DR. FITCH GIVES COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

FLOAT NIGHT BEST IN YEARS.

The success of Float Night on June 10 proved conclusively that 1919's record for good weather cannot be broken nor can her record for a creditable performance be outdone.

1910's Boat Fight in Race.

After the four crews had rowed from the boat house past the spectators, the race began, urged on by the cheers of the enthusiastic classes. Not until Margaret Post, '19, made the announcement did the spectators know the winner. Then:

"Rah, rah Wellesley!"

"Hoorah! '19, Wellesley!"

 came with a crash. The Junior and Sophomore crews finished in second and third places respectively.

CUPS AND W'S AWARD.

1919, by winning this year, got the cup for the third time. Then individual cups awarded by Mr. Hummell each year, were given to members of the winning crew. Mr. Fette's announcement that the cup for the best oarsman on the lake was awarded to Margaret Post, '19, was followed by wild cheering. So also was Margaret Post's presentation of an honorary W to Mr. Fette in recognition of his untiring work with the crews.

This year's group were given to Alice Clough, Evelyn Hall, Marjorie Sanders, Elizabeth Shipman, and Margaret Post, all of 1919, to Emily Edwards, Margaret Gay, Mary Herig, Mildred Shepherd, Dorothy Mephams and Sidney Sayre, of 1920; and to Dorothy Brainard, and Gladys Hathaway of 1921.

After a long intermission and a concert from the band stationed out on the lake, the four crews paraded across the lake and formed the W. In their honor the classes sang their crew-songs as they waited for the pageant.

PAGEANT OF WORLD LEADERS GROWS.

Wuhan, the Spirit of the Lake, impersonated by Esther Webster, '19, appeared from the lake and slowly gracefully the pageant of the world, "the host of vanished leaders," float past him. Rameses of ancient Egypt led the way followed by Arthur and Caesar. The great prow of the Viking's boat pushed ahead of Richard Cuir de Leon's adventurous ship. Joan of Arc, with her banner, swept by. So passed in turn, Napoleon, Washington, and Grandes heroique American figures. The Great War was vividly represented by Joffre, smiling genially to the crowd, Mars, the grim God of War, Death, rampaging civilization under foot, and Fire, whose red plumes shot up vengefully. Then came the solution—the League of Nations, accompanied by Justice, Prosperity and Happiness and, last of all, Peace. They were all well portrayed: especially fine effects were obtained with Mars, Fire and Justice.

Soon after the pageant and the singing of the classes, Enamul Lace, the Freshman president, stepped out in her garb of "Peace" and christened 1920's boat. Then the college eight, the "Persevering"

The world process is over the same, said Dr. Albert Parker Fitch to the graduating class at the commencement exercises in Memorial Chapel, Friday, June 13. The world undergoes a long period of development, then comes the crisis, the breaking up, and finally the rebuilding is begun again only to go through the same stages. Yet men seldom realize this, and they never realize the crisis when it comes, otherwise they would see more clearly and would know how to act. It is very hard for men to understand how slowly changes come. In spite of the veneer of modern civilization, man has changed little, and has never learned to read the signs of his times. Jesus realized this in his work. In the modern world, this misunderstanding and ignorance of human nature is typified in the Russian situation. For years the Russian lower classes have been treated as beasts. Now the civilized world is surprised to see that they act like beasts. Unseeing, comprehending, the world goes on trying experiments perilous to human life.

Now, however, there seems to be indications of a new world. New physical movements, new economic movements, new art, new music, new free verse, new ethical standards, are all arising. Religion itself has passed from the terms of anti-physics into the terms of the idealist. In this new world the college graduate has a very special duty. It is to give the new world what learning can give and to be ever faithful to the spirit gleaming. It is disloyal to keep certain outgrown standards and forms of virtue, but one may be loyal to its spirit. The graduates will prove whether or not Wellesley believes that behind the world is mind, conscious and intelligible which is the help to the tragedy and suffering of man. Don't bequeath faith in the world and think that it can't be understood. Have faith in the truthfulness of human experience. Develop principles; keep on gathering facts. The books giving the spirit and aspirations of the times are the books important to be read, for it is necessary to revere our own intellect. Above all, the college graduate must have intellectual integrity. Think straight, meet the logical conclusion; say what you think and mean. Trust and respect your mind and believe in the heart of mankind. All hearts are not the same, and they manifest themselves in different ways, but believe in the heart of mankind, and go out heart free and strong.

PRESIDENT PENNELL TELLS OF COLLEGE ACTIVITIES.

President Pendleton spoke briefly concerning the work which has been carried on in the college during the past year. The amount raised for the war chest budget was over $16,000, and for the United War Work Drive over $2,400. The fourth and fifth Liberty Loan drives resulted in a subscription of over $16,000 from the students alone, and the total of the five drives was $241,430. The Alumni Association Campaign for life member-

ZETA ALPHA MASQUE.

One of the most successful out-of-doors performances ever given in Wellesley took place last Tuesday night, the 11th of June, when the Gods and Goddesses of Olympus took possession of Tupelo, to arrange the Shepherd Paris, for awarding the golden ball, prize for the fairest, to Venus in preference to Juno or Pallas.

From the stately entrance of Queen Elizabeth, in whose honor the masque was supposedly given, to the conclusion of the Goddesses' quarrel, by which the prize was given to Elizabeth, as the embodiment of all perfections, the play was full of charm and beauty. The music by Harriet Webster and Elizabeth Shipman was exceptionally well worked out, and added greatly to the effect of the masque. Venus' charm, Juno's majesty, and Pallas' martial bearing were well maintained by Margaret Stevenson, '20, Winona Stevens, '20, and Kathryn Hinrichs, '19. Eleanor Carroll as Paris was a most realistic shepherd of royal birth. Hardly enough can be said for the effectiveness of costuming, lighting, and entrance. The whole masque is the evident result of well directed work and thought, and its success is in large part due to Miss Edith Saull's excellent coaching and to Alice Burbank's faithful co-operation and direction.

POMEROY'S NEW HOUSE PRESIDENT.

The Senate has appointed Margaret Hamma House President of Pomeroy for the year 1919-1920.
It's custom to write a farewell, good luck, God bless you editor—so this is it. The News feels like putting every one on the back and saying, "Good bye children, have a glorious time, and do come back and subscribe as in the fall." Incidently, our best congratulations and thanks to the weather man for making 1919's Commencement such a perfect week. The News, like every other student meet the greatest problem of the fall—how to get the best of luck and success to every single '91er.

ten Vol.

The days of subway jams between classes and flapping cardboard collars and umbrellas best are perpetrated over for the students and most of the faculty, though the administration offices will continue to partake of the delights of being in the "4th" Building. The college has put up with the temporary building with considerable grace and the students appreciate the way in which the faculty have uncomplainingly put up with all the inconveniences for a longer period than any of the girls have had to endure. The new administration hall is another step to the new Wellesley that is coming. This last year has seen many advances made, both in the matter of actual building and changes on the campus, and also in the matter of rules, courtesies and ideals. It has been a splendid year to look back upon, and perhaps the greatest of its gifts are the sure promises of all that is to come.

A SENSE OF HUMOR AND A SENSE OF PROPORTION.

In the various local interests which absorb so much time at college, the average student is apt to lose a very necessary thing—her sense of proportion. College matters loom so large, outside events (aside from the social, we admit) so trivial. While it is necessary and commendable to be absorbed in college affairs, yet complete absorption is detrimental to the college and to the individual. A college education is, after all, intended to help the student to solve these world problems which come in life. If the student's attention is so bound up in just what occurs in Wellesley, the affairs of importance assume an importance out of all proportion to their value.

Summer vacation is an excellent time to renew one's sense of proportion. A close study of the world's affairs, a deeper interest in them and in the working out of problems that are to be settled now or in the future—all these make one realize what a minuscule world the college world is, and how minor are most of its difficulties. He interested in college and give it your first and heartiest interest and support, but cultivate a sense of humor and be awake to what is going on outside, and don't neglect the newspaper in preference to a red-skirt of the society question.

What Are You Doing?

Last summer, with the war still on, the incentive to do war work of some kind was great. This summer it is different. The war is over. The men are coming home. It somehow seems as though war work should logically be over. Much of it is, but there is very much still waiting to be done. The French and Belgian refugees still need clothes and food and money. Hospitals still need bandages and articles of clothing for wounded soldiers. In fact there are innumerable opportunities for the college girl this summer. Aside from war work there is social work of all sorts, from working girls' camps to playground work for the children. Not every girl is in a position to undertake work of this kind, but there are many who can. It is for them to remember that service did not end when the signal whistle blew.

1920.

The Rootless Sophomore.

Why are Sophomores not allowed to stay in college homes over commencement when there are rooms that are not being used? Of course, if graduates are staying in the dormitory, they should have precedence over the students, but when the graduates do not fill the house, it seems a bit unnecessary to turn the Sophomores out to sleep where they can.

I realize that the rooms must be cleaned, and as soon as possible put into order for next year. But all a Sophomore wants is a mattress and a place to put her suit-case. She should of course give up her room as soon as she can, but I cannot see that she is inconveniencing anyone when she takes an unused room in the house and makes it her headquarters.

THE UNIT FOR FRANCE.

The News for May 22nd gave the names of the members of the Reconstruction Unit, for which applications have been obtained, and they will call June 11th, following Miss Simmon who sailed May 11th.

It is now expected that three additional members will sail July 2nd. These are:

Dr. Mary W. Marvell, 1901, of Fall River, where she is held in high esteem. She is a graduate of Johns Hopkins Medical School, '01, has served as interne in the N. E. Hospital for Women and Children in Boston, and is pathologist for Union Hospital, Fall River. Her specialty is bacteriology and pathology. Dr. Marvell is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

Julia Larrimer, '07, has taught in the schools of Toledo, Kansas, and New York City. For two years she has been head of the boarding department of Miss Boardman's School, Kansas City. She has served with great success in executive capacity in Red Cross work in Kansas.

Lucille Kruger, '11, has taken a year's course in Home Economics at the University of Cincinnati, her home city. She has been treasurer of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, and buyer for the Premium Department. She is a practical nurse and has had considerable experience in nursing, gardening, raising chickens, etc.

Winifred S. Barth, 1914, went overseas the last day of January, being sent from Delaware by the General Federation of Women's Clubs of the U. S. Two girls were chosen from each state to go abroad to do reconstruction work among American soldiers. She was sent to Utrecht, a resort in the Swiss Alps where about one thousand soldiers went each week on leave. These girls were kept busy playing the piano, dancing, walking, listening and in every way possible finding amusement for the men waiting to be sent back home.

They gave a play one evening which was penned most enthusiastically by the "Doughline Daughtry." Winifred is very happy and says that her work furnishes the most variety, most enjoyment and most good accomplished of anything she ever did before.
SUMMER HATS

ship fees invested in bonds amounted to a subscription of $89,448 for the last four years. The work did not consist merely in contributions of money, but also in bandages, hospital supplies, and clothing of all sorts made in the college Red Cross rooms under the supervision of Mrs. Hayward, ’83.

President Pendleton then spoke of the new buildings that are being built, and also of the many new buildings that the college requires. New laboratories for the science departments are needed most of all, and these must be obtained in order to keep up Wellesley’s standard. An auditorium to hold the entire college, a swimming pool, and an endowment for salaries are also things which the college needs very much.

Miss Pendleton announced the recipients of the various prizes.

Margaret Hickenlooper Withrow, ’19, received the John Mannfield prize for excellence in prose writing, and Dorothy Elizabeth Collins, ’19, for excellence in verse writing.

WOMAN QUESTION LOOMS LARGE IN ITALY

While the new freedoms just secured to the women of Italy by the bill introduced by Svechi, late Minister of Justice, merely give to the women of that country what American women have long had under the law, they remove such grave disabilities that, to Italian women, the victory is significant. Among the provisions of the new law are the following: A married woman henceforth can control her own fortune without her husband’s consent, carry on business, bring an action for recovery of property without his consent; if left a widow, she may have tutelage of her own children with some slight supervision of the “Family Council,” a group composed of four relatives.

Women’s position in Italy is still far from the standard adopted by most nations, but there is rapidly growing there the sense of injustice and the woman question is seriously regarded by its ownmen.

FLAT NIGHT REST IN YEARS

EXCELLENT WORK OF COMMITTEES

The credit for the success of Float Night is due largely to the work of the committees. Ruth S. Coleman, ’19, and Elizabeth Shipman, ’19, ex-officio, were in charge. The General Arrangements Committee was managed by Catherine Hughes, ’20, and included Anna M. Baetjer, ’20, Helen M. Palmer, ’20, Charlotte A. Wood, ’20, Clara O. Loveland, ’21, Frances Hall, ’21, Carita Bigelow, ’21, Ruth A. Gardner, ’22, Madeleine Van Dorn, ’22, Dorothy Raimond, ’19, was chairman of the Pageant Committee which was composed of Elizabeth C. Mock, ’20, Edna H. Bowen, ’20, Helen C. Birdard, ’20, Helen Strain, ’20, Constance Whitmamore, ’21, Constance Van der West, ’21, Mary Pringle Barret, ’22, Rebecca Hill, ’22.

One of the largest crowds ever seen in college witnessed the competition and pageant. The omission of Float Night in last year’s war-time Commencement made the event new to over half the members of the college and, therefore, all the more enjoyable.

AN APPRECIATION OF WELLESLEY WAR SERVICE.

2 Place de Rivoli, Paris,
March 7, 1919.

Miss Grace G. Crocker, Chairman,
Wellesley War Service Committee,
419 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

My dear Miss Crocker: I am replying to your letter addressed to Colonel Gibson, which has evidently been very much delayed in the mails, in which you speak of the future work of the Wellesley Unit, because when your letter arrived, Colonel Gibson had left for the United States. I have personally seen Miss Whiting and we decided together that she had better get in touch with Messieurs Marlier, Secrétaire Général de l’Aisne, M. Marlier welcomed your offer of assistance and gave Miss Whiting a choice of various sectors in his department in which the Wellesley Unit might work under the French Government in the devastated area. It seems to me that this is a very splendid way to help.

I want to take this opportunity to tell you that we do not want to lose the services of the Wellesley Unit until we have to. They are still doing a very important work at the Hospital Centre at Beau Desert, where large numbers of men who have been wounded are being rushed through the Hospital Centre, with a short stay of a few days, to the ongoing transports. Your Unit, all of whom I know personally, has done a most remarkable piece of work with the American Red Cross at Beau Desert, which is in itself a most unattractive, dreary sort of place. There they have operated one of the very best of our hospital recreation huts. Their work has been wonderfully well systematized. They have handled there or four times the number of men for which the hut was constructed. They have decorated it in the most artistic way and have been able, through their personalities, to secure especially fine co-operation from the Army. Their hut is a model, with its big stone fireplace, its recreation room, its small homelike sitting room, and its attractive decoration.

The Wellesley Unit has carried on its work in the hospital wards, its searching work and its entertainment program wonderfully well. Every member has worked hard and long and the American Red Cross thanks them all and is very grateful to the Wellesley War Service Committee for its assistance to the American Red Cross and for the character of the people whom it sent to aid us.

Very truly yours,

MAMIE KENNETH MYRATT,
Deputy Commissioner for France.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS,
NEW ENGLAND DIVISION HEADQUARTERS.

Thank you so much for the list of the garments. It certainly is a fine list of articles and all are so much needed now. The women’s crocheted caps, especially catch my eye, and if at any time, you have any people who want to make them, they will be so appreciated.

Very sincerely yours,

LAVINIA H. NEWELL,
Director Women’s Work.

AMERICAN COMMITTEE FOR DEVASTATED FRANCE,
NEW ENGLAND DEPARTMENT.

We are again most grateful to you for the wonderful things you sent from the Wellesley workroom to be forwarded to France. I think it speaks volumes for the loyalty of your alumnae to have continued so long with their work. We are most grateful to be the intermediaries with France, and I hope in some fashion you may convey to at least a few of the girls how proud we are to be sending such wonderful things into that distressed country.

Gratefully,

HELEN MUNROE,
Executive Chairman.

Le Comité de Villefranche pour le seconu aux réfugiés a charge de tous ses remerciements pour l’Université de Wellesley. Grace à votre générosité, nous avons pu faire un arbre de Noël pour 125 enfants réfugiés. Chacun d’eux a reçu, un jouet, un gâteau et surtout de chauds vêtements portés dans les mailles, que des mains charitables ont si bien garnis. La joie des enfants et leur reconnaissance auraient été notre meilleur récompense. Je m’en suis exprimé auprès de vous. Veuillez, agréer, Miss Crocker, l’assurance de nos sentiments dévoués et l’expression de notre reconnaissance.

HOW TO BE ORIGINAL DURING COMMENCEMENT.

The following skeleton brief may be used with discretion during any Commencement crisis which may occur.

1. Tell your friends’ families that you are glad they are having such pleasant weather for their visit.

2. Tell them that in some other years the weather has not been so pleasant during Commencement, and that if they had been here then their visit would not have been so pleasant.

3. Tell them that Tree Day are so much better when the weather is unpleasant.

4. Wear a sweater in the morning.

Tune: Yankee Doodle.
1918 came to town
When the war was started
But we’re never in sight
Till she and Wellesley parted.

Chorus.
1918 won the war,
Who is there to doubt it?
1918 won the war,—
That’s all there is about it.

Said Kaiser Bill to随随 Fred,
“Mein son, I hat der knowledge
We Chanaus are last lost der war,—
For ’98’s out of college!”

Loudendorf and Hindenburg.
They fell into a coma
And froze with fright when Class ’18
Was handed its diploma.

Von Tirpitz brewed an evil plot
With Us and sabots to swamp us,
But it just died a natural death
When ’18 left the campus.

“With bowl and hounds, garden, gaunt,
Old Bill,” we said, “we’ll trouble you As soon as we’ve embarked upon
The W., W., W.”

Since this conclusion is so clear
The blindest could not shun it,
With suddenly yet conscious pride,
We nobly say, “I done it!”

Tune: A Wellesley Conversation.
Yes; I’m back;
I teach the high school math;
Oh, have you seen the riding school?
Let’s take the meadow path;
Your dates are’t paid;
That dress is simply sweet;
The worms are not so bad this year;
My poor shalman feet!

Chorus.
A reunion conversation
Is a source of information
That denotes our education
Very well
You can tell.

Hello, Kate!
Do you think it’s going to rain?
We’re sleeping four heads down here;
I nearly missed my train;
The tea room’s full;
You haven’t changed a bit;
Oh, let me see your ring, my dear;
That song has made a hit.

A reunion conversation
Is a source of information
That denotes our education
Very well
You can tell.

Tune: Dances on the Campus.
How do you think you’ll keep me Away from the fun.
When 1909 Returns?
How do you think you’ll leave me Tender-hearted,
Sitting at home,
Sad and alone?
When the fairies gather out on the green,
Of Wellesley’s Campus fair,
Oh, who would dare to miss
Such a time as this,
With Naught-sinic a singing.
Oh, What old-time bills!
Oh, how do you think you’ll keep me Away from the fun
When 1909 Returns?

Tune: I Don’t Want to Get Well.
I don’t want to be a grad,
I don’t want to be a grad,
For here I had such a good time.
Now I am shaving my young life through
And every day I’ve been away
I’ve thot a lot of you.

I don’t want to be a grad,
I don’t want to be a grad,
The wide, wild world is treating me so rough—
it’s tough.
I teach, I type, I cook, I dust
My polished mind is covered thick with rust.
But since I am a grad,
I am very, very glad
To be at dear Wellesley with you.

Tune: Do n’t Know Where You Gobey, But I’m On My Way.
We don’t know what we’re singing.
We are all sung out;
We’d like to sing in harmony.
But we only raise a shout;
Come on there, you.
Don’t lag behind,
If your feet are sore, why, never mind.
We don’t know what we’re singing.
We are all sung out.

Tune: Mary.
Wellesley, Wellesley, sweetest name we know,
Wellesley, Wellesley, oh, we love you so.
The the years have added to our weight and size,
And we have often looked more and than wise,
And yet, oh!
Wellesley, Wellesley, while the years have flown,
Wellesley, Wellesley, you have surely grown
With your new, fine, stylish sidewalks,
Your gym, Tower Court and Chillin,
Oh, Wellesley, you’re surely grown.

SUFFRAGE STRENGTH IN SOUTH GREATLY INCREASED.

"Sentiment in the South is much stronger than the folks up North think," said Mrs. George Window Perkins, who has just returned from the National Woman Suffrage Association, that the sentiment to extend the ballot to women in the South is greater than it has been for some time. The growth of the sentiment is due to the efforts of the National Woman Suffrage Association, and the work of Mrs. Perkins and her colleagues.

Mrs. Perkins is Clerk of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association. Her report is reassuring as it is generally conceded that the strength of the opposition to enfranchisement lies in the South. From the Rio Grande to the Potomac are eleven states, exclusive of the six border states of Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware, but the suffragists will carry some of these states. The tide of sentiment is strong, as our North, has set in the suffrage direction and we believe it is irresistible.

For the Commencement Festivities—when you are about to enter the world of society and fashion you will want to be well-dressed. You can be assured of exclusive textures, daringly different designs, joyous color tones, and guaranteed quality in
