1920 Wins Field Day
Athletic Juniors Walk Off With Honors.

For the first time since 1914 the Junior Class has won Field Day, for on Saturday afternoon, 1920 having 36 points came out ahead of 1919 whose total was 34 points. The Juniors indicated their desire for a splendid playing this year in every instance. The events as a whole were the most interesting that have taken place for years, due to the excellent showing of the three lower classes and the exceptionally good matching of all the competing teams.

The four classes matched rhythmically on to the field, according to custom, dressed in white, with their respective colors bravely in evidence, 1920’s banner was preceded by two goats, labelled ’19 and ’21, which were being held well in hand by the Juniors. During the course of the events 1920’s efficient Fire Department arrived comically but hastily on the scene, to put out several fires personages designated as being members of ’20, while the Sophomores held a funeral service for the remains (graphically illustrated) of all their teams which had unsuccessfully competed. Other innovations in the usually conventional proceedings were seen from time to time, such as a mock football game between the basketball halves, and the presence of two loudly dressed visitors, who greatly enlivened the spirits of the anxious bystanders during interruptions by their extraordinary costumes and ready wit.

The basketball game, the first event, was watched with the keenest interest. The Senior and Junior teams were so well matched and the score so close from the beginning that it was not easy to predict the outcome. Remarkable playing was observed on both sides, especially with 20’s forwards. Marion Wallace, ’19, and Ruby Ponsford, ’20, were conspicuous for their agility. The score was 15-14, in the Juniors favor.

The baseball game fell short this year of its reputation for evenness and intensity. The Seniors were not up to their usual standard, and 1920 met with seemingly little resistance. Goal after goal was made by the Juniors, whose well-planned stopping and steady team-work kept the ball up at their end during almost the entire time. Seven goals were made by 1920 and none by 1919, Frances Kinnear, Lura Barber and Kathryn Col- lins (all ’20) played brilliantly and largely contributed in making the Junior goals.

Baseball also was won by ’20, with a score of 8-7. The game had been somewhat crippled by the loss of some of its best players but the score was nevertheless close. The masculine portion of the spectators derived great enjoyment from this feature of the day’s proceedings.

The Sophomores and Freshmen may well be proud of their tennis teams. In one of the finest matches ever witnessed here, 1921 defeated 1922, and thereby established a record for the Sophomore Class. The steady playing of Maude Laddington, ’21, was especially noticeable.

The track events were, as before, an exciting element for Field Day. The high jump, which made its initial appearance this year, was a distinct success. Although the members of the four competing classes did not make five feet (Jonegene McQuarren, ’19, and Ethel Schaefer, ’20, finally tying it at 4 ft. 11½ in.), the form was exceptionally good, when one realises that the sport was introduced only this fall. Elizabeth Manchester, ’20, distinguished herself in the broad jump, finally obtaining 7 ft. 6 in., and Ruth Bennett, ’19, made a particularly good showing in the dashes. ’19 won the relay and the 100-yard dash, besides the broad jump, thus winning also first place in the event.

Golf was won by 1919. Although the playing off of the final matches was held at the golf course and was therefore not witnessed by most of the visitors, it was said that Jessie Topping, ’19, had a large share in the honors attained in this sport by the Seniors.

The second year of horseback riding as a Field Day event showed great improvement. The graceful handling and the difficult formations of the two teams were especially interesting to the spectators. ’19 defeated 1920 in this contest. Josephine Dallington, ’20, was remarkably good, but could not quite equal Leona Van Gorder, ’19, to whom was presented the riding crop which Mr. Joyce gives every year to the best rider in college.

Eleanor Brown, ’20, was again, as last year, awarded the individual cup for archery. ’19 won this event as easily as they have done in former years.

JUNIORS WIN CREW COMPETITION.

By four o’clock on Thursday afternoon, October 31, a large and enthusiastic audience had congregated below Tower Court to see Crew Competition. The crews, as they appeared, were greeted with loud cheers by the assembled classes. There were five crews consisting, 1918, 1920, 1919 and two for 1922. Each one rowed past the judges who were in the motor boat out from shore. Near Tupole Park, the crews lined up and rowed back together. After the rowing was over, the judges, Miss Linda McDonnell, ’14, of ’14 crew, Mr. Ralph Mulligan, Harvard, ’09, of the Harvard ’09 crew, and Mr. Fette, long discussion announced the results points for 1918, 87 for 1921, and 85 for 1919. Dorothy Breilingan’s crew was first for 1922.

United War Work Campaign Planned.

On Sunday afternoon, November 3, at Jacob Sleeper Hall, Boston, there was a meeting of delegates from many colleges and schools of Massachusetts, to discuss plans for the coming United War Work Campaign. Miss Pedlenton presided at the meeting. As Chairman of the Students’ Division of Massachusetts of the United War Work Campaign, Miss Pedlenton has the unique distinction of being the only woman asked to preside. The fund which is to be raised by colleges and schools of Massachusetts has been set at $340,000. This is more than double the quota which Miss Pedlenton’s Fund Campaign asked last year, for the money raised in the new drive is to cover all the organizations which have been working for the welfare of our army and navy. The organizations represented were:

- American Library Association.
- Jewish Welfare Board.
- National Catholic War Council (K. of C.).
- Salvation Army.
- War Camp Community Service.
- Young Men’s Christian Association.
- Young Women’s Christian Association.
- The quota for the whole state is $410,000.

The exact amount of War Work’s quota has not yet been set, but it is sure to be one so large that it will call upon each member of the community to do her utmost.

Delegates to the meeting on Sunday were:
- Wellesley Committee. Miss Ellen F. Penelton, chairman; Miss Marian Metsal, Miss Edward Curtis, Miss Margaret D. Christian, Eleanor Linton, ’20, Truth Biers, ’22, Margaret Haddock, ’21.
- House Chairmen for Wellesley Campaign. Eleanor White, ’19, Tower Court; Elizabeth King, ’19, Chilton; Elizabeth Pount, ’19, Stone; Dorothy Bell, ’20, Piske, Marion Wallace, ’19, Casenove; Susan Lowell Wright, ’19, Ponsford; Elizabeth Miller, ’19, Reeve; Ruth Coleman, ’19, Snater; E. Lowe Tong, ’19, Norton; Barber Hoover, ’19, Freeman; Emma Anderson, ’20, Wood; Frances Brooks, ’20, Wilder; Abbie Selden, Hygiene, and Helen Burr, Hygiene, Maples; Carol Campbell, ’19, Wellesley Dining Room; Ruth Harrison, ’22, and Dorothy Williams, ’22, Eliot Dining Room; Helen Logan, ’22, Washington Dining Room; Dorothy Holloway, ’22, Mrs. Stone’s Dining Room; Dorothy Nicholas, ’21, Lovewell Dining Room; Eleanor Norton, ’23, Holden Dining Room.
- College at Large. Miss Buel, Mrs. Hodder, Miss Munarling, Miss Miller, Lucile Andrews, ’19; Mary Grantham, ’19, Mary Holland, ’19; Josephine January, ’19; Helen Merrill, ’19; Therese Straus, ’19; Lucia Barber, ’20; Elizabeth Blake, ’20; Julia Davis, ’21.

FRESHMAN SERENADE.

"Pep! Pep! You’ve got it now keep it—" and they certainly did show "pep." The long line of green-glow-worms wound beautifully in and out over the black tops of the buildings of Campus and the singing was as enthusiastic as the picturesque flanker of the last mile as it had been during the first. The cheer-leader, Margaret Eddy, rode at the head in a car with the cowcatcher—the whole set green-capped girls playing under the car and singing "Oh, was I once so lovely!" and "Oh, were the leaves of the train wore green hats and carried bright green lanterns. Singing aids the weary feet, but bed, turned down by the Juniors, felt sublune to the Freshmen.

READ THIS.

The meetings of the House of Representatives are open to any student who wishes to attend, yet it is noticeable that few students take advantage of this opportunity, some for lack of interest, more, we trust, for lack of time. It seems too bad that this should be the case, for the House transacts business of vital interest to the entire student body, and a larger attendance might help both the students at large and the Representatives themselves to be more universally intelligent. A propos of this need for teamwork between the students and their representatives is a constructive suggestion was offered at the last meeting of the House. This was that business should be brought up at one meeting of the House, discussed, and laid on the table for the next meeting. In the time between meetings, the representatives should discuss the matters in question with other students in order to obtain a more general opinion of student feeling. In addition the News should publish full reports or feature form the business under discussion. When the final vote upon a subject is taken in the House, it is felt that this method will insure an intelligent and more truly representative decision.

The News will be glad to cooperate with the House of Representatives in any way and heartily approves the suggested policy of general discussion and information.

FOOD AND SOCIETIES.

If the recommendation which the War Council has put before the six societies is passed by them, it will be a case of the more innocent suffering with the more guilty. The general purpose of this recommendation is that a ban be placed on private parties in the society houses; that is, that there shall be no eating in the houses except when food is served at some meeting to the whole society. Absolutely each of the societies must cut down the number of such occasions very materially. Refreshments no longer are served at initiations in most of the houses. Informal breakfast and supper parties have gone by the board, with supper coming only once a month. Surely the societies, as units, are doing their part. But just as certainly, the individual members are not. Witness, the fact that there are at least two parties signed for in every house every day. Witness, the fact of the War Council's recommendation.

Whether or not there are some types of "party" that are possible at this time, the News does not pretend to state; that there are some kinds at least defensible is true. It is wise that visiting parents should always have to incur the expense of their own meals. And it is possible that when it would be possible to eat much more cheaply in "daughter's" society house? Is the very occasional "soup-and-toast-and-friend party" necessarily "pro-German"? Both of these are most questionable. But the real reason for the ban is that it is the only way in which those frequent, lavish and unnecessary parties at which the measure is aimed, can be abolished. If making the ruling any less radical, those who feel that it has the advantage of being "milder," it shall be noted that the measure shall be passed with no qualifying clauses. If, on the other hand, and this although bad, seems likely, if, passing the rule as it stands is going to create a larger demand for tea-room and kitchennette "dismissions," it will be useless to try to conserve food in this way.

The News feels that the dangers of such a rule would not be in my opinion are advantages. After all, the careful consideration of both sides of the question we feel that the better arguments lie on the whole, with those who hope that the Inter-Society Council will limit the application of the rule now under discussion.

There is considerable feeling abroad that morning chapel and Christian Association mid-week meetings are not being treated with proper respect. They are being used by many students as a convenient means for meeting their friends and carrying on conversations. Sunday services are not looked upon as seriously as they appear. The majority seem to realize that a church service is to be treated with reverence. Yet, it hardly seems necessary to remind the students that daily and mid-week meetings are just as truly religious services, even though they are much shorter. They are in so sense social gatherings, they are rather a time set apart to get away from routine and have a few moments of quiet and thought. That such occasions are necessary and helpful in the rush of the week's work cannot be doubted, yet if their value is not properly appreciated by every individual her lack of appreciation goes far towards lessening the value for everyone else. Even if you, yourself, do not feel that these brief services are a means of rest and refreshment to you, would you not do so that to others they may stand for a great deal, and try to treat them with the respect due their purpose.

Sophomores Say Neglected.

In the News appearing October 17 there was a free press entitled "Wellesley Spirit toward the Sophomores," which complained of the lack of cordiality shown the Sophomores on campus by Juniors and Seniors.

The writer says that Sophomores come to the campus with the same feeling of newness and strangeness that they felt Freshman year. She also says that upperclassmen do not give much heed to "outwardness," and that a cold and indifferent attitude to take. At college one doesn't depend on the class ahead to pull one thru, to cheer one in sorrow and to give motherly advice. This is college—not "prep school!" People here make their own good times, do their own work and stand on their own feet. Those are some of the powers which Freshman year are supposed to help one acquire—and then discard them.

Tarn the situation about, oh, neglected Sopho- more—and see how you are looked upon by up- perclassmen. You are the new factor on cam- pus, the exponent of a fresh crop of ideas, the mysterious and untried hilt of unconsidered possibilities. Upperclassmen are waiting for you to give any- thing you can and as you give you will become part of the growing Wellesley. M. M., '21.

The Wellesley Undergraduate Conservatism?

"Hereafter I shall bring my own sugar to the table. I cannot stand having so little sugar for my coffee." The speaker left the breakfast table, and wandered down the corridor, remarking, "Wasn't it cold when you got up this morning? I cannot understand why they don't turn the heat on earlier." The speaker was not an excep-

For several years France has had almost no salt, and less sugar; but the people have forgotten the good food in certain areas, and the refugees. England has not seen white flour, except as a luxury, for over two years. Of course there are all kinds of brown bread. Italy is facing another collapse. Last year even the hospitals were without fuel, and it is bitterly cold in northern Italy.

The Faculty Advisory System.

The faculty advisory system has already been changed "to the advantage of the members of the faculty and members of the freshman class," as the writer of a free press in the October 17 issue of the News has hoped it would be. In this new plan, instituted by Miss Pendarlos this year, purposes to bring the girls into a more personal relation with their advisors, who can then help them throughout their college course. Each advisor is to have only four or five girls from the freshman class, preferably those whom she knows or has in her classes, and all in one house. No advisor will therefore have more than sixteen advisees at one time and these will be from all four classes. This year the official staff and the men of the faculty have also been asked to serve as advisers.

IV.

Reading Reports.

"Reading reports are due every Tuesday"—so says the Instructor! It seems a trifle strange that by the time we reach the college age, which is not very mature in some instances it is granted, but the majority of the girls are at least capable of realizing the advantage of getting the full value out of the course, that they should be told to write out a report of "book, author and time spent" and hand in every week. In the first place it rather detracts from the book itself to be thinking consciously or subconsciously, "I mustn't forget to mark down each time I read a line or two." In the second place one may be particularly busy during one week and wish to do the required work the next week, but a reading re- port is scarcely the place for such explanations. In the third place, there are often poor weak mortals, who dread the wrath of the professor more than the block mark in the Judgment Book, will write down six hours when they knew perfectly well that three hours would allow them a broad margin. Murrums of "Honor System" may arise just here, but nevertheless, the fact remains. That the Senior advisor system appears to be rather unnecessary. Would it not be much more simple for the instructor to give a list of re- quired and advised readings and leave it to the girls themselves to do as much as she deems wise? She probably will in any event, so why not sim- plify the matter?

Why do the eager freshmen each shining hour decrease By flattering from the library at twenty-seven Why do they prematurely disturb our studies peace So fair's the dear Ad. building, that she must rush so fast!
Wellesley Gift Welcome in France.

All who contributed to Miss Mary’s Hospital Fund after her talk here last spring, will feel well rewarded by this letter.

October 12, 1918.

My dear Mary Fraser Smith—

I am really distressed to feel that so many weeks have gone by since my brief acknowledgment to you of the splendid gift of the War Relief Organization and the promise I gave you, in writing of length at what I was planning to do through your generosity, has never been fulfilled. I wonder if you and all the girls, who made these sacrifices for your work, can understand and forgive? I have been absolutely alone, until within the last week or two to do every sort of work, some of it very new to me, and the burden of my correspondence has been great and I am sure you, who are so far away, and who have only the monitory of the work, that you should not hear constantly from us who are at the front, and have to make our own arrangements yet under our very eyes,—and this because of you!—and the privilege of living in an atmosphere fairly charged with heroic endeavor. The credit of our service is due to you, it could hardly be less, situated where we are! Do you remember my speaking, when I was in Wellesley, of a certain chateau transformed into a hospital, where there were over a hundred tubercular men, and where the conditions were so crowded and dreary and discouraging? I remember giving a little sketch of the place. When your money came to me I resolved to try to do something for it, and as soon as opportunity and offer, I visited it again. The same devoted doctor was still there. He showed me with great pride mended floors and windows and glazey white paint everywhere. I must say that I didn’t dream that the poor old place could be so transformed through paint alone! He had found one of his “malades” who had been an artist before the War, and the man had been delighted to stencil on the walls of the corridors, and in the rooms, a running grapevine design of red and green leaves. This had made the gayest sort of effect, and had brightened even the dimmest corners. The same artist had painted mottoes,—(see ten commandments, so-called, of the tabernacle),—surrounded with colored borders, and had contrived to make even these reminders of their pathetic duty pleasing to their eyes. The moody corner of this had come from the sale of hens and eggs drawn from the hospital chicken yard. And this chicken yard was the gift of American friends of mine; a gift I had been able to send the doctor just before I had sailed for America! These French doctors are marvels of ingenuity and thrift and devotion to their men. Think of making 1500 frames over a corn yard that cost barely 400 francs! I will not speak of what remains to be done in that chateau! Should I do so, you would think that only the outside of the platter had been cleaned! But one thing greatly needed, for four years, is about to be supplied through your splendid gift, and that is a recreation room for the men. Up to the present, those hundred and twenty men have had no room, not even a hall way, in which to assemble in the evenings and on rainy days. They are far away in the country and there are not distinctions of any sort. They have no games, no books, no place where they may write, and yet they are absolutely shut in among themselves. I talked this over again with the doctor. He pointed out to me a small stable that he thought might be used. He let me the floor, to which he could stencil the walls, to put pans of glass into the barn doors, (there are no windows), and to supply tables, chairs, lamps, and a stove. The sick men will not be able to work, even to making of the tables, but not the cementing of the floors,—for that would be dangerous for them to attempt. And I am to supply the material through your generosity! I am sure you would feel that I had done just what you would have wished, could you have seen the men’s faces as they crowded about my little Ford, while the doctor explained what we were planning; and could you have heard the hand clapping and even the cheering, (though that is forbidden the poor fellow because of their state), and the “Vive l’ Amerique,” “Vive les Etudiantes du College” which they raised when I explained that the girls students of a college in America had sent the doctor the gift! It made one want to do a thousand-fold more for those fine soldiers,—most young,—who had given all they had to their country, and were so grateful to receive anything in return,—as if it were not in any way their due. The doctor, too, was the most grateful man and has since written me a letter as enthusiastic as a schoolboy’s about the projected plan. When it is all completed, you shall have a photograph and certainly you shall have a letter from the doctor himself,—a man who gives himself without stint, from morning till night, and who is, (in what he calls his leisure moments) now corresponding with American doctors over here, with a view to founding together with them a “France-American Journal of Medicine,” wherein medical views, etc., shall be exchanged monthly. It is worth very much to come in contact with such a doctor,—he exemplifies so splendidly our Wellesley motto,—and with such a patient as his. And I am proud of you all for having given me this chance to be your spokesman, and grateful to you beyond words, for having enabled me to help plan for changes in one of the hospitals that has been,—because of its poverty,—many constant pre-occupation for almost a year.

Will you please let the girls know how very grateful I am and beg them to forgive me for my seeming disregard of their beautiful expression of their interest in my work! Will you also excuse the letter written at top speed late in the evening of a busy day?

With grateful remembrances to all my friends in college, I am most appreciatively Yours,

Wm. May.

1919 Would-Be Teachers.

For those seniors who are preparing to teach the series of short talks given by recent graduates who are now teaching, will be of interest. This will be conducted Friday afternoon under the direction of the Appointment Bureau.

The British Educational Mission Visits Wellesley.

Four members of the Mission of British Educators were the guests of President Pendleton at a luncheon given in Tower Court on Tuesday, October 29. Miss Caroline Spurgeon, Professor of English Literature at the University of London, and Miss Rose Sidgwick, Lecturer in Ancient History at the University of Birmingham, Sir Henry Miers, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Manchester and Professor of Crystallography, and Dr. John Joly, Professor of Geology and Mineralogy, Trinity College, Dublin, were the visitors. Before lunch a group of students in the balcony of the Great Hall sang America the Beautiful, Alma Mater and the musical cheer. Afterwards the party was taken to the Gymnasium, the Chapel, the Library and the Art Building. They were particularly pleased with the view from Tower Court and with some of the classes they visited. Miss Spurgeon and Miss Sidgwick expect to return to Wellesley in December to remain several days.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED.
WOLF! WOLF!

One afternoon I started for the library
I thought I’d better work, I had a test.
I wandered thither with reluctant feet
(How hard it is to do the thing that’s best!)

An eager friend came running up to me
“Are you going to do today?” she said.
“Oh, nothing much”—with joy I thought of play—
“Go pick tomatoes, the college must be idle.”

Another day I started for the library
To do a theme not due for three weeks yet.
Again I wandered with reluctant feet,
And my same eager friend I once more met.

She cried, “What are you going to do today?”
But I replied, wearing a stony glare,
“I have to work!” “Too bad,” she said, “we planned
To walk to Pegan and have supper there.”

AWKWARD GAMES FOR INDOOR MOMENTS.

(Sequel to Indoor Games for Awkward Moments.)

Peter Pan.

This little game has been thoroughly tested and is guaranteed to amuse. Mamma supplies the bandages.

Little children, you heard of Peter Pan. Would it not be nice to do as he did? Yes, It would.
Put a chair on the table and so climb up on the dresser with the white lace cover on it.
Now spread your little arms. They are wings! If you jump up into the air you can go sailing across the room like a bird.
Oh, never mind that bowl of goldfish! You will go right over it.

Bull Fight.

Take Daddy’s cane and if the end has not got a good point you can easily make one with the caving knife. One of you in a bull and another is a toreador, the man who fights the bull.
The rest of the children excite the bull with disapproves.
(They should be sure not to strain their voices.)
The bull, on all fours of course, rushes at the toreador who defends himself. He can do this by putting his spear through the bull’s neck.
No, little children, this is not a cruel game, for the poor toreador must defend himself.

SHAKESPEARE TO THOSE IN TRAINING.

Brrrring, brrrring! the gong at Dreama’s Gate rings,
And you must snip, snip,
Your shower cold to take with speed
Eye others ope their eyes;
And frosty patterns frozen thin
Oer all the lawns do lie;
With everything that frigid bin
Oh, athlete brave, arise;
Arise, arise!

CONFORMING GERMS.

Last week I went to church
In orthodox array.
But O, alas, a germ went too,
To battle in the fray.
And ever since I’ve sneezed and coughed
And cursed the wicked flu.
When that germ got religion,
I guess I got it, too.

R. J., ’20.

TWO OF A KIND.

(Verse—Not Worth Mentioning.)

Oh, how I hate to go to my Bible!
Oh, how I’d love to stay home, ho, ho!
For the hardest blow of all is to hear the words
“Roll call!”

“Now write about Mark, now write about Luke,
And now write about Matthew’s gospel!”
Some day I’m going to cut my Bible class,
Some day a dozen times or so,
And then I’ll flunk my Bible course, without
A speck of real remorse
And spend the rest of my life “on pro”!

Oh, how I hate to go to my Psych class!
Oh, how I’d love to stay home, ho, ho!
For the hardest blow of all is to hear the words
“Roll call!”

“Now write about right, now write about sound,
And now write about Franklin’s theory!”
Some day I’m going to cut my Psych class,
Some day a dozen times or so,
And then I’ll flunk my old Psych course, without
A speck of real remorse
And spend the rest of my life “on pro”!

ART 13.

It is rumored that a number of seniors are neither taking Art 13 nor listening in this most popular course. For the benefit of these and for those who sit in the crowded region behind the “dead-line,” the News would like to point out some of the high-lightings of the course.

MYCENAE.

Excavation and other minor arts flourished at this period.

Greece.

The Acropolis is the hill where the Athenians keep their best-looking buildings, just like the hill at Wellesley. Whenever there was trouble brewing they all put on it for the Acropolis just like 1919 runs for the Art building when a quiz is rumored. The Greeks were a wonderful people!
So modern! You’d never believe it but at the entrance to the Acropolis they had a primitive escalator, called the Propylly-the. But it can’t compare with the Parthenon—you. The wonderful part of that building is how little there is left of it and how much you have to know. I’d rather see the Erechtheum and listen to the squawks on the Katydids’ porch. This building was used for initiations into the Ionic Order.

Stand Up and Be Counted

The Greatest Mother in the World is counting her children.
She wants your name—and yours—and yours—the names of all her children.
So, stand up, you men and women of America—stand up and be counted.
Let The Greatest Mother in the World see what a big, proud family she has.
You've given your share to your Red Cross—given it generously—and you'll give your share again when the time comes.

Right now your Red Cross wants your name—not a contribution—wants to know that you are a member—pledged to help her.
The Greatest Mother in the World wants to know who her children are before Christmas.

RESOLUTIONS

ON THE DEATH OF HAZEL NUTTER WESTCOTT.

October 32, 1918.

WHEREAS: The Infinite One in the mystery of His unknown ways has seen fit to take from among us one most cherished and dear, Hazel Nutter Westcott, friend to us all as we shared the joys of college days, and honored and respected in her later life and work as a woman of rare vision and nobility of character, softened by the happiness and contentment of domestic ties, one whom we shall always mourn as a fine example, and a loyal and devoted alumna, possessing the true Wellesley spirit; therefore, be it

RESOLVED: That the Wellesley College Class of 1912 express its feeling of deep loss and extend its sympathy to the bereaved family in their loss of a daughter, wife and mother, and also, be it

RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our classmate and friend, and that the same be published in the Wellesley College News and the Wellesley Magazine.

Dr. Katherine B. Davis related an incident of particular Wellesley interest to members of the Vocational Guidance Committee. An exhibit of fine sculpture and photographs was given in a house near the Bedford Reformatory. As a special treat she allowed the girls in the honor class to visit the exhibit. She had given them money with which to buy a picture for their school room. She related the story of a girl who, after being instructed by her teacher, made the only picture she could take. As a result a photograph of the Palmer Memorial is a source of inspiration in the school room of the Bedford Reformatory.

FORMER MEMORIAL OF '19 IN WAR WORK.

Katherine Hayward, a former member of '19, has written a most interesting letter telling the News of the work she has recently embarked upon. She states, "I am going to work in a munitions factory on Monday, nine hours at assembling hand grenades, starting at eight-thirty and ending at five-thirty. ... They need a lot of girls to work just now, for the government has doubled their orders for hand grenades and trench mortars to be completed before January 17." Miss Hayward expresses a strong desire to get back to Wellesley and her Wellesley friends, "but," she adds, "doing something active to help meet the Hun is a good solve for college-bomelickness."

WHITIN OBSERVATORY—OPEN NIGHT.
On the evening of Tuesday, November 12, if the sky be clear, the Whitin Observatory will be open to all members of the college from 7:30 to 9:30.
The 10-inch and 6-inch telescopes will be used for, observing the moon. The large crater Copernicus and the range of high mountains known as the Jovian Apennines will be favorably situated for observation, and many less conspicuous features of the moon's surface may also be seen.

1930 WINE FIELD DAY.
After the last event had been played and the returns were in, the shining teams flocked around the table of the Athletic Association and anxiously awaited the awarding of cups and Ws. Margaret Post, '19, president of the Association, made her speech of welcome as warm as she could, in view of the temperature, only taking time to explain the very high grade of work for which the W was awarded. The championship cup was presented to 1930's president and the other cups to the captains of the winning teams. Ws were awarded to the following:
Archery, 1919: Florence Langley, Emily Thompson, Mary Haasen, Elizabeth Davis. 1920: Helen Babbitt, Eleanor Brown.
Baseball, 1919: Ruth Porter. 1920: Helen MacDonald.

The News regrets that in its issue of October 31 it reported Mrs. Hoffer's lecture without her acknowledgment. Certain facts are inaccurately quoted, and Mrs. Hoffer feels that by an in-extant transcript of her words her meaning has been altered in several places.

PROMINENT SOCIAL WORKER SPEAKS AT WELLESLEY.
Dr. Katherine B. Davis spoke to the college
Thursday evening, October 31, in Billings Hall on the educational problems presented by the prevailence of abnormal types and of ignorance of social evils. Her work as Head of the Section on Women's Work of the Social Hygiene Division of the Committee on Training Camp Activities for the War Department appealed to students because of its practical reconstructiveness.

Dr. Davis was formerly Head of the Bedford Reformatory, which is the New York State Reformatory for women. She was one of the first holding such a position to realize that her responsibility to those under her charge did not end with the mere provision for their comfort.
She sought to discover why they were there and to do as much curative work as possible. She discovered that the basic cause of their transgressions, moral and mental, was their lack of ability to coordinate what little education they had had with the problems of daily life. They had not realized that fractions would be a help in cooking. They were wholly incapable of taking one-sixth of a recipe. They had never done enough thinking for themselves to understand that a false step in-itably leads to grievous difficulties. Dr. Davis concluded that there must be decided improvements in our first grades, that she reminded us once more of the slight proportion of our citizens receiving higher education.

Now the war has brought to the attention of the government the surprising prevalence of social ills along the lines of disease and inadequate education. Informative lectures and "movies" have been instituted in the camps and are now being introduced to civilians. Because of Dr.
Davis's work among women and the coincidence of her earlier conclusions with those of the government she has now been given charge of "educating the women of America" along the same lines.

From her increasing experience her conviction has grown that the future demands constructive work at the bottom of our educational system.
She appeals directly and forcibly to college trained women to enter the large field of service in the grammar schools.
