WHAT IS REAL.
Did you ever pause to reflect at the "soul searching" time of midyear; and did you wonder what really was the use of the mass of facts that you were struggling to learn, write down on paper, and then forget? Our last, and already much discussed, Forum paved the way for such thoughts. A great deal of the discussion and many of the suggestions heard there were very helpful; but some of us, at least, came away with a rather helpless and unsatisfying feeling. After all, our reform in external matters, such as refraining from "talking shop," and starting to talk sensibly about academic matters which really interest us, is not going to carry us very far unless we get a sense of reality behind it all. Even quite necessary reform which concerns itself with saner methods of living and more time for thought will not give us what we ask if our general attitude towards College, academic and social, remains the same.

If we do not wake up to the fact that we are not in some obscure and unrelated part of the globe, learning to live, we certainly shall not realize that this is the world of life itself. This remark consoling after a particularly remarkable failure, "Well, a hundred years from now it won't matter what marks I got," we hurt ourselves by not realizing that, if our marks will not count a century hence, the kind of life we have lived will count very much. Knowledge necessarily labeled and stored away in mental pigeon holes to be brought forth and displayed for the sole purpose of gaining an "A" or "B" is not the kind of knowledge that counts. The methods of work which make one girl trusted and respected, the manner of living and the quiet, yet forceful results of some girls' hard thinking are not said and done, which makes life worth living. Few of us see the colossal stupidity of saying, "Go to, I will develop great strength of character and admirable poise," and then sliding along with our usual slip-shod, care-free ways of living. We are not an isolated community. We are a part of the world and a part of the world whose business it is to provide efficient and "all-round" world citizens. The real things are not the marvelous achievements but the things we are doing now. Life recognizes such a thing as a "successful failure" on the part of a dreamer who falls in trying to make his dreams realities, but life is hard on those who dream peacefully on and do not let the present disturb their slumbers.

THE SUNDAY RULES.
The Sunday of the old Wellesley was a beautiful day, full of quiet and repose, consistent and satisfying the needs of the community; a home day, untainted by the outside world. Were we not fully or largely, we have given up that ideal of Sunday. We no longer close our doors to those outside our walls, as the number of visitors to be seen on Sunday will testify; and besides we have those curiously named days, called "open" Sundays, showing that we still hold fast, in language, to the old "shut" Sunday, although in reality it has ceased to exist. Many of us are watching with interest and sympathy the attempts of the Student Government Association to work out for us a set of rules that shall give us a day equally well meeting the needs of this new and larger community.

The task is by no means easy; yet it must be done, as the constant revolt against the present situation shows. I cannot see is the principle upon which the rules as they stand, and the proposed changes to those rules, are based. Why do we have rules at all, if we could once clearly determine that? Have we made an attempt at ruling, rules in the interest of the community or of the individual student? Are they to promote health or piety or both? The proposition to extend the Senior concert privileges to six times instead of two, is in accordance with which principle? Is it good for the community that the student should be allowed to attend six instead of two concerts, and if so, why not seven or eight, or as many as the pleases? Or is it good for her health? Is it good for her, and so that number is fixed upon? In other words, is there in this change a reason that relates to our whole life?

When I come to study other cases, I am as much puzzled. Do not particular instances of the kind and working of our Sunday rules sound like examples from the note-book of W. L. George on the "intelligence of Women," (see the Atlantic for December and January)? For example: any young woman of Wellesley College may walk to Boston to a concert on Sunday afternoon—I have known Juniors to do so—but only Seniors may go comfortably on the same day. Now, since usually a Junior goes home for the week end, and walks the ten miles back on Sunday afternoon. Yet members of the faculty travel frequently or habitually to Sunday concerts, or or from these houses. Is it for reasons relating to the community or the individual, that this is right in one case and wrong in the other?

Again a number of students may spend four hours in a hot, stuffy kitchen cooking supper for forty people and washing the dishes afterwards, but they may not paddle two by two on the blue waters of Lake Waban; they may, indeed, work the whole of Sunday, getting ready and giving a tea to sixty people at four o'clock in the afternoon, or they may toll the entire morning to prepare an elaborate breakfast party, but they may not slate even a half hour of God's fresh, free air. They may, however, walk as far as they please and as long as they please, even taking their supper and eating it outdoors. In fact, it seems, a student may go where she pleases to concert, lecture, party, in town or city, provided she does it on her own feet, with nothing like skates or wheels between her feet and the ground.

Many of our leading students are much interested in the Forum, in making it a permanent source of understanding and growth in our life. The first Forum to be started in the United States is in Boston at Ford Hall, and it is still included to be the best. People come from all over the country to see how skilfully that meeting is led. Recently the thought occurred to me that the leaders of our Forum must hereafter be taught how to see how the Ford Hall meetings are conducted, so I asked several of them to go in with me on a Sunday evening. They answered at once, "We should be very glad to do so, but our Sunday rules would not allow it." Yet they could go to a concert. What is the principle by which we judge that attending a meeting for the discussion of questions relating to social righteousness is wrong, and attending a concert is right? Any one of us can add many more to this list of inconsistencies.

I am not speaking against Sunday rules, but asking that the Student Government Association show us the principles upon which rules rest, and are to rest if they are to be rewritten. Such rules should relate vitally and fundamentally to the needs and to the expanding power of our lives, or they will continue to create friction and unrest, which do not promote the sanity of either the individual or the community. My objection to our present Sunday rules is that they seem to indicate to us neither logic nor piety, and they ought to point to one or the other, or possibly both.

COLLEGE SETTLEMENT NOTES.
"PICKING"—AND MIDGETS' MORALS.
1. The New York College Settlement is making a study of candy-stores in the neighborhood. Interest was awakened by the fact that many of the Midget clubs of boys under fourteen years reported that gambling was encouraged in these stores, and much discussion was carried on in their clubs as to the morality of this or that game of chance. The investigation has brought out the interesting fact that only in one store out of ten is gambling even of the mildest sort allowed. "Pick- ing"—the card with a number on it if the lucky number is selected, a bag of candy is the prize—and prize packages seem to constitute the worst offences. The fact that we are in a Jewish section, where such positions do not usually fall to anyone who might occupy them, has a good deal to do with the fact, but the situation speaks well also for the police and their increasingly careful work.

2. Applications are already coming in to Denver House (the Boston College Settlement at 93 Tyler St.) for residence during the Easter vacation period. Smith College finds the experience so profitable that the Chapter sends a delegate.

RUSSIAN CONCERT.
The concert in the Memorial Chapel at 9 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, February 12, will be given by the Russian choir of the Cathedral Church (Greek) of St. Nicholas in New York City.

was at home from 2 to 6 at the Phi Sigma House. A large number, not only of councillors, but also of faculty members and neighboring alumnae, enjoyed the very gracious hospitality of the committee. After chapel service in the evening, President Pendleton was at home to the councillors.

On Monday morning at 9.30, the Council again assembled, the Vice-President, Mrs. Davis, again presiding. Miss Welch read the report of the Secretary, and in the absence of Mrs. Reynolds, the Treasurer of the Graduate Council. In accordance with a request by Miss Orvis, a ruling vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Wheeler and the Student Alumni Board, which settled the value of all its property.

Mrs. Van Winkle reported for the Finance Committee a plan for the temporary financing of the Council and Alumni Association, by means of voluntary subscriptions of from fifty to one hundred dollars given by one hundred alumnae; this to provide funds until the Alumni Association treasury should show the effect of the proposed increase in dues.

Mrs. Wilson then gave a most interesting and valuable report for the Committee on Wellesley Clubs, considering various means for making the Wellesley club a more effective and far-reaching organization. She stated that the returning councillors were requested to report from their club secretaries, information on the following points: (1) Has your club a committee reporting Wellesley news at every meeting? (2) Has it a card catalogue of actual and possible members? (3) How much increase in membership can you report since 1912? (4) For clubs organized since that time, how much increase in the last year? (5) How many regular meetings are held? (6) Has there been an increase in the number of meetings in the last two years? (7) What is the average attendance at meetings? The following recommendations were made in the report: (1) That the arrangement for both resident and corresponding members be made by each club according to distance and dues to be fixed by each club. (2) That the Executive Board of each club arrange with each group of Wellesley women in its territory not members of the club for at least one meeting a year. (3) That the committee be authorized to print copies of the constitution of the council and the model constitution for Wellesley clubs, to be sold at not more than ten cents a copy. (4) That each club arrange an all-Wellesley program for next year. For reports from councillors-at-large, Mrs. Wilson read a letter from Mrs. Remick describing the successful operation of President Pendleton’s Southern Board. Mrs. Van Winkle gave an account of her work in Utah, Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming.

Miss Jenkins requested that the clubs send in information as to officers and meetings, and that alumnae visiting College register at her office. Miss Batchelder read a report on the plans for the Alumni Quarterly. Mrs. Pearson announced in connection with her amendment, proposed at the June meeting, that the alumnae dues should be more than two dollars or less than one dollar and fifty cents.

Miss Smith reported briefly for the Committee on Class Records; Mrs. Magee, for the Publicity Committee, recommended that the fifty dollars now appropriated for subscription to a clipping bureau be used to pay for news letters of undergraduates at Wellesley clubs, and that for a time a substitute organization similar to the Press Board be established.

Miss Croft, for the Committee on Undergraduate Activities, reported on the work for the Student Aid fund and on the progress of organization of a Students’ Aid Society at Wellesley, to be supported by subscriptions from Wellesley graduates, with a representative of the society acting in connection with each Wellesley club. Mrs. James reported for Miss Angell on Preparatory Schools, that the work of the committee had been temporarily held up by changes in entrance requirements now under consideration in various colleges.

The amendments to the Graduate Council constitution on which the delegate had been instructed by their club were passed. Miss Conant thanked the clubs for the response to the questions on living conditions sent out by the Conference Committee. Miss Freeman requested the aid of the alumnae in the statistical work which her committee is preparing to send out. Miss Holmes announced further pledges to the Student-Alumnae Building Fund, bringing the total to $259,285.16. Mrs. Silver reported for the Off Campus Rally:

The question of the contents of the Student Alumnae Building, as well as of its site, was then brought up by Mrs. Florence Besse Brewster, with the result that a roll-call of councillors was taken, in regard to these points. The councillors then adjourned to Tower Hall, where they were entertained at luncheon by Miss Olive Davis.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

A copy of the questionnaires concerning the spiritual needs of the students and the ability of the college associations to meet these needs. A copy of the questionnaire will soon be distributed to each student in the College; and the results, combined with the findings from other colleges, will be reported to the Student Committee in March. While the consideration of these questions is purely optional, it is hoped that each girl will answer them all or at least as many as possible. A few answers are better than none. Please use the remaining space to give any concrete, practical suggestions by means of which the Christian Association at Wellesley can increase its influence over the religious life of the College and its service to each girl in meeting her spiritual needs. You may never have another chance to help both the National and College Associations in their most important work. Our association can never realize its highest aim unless every member is day by day deepening her own spiritual life for greater service and allowing and helping the Christian Association to give her its support and inspiration. The questionnaires will be collected within four days after distribution. We will consider it a favor if you will have them ready by that time.

APPLICATIONS FOR GRADUATE INSTRUCTION.

Graduate students and members of the class of 1916 who intend to apply for graduate instruction during the coming year, should obtain Graduate Circulars and consult the heads of departments in which they wish to work before May 1, 1916. These circulars and application blanks can be obtained at the registrar's office, and the application should be made before May 1, in order to be considered before September, 1916.

A list of the fellowships and scholarships to which appointment is made through Wellesley College is given on pages 21-24 of the Graduate Circular, and the details and conditions of certain fellowships and scholarships offered by other institutions and associations are posted on the graduate bulletin board. Thirty scholarships to the value of one hundred and seventy-five dollars a year, the equivalent of one year's tuition, are available for approved candidates for the M.A. degree in residence at Wellesley. The other scholarships noted are seldom given to students who are taking their first year of graduate work.

Further information and advice may be obtained from the Committee on Graduate Instruction.

Roxanna H. Vivian, Chairman.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN TRAINING FOR SOCIAL SCIENCE.

Readers of the News may be interested in the following quotations from a letter just received from Julia Drew, 1912. Miss Drew will be glad to answer any further inquiries (address Chicago Commons, Grand Ave. and Morgan St., Chicago) and a catalogue explaining the work more fully will be available for consultation at the Economics Office (room 11, Administration building).

Emily G. Baltch.

"I am taking a course which is so interesting and so worthily forth that I want other Wellesley girls to know about the opportunity, and plan to take advantage of it."

"Less than three years ago the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy added to their curriculum a Recreation Department with a special course of training for playground workers and those interested in similar work; the enrollment of this department is now about fifty. There are two courses offered, a two-year course for girls without college training and a special one-year course for college graduates. It is a latter course I am taking and I cannot speak too highly of it. It means hard work, both of body and mind, for it combines the special courses in recreation work with the regular second year courses at the School of Civics taken by the general students. Instead of the morning field work done by the general students, we spend our mornings at Hall House, taking Gymnastics, Theory of Gymnastics, Team Games, Story Telling, Folk Dances and Games, School Games, Child Study, Hand Work and other similar courses. Besides this we have two hours a week of practical work, and those of us who live in settlements (and there are generally openings for students in various settlements) do our work right at home. For this reason it is quite an advantage to live in a settlement, and one thus gains a double experience in the year.

The whole field of recreation work is a new and rapidly developing one, and many splendid openings are appearing for college graduates with special training in this line. The school here is the only one in the country combining the practical training for playground work with splendid courses in sociology and political science so necessary for constructive work in the community."

VOCA TIONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Students proposing to enter the vocational world will be interested in the following suggestions from the Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations, 130 East Twenty-second St., New York City.

College women as secretaries are in demand out of all proportion to the supply. Every one who has entered the field is evidently a good advertisement for college. The girl who has a secretarial mind should cut this out.

The Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations is often asked for information as to preparation for public service and to those contemplating postgraduate courses, advice is called to the Training School for Public Service, conducted by the Bureau of Municipal Research, 261 Broadway, New York. It aims to train men and women in modern administrative methods in civil government, to supply public and private bodies with competent administrators, and to afford opportunities for advanced students in economics and political science to prepare doctor's dissertations and treatises on specific problems. Professor Charles A. Beard of Columbia University is the supervisor of instruction. Students have at their command the best collection of materials on municipal government in the United States, and Columbia University gives credit toward higher degrees for field work done at the training school.

The American Academy of Dramatic Art is connected with Mr. Charles Frohman's Empire Theater and companies is the leading institution in this country for dramatic training. Information may be obtained from the Secretary, Room 142, Carnegie Hall, New York. January 27, 1916.

A MIDYEAR LYRIC.

(Apologies to Tennyson.)

I come from the haunts of the deadly germ,
I make a sudden sally.
And sparkle out 'mongst those who learn—
I go to the Russian Ballet.
I scatter, scatter as I go,
To my examination,
My germs and microbes, high and low.—
I'm an abomination.
With many a cough my friends I fret,
With many a sneeze and shiver.
Just let them wait! They'll get it yet.
For I'm a generous giver.
I scatter germs fast as they grow.
But vain is my endeavor.
For exams may come and exams may go.
But my cold goes on for ever.

P. S. This attempt is a splendid example of the combined effect of a cold and two exams.

REGRETS.

"I'm worried to death," were the words she often said.
Though I knew she even carried her precious books to bed.

SECOND ANNUAL BALL.

[We are glad to print the report which we have received of Miss Davis' ball for the College employees.]

No social function at the Barn looms as large as the ball given by Miss Davis and the heads of houses to the employees of the College. The raison d'étre lies in a foot-note to the invitation. It reads:

"An escort will be welcome."

On the evening of February 3, a gay procession of young men and maidens—some older, some younger, through starlight and snowlight, wound its way into the mellow light of many Chinese lanterns. Promptly at 8 o'clock, Miss Davis, Miss Snow and Miss Rust began to welcome the four hundred and fifty guests who were ushered down the long hall and presented. Many kindreds and tongues were represented—from Erin to Greece, from north, south, east and west, but all felt at home under the great Stars and Stripes looking down from the walls of the big barn ball room. The grand march merged into the dance through the strains of the five-piece popular orchestra of Marlboro. The dances were many and greatly enjoyed from 8 o'clock until 11.30, the merry-makers stopping only long enough to partake of the ample refreshments.

Miss Cobbins and her committee are to be congratulated on the success of the affair, but a word of thanks is also due the students who generously offered to do telephone and door work in the various College houses, thus enabling all the employees to attend the big annual party.

OUTDOOR BASEBALL.

Attention is called to the fact, which may not be generally known, that outdoor baseball is to be a regularly organized sport this spring. This decision was made at the last Athletic Association Board meeting for three reasons: First, because baseball itself is a genuinely good game with a chance for plenty of exercise for both brain and muscle and a large amount of fun into the bargain; secondly because the opening of another sport would relieve the rather painful congestion that exists at present, and thirdly because the interest in indoor baseball seemed to wane. But in order to start it successfully, more people must be enrolled than are present. If you have signed up for another sport, but still have yearnings toward baseball, at least reconsider the matter. The new head would appreciate your support, baseball needs you and the sport you have chosen would probably be much better off with one less member. The lists close Monday, February 14.

ATTENTION, DEBATERS.

Debating Club tryouts for the intercollegiate debate are to be held Monday and Tuesday nights, February 14 and 15. The subject and place will be announced on the bulletin board. Everybody come out and try!

CHAPEL SERVICE.

At the morning service in the Chapel, February 6, Dr. Cheland B. McAlce of Chicago spoke on the relation of religion to the commonplace of life. Even Jesus, when he returned to His home, could not be appreciated, for people thought of Him merely as something in the ordinary run of life. They had not enough religion to see God working in their own town. Many people must have some extraordinary miracle to serve as evidence that God worked in Christ. Others, at the other extreme, dismiss all miracles as the laying hold of natural forces by intelligence. But above all of these interpretations is the conception of miracles as means of arresting our attention,—as God’s “great bell ringing” to attract people, but ceasing as soon as men come and see the real religion. God works no more through miracles than through common things. The rich blessing comes to those who, having seen the truth in humdrum events, believe in God.

“Religion,” Dr. McAlce said, “is not something added to our lives or peculiar to some people. It is the giving of your whole self a chance to show itself. Just as the educated man or woman is the normal one, because college life has unfolded the self, religion, too, proves itself by the expression in daily life of the fundamental realities behind each period. The reformed man who appeared before the church leaders, and declared himself to be the greatest trophy of God’s grace certainly was wrong, for, as the expected elder replied, he was the greater trophy, for God’s grace had kept him from ever allowing his habits to run him down high. God’s grace appears surely as much in the safe journey of a man whose mind never even almost stumble as in the miraculous delivery from death of the rider whose animal falls over the precipice.

“Looking at Jesus’ position at home from his personal point of view, we see how very hard it must have been for him to do His best work; to be His best self in the face of taunts and sneers from neighbors, and disdain on the part of his own brethren. How much easier a task Abraham undertook, when he lived up to his best self in totally new surroundings, than Noah assumed when he upheld his highest principles of life against ridicule of his old associates! When we leave college we must expect to find it harder to be our best in home surroundings than in those of a New York settlement.

“It is the grind of life that tests us. Out of the steady ongoing come the great achievements, and the ability to rise to emergencies. In the weeks in which nothing has happened here at college, the greatest things in the world have happened. Out of the monotonous grind came, for example, the American self-control that brought the girls safely from College Hall, when it burned.

“Our common surroundings challenge us, then, first to see God in the ordinary experience, second, to learn to be our best selves in the grind, and third, to remember that Christ found it hard to be his best in home surroundings, and so can make us live up to our highest.”

THE WELLESLEY AMBULANCE.

Professor Hart has received the following letter and enclosure from A. Platt Andrew, the director of the ambulance corps to which the Wellesley Ambulance was given. The donors will perhaps be interested in this report.

DEAR MADAM

I am sure that you will be interested in the en- closed tribute to Richard Hall, a young Dartmouth graduate who was killed early Christmas morning in the Voges, by a German shell. It was written by Hall's comrades of Section 3, to which your car is attached, and it is a vivid picture of the Section's experiences as well as a plainly-merited recogni- tion of a brave, modest American youth, who elected to do a fine work and lost his life in doing it. Section 3 has been stationed, since the middle of last April, in the heart of the Voges. Last June, it took part in the heavy fighting near Metzeral, in the valley of the Fecht, and all this autumn and winter it has been able to maintain, owing to the light, powerful cars which it is equipped, an heroic service on the steep, often-shelled roads lead- ing to Hartmannswierkof. But the work has proved a heavy strain on men and cars and you will confer a favor on the whole service whenever you bring our organization to the attention of any young American able to drive and take care of a car and likely to give a good account of himself in the trying circumstances that our volunteers in the field must face. Men can join in America through W. R. Hereford, Bankers Trust Building, 4 Wall St., New York City.

Anything which the friends of the Field Service can do to maintain its efficiency will be appreciated, I know, by the volunteers in the field as much by the committee.

Yours sincerely,
A. Platt Andrew.

P.S. Should you know anyone who might care to assist the Field Service financially, such assist- ance would be appreciated and any gift should be marked "for the Field Service of the American Ambulance."

RICHARD HALL.

A YOUNG AMERICAN WHO DIED FOR FRANCE.

In one of the most beautiful countries of the world, the Alsatian Valley of the Thur runs to where the Vogues abruptly end in the great flat plain of the Rhine. In turn a small valley descends into that of the Thur. At the head of this valley lies the small village of Mollau, where is nestled the Sanitaire Amerique No. 3. It has been through months of laborious, patient, never-ceasing trips from the valley to the mountain tops and back, up the broadened mule and wagon trail, over the thousand wheels and the hoofs of mules, horses and oxen, by hob-nail boots and by the cars of the American Ambulance. For no other section is equipped with cars and no one could work from the small Alsatian towns, leaving the main valley road to grind through a few fields of ever increasing grade on into the forest, sometimes pushed, sometimes pulled—always blocked on the steepest slopes by huge army wagons deserted where they stuck, rasping card-loads of trench torpedo- on one side, crumbling the edge of the ravine on the other, day and night, night and day in snow and rain, and, far worse, fog—months of foul and days of fair—with the interminable caravans of "ravitaillement," supplies with which to sustain or blast the human body (we go down with it).
