PERILOUS OPTIMISM.

Those in charge of the Third Liberty Loan are finding in the general confidence that the Loan will be successfully met a serious menace to its achievement. There is need of not only as much effort as was made with the Second Loan, but of much more. The sum required is greater; the demands of the income tax at just this time make difficult the participation in the same proportion as before of many individuals and firms; and the need for money is more urgent. For these reasons, the subscriptions of those who can afford the $50 and $100 bonds are needed in far greater numbers than ever.

Remember that $250 is all you need to pay to have a $5 bond held for you, and you can pay it little as one dollar a week, if you wish. You are urged, however, to keep the payments up if you undertake them. Failing to keep up the payments means that the bond held for you must be thrown back on the market, and if many people do the same, that means that the market value of the bonds is temporarily lowered.

The representatives of the Wellesley Liberty Loan Committee will be at the Administration Building on Thursday morning, April 18, and on four afternoons in the following week: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 4. Men from various banks will be here on those days, to assist in answering questions and taking subscriptions.

We subscribed nearly $30,000 here for the Second Loan. We ought to do better for the Third—perhaps approach Vassar’s $30,000 subscription to the Second.

DR. WARD.

If you haven’t been to C. A. meetings this year, you will certainly want to hear Dr. Harry F. Ward on The Need for a New World, April 24. If you’ve been at the meetings regularly, you need no urging. Dr. Ward has been popular at Northfield and elsewhere. Discussion groups in particular cannot afford to miss this opportunity, for recently Dr. Ward has been speaking to such groups in other colleges. Next year he will be at the Union Theological Seminary with Dr. Pusey.

Oddly as it may seem, but it is upon the very day, that is April 11th, that they celebrate in Europe the anniversary of the assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand.

Peace with Slavery or Without?

The series of articles written by Andre Chera- dame in the Atlantic Monthly is a mine of facts, ideas, and suggestions. Let us try to extract some of its substance.

Germany has started this war to assure to herself, through the establishment of Pan-Germany, the domination of the world. The scheme, officially stated by Tammendorf in 1911, shows the will of Germany to unite under her supreme control a territory large enough to include military and economic resources entirely sufficient to guarantee for the needs of the population in times of war, and to assure to its rulers in times of peace the domination of the world.

The limits set by the Pan-German plan of 1911 have practically been reached. More than ever, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, Turkey are militarically, financially, diplomatically the vassals of Prussian militarism. The rulers of those countries are simply marionettes moved by Berlin threads. The fact is that 73 million Germans, aided by 21 million Belgians, have, at this present time, reduced to slavery 82 millions of Latvians, Slavs, and Serbs belonging to the different countries occupied by Germany.

Even if we suppose that the German army should withdraw from Russia, Poland, Belgium, and Northern France, Pan-Germany would still include more than 130 million people and could count upon 30 million soldiers, one-fifth of the population being mobilized, Germany is ready to give her signature to all kinds of treaties of settlement, even including Serbia. Did not the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin declare to Mr. Lloyd George, "We keep our fingers at treating treaties"? Besides, we can very well judge Germany’s intentions by Germany’s facts.

Do not think that the great effort made by Germany to organize Pan-Germany has greatly impoverished itself. At the end of 1917, Germany had spent for the war only 1,001 francs per capita of her population, while France had spent 2,260 francs, Germany, being blockaded, has spent very little money abroad, while the Allies have sent billions of dollars. In fact Germany, thanks to the huge hoard huygarized in Montenegro, Albania, Serbia, Roumania, Poland, Belgium, Northern France, Russia, Italy, is now richer than ever before the war. The Germans not only seded, in those countries, human material, war material, food stuffs, but they stole all the raw materials they could find, like coal, iron ore, metals, wool, cotton, textile fabrics, etc., they stole finished products, like motors, machinery, mills, etc., they stole furniture, rugs, linen, all kinds of personal property; they stole works of Art, “so that they may be preserved as a record of art and civilization,” as officially explains one of the most elevated notes of the German Government; they stole money, jewels, securities for millions. The total plunder mounts well up in the trillions of billions. If one considers all the elements of Germany’s adventures in this war, her clear profits, with all expenses deducted, can only be computed in hundreds of billions of francs.

With a peace at this present time, there is no country in the world, in the New World as well as in the Ancient World, which could escape the clutches of Pan-Germany, that is to say slavery. Already the domination of all Russia, from the Baltic to the Pacific, is almost assured. How can German militarism score this fatal success? Simply through pacifism. It is pacifism, made in Germany, assimilated by the idealistic Russian mind, that brought about anarchy in the Russian soul and rear, and caused the complete downfall of the country. Isn’t it clever of the Prussian eagle to persuade its prey to shut its eyes, have a good dream, and keep quiet? The Germans know more than one sort of offensive for enslaving the world. There is an idealistic offensive as well as a military offensive.

As M. Chera-dame remarks, pacifism, with all the best possible intentions, is the most useful ally of Prussian autocracy and militarism. It is the brake that stops the wheels of the Allied war machinery, the narcotic that poisons and paralyzes the centers of action; it is everything except help to kill the monster. Indeed Force alone, Force to the utmost, can kill the monster and restore the God of Peace, the God of Peace without slavery. The cause that America, with her Allies, is fighting for is a great Ideal, involving all the essence of Christianity. War spirit and Force are not the essence of Christianity, but everybody knows that the essence of Christianity, more than once in the course of history, has been rescued and preserved by war spirit and force. So must it be and so will it be again this time.

Tree Day Mistresses.

1918 announces to the college their election of Mildred Faris for this year’s senior mistress of Tree Day.

The freshman class announced Dorothy Avery as their Tree Day mistress, after chapel on Thursday, April 11.
ELECTIONS.

The class of 1918 has taken a very important step towards making for herself a successful senior year. The heads of organizations elected Thursday, April 11, are particularly well suited to the positions they will hold.

Helen Merrell, the first president of the Wellesley College Government Association, is sure to fulfill the highest hopes of those who, departing from precedent, elected a girl who has not heretofore worked in the Student Government. She has, however, shown her ability, clearness of vision and versatility in her work within the past three years as a class officer, twice as debater on the intercollegiate team, and this year as Annual Member for the Christian Association. The excellence of her academic standing also recommends her for a position in which clear thinking is so essential. With the assistance of Charlotte Hazeltine, whose experience on the Student Government Board this year and as freshman president will be invaluable, our new form of government should be made most successful.

1919's Christian Association president, Eleanor Linton, has been Recording Secretary of this organization and has done excellent work on its committee. Special credit should be given her for her management of this year's "week of prayer." Were it not that she is so eminently suitable for her new position it would be a source of tremendous regret to the News to lose so able a reporter. Margaret Post has been on 1918's crew for three years. She has also held the position of treasurer of Athletic Association this year. She is sure to fill admirably the requirements of Athletic Association president. Mary Hering, also of athletic prowess, is certain to be a good vice-president for this organization.

Those who remember the "movie-man" in last year's operetta, Wlowlani in the Junior play, and the intercollegiate team's vice-president, the Barn, welcome Margaret Horton to the presidency of the Barnswallows' Association with expectations of a fine year ahead. Jeanne Halstend has shown her dramatic ability in The Roof of Plymouth Town, her executive ability as president of 1920 during the year. She ought to be an admirable vice-president for Barnswallows' Association.

We need hardly comment on Vera Hemenway's fitness for her office to anyone who heard the Smith-Wellesley debate. Catherine Hughes, who was alternate on the Holyoke-Wellesley debate, chairman of the Debate Club and temporary chief of Delating Club as Vera Hemenway will be for its president.

TO WIN THE WAR.

"I accept the challenge. I know that you accept it. All the world shall know that you accept it. It shall appear in the utter sacrifice and self-forgettingness with which we shall give all that we have to overcome and redeem the world and make it fit for free men like ourselves to live in. This now is the meaning of all that we do. Let everything that we say, our fellow-countrymen, every thought of this wrathful and splendid, ring true to this response till the majesty and might of our concerted power shall fill the thought and utterly defeat the force of those who float and misquote what we honor and hold dear."

This is Wilson's answer to the challenge of the peace Germany now has the Allies accept. It is an answer which does not depend on the government alone, nor on the army alone for its consummation. It is a call to his "fellow countrymen," to his fellow countrywomen. It is a direct appeal to the union leaders who would call strike in the face of national need and to the students of Wellesley College who refuse to do their utmost to help win the war, which is the end to which all other ends must be subject.

What is Wellesley doing for the Third Liberty Loan? Our constant repetition can we impress the bitter necessity which demands the investment not of our "superflity" but of our "need" in these government bonds. Share parties are luxurious stylostics of state clothes not a thing, and luxuries. Investment in the Third Liberty Loan is a necessity. We must keep our country from the defeat of the peace which threatens us if we do not act unflinchingly. It is the affair of every girl in Wellesley College who can possibly scrape together enough money to buy a bond. The call comes to us from across the water. Says Lloyd George, "Everything depends upon keeping our boys home, and whatever it costs in strain upon our resources may be. With American aid we can do it." Does Wellesley deny her personal responsibility?

LABELLING PEOPLE.

There is another great Wellesley platitude, the girl of which is "She's the only one for that office, because she's been on the Board and understands the work." The recent elections have proved the impracticability of this theory. They have shown that the college is thinking in terms of the present, that it is not prepared for what has been done in past years, regardless of the problems which must be faced in this particular day. It is a system, this sequence which the college has fallen into the habit of encouraging. It is first cousin to the other Platitude, whose substance is that it's always the same girls who hold office. A college naturally wants its offices administered by the girls who are most capable of filling them. Therefore, too long mentally to put serious thought into the matter, it supports whoever has shown herself most efficient in that particular organization. From this has grown the unintelligent practice of "labelling" people. For example, a capable girl is invited to serve on a Christian Association committee her freshman year. She may be far better fitted for Barn work or College Government, but because she makes good on that committee and is vitally interested in its welfare, she is labelled "C.A.", and that ends her usefulness in any other distinctly different line. There is another side to the argument. The results of this kind of voting are satisfactory—perhaps the college feels that in electing a girl who has been identified with a certain organization throughout her college career, it is getting an efficient and unyielding worker for that organization. But is there any harm in making an effort to find an administrator more competent, more efficient? At any rate, it has been tried—and time will show whether this policy is wise or not.

Acid test— to be applied when voting: "Is this girl running because she enjoys office-holding or because she enjoys the kind of work that this office entails?"

LABOR'S CHOICE.

To many a girl, attempting to arrange her non-academic activities, the point system rises to bar the way, "One major office only!" it says. And in her head absorption of the day's tomes seems more unpalatable than a complete and admitted ignorance.

This may be but I doubt whether many girls are bored from one office to another. The mental and moral struggles which some are passing through now indicate a strong determination to do what is right, to stay or go where one is most needed. Often the girl wonders, what should college do for me?" Should I get all I can get from my four years here? If so, how can I get the most and where?"

A QUESTION.

How many of our college girls know anything about the War-Chest plan, the details of the Third Liberty Loan, the newly appointed Generalissimo of the allied forces, the new German long-range gun, the recent significant Senatorial elections in Wisconsin? It has often been remarked that college girls are far behind in their knowledge of present affairs. There are many and good reasons for this. For one thing, most of us don't have enough time to thoroughly read the newspapers, and for another, papers are not always available in our spare moments. Cannot both these difficulties be overcome? If a bulletin board were placed in each dormitory, containing clipped excerpts of the most important news items of the day, it might be that all students could be made aware of current events could be stimulated. Five minutes reading each day, perhaps while waiting for the dinner bell to ring, or the postman to come, would give one a fair command, if not of all the significant events, but of the most important. Can we afford to be ignorant at such a time as this?

M. A. C., '21.

No, we cannot. And for just this reason a hasty but well thought out summary of some of the news items which seems more unpalatable than a complete and admitted ignorance.

R. M. '19.
Ill.
Why?

Has anyone a right to demand from us dues or contributions, for whatever cause, that are not mentioned among the list of expenses in the catalogue? We strenuously object to being told that we must contribute to any particular cause, however worthy, and being made to feel that a refusal is an indication of a lack of college loyalty. May we not be allowed to discriminate between organizations? For instance, the Equal Suffrage League, the Students' Scholarship Fund, the Consumers' League, College Settlements, etc., and give our money to whichever of these we are really interested in? When a house votes to support a certain number of orphans, or to buy a Liberty Bond, why should those people who did not vote for it have to pay their share? Charitable contributions should be spontaneous, at least.

Our freshmen, especially, are made to feel that it is their duty to open their purses to every collector who appears in the village. Is it not better to allow them to use their own judgment than to force them to the final alternative of hiding in the closet, when they are absolutely bankrupt and a collector is due to arrive at any minute? A self-explanatory remark, often heard among upperclassmen, is "I never knew, when I joined L. A. fresh year, that I would have my name posted if I didn't continue to pay dues during the remainder of my college course." If we are all required to pay Athletic Association dues, to keep up the equipment of the various sports, why is this not done in the catalogue among the list of expenses? We thoroughly believe in the principle of voluntary, discriminative giving, both for charitable and collegiate associations, but coercive methods are not the ones by which this can be best attained.

IV.
Where, Oh, Where?

As I was strolling leisurely about campus the other day, seeking amusement, I happened by some chance to "drop in" at Agora. When I opened the door I was greeted by a thick, muffled silence instead of the hum of voices which I was under the impression, was usually connected with a Red Cross headquarters. I peered within cautiously to make certain that I was in the right place and discovered four or five people working at the end of the room. Piled on the table and on the floor were stacks of material for dressings and compresses, far more than the four or five people could take care of in one afternoon, but there was nothing to be found beyond boxes of oakum and heaps of white stuff. Where was the Wellesley Red Cross array? Where were the scores of girls who had signed up so valiantly for this particular Wednesday afternoon? Where were the enthusiasts who had planned to set a new mark for Smith and Vassar? The Allies are in greater need of Red Cross supplies than they have been since the United States entered the war. There is no end to the material necessary for our soldiers. The work must be done, and if the college does not do her part, some one else will have to do it for her. It is not up to the college in general, and no one in particular. It is up to every individual. Are you whose men are fighting for freedom going to sit by and let some other woman do your "bit" for you? Are you whose country stands for the highest ideals of humanity willing to let slip any opportunity to serve her? Are you who have ever comforted in the world going to let your sufferer and die for you because you have seen a trifling inconvenience for you to work for only an hour a week? The Red Cross needs you now.

MEMBERS OF THE RED CROSS!

The new interest in Red Cross work makes most of us realize how little we know about its activities aside from war work. Under the joint management of the Department of Economics and the Vocational Guidance Committee, Miss Katharine McMahon, Associate Director of Civilian Relief of the New England Chapter of the Red Cross, will be here on Tuesday, April 23, to talk in room 74 at 4:30 about the work of the American Red Cross in Disaster Relief and in House Service.

THE WELLESLEY WAR CHEST.

Plans for raising money for the War Chest were discussed at a meeting on Monday evening, April 8, at the Town Hall. The War Chest is to provide for supplying amounts to the Red Cross and other organizations which the town is called upon to support, and through this means there will not have to be an endless series of campaigns to raise funds when an occasion arises. The musical program, consisting of patriotic songs, was supplied by Wellesley girls.

WELLESLEY PART OF A NEW ARMY.

The Woman's Land Army has been officially endorsed by the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

Mrs. Stanley McCormick, who has charge of the Woman's Committees' food production department, has written to state chairmen explaining the Land Army scheme, and recommending that they call a conference consisting of a representative of the Land Army and the agencies of the Department of Agriculture within the state. Arrangements will then be made to establish units in different parts of the state and to recruit the women who wish to take up agriculture for the summer. "We all know" says Mrs. McCormick, "how disappointed the farmers in some sections of the country are at present in regard to obtaining adequate farm labor. This discouragement, unless immediately relieved will vitally affect the food production of the coming year."

"Conditions vary greatly in the different states that adaptations of the Unit Plan will be necessary. Wherever it can be satisfactorily adapted we believe that it will greatly help to relieve the scarcity and unavailability of farm labor and that, unless this relief can be promptly provided, we shall be face to face with the most serious of conditions—namely, lack of food."

Wellesley is going to do her part in this work with a will. As soon as the snow is off the ground preparations for spring planting will begin.

FARM HANDS.

The Appointment Bureau received some time ago a call for students for work this summer on a farm in one of the Cape towns of Massachusetts. Further inquiry was made, and brought out the following points:

The farm has three distinct departments: The outdoor work, the farm work, and the milk house. The latter calls for especially careful workers, on account of sanitary measures. The thought has been that eight students could carry the farm work. They would be employed about nine hours a day—not more—perhaps 24 or 30 an hour, out of which they would pay for residence at a very reasonable rate. The Bureau is assured that the home life would be all that the College could demand. The shore near at hand yields plenty of beach work which would be enjoyed by the girls, and would secure a good name for the College.

The letter is one which inspires confidence. References have been asked for, by the Appointment Bureau. Details needed for writing a letter of application will be given by Miss Caswell in response to inquiry by mail, with postage, or in office hours.

"H. H. V." WORK NEW ACTIVITY FOR WOMEN.

To become an H. H. V. is Dr. Jessel Potokoff's advice to the woman who is looking for a volunteer position in war work. These initials mean Home Heath Volunteer, and these volunteers are to be a big factor in the Children's Year. The Children's Year extends from April 6, 1918, to April 16, 1919, and efforts are to be made to save the lives of 100,000 children in that time. The program for the year has been drawn up by Miss Julia Lilburne, Chief of the Children's Bureau.

The Home Heath Volunteers are to be divided into three classes. In the first, which is messenger service, the wholly untrained will find their opportunities. In the second class calls for women who have had some experience in medical and social service, care of children and dietetics; and third is trained nurse service in which it is hoped that the services of women who have been trained nurses, but who have retired, may be enlisted for this patriotic work.

The plan is to have these women save the time of doctors and nurses for more important work by doing messenger work, cleaning, cooking, and performing the simpler services of personal and house hygiene. The number of additional services of the doctors and nurses can be enormously increased and spread over wider areas.

The women who respond to this call for volunteer service must pledge themselves to serve for the whole Children's Year. The President's Societies' Service and medical efforts will be made, and the number of hours per week for which they pledge themselves. The minimum time per week is 12 hours and the maximum 24 hours.

ATTENTION SOCIAL SERVICE APPLICANTS!

Apprenticeships are being offered this summer in many branches of social service work in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, or some other preferred city. Included in the wide variety of work in which these apprenticeships are offered, is work in the Associated Charities, reform and settlement work, and work in behalf of crippled children and blind persons.

For definite information please consult Margaret Littlehales at once.

A GRADUATE TRAINING COURSE.

Your application is called to the circuses posted on the Vocational Guidance, Christian Association and Student bulletin boards, concerning a Graduate Training Course in Church Work given in cooperation with Teachers' College, Columbia University. The course was inaugurated to help supply the demand for lay workers in the difficult field which the church is facing in the city and industrial communities where the immigrant population predominates. It consists of courses at Teachers' College and practical work in the parish houses and church settlements of New York City. The course may lead to an M. A. degree.

NEW NATIONAL SERVICE COURSE.

"Community Centers and Democracy" is the title of the new National Service course at Columbia University, New York City, as announced by the faculty of the course, which is open to both men and women. It is the first one to be given in response to the campaign for the local service center which is being carried on by the Council of National Defense and the Bureau of Education. The University is giving these courses to train the student to be of aid in assisting the official machinery of the Council of National Defense to reach into the smallest communities to mobilize and make available the efforts of the people for the prosecution of the war.

THE BRYN MAWR SERVICE CORPS.

A Service Corps of trained alumnae ready to go to any part of the world in war service has been organized by the girls and former students of Bryn Mawr College. The War Service will send trained women for the work only to France but also to Italy, the Balkans, and possibly to Russia. To support this Service Corps the college and the alumnae association are raising a sum of from $80,000 to $100,000 to put in the War Service Committee, the American Red Cross, the American Fund for French Wounded, the Young Woman's Christian Association, and other relief agencies have signified their intention to send members of the corps under their organization. The workers will be doctors, nurses, and trained social workers who are capable of doing any sort of work that may be needed.

Women who are over twenty, and who are experienced in editing, abstracting, proof reading, bookmaking, and indexing, are eligible to appointment on editorial clerks, the United States Civil Service Commission announces. Open competitive examinations for editorial clerk at salaries of $8,500 to $10,000 will be held on May 8 and June 5.

Women with college training or two years' experience in a chemical or bacteriological laboratory, may apply for appointments in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

The duties of the appointee will consist of the preparation of bacteriological cultures and related bacteriological work under supervision in the Office of Fruit Disease Investigations. Examinations will be held on May 8.

A number of positions for the position of Plant Pathologist will be made in the near future. The positions will include one or two market inspectors for pathological inspections at the terminal markets, four pathological advisors who will conduct extension work in plant diseases in various parts of the country, and twelve or moreheaders in field work for track disease control. Salaries are from $1,000 to $2,400, and applications will be received at any time until further notice on account of the urgent needs of the service.

A teacher of English and one for graded work are needed next year in Hindustan Settlement School in the mountains of Kentucky. Anyone interested should apply immediately to Miss May Stone, 88 Weissinger-Galberti, Louisville, Kentucky.

FOR THOSE PLANNING TO VISIT NEW YORK.

A limited number of applicants may secure special rates at the Hotel Continental, 45th St. and Broadway—a hotel with large college patrons and central location—by consulting Laura Voosler, Business Manager of the Omega, room 40, Cornco.

LANGUAGE CLUBS.

Last year when we discussed the simplification of our social schedule at Student Government Forums, the subject of giving up language classes was considered. As I remember it, several people made a strong appeal for the retention of these clubs, saying that they offered excellent opportunities for practice in a language and were well worth keeping up.

Consequently the clubs are still with us. But now comes the rub. Out of four meetings we have had, two have fallen upon the same night as an important number in the lecture course, and the third upon the night of the Glee Club Concert. Naturally the attendance has been poor, and, as a result, interest has lessened and the profit to the individual has diminished.

A glance at the College Calendar will show that our evenings are taken up for weeks at a time with lectures, concerts, and so forth, and that it is not lack of planning which has made Language Clubs so difficult to attend. It seems to me that the best and most simple solution of the problem would be to give up the clubs entirely, and not let them go as a by-word along in a haphazard way; but dealing with, and being interfered with, by more profitable and universal events in our college life. Are they worth continuing in the face of the difficulties besetting them?

During the Easter holidays, Miss Sarmill gave two readings at Columbia University; the first of Canadian folk poetry, and the second of Maeterlinck's Sisteron.
WOMEN AND THE WAR.

From Civil Service announcements, one learns of the great need for men and especially women to fill government positions. Positions as clerks in munitions plants which were formerly open to men only, are now being awarded women to the examinations. Welfare executive secretarial positions are now also open to women.

Statistics are at a salary of $1,800 a year and expenses while absent from headquarters on official business, are wanted; also clerks qualified in statistics and accounting at salaries from $1,000 to $1,800. Stereographers and typewriter operators are in immediate demand, and every one who is efficient in this work is urged to take the Civil Service examinations which are held every Tuesday in 440 of the principal cities in the United States. Women who have received no training in this line of office work are urged to undergo instruction at once. The entrance salary ranges from $1,000 to $1,200. For full particulars or for application blanks address the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

The position of Assistant or Fermentation Mycology, for women only, at an entrance salary of $1,200 a year, is announced. The duties of the assistant will consist of the preparation of culture media and the identification of organisms present in the fermentation of food stuffs.

A competitive examination for men and women to fill vacancies in the War Department as coders is open to applicants who have coded for the Hol-ter, Powers, or Pierce tabulating equipment for at least three months.

At the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Hot Springs, Ark., April 29 to May 8, standardization of women's clothes as a war economy measure will be urged. To quote from an editorial in the official magazine of the organization, "Standardization is a principle, not a uniform; it does not mean adopting a single form of dress for every single occasion, but it does mean that women ought to accept a form of street clothes as unchangeable as the man's suit.

"We are only discussing street clothes, not house clothes. There should be a place where a woman can express her personality and where she can use the delightfully beautiful fabrics of the present day."

In a discussion of the points a standardized form of dress should have, the Department of Home Economics of the organization agreed that "the dress would have to be artistic, therefore built on straight lines," and that it ought to be capable of reproduction in any kind of fabric, generally speaking, and that it ought to be becoming to the majority of women and capable of modification for dress or suit.

American Women in French War-Zone Canteens.

Eighty-eight American women workers are serving daily 20,000 soldiers in canteens operating on the French Army lines of communication, according to the statement of W. S. Potter, director of the Department of Military Affairs of the American Red Cross in France.

"What the men have done for the soldiers at the front," says Mr. Potter, "the American women are doing for the soldiers in the more remote sections of the war zone. There are now four canteens operating on the French Army lines of communications. The number will be increased to six in the coming months. As the eastern business increases 20 per cent per month and as the canteens about to open will each serve a very large number of men the present total will soon be greatly enlarged. The needs are ample and are served cleanly and expeditiously. The outlay is a large sum." The canteens at Chalons and Eperey have served a great many repasts to the soldiers. At St. Germain des Fosses, besides serving the soldiers in the canteen, rolling canteens are used on the platforms for the trains that stop too short a time to permit the soldiers to alight. The American volunteer workers here also serve the hospital trains, climbing into the cars of wounded, passing refreshments, and helping the men who are too badly injured to help themselves. By their devotion to the canteen service, which entails hard manual work, by the spirit with which they have served the French soldiers, the American women have made for themselves a name which this department is happy to acknowledge.

College Girls As Itinerant Merchants.

The members of the Smith College Relief Unit, which is composed of Smith College girls trained in social service work, have become peddlers, rag pickers and bucketers as part of the program of helping the peasants of northern France to become independent again.

"Our traveling store," writes Miss Ruth Gaines, one of the Unit, "visited with tiny, pots, pans, clothing, and farm implements, is a great joy to the countryside than us. Sooner does it hook it's way into a village than women and children beseech it. We sell milk also, and chickens and rabbits and goats. We have been asked to sell the clothes from our backs, but we have drawn the line at that.

Another service we are trying to render, to reduce costs and foster trade, is the opening of a chain of grocery stores. In nearly every village are persons who had little epiphanies before the war. They have neither the capital nor the courage to begin again. To them we sell staples, canned foods, teas, and coffee below cost, usually on the installment plan. Mayors and school teachers everywhere advise us, 'Do not give, sell.'"

"One wonders, in the midst of the common misery, how the bereaved mothers keep their reason or care what happens next. But they have always the hope of the unannounced return of their loved ones. One of their requests which is hardest to refuse is for extra beds and covers against that return. It must be, too, that a disaster so universal has a steadyling effect. On a smaller scale the life of the village—its work, its gossip, its petty unlikeliness, and its neighborliness—continues as of old. That we may recreate normal living conditions in our 16 villages is the aim of the Smith College Unit in the Somme."
SHALL WE GO TOGETHER?
OR IN DIFFERENT PATHS?

Shall the United States be true to her ideals and fight doggedly to victory along with those nations who have endured so much and so heroically? Or shall we close our purse-strings, withdraw from efficient co-operation, and let a monstrous, murderous military master crush out freedom and self-government?

RIDING COMPETITION.

"Boot—saddle—to horse and away!
Rescue that Cup before '19 may!
1919! Get into the fray!
Boot—saddle—to horse and away!"
And most assuredly 1919 did! Both in team riding and in individual competition, the juniors demonstrated how nearly high-stacked and shifty-booted young men can resemble centaurs. Accordingly, the first real Horse Show of Wellesley College was theirs! 1919's and 1920's teams competed for first place, with Leona Van Gorder and Josephine Middleton riding in individual competition. While walking a horse around in a circle requires little control, yet cantering a mount around so small a hall is a thing not too often seened at. As yet, Wellesley has no riders who jump with the native ease of kangaroos, but the creditable, handling on Saturday night promises very good things indeed.

Polly of the Circus, whom we usually know as Birdie Krups, '21, appeared in pink tailcoat and curls. Toto, however, did not seem to enjoy herself too much. Poor old Dexter seemed bewildered and terrified at following Polly over the hurdles and we all sympathized with him and with Charlotte Hassett, '20, every time she peered anxiously into his benign white countenance.

The team riding was especially interesting. Poor horses shuddered, trembling and wheeling at a smart trot, their noses parallel, their stirrups touching, is always a pretty thing to see. 1919 demonstrated their skill to excellent advantage on the wheeling maneuvers.

A game a cheap followed. Each member of the team had a colored balloon fastened to her back, and the object was to break the other fellow's balloon before she whacked yours. 1918 completely demolished 1917; they turned on herself, and Stanley Partridge, with murderer in her eye, and Cape almost sitting down in his excitement, hurled herself upon Helen Holliday, and a tremendous struggle ensued, ending in a tie.

Dr. Raymond, Miss Davis, and Mr. Roys judged the Meet. After the presentation of the new Indoor Cup to Lucille Andrews, W's were awarded to Stanley Partridge, Leona Van Gorder, Clarice Lewis, Lena Podoloff, Josephine Middleton, and Pauling Burnham.

Cecil Sharp.

All those who heard Cecil Sharp lecture at Tower Court Tuesday evening, April 8, on English Ballads and Folk-Songs, considered themselves fortunate. Mr. Sharp is the best authority on the subject of English folk-lore, and the fact that he has just published a book on the results of his researches in our own Appalachian Mountains, made his lecture of closer interest to us.

Mr. Sharp reminded us that the ballad should not be thought of without music, for early poetry was always chanted or sung, never spoken. Ballads are the classics of the people, telling a story or pointing a moral with more vividness than prose. When we say "foot-gear for night-wear" and mean bed-sacks, we are showing how difficult it is for us to express things in a direct and natural way. The simplicity of the ballad is made more evident by the use of certain conventional expressions which save considerable time and trouble. For instance, the hero is quite apt to ride away upon a milk-white charger, the heroine has lily-white hands, and is, quite commonly, a "pretty fair maiden," so commonly, indeed, that she is often found abbreviated to p. f. in.

Mr. Sharp's rendering of the ballads he used as illustrations made his talk more vivid, and brought before us the beauty of such spontaneous art, the musical expression of the peasant class.

YE BALLADE OF THE P. F. M.

By Cottage Street as late I went,
I heard a soldier say,
"O, pretty fair maid," he gently said,
As her lily hand he took.
"May I see you soon again, pretty one?"
And gazed with questioning look.
The pretty fair maid smiled at him
And readily said him yes.
And watched him as he waved good-bye
And quickly strode away.
He had not gone a pace, a pace,
A pace, but barely four,
When out of the dark came a silver tined,
Straight to the maiden's door.

The pretty fair maid came out to him,
A smile upon her lips,
And soft the words she spoke to him,
As he pressed her finger-tips.

"A bird in the hand's worth two in the bush,"
Thought the hardnosed little miss.
"And 'tis better yet, as one must agree;
To have one in each hand—like this."—A. H. H. '91.

A WEEK IN SPRING.

One moon I woke right early
(By old time five-fifteen)
The sky was very, very blue
The air, warm and serene,
I donned my new plain gingham dress
And white shoes, sp SNDY clean.
I played around for most all day
In just my sleeveless sweater.
I knew my Grandmother would say,
"My child, you should know better?"
But what cared I for Grandmammas
Who bring one up by letter?
And then the wind blew east-er-ly,
And next morn came the snow;
And I began to feel quite queer
Oh, really, very low
I called at the Infirmary—
What happened then you know.
The third morn found the world all white,
And found me quite white, too,
Lying in a high white bed
With nothing else to do,
A rocking cradle upon my chest
And a pain that pierced me through.

My friends wrote me facetiously
While thus abode I lay,
"My dear, I am so sorry
I can't see you today,
Are you feeling like a bicycler—
Too tired?—I dare say?"

"Oh, honey, it's too bad you're ill
But cheer up, dearest Kate,
Saw you'll feel like the bottom of a stove.
Yes, darling, simply great!"
I said "Oh shucks!" beneath my breath
And fifteen pills I ate.
At length those pills did make me well
And I was free again.
"Have you had measles?" I was asked.
"Oh, no!" I sighed mournful.

The moral to this long drawn tale?
My friend, you're spared that pain.

"My, but this Lady Sealpax is a blessing!"

THOSE advertisements of the men in that cool athletic underwear have always made me envious, and at last they have made some of it for us.

"Well, Lady Sealpax certainly fills the bill. It's every bit as nice as the men's athletic underwear—loose-cut and cool and free. It hasn't any frills either."

"That's just what I like about it—it has all the advantages of the men's athletic underwear, besides being so well-made and of such soft material. Come on, I'm rested. This Lady Sealpax puts the real Spring feeling into me. It gives me so much freedom I feel as if I could play better than ever before."

TO MARK THE BEAT OF THE WAR.

The old yellow thermometer at the Elevator Table has been moved to make room for a Bulletin Board which will serve to keep before the college some of the important phases of the War, by means of interesting clippings, cartoons, pictures, maps, etc. Mrs. Hissler, who is to choose the material which will be posted, will be very glad to receive any contributions from other members of the college. This will be a welcome opportunity for obtaining important information during the busy weeks of the spring term.

At Smith they made April 30th the first day after vacation.

ATTENTION—FRENCH PLAY!

The attention of the college is called to a performance at the Barn on April 25, of a French play given by the Alliance Française and the French Department. The name of the play is Le Voyage de Monsieur Perichon, by Labiche and Marchin. This play has been given by the French Club of Boston, with great success, and the college can be assured of seeing it repeated here in a most worth while manner.

ENGAGEMENT.

To Dorothy Brewer to David Wells Tibbitt, Princeton '17, now serving in the United States Navy in foreign waters.
GOD-SPEED TO THE WELLESLEY UNIT.

On the afternoon of April 15, as many Wellesley women in or near New York City as could assemble on the necessarily short notice gathered in the big hall of the Y. W. C. A. Training School to watch the departure of the first group of Unit workers to receive marching orders. Under American flags and Wellesley banners they stood to receive our greeting, these five who are to be the first representatives of the Wellesley ideal of service to our sisters of devastated France. First came Mary Whiting, '08, expert dietition and Director of the Unit; then our two trained nurses, Grace Bissell, '05, and Edith Binns, '04, who will carry the business-like in the trim Red Cross uniform. Harriet Hand, '07, the Unit's "handy man," who says that her job is "whichever nobody else wants to do," and Agnes Gilson, '06, a trained social worker, completed the number.

The other members chosen will, it is hoped, soon be able to follow these pioneers. Miss Margaret Jackson of Wellesley will join the Unit at the close of the current terms, Dr. Taylor-Jones, Mabel Phillips, '30, and Alice Walmley, '96, are not permitted to go at present because of the ruling that no women having husband or brother in the service may go overseas. Miss Jones, of course, does not object, but there is still reason to hope that an exception in Dr. Taylor-Jones' favor, because of her experience and great value, and a reversal of the ruling affecting Miss Phillips, will be made. Miss Jackson, should she get them, will join the Unit later. Ruth Lindsay, '15, is detained because of passport difficulties, which may, however, be solved in time to permit her to go with the first group. As this goes to press, Miss Lindsay is in Washington, carrying her case in person to the State Department. The objection in her case is that she is a few months under the required age. Agnes Gilson, '06, who has been allotted a place, is busy with a broadly practical experience to the service of the Unit. After graduation, she became Executive Secretary of the Girls' Clubs of the National League for Women Workers, and later Employment and Service Manager of the National Artificial Silk Company of Cleveland. The latter position included such varied duties as home visiting, the organization and management of two large club rooms, the keeping of four club class rooms, and, since the factory chemicals are used and accidents sometimes occur, very real first aid experience. Even Miss Gilson's "play time," spent in making the puppets and painting the masks, is a thoroughly real and very rewarding experience.

The representative of Hadleyville who is to go with our Unit is a member whose cooperation adds much to our power to serve. Dr. Augusta G. Williams of Brookline has many titles and little in common. She has been Chief Surgeon at the Vincent Memorial Hospital, Medical Examiner of women and girls in the Brookline Gymnasium, and Dohos, Loretto College, and is now on the staff of Physical Education, as well as a general practitioner since 1896. Dr. Williams was unable to be present at the reception for the members of the Unit, and we regretted that they might not have the pleasure of seeing her personally.

The "Send-off Party" was arranged by Miss Helen Kelcy of the War Service Committee and Miss Mabel Piecer, in the interest of the Campus Women's Society, assisted by Miss Edith Half, President of the New York Wellesley Club. President Pendleton came to New York for the occasion, as did Miss Grace Crocker of Cambridge, Chairman of the Woman's War Committee, Miss Pearl Martin of Boston, and many other well-known alumnae.

After the informal reception, Miss Crocker introduced the speakers who voiced the appreciation and cooperation of the alumnae. Miss Crocker herself explained many things in regard to the organization of the Unit of which we were glad to have a knowledge. She told us of the qualifications of the committee's work in selecting the applicants best qualified from among the 150 who offered themselves. A searching questionnaire had to be filled out by each applicant, accompanied with references and letters of recommendation, and no one could be considered until after she had passed successfully the still medical examination prescribed. In the correspondence with the Red Cross was completed, and from this organization we learned the required make-up of the Unit—doctor, nurses, social workers, secretary, dietition, with a leader of marked executive ability—of all these, in our opinion, health, were required tact, adaptability, and resourcefulness, together with a speaking knowledge of French. Miss Kelcy made charts showing the exact qualifications of each candidate, and by means of these charts the committee were able intelligently to set about the difficult problem of selection.

"I think we should all be very proud," Miss Crocker added, "that we had available candidates who were able to comply with this high standard of efficiency, and who were also most eager to go to Europe to do their bit for their country and for suffering humanity."

In March the ranks were filled, and then the committee first encountered the rulings which have delayed some members of our Unit. Other workers were not substituted for those whose going is still in doubt, because the committee were given to hope that the difficulties might be overcome, and because, in any event, the formalities of securing credentials for the substitutes could not have been completed before the committee could be filled up with the first group. The case of Miss Lindsay presented difficulties only recently, for she was passed by the Red Cross and so it was not to be foreseen that the State Department would question her passport.

Besides the selection of workers there was the raising of $80,000 for the first year's expenses, and we were glad to hear from Miss Crocker that this amount had been generously passed. Many refugee garments, too, have been made, and since each member of the Unit is to be allowed one trunk, a large number of these much needed garments can be expected. Miss Crocker closed by saying that she was sure that the Unit might continue to expect the generous and wholehearted support of the alumnae.

Miss Crocker then presented Miss Piecer, who said that she was particularly glad to represent the California War Service Committee. "For one thing," she went on, "that it helps us to realize that Wellesley is not a matter of New York or of Boston, but that you members of the Unit go to France with the support of your fellow Alumnae from all over the country. As you go to France to do our work, the work of the Alumnae Association, we are glad, and it is a source of gratification to us if you are able to do your bit so able in yourself, and that we are able to send you equipped with the necessary funds. In the name of the Alumnae Association we wish you God-speed."

President Pendleton followed Miss Piecer in greeting the Unit. She said in part: "I find it a great privilege to be here today, and to have not only the honor but the responsibility of carrying on half of the Committee's work, and in behalf of my fellow alumnae. I suppose that we have all heard, time and again, that education is a great trust, and that the broader and deeper the education, the greater the trust. The greater the responsibility which each one of us must take to redeem that trust. We come to you, members of the Wellesley Unit, charging you with the responsibility of carrying forward into France, wherever you may be called to go, the Wellesley spirit of service. It is a happy thing, in these days of great national crises, that Wellesley women are always found ready to live the life the founders of the College lived. To us, by the founders of the College, 'Not to be ministered unto but to minister.' It is a happy thing, too, that we are beginning a new career at Wellesley with still another motto, 'All to do, all to be done,' and therefore we are sending you into France hoping that you will bring new life to the refugees and to all those other suffering people of France, to whom every one of us, if we could, would give the right hand of helpfulness. We are not able to reach every man at the front there must be at least nine people behind the lines. For every ten of you, when you actually get to work, there will be more than a thousand Wellesley women working behind you."

President Pendleton then spoke of the loyalty that we owe to the Red Cross. She reminded us that our workers go as members of a great military organization, subject just as much to the obedience of military orders as any members of our armies in the field. She said: "We therefore send you in this spirit, and we mean to support you in this spirit. We pledge ourselves to accept for you, as far as the case may be, all orders that are issued; we will not question where you may be sent; we will loyally support you wherever it is." We should consider our own relation to the ideal government of France. "We cannot support Miss Pendleton went on, and urged us to do our part in creating right public opinion that the government may be "of the people," in helping by actual work, that it may be "by the people," in seeing to it that we are worthy of it by the right carried on for the people."

She concluded by expressing for us all Wellesley's loyalty and patriotism by this passage of Lincoln's immortal words: "We are highly resolved that those who have given their lives in this war and those who will give them shall not have died in vain; that all nations—not only our own beloved America, but all the nations of the world—shall enjoy the brotherhood, that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Miss Whiting responded for the Unit briefly but with convincing sincerity. "We are sensible," she said, "of the honor that you have done us, and the responsibility that we are representing Wellesley in the work we are going to do. We pledge you our most heartfelt thanks.

Messages of greeting and pledges of support were conveyed by representatives of a number of Wellesley Clubs, and from other telegram were read. The clubs represented were Chicago, New York, Milwaukee, South Dakota, St. Louis, Boston, Worcester, Southeastern Pennsylvania, Marmack Valley, YWCA, Cincinnati, Madison, Cleveland, Buffalo, Columbus, Denver, Pittsburg, Eastern Maine, Philadelphia, and the Pacific Coast Clubs.

We were vividly reminded of the work our Unit is to do by a little procession of children clad in the refugee garments made in our workroom—stout and durable, quickly cut by the penants' own patterns, but to our eyes very sombre. These little folks, pupils of Miss Karr's school, sang very sweetly the Marsaillese song of "La Florine Drake", '06, led us in Alma Mater and America, but after this we still lingered long to say the final "God-speed" to these sister-alumnae who go to carry to the tens lands overseas the love of our Wellesley.

OPEN NIGHT AT WHITIN OBSERVATORY:

On the evening of Saturday, April 28, if the sky be clear, the Whitin Observatory will be open to all members of the College from 8 to 10. The 6-inch and 12-inch telescopes will be used for observing the Moon and the bright planets.

The Moon will be ten days old, or three days past the first quarter. The telescope will show a great many interesting features upon it, chief of which is the great crater Copernicus, more than fifty miles in diameter and about 12,000 feet high. This crater is in the part of the Moon where the Sun will be rising, and the Sun will cast long shadows of the crater walls, bringing the crater into relief.

All four of Jupiter's bright satellites will be visible, three lying west of the planet and one east. Saturn will be in a favorable position for observation, being so situated that the shadow of the planet lying upon the ring will be easily seen. Five of Saturn's satellites will be visible. Mars is about 19,000,000 miles farther from the Earth than on the last open night, but will be higher in the sky at the time of observation, so that it will be favorably seen. If the night is favorable, the white cap of snow or ice that surrounds the planet's north pole will be seen, and in addition there may appear some of the dark areas of the planet that are supposed to be vegetation.

John C. Dressy, Director.

WANTED--A DELEGATE FROM 1919.

The Charity Organization Society of the City of New York invites a representative of the Class of 1919 to spend the month of July as its guest in New York. This student will be one of not more than twelve--six representing colleges for women and six colleges for men--whom the Society proposes to have a brief glimpse of what may be termed laboratory experience, to introduce to social conditions in New York and to some of the measures now being taken to improve them.

The Society desires that the student chosen be not younger than twenty years of age and that she be one who, in scholarship, in interest to studies relating to economics, sociology, and social work, in personality, and in participation of student activities, seems to the faculty and to the students to be best fitted to represent the college as the guest of the Charity Organization Society. The student need not necessarily be contemplating social work as a vocation, although it is hoped that as a result of the experience in New York the student will, after graduation, take at least some avocational interest in the charitable and civic activities of her own city. The experience which the Society desires to offer the students will include visits to state institutions, work with families and individuals, and discussion, among themselves and with experts, of the problems developed by the field work.

Alphon James, 1918, was the guest of the Society last year. She, as well as any member of the Economics Department, will be glad to give further information about this opportunity.

"WHAT THE CHURCH OFFERS THE NEW SOCIAL ORDER."

Wednesday evening, April 10, Reverend James Gordon Gilkey led Christian Association services. Comparing the present era beginning back in 1914 with that Paul had to face in his time, Dr. Gilkey brought in four indomitable ideals that the Church offers the new social order. The old order was one of pettiness and oblivion. This new order presents new life, food, and vigor. Christianity has proven that we can't get along without Christ. His ideal is concretely established and must be recognized sooner or later. Again this ideal is not figurative; it is real and tangible. When one meets the Master half way he can easily help conquer obstacles. "Lord, what a moment in Thy presence availeth."

The last two offerings of the Church are invincible. We can not only not live without faith but neither can we refuse its strength. It overthrows us. Dr. Gilkey compared the universe to a concrete structure run through and through with His steel. And it is so. God does not ask us to believe in angels and miracles; His greatness prevails in men and women. That Christianity must prevail is the greatest support of all in this time of discouragement. Right always has and will be right. Dr. Gilkey's speech was fired with the inspiration and vigor of youth. It made us feel that Democracy is more than ever to be fought for.

GABRIELLE GAMBLE.

Miss Gamble's coquettish spaniel, Gabrielle, who has been well known in the College community for the last nine years, died on March 29 after a long illness. Gabrielle was the daughter of A. W., who was almost equally well known in her time but who died September 3, 1911.

SAYING DEPARTMENT

FOR THE PHILOSOPHICALLY OR RELIGIOUSLY MINDED.

The Psychological Review for March, 1918, contains a dissertation exposition by Professor Mary S. Case in the Discussion: a paper on The Case of Self against Soul of Plato's doctrine of self and soul.

In the American Journal of Psychology for January, 1918, Professor Iy G. Campbell of Wells College, a former member of the department of philosophy and psychology, publishes a very careful and illuminating study, from first-hand sources, of the conception of soul. In opposition to Marret, Lucus, and other recent writers, Dr. Campbell interprets monas as personal power. Students of the history and psychology of religion should consult her paper for a very suggestive theory of the origin of the religious experience.
