we invite you to contemplate the matter of responsibility to the Wellesley News and to the Wellesley Magazine. Such contemplation has been invited on previous occasions; it may have taken place, but we know we have not been particularly evident. This is what accountability for the trust of merely having college publications which are meant to be representative of what Wellesley thinks and feels and is, to people in general who are interested, and, in particular, to the students of other colleges, means: being intelligently interested in the publications themselves to the extent of contributing suggestions and criticism, and, especially in the case of the Magazine, contributing something more, of the material to be sure, but also,

- IMPORTANT NOTICE -

Unless notified to the contrary, students should take to examinations neither books nor paper of any kind.
Blank books and not loose paper are to be used for examination. These blank books will be furnished by the examiner in the classroom.

Attention is called to the following legislation quoted from the Official Circular of Information:
"A student who is absent from an examination (or fails to hand in a final paper at the appointed time) must send a letter of explanation to the Dean not later than twenty-four hours after the close of the last examination of the examination period. If the reason assigned is judged adequate by the Academic Council, the student will incur a 'deficiency,' if the reason is judged inadequate, the student will incur a 'default,' or 'condition.' If a student fails to make an explanation within the time specified, the case will be treated as if the explanation had been inadequate. (See Part B, III. 6.)"

CONFICTING EXAMINATIONS.

A student who finds that two of her examinations are posted for the same day is asked to write a note to Miss Smith stating the subjects between which the conflict occurs, and to place it in the box on the door of the Administration Building on or before Saturday, May 15.

The schedule giving the times of these examinations will be posted on the official bulletin about May 22.

Alice V. Wait, Dean.

IMAGINARY CONVERSATIONS.

I.

Sophomore: Good morning, you look excited. Is anything the matter?

Junior: Yes, I am rather excited, I suppose. We're going to have forensic burning to-morrow, you know.

Sophomore: Well that's so! I'd quite forgotten about it. And is the place decided on yet?

Junior: Not entirely. We have several in mind. Your suggestion about burning it near the Observatory is, however, the most popular.

You're planning to guard well there, I suppose.

Sophomore: Yes, the guards are so arranged that there won't be a chance in the world of your getting caught if you stick to your plan.

Junior: Isn't it nice that there is such good feeling between our classes this year. So different from what it often is between Sophomores and Juniors.

Sophomore: Yes, think of the mental strain of forensic burning under the old arrangement!

Junior: Awful, isn't it? Good-bye, dear. Don't forget to-morrow.

II.

Instructor: You wanted a conference with me?

Student: Yes—about my last quiz. I got B on it and...

Instructor: And you wanted an A. Yes, I shall be more than glad to change your grade. It was probably an oversight in the first place.

Student: It isn't that. The questions asked just happened to strike the only things I knew on the subject. I should rightly have thanked you.

Instructor: Noble child! As a reward for being truthful I will give you an A anyway.

Student: Thanks, awfully, good-bye.

III.

First Student: Do you know, I think we should object. We're not being treated fairly.

Second Student: Isn't that the truth? Think of not having enough work to fill even our odd moments!
