4-19-1917

The Wellesley News (04-19-1917)

Wellesley College

Follow this and additional works at: http://repository.wellesley.edu/news

Recommended Citation
http://repository.wellesley.edu/news/527

This is brought to you for free and open access by the Archives at Wellesley College Digital Scholarship and Archive. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Wellesley News by an authorized administrator of Wellesley College Digital Scholarship and Archive. For more information, please contact ir@wellesley.edu.
Wellesley College News

Entered as second-class matter November 17, 1916, at the post office at Framingham, Mass., under the act of March 3, 1879.

VOL. XXIV FRAMINGHAM AND WELLESLEY, MASS., APRIL 19, 1917 No. 25

COLLEGE CALENDAR.

Wednesday, April 18, Christian Association Meeting in village, Dr. Cabot.
Thursday, April 19, Christian Association Meeting on Campus, Miss Merrill.
Friday, April 20, 8.00 P. M., in the Barn. Bird club.
Saturday, April 21, Society Program Meetings.
Sunday, April 22, Morning Chapel. Rev. Wm. F. Badé.
3:00 P. M. Open Student Volunteer Meeting, at Billings. "The Trial of American Christian.
Vespers. Special music.
Monday, April 23, 8.30 P. M., in Billings. Heald by Miss Edith M. Searli, for the benefit of the Red Cross work.
Tuesday, April 24, 4.15 P. M., at T. Z. E. Miss Clara A. Hunt of the Brooklyn Public Library. Subject, Librarians Work with Children.
Wednesday, April 25, 8.00 P. M., at Billings. Lecture by Professor Arthur Gordon Webster, of Clark University. Subject, Physics and the War.
Thursday, April 26, Christian Association Meetings.
In Stone Hall. Parlor discussion meeting led by Helen McMillin. Subject, What Does Church Membership Mean?
St. Andrew's. Speaker, Katherine Speelden.
St. Sophia's. Subject, Loyalty.
Friday, April 27, First performance of the operetta, in the Barn, at 7.25 P. M.
Saturday, April 28, Second performance of the operetta.

PHYSICS AND WAR.
Professor Arthur Gordon Webster of Clark University, one of the foremost physicists of the country, has kindly consented to lecture before the college, on Wednesday evening, April twenty-fifth, on "Physics and War." Professor Webster is a member of the National Committee of the War Department.

As Others See Us.
Once a year the Senior Class resolves itself with mock solemnity into an Academic Council, and despite the efforts of 1918, who kidnapped 1917's president, the 1917 Council was called to order at the appointed time last Saturday afternoon. In appearance at least, the assembly was startlingly like its serious counterpart, but the question under discussion, serious and timely though it is, has not yet come to the attention of that august body.
"Should knitting be adopted into the curriculum of Wellesley College or should it be considered as an organized sport?" was the subject under consideration and an extraordinary variety of arguments was brought to light, each one being distinctly representative of its dignified exponent.

Those who advocated its introduction into the curriculum took the stand that knitting is a humanistic accomplishment which if acquired would further our aim of perfection in all things. Moreover, very demanding that we perpetuate the art of knitting, ancient as the earliest Latin.

Those who would have the "art" of knitting should be endorsed, preferably a rocking chair. Some protested that the contrary knitting was a voca-

Mr. Frost's New England Poetry.
Mr. Robert Frost brought his "North of Boston" scenes and people before an appreciative Wellesley audience just Friday night, April 13. Mr. Frost began his reading by effectively "breaking himself in," as he explained, with what were called "opening pieces." The first two poems dealt with essential traits of Yankee character as shown by the super-sensitive hired man in "The Cod," and the unembellished Mr. Brown in "Brown's Desert." These sketches were made vivid by native dialect and by the graphic descriptions of New England country and climate.
The next group of poems were of a more lyric character. Mr. Frost explained his use of the conversational verse form, tending toward the "talking" kind of poetry. "Mending a Wall" and "The Road Not Taken" were representative of the more philosophical poems. Three exquisite nature poems, "Mowing," "Whining Wind," and "The Birches" brought the beauty of New England country life vividly before us. Especially in "The Birches" his tendency toward striking and often fantastic figures was shown.
The dramatic dialogue entitled "Snow" was the longest poem of the evening's reading. The power of the character of the circuit rider who goes out into the blizzard from warm fires, his vital interest shown by the friends who could not stay with him, were revealed in the colloquial and strikingly concrete treatment of the situation. The subtle variations in their emotions were dramatically depicted. The poems, the hidden struggle with danger, the realization of this clash of a masterful and incombustible will with the strength of the great blizzard, were suggested in a few daring lines. This poem brought forth Mr. Frost's power of revealing a complex character through the medium of the selection of concrete and significant incidents.
The last poem of his program, "The Death of the Hired Man," emphasized the latent tenderness and abundant sympathy of the former folk. Here, again, Mr. Frost was able to suggest a great deal in a very few lines.

Mr. Frost's poems are of special interest to us because they are representative of a modern tendency toward a freer and more unharnessed interpretation of character. Mr. Frost is far from being a "vera librarist;" his effort toward naturalism is in the context rather than in the form. He is a poet essentially of and for New England; his message is a masterly revelation of the beauty of its land, and the charm and worth of its native people.

Titchener on the Association of Ideas.
Especially for those who have come, through their work in idea psychology, to realize that "I" stands for unquestioned authority, it was a pleasure to hear Dr. Titchener lecture in Billings Hall on April 12th on "The Association of Ideas,—And After." That psychology, as a science, is a subject that is always progressing, must become clear in the light of the lecture. The subject of the association of ideas is a way, as it were, of remembering what the wise man, Aristotle, in a tract on memory, casually laid down four rules for recall that which has been forgotten.

To follow his rules to their logical sequence would bring us to the main conclusion that any idea may call up any other. Realizing this absurdity, we adopt the scientific method of following... (Concluded on page 3)

President Pendleton Enthusiastically Received.
Morning chapel was crowned with an expectant audience on April 17 when a majority of the four classes congregated to greet Miss Pendleton on her return from Washington. Although feeling that college girls are sufficiently prepared to do their share in these serious times, she told us of her attendance at a meeting of the representatives of all the large colleges who are offering their services to the government. After this meeting, Miss Pendleton and the presidents of Bryn Mawr and Mount Holyoke conferred with Secretary Baker. As was expected he could give no definite plan at present for undergraduate service in women's colleges, but the offer was greatly appreciated and may be made use of in the future. President Pendleton then told us of her visit to the home, and of her meeting with Miss Rankin, the "gentleman from Montana."

President Pendleton, Dear Waite, Professor Hart and Miss Mary Jenkins were present last week at the biennial meeting of the Colleague Alumni Association at Washington, D. C. At the great open meeting on Wednesday evening, April 11, President Pendleton presided, introducing the speakers, President Thomas of Bryn Mawr, President Wootley of Mt. Holyoke, and Dean Comstock of Smith, and summarizing the discussion on The Curriculum of a College for Women. Dean Waite spoke at the Conference of Deans. Professor Hart presided as Chairman of the Conference of College Professors.

Congressional Records in the Flesh.
The program of the Agora open meeting at the Barn, Saturday evening, April 14, informed the audience that the session would take the form of a meeting of the "House of Representatives of the American Congress, session of March 4, 1877" with the subject of debate "The Armed-Ship Bill." Emily Allyn added the information that the entire substance of the speeches had been taken, without alteration, from the Congressional Record, and that the arrangement and deployment of the assemblage was copied from congress itself, as observed by members of Agora and others, except in so far as reality was impeded by the size of the Barn stage and of Agora society. That the presentation was by no means offered in a spirit of levity, we were assured, for those things which might appear ludicrous to the audience were true representations and not at all exaggerated. There were indeed such things. From the peanuts on the back row to the newspapers on the front, one was impressed with the inattention of the assemblage. The representatives shifted seats, waved dates and gathered in lightning groups at the back of the house. The speaking was as spirited as it was ill-attended. Appeals of the most stirring nature to the "fair name of our country" and "our common patriotism" were abandoned. The height of patriotic emotion was reached when Mr. Linthicum of Maryland recited in most dramatic manner "The Star Spangled Banner."

Afterwards Mr. London from New York, a well-dressed member of the house delivered straight-from-the-shoulder, a speech in favor of the bill. A noticeable feature of the debate was the fact that... (Concluded on page 6)
MARTYDOM.

There is, deep down in each and all of us, an instinctive desire to be a martyr. There is also a very real and sincere desire to assume our share in the present international crisis. The great need and difficulty lies in keeping the two distinct.

Obviously it is our duty to sacrifice something at a time when the whole world is sacrificing. For almost three years the European nations at war have had the sorrow at their very doorsteps which is now threatening us. The peoples in those countries have accepted hunger, anxiety, physical suffering and death not as a matter of complaint or boast, but as a high privilege in serving the Fatherland. We very seldom hear soliloquies of the risks they assume and the bravery they exhibit. It is this silent unboasted-of, but complete sacrifice that arouses our love and admiration for the French. They set, and they do not talk.

Could not we at Wellesley take France as an example. If we give up any such event as Tree Day or Senior Play the world outside the college will be aware of our unselfishness. But after all, such occasions form a vital part of our college life; they are landmarks to look back on in after years, and they yield pleasure to many outside the college. They could be, and probably should be, simplified and made less expensive, rather than entirely abandoned.

On the other hand, no one would know if we stayed in Wellesley instead of going to a matinee, if we gave up the idea of a rose-colored sleeveless sweater, or if we wore a last year's skirt. Look at the one o'clock special: look at the spring clothes in the Administration building, walk it into the Tennis House, and see how the war is affecting Wellesley! Unobtrusive self-sacrifice on the part of each girl would amount to more than a miasma into one conspicuous demin on the part of a class or the college at large. But the latter would satisfy our institutional instincts—obvious warodon. Which is really stronger, our desire to help, or our desire to show that we are helping?

THE INNOVATION.

We do not know with what success the new plan, which the Heads of Organizations have evolved for the spring elections, will meet. It is sufficient for us that such a plan has been worked out in accordance with increasing need. Our part lies in supporting the plan. We hope that our enthusiasm may be contagious and that we appreciate the growing demand of an innovation of such a nature. We hope, in spite of the radicalism of the change, which we have voted upon, perhaps without due consideration, that elections this year will take place with a greater or at least equal amount of enthusiasm as in former years and with less of the attending confusion. The new plan for voting has ained at an evil. Whether or not it succeeds in surmounting that evil remains to be seen, but it is for us, now that we have accepted it, to give it a chance.

WANTED—A BETSY ROSS.

That Wellesley should have a flag and a flag pole in a prominent position on the campus is, apparently not for one minute, questioned. The case with which signatures were procured for the petition so enthusiastically welcomed at the elevator... signed it on very general lines, disagreeing with some of its statements. It said, as I remember, that war is always futile. I should not myself so describe the American Revolution. It said something to the effect that war is the mother of war. I think the Revolution in Russia the direct outcome of the present war; and while that Revolution may have been inevitable in any case after another generation or so, I think it worth while that the little Jews now growing up will spend their fires in a free Russia.

If, in spite of these differences on specific points made by the appeal, I nevertheless signed it, I did so because I wished to bear witness to my firm belief that world organizations can be furthered without the instrument of war. America has chosen the other way. I accept in loyalty the will of our Government, but I still believe, in common with all who are proud to bear the revered name of Pacifist, that our method will prove practicable in a not so distant future.

Viva D. Scudder.

III.

One Square.

"The foremost duty of America toward her allies"—I quote in substance Mr. Hoover, the Belgian Relief Chairman,—"is to see that they are supplied with food and clothing. It will only eliminate waste, it will go far to help the whole problem. Now that we are in a serious and terrible conflict, the very existence of our national ideas of waste and extravagance in public places and numerous classes of Americans is a public scandal. Legislation and sumptuary regulations can accomplish for less than the voluntary self-denial and devotion of our people.

If we of Wellesley College are mature enough to prove ourselves more than college girls, who play and fraternize, and worthy of the name of college women who think and act, we understand what the text means, paragraph by paragraph. The college men are doing a splendid and chartered athletics. We, Wellesley College women, take up Red Cross work, it is true, but we also form committees to organize May Day and Tree Day, which, in the light of the times, can only seem wasteful frippery with which we amuse ourselves. For, in the meantime, Belgian starves. Since April first three Belgian relief ships have been blown up. Serious minded men stagger under the thought of the seven billion dollars which Congress asks. I had rather hoped that, since war is at hand, there would be a college wide propaganda to abolish our spring time holiday, for it does not come. We do not even seem willing to do our little share.

V. B., '18.

IV.

Votes for Freshmen?

As all-college elections approach, we must regret that the size of Wellesley makes it impossible for everyone to possess the thorough knowledge of a candidate's qualifications which intelligent voting demands. The Freshmen are the ones to suffer most from this disadvantage, both because of their distance from the campus and their comparative inexperience as members of the community; so it is for them that we are unable to exercise the right of suffrage unless they can be sure of their preference for a certain candidate rests upon a basis more substantial than a fleeting memory of her coiffure, or the uncased sound of her name.

1918.

V.

More First Aid Claims.

Just at this crisis in national affairs, everyone wishes to do his part for his country, and Wellesley girls are not backward in this feeling.

Many of us wish to take the Red Cross First Aid course, and yet may not because there is no room.

Why can not more classes be established under the direction, if necessary, of some one outside the college, for Dr. Raymond is very busy with her present classes.

Surely there are enough girls who wish to take this course to make another class worth while. Why can't we have it?

B. T., '18.

WHAT THEY DO IN WAR TIME.

Intercollegiate athletics have been given up by Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Columbia, Dartmouth, Georgetown, De Pauw, Michigan, and several Western institutions. The line and effort thus saved are devoted in most cases, if not all, to military activities.

Reserve Officers Training Corps have been organized at Johns Hopkins and Bowdoin.

University of Pennsylvania: The Student Battalion organized over a year ago now numbers over 1,000 undergraduates, and continues to grow. The University can send 5,000 volunteers if called upon.

Amherst: 410 men have elected the new Military Training course. Already a few others have devoted themselves to special work on gas engines, and chemistry.

Institute of Technology: Two lectures a week on aviation will be given for Harvard and Technology students registered in the army aviation service. They will be entitled to use part of the new aviation field at Squantum.

New York University: Seniors who enlist in the Army or Navy will be credited for classes while absent. Juniors will receive full grading for Junior year, while the Freshmen and Sophomores will be promoted on a corresponding basis. More than 400 men have been made ready for active service in various military service.

Cornell: Cornell University and the city of Ithaca are planning the organization and equipment of a Cornell-Ithaca section of the American Ambulance Field Service in France.

Vassar: Vassar stands ready to be of service in any way the national emergency may be needed during the war. As a member of the New York State Association of Universities and Colleges, she desires to place at the disposal of the State her college equipment and college organizations, for any purpose that may be used useful.

VASSAR ACCEPTS COLGATE'S CHALLENGE.

The first notable debate between college men and women was scheduled for April 21, 1917, when Vassar recently accepted a challenge from Colgate. The question was as follows: "Is the science of mechanics more useful for the Vassar-Mt. Holyoke-Wellesley triangular, Resolved: That the United States should adopt the Canadian system of compulsory investigation with a view to the settlement of disputes between public service corporations and their employees.

Vassar is to uphold the affirmative; her team and committee are those by which she was represented in the triangular, her debaters being Anabel McDowdow, '17, Mary Striehler, '17, and Polly Grey, '17.

Following Colgate's suggestion, there is to be no decision rendered in this first debate, the idea being to avoid unfortunate publicity. Colgate challenged Vassar last winter, but, as the men were unwilling to debate the question used in the triangular, the Vassar teams were unable to accept the challenge because of the great amount of time and work involved in working up a second subject.

CORRECTION

The News regrets that on April 12 it erroneously published a change in the program for the 23rd of April reading on April 23. As originally stated, Miss Snail will read selections from "The Halibut" of old Quebec" and "Lonesome-like" by Arnold Brighouse.

SHAKESPEARE TAG DAY APRIL 23.

Everyone will wish to wear a Shakespeare Medalion on April 23rd in order to pay homage to the great playwright. The Medalion will be sold by the Ired Cross Society at a minimum price of ten cents, but anything more would be most welcome, since the proceeds are to go to the starving Belgian children.

"Give twenty, forty, fifty or a hundred ducats for his picture in little" remembering that "The quality of mercy is not strain'd, I beseech him that giveth, and him that taketh; it is an attribute of God himself."

(Continued from page 1)
ALICE MAYNARD
546 FIFTH AVE., AT 45TH STREET, NEW YORK

Cordially invites inspection of her display of ADVANCE SPRING MODES including a wonderfully attractive line of
SPORT SUITS AND DRESSES
Also Sweaters, Art Needlework and Novelties

ALSO 1305 F ST., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C.

FINANCIAL Contributions:
Balance .................................................. $835.76
Receipts Mme. Haard's Lecture .......................... 247.18
Case more presentation of Julius Caesar .............. 7.50
1918 tea ................................................................ 5.94
1918 boxes ..................................................... 74.03
Fiske penny box .............................................. 1.84
Norumbega ................................................... 1.60
Payment on pledges ........................................ 461.35
Other contributions:
Alumnae .................................................... 10.00
Faculty ........................................................ 33.00
Students ...................................................... 14.38
Total ................................................................ 870.28

Distributions:
Mme. Haard's Hospital ....................................... $415.00
Wellesley Ambulance ........................................ 313.75
Blankets ...................................................... 7.00
Support of Belgian Children .............................. 65.30
Des Chêres Parisiennes ..................................... 1.00
Wellesley French Orphans ................................ 1.25
Permanent Blind Relief .................................... 5.00
American Relief ............................................. 25.00
American Red Cross ....................................... 79.97
Gauce for Surgical Dressings ........................... 18.47
Materials for Children's Clothes ....................... 17.20
Knitting needles ............................................ 14.91
Printing, postage, etc. ...................................... 6.00
Total .......................................................... $699.72

HELEN F. BLAKE, Chairman.

The Walnut Hill School
NATICK, MASS.

Careful preparation for all the colleges for women. Excellent teachers. Healthful location. Ample grounds and good buildings. Catalogue with pictures sent on request.

MISS CONANT and MISS BIGELOW, Principals.
MISS MARJORIE HISCOX, Assistant Principal.
A PRECIOUS GIFT OF BOOKS.

Again the English Literature Department is indebted to Miss Adele Lathrop, a former colleague and constant friend, for a generous gift. Miss Lathrop, an ardent and discriminating lover of books, has once morerobbed herself of happy finds on London bookshelves to enrich our library shelves. This time the books are four: a first edition (1808) of Charles Lamb's Specimens of English Dramatic Poets, one of the most significant volumes of criticism in the history of the Drama; a second edition (1821) of William Hazlitt's A View of the English Stage, also of the first rank in English dramatic criticism; a facsimile reprint of the first edition (1833) of Isaac Walton's The Compleat Angler or the Contemplative Man's Recreation; and a volume of the London Magazine, July to December, 1830. The London Magazine, though of short career (1820-29), is remarkable in literary annals for its recognition and presentation of genius. It published Hazlitt's Series of Dramatic Criticisms, (later gathered into the book named above); the Elys essays, De Quincey's Confessions of an Opium Eater, and two poems by Keats. The volumes are now scarce and hard to come by. This, the second volume in the series, contains the first Elys essay, Recollections of the South Sea House, as well as Oxford in the Vacation, and Christ's Hospital Fire and Thirty Years Ago. Several poems by Lamb are in this volume, too, although the only contribution accredited to him in the Table of Contents in the article entitled German Descriptions of Hogarth's Works. There are friendly references to Coleridge scattered through these pages, and to Keats, as well as an amiable but patronizing review of his Lamian, Isabella, The Eve of St. Agnes and Other Poems. As the reviewer proceeds, however, his indignation mounts against Blackwood's treatment of Keats, which he characterizes as "a daringly attempt... to assassinate a poet of power."

Miss Lathrop has enriched these volumes by photographs and memoranda.

K. L. '93

TO LET.

An attractive six room apartment on Appleby Road, Wellesley, will be ready for occupancy Sept. 1, 1917. Each apartment will contain: a living room with fire-place, a dining room, kitchen with fireless-cooker-gas-range, three sleeping rooms and porch. Janitor service can be procured at reasonable rates. Call Wellesley 733-W before 2 P.M. and after 7 P.M.

PROMPT AND EFFICIENT AUTO SERVICE

TO ALL MY PATRONS

When ordering or looking for my cars, they will be found at the Administration Building near Music Hall: at the Station, front or east end.

Your's for Prompt and Efficient Auto Service.

CARS MARKED E. O. P.

PERKINS GARAGE.

69 CENTRAL STREET, WELLESLEY, MASS.
As charming to taste as it is quaint to see!

$1.00 the package at Wellesley Grocery Co.

MORNING CHAPEL.

Embodied in Christ's attitude towards His greatest temptation is the solution to several questions which concern us individually, said Bishop William F. McDowell in morning chapel on April 15. The first temptation teaches us to use our power unselfishly. Christ fed a multitude on several loaves of bread, but when alone on the mountain he refused to use his power. The second temptation, to be sensational, Christ also resisted because he realized that this would be a test of God's promises rather than a test of life. Finally, Christ would not accept any power from Satan for that would be gaining His end by compromise and at the cost of His principles. Bishop McDowell said in conclusion that we must meet our temptations as Christ did, with unselfishness, obedience, and determination to cling to our principles. Thus can we win the world and lift humanity up to God.

F. L., 1919.

VESPER.

Mrs. Maudie Ballington Booth spoke at Vesper on April 15 about her work among the prisoners. Mrs. Booth was formerly very active in the reform and relief work of the Salvation Army, and later in that of the Volunteers of America. For the past twenty-two years, however, she has devoted herself to prison reform. Here is a double mission—to tell the world that the prisoners are well worth saving, and to bring a new hope to those within the walls. Mrs. Booth's first desire is to help the men while in prison, and prepare them to take their places in the world again. To accomplish this, she has founded a Volunteer Prison League, whose 87,000 members endeavor to become model prisoners and, later, model citizens. When a man leaves prison there are houses all over the country where he may go and be cared for and be given work. Another branch of the work is helping the mothers, wives, and children of the prisoners. In asking for assistance, Mrs. Booth does not plead the innocence nor the virtues of her "boys." What she does ask for is a square chance for the ex-criminals.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION MEETINGS.

VILLAG.

Worth While Prayer was the subject for the village Christian Association Meeting on Thursday evening, April 12. Eleanor Blair, the leader, reminded us that just as we need to outgrow our pinafores, now we are outgrowing some of our childish conceptions of God and of religion. It is through this growth that we realize the true meaning of prayer. Worth while prayer is prayer for the common good—for the good of nations, but of humanity.

CAMPS.

The Christian Association meeting held Thursday evening, April 12, in Billings Hall was led by Miss Orvis. Her subject was George Fox, a Spiritual Genius. It was after a long period of spiritual craving, during which the theoretical church could not help him, that Fox finally found the "spiritual light" he sought in the realization that all approaches to God are unnecessary, for God speaks directly to the soul if allowed. She was surprised to find that all men would not immediately embrace this simple belief, left his own church and established the Society of the Friends. He and his followers, relying on Divine Guidance, not only preached their simple faith all over England, but soon became known as social reformers.

VOCA TIONAL GUIDANCE MEETINGS.

The Vocational Guidance Committee announces a series of open meetings to be held during the spring term.

April 24th at 4:15.
Miss Clara W. Hunt, of Brooklyn Public Library, Subject: Librarianship with Children, May 1st at 4:15.
(Further announcement later).

(Helen D. Harrison, Chairman.

(Continued from page 1)

bill itself was hardly touched upon, and only the most vague and general principles were expounded. Much praise is deserved both by those who organized the presentation and by those who so well executed the plans, for from the calling of the roll by the clerk to his taking of the votes, the attention of the audience was held throughout.

The program was as follows:

Champ Clerk, Speaker ........ Emily Allyn
Rev. Henry N. Counsell, Chappellas .... Helen Lyon
Clerk ........ Lucian Butler

MEMBERS of the HOUSE.

(In the order in which they spoke)
Mr. Wadlow, Senator Clerk .......... Elsie Anderson
Mr. Wing, Ark. .......... Mildred Brown
Mr. Burnett, Va. .......... Melba Stucky
Mr. Littlepage, W. Va. .......... Margaret Person
Mr. Clark, W. Va. .......... Pauline Bailey
Mr. Gillett, Missouri .......... Ruth Bolandt
Mr. Ashbrook, Ohio .......... Hester Lewis
Mr. Smith, Mich. .......... Margaret Donovan
Mr. Henry, Texas .......... Shirley Gill Petrus
Mr. Flood, Va. .......... Helen Lockwood
Mr. Campbell, Kan. .......... Dorothy Wells
Mr. Beinert, N. Y. .......... Ruth Addams
Mr. Glass, Va. .......... Mary Robinson
Mr. Mann, Ill. .......... Minority Floor Leader
Mr. Crisp, Ga. .......... Lucile Peasefield
Mr. Adams, Ohio .......... Ruth Adams
Mr. Kitchin, N. C. .......... Majority Floor Leader
Katherine Ferriss
Mr. Fitzgerald, N. Y. .......... Laura Vossler
Mr. Cooper, W. Va. .......... Genevieve Frenon
Mr. Porter, Pa. .......... Minnie Freas
Mr. Lindahl, Md. .......... Ruth Austin
Mr. Lumenc, N. Y. .......... Mary Chiles
Mr. King, Ill. .......... Mary Spruor
Mr. Powers .......... Laurette Alling

CHURCH ORGANIZATION OFFERS SCHOLARSHIP.

On Friday, April 13, Mr. deSchwinitz of the Church Organization Society of New York visited Wellesley. The purpose of his visit was to extend a very generous invitation given Wellesley by the organization he represented. The invitation is to a member of the Junior class who is interested in Economics and who would like to spend a month, beginning July 6, in New York as the guest of the Associated Charities. This offer is extended to six of the Women's Colleges of the East, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Vassar, Wellesley, and a similar opportunity is open to six of the smaller men's colleges. The girl who accepts this invitation will be shown all branches of the work in New York; so that she will be able to tell people, not only the definite work that the organization is doing, but something of New York's industrial life and needs. As for practical details the Associated Charities will pay the expenses of their guest from Wellesley to New York and back and they will, also, pay the expenses incident to her visit.

M. E. C., '15.
ENGAGEMENT.

MARRIAGE.

'92. On April 1, at New York City, Marion W. Lowe to Frank H. Winter.

BIRTHS.

'08. On March 24, 1917, in Omaha, Neb., a daughter, to Mrs. C. C. McClure (Gertrude White).

'13. On March 27, 1917, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son, Eugene S., to Mrs. Eugene B. Strassburger (Constance Block)."
last year I gave them to Madame Bonnet after reading them. She in turn passed them on to Mlle. de Fufroid who was at Wellesley some time ago. Today I am sending quite a package of them to Paris.

"I hope either this letter or the other will reach you, but both may be swallowed by a whale. For three weeks after the breaking with Germany we were without mail,—now the service is more regular."

DENVER WELLESLEY CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the Denver Chapter of the Colorado Wellesley Club was held March 17th.

The success of the February bridge party given by the branch encouraged its members to appoint a committee to arrange for a second party. Another committee is busy in planning a Christmas party. As a result of the fair and card parties we hope to be able to contribute to the Student Alumnae Building Fund.

The Denver Chapter has also been interested in helping the Associate Alumnae to establish a Vocational Guidance Bureau for College Women.

INFORMATION WANTED, 1902.

For the Class Record of 1902, information is urgently desired of the following active and social members:

Clare Barnes, Juliette Cooke Jones, Jeannette Gregory Byington, Helen Grover Frye, Lucy Harrison, Alice Holdinby, Carol Kampman, Charlotte Marston Dowdill, Irene Mason Harper.

Anyone who can supply the correct address, or any information of recent date, regarding these members of the class whom the addresses used by the committee have not succeeded in reaching will confer a very greatly appreciated favor by communicating at once with Elizabeth Manwaring, Casemore Hall, Wellesley.

COLLEGE SETTLEMENTS ASSOCIATION AND WELLESLEY FELLOWSHIP OF $100 FOR 1917-18.

Requirements.

Candidates must be graduates of Wellesley College, and must present satisfactory evidence of good health and a special fitness for social work.

Plan.

The fellow will live for the nine months of the fellowship year in the New York or Boston Settlement where board is $6.00 a week.

The Academic work will be arranged to best supplement the student's college courses,—in New York, at the School of Philanthropy, or at Columbia, and in Boston, at the School for Social Workers or at Radcliffe.

The "practicum" will be for the most part at the Settlement although special opportunities for practice work outside the Settlement will be arranged if desirable.

Please write for further information and for application blanks to the chairman of the C. S. A. fellowship committee, Miss Helen F. Greene, 80 Pinckney Street, Boston, Mass.

(Continued from page 1)

Clothes and the Woman

We are very glad to be able to offer to college women a great facility in making a choice... by offering them the prettiest fashions from couturieres and manufacturers that one will find anywhere.

The New Spring Fashions are delightfully attractive—You'll enjoy seeing them.

Jordan Marsh Company

Copyrighted by Bonwit Teller & Co.

"Jeune Fille" Modes

distinctively Bonwit Teller & Co.

BONWIT TELLER & CO.

The Specialty Shop of Originalities

FIFTH AVENUE AT 35th STREET, NEW YORK.