PLAN FOR NEW DRAMATIC ORGANIZATION.

The Issue:—Shall Wellesley College have an All-College Major Dramatic Association?

(Note:—It was passed by the House as expressing the consensus of opinion that "all Born Plays and all major dramatic events should come under one all-college Dramatic Association.")

Plan of the organization.

1. Motto—Achieve Better College Dramatics.

2. Jim—To make the public dramatic events at Wellesley set a standard for the community by fulfilling the whole College in the artistic production of Plays.

3. Membership:

   a. All members of the College, former students, graduate students, members of the Faculty and their wives, and officers of the Administration shall be eligible to the Dramatic Association.

4. Exams:

   a. There shall be four formal plays every year.

   b. Of these, three shall be open, all-college plays, and one, an open-door play at Commencement, the other an indoor play in the fall.

   c. There shall be also two closed Plays, one an Operetta, the other a Junior Play, which shall be given without the auspices of the Drama organization.

(Note:—The term "open play" signifies more time for rehearsals, a coach, and the privilege of outside guests.)

5. Type of Plays to be given:

   a. The Spring Play shall be of the Classic type, similar to those produced by Societies in their open meetings and by Senior classes—Greek dramas, Shakespeare, Marques, and modern Classics are representative of this type.

   b. The Junior Play and the first open Play shall be either of the Romantic or Modern type, such as three-act or one-act modern Plays or old English Plays, etc.

AERONAUTICS.

Professor C. L. E. Moore, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is to speak on Aeronautics, Friday evening, March 3, at 8 o'clock, in the Barn. While the lecture will be of special interest to students of Mathematics and Physics, others who wish to know more about the how and why of the subject are likely to have some of their questions answered, and the Department of Mathematics extends a cordial invitation to all who wish to attend.

COUNTESS TURCZYNOWICZ TO SPEAK ON BOLSHEVISM.

Countess Turezyewicz who will lecture on "Barriers against Bolshevism," was before her marriage, Miss Laura Blackwell of New York. While abroad she single-handed met and married Count Turczynowicz, a Polish noble and Professor in the University of Cracow.

The family estates of the Count were in the Russian province of Suwalki, close to the German border. When the war came the Germans invaded Russia the home of the Count and Countess was made German headquarters, and for seven months the Countess was obliged to live in the house with and look out for the comfort of the officers of the German staff.

SPECIAL EXAMINATIONS.

By special vote of the Academic Council students who were absent from all or a part of their midyear examinations will be given an opportunity to take their examinations on the Saturday afternoon of March and April.

The schedule of examinations will be posted on the Official Bulletin in Founders Hall.

Cards of permission to these examinations will be sent not later than Wednesday, March 3rd, by resident mail, to be certified to take an examination or present a paper. This card must be presented at the time of the examination or with the paper.

The reports on the examinations taken in March will be sent out after the Spring recess, those on examinations taken in April will be sent after May 1st.

A student who does not avail herself of the opportunity offered may not take examinations earlier than June 1920 and must apply for permission before May 15th in accordance with usual regulations.

ALICE V. WENTZ, Dean.

MEETING OF HOUSE.

A meeting of the House of Representatives was held on Thursday afternoon, February 28th, in Founders Hall, the main business of which was to bear the report of the Women’s Intercollegiate Student Government Convention, held at Wilson College in Pennsylvania on November 20-22. The delegates, Charlotte Hassett and Margaret Hadlock, told briefly of the discussions held on various parts of the affairs of College Government—such matters as the attitude of the students to College Government, the relation of faculty and students, the honor system, and many similar subjects of interest to all college government systems.

It was suggested that no legislation pass before May 1 be effective as it is hard for the Grey Book Committee to take account of such new regulations with such short notice. A motion was made and carried to that effect.

A letter from the Senate asked further information about the new committee system, and for a definition of "sophomore houses in the village" for the new plan for choosing representatives.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

Beginning on Tuesday, February 24th, at five o’clock, Mr. James Gordon Gilkey gave a series of four talks at Houghton Memorial Chapel, in observance of the Week of Prayer. Following these afternoon meetings Mr. Gilkey held conferences each evening, Tuesday at Tower Court, Wednesday at Wilder, Thursday at Washington House, and Friday at Beebe.

The afternoon talks covered some of the reasons why college students as a whole get so little out of their religion, with suggestions as to how we, individually, might find a remedy. The subject of the first talk was "An Intelligent Religious" and Mr. Gilkey suggested a religious faith which is the most reasonable intelligent interpretation of the life about us and which will allow us to love God, not only with our hearts, but also with our minds.

The second dealt with the problem of acquiring "An Individual Faith" to which the concept formulated "an earlier stage of development" or else.

PROGRAM MEETINGS.

Program meetings were held Saturday evening, February 28th, at four of the societies, The Agora, Shakespeare, Tau Zeta Epiklon, and Phi Sigma.

At the Agora a paper was read by Helen Humphrey, giving a summary of American history from 1770 to 1783. Gladys Jones then read two Revolutionary poems, "Naiah Hole," and "The Little Black-eyed Rebel." Following play, "Both Sides of the Question," written by Edith Weigle. Those taking part were: Katherine Lindsay, Helen Phillips, Elizabeth Tone, Ruth Roche, Dorothy Calvert, Frances Colpin, Gladys Jones, and Elinor Linton.

The program for the meeting at Phi Sigma was as follows:

Renaissance Portraits—an imaginary conversation between Murillo and Velaques.

Written by—Dorothy Black, ’20.

Read by—Emelie Sellers, ’21.

The Infant Margharita—Velaques The Prado, Madrid.

Portrait of Dona Juana Pacheco, wife of Velaques.

THE QUESTION OF AN OPEN SENATE.

There is a strong feeling, throughout a part of the college at least, that Senate meetings in which class or all-college questions are discussed should be open to the students. Of course there are two sides to the question. The members of the Faculty undoubtedly feel that even class or all-college questions discussed by such a body are apt to bring up comments or questions which, while not at all secrets, are not desirable to be spread broadcast throughout the college. Furthermore it is doubtful whether the college would use the privilege after the novelty had worn off. The students who favor certain outside topics feel that the objections, of which only a few are stated above, do not overbalance the advantages of such a scheme. The undergraduates are more than willing to seek the Faculty point-of-view. They are perfectly willing to have the opinions, but except in individual cases it is impossible to get the opinions firsthand. A student reporting a Senate meeting to the House can give but a second hand impression of Faculty conclusions and reasons. This secondhand reporting creates an entirely incorrect impression, or else helps to absurd Senate meetings in a veil of mystery that tends to increase misunderstanding between Faculty and students.

I.

Stage Debt of the Intellectual Stare.

If it is worth sitting four hours on a cold, icy roof (the "blooming students' say it was more than worth it) waiting to catch glimpses and hear snatches of the incomparable faculty productions, the rest of the student body who were not so clever—or foolish—as to obtain roof garden seats, demand an opportunity to witness a reproduction. We consider it highly unfair that our student plays must be censored and criticized by the faculty, whereas, we, the students, are refused the opportunity—as a body—of passing upon the historic talents of our esteemed college. Who can neglect the fact that we are the real free and fair audience? We Seniors feel especially hurt, for how can we be expected to present a fair and broad-minded "Academic Council" unless the undergraduates are permitted to witness their stars in different lights.

We are hinted to use faculty-wards that, if due precautions are taken in the right direction, a second performance of the first play "The Nice Wonton" may be given for the War Chest Benefit or the like. That, of course, would be very enjoyable but I feel that such a deep tragedy played in the wrong way would be too much for our young and impressionable minds unless offset by the less severe rendition of "Spreadin' the News," with the popular hero in scarlet hair. I hope the Faculty Play Producers may see fit to act in accord with popular opinion by reproducing their recent Barn hits.

The New Dramatic Plan.

Wake up, Wellesley students, and face the dramatic situation. Our dramatic committee has been working hard to evolve a plan which will meet the dramatic needs of the college more adequately than do the divided efforts of the Societies, the Barn and the Class Plays. The opinion of the House of Representatives expressed last December allows them to go this far. But we students must do our part too! It is only fair that we should be interested enough to make ourselves intelligent about the question. We must realize the deficiencies of the present system which the new plan is intended to overcome. And with this aim in view. Are you going to hear the discussion at the Forum? Where do you stand on the question? Have you "hushed it over" with your best friends? Have you discussed it at lunch and after dinner? Do you know:

1. A central dramatic organization would alleviate heavy technical difficulties while allowing Junior Play to retain its distinct class character.
2. Such an organization would tend to strengthen college spirit by:
   a. Giving it an all-year-round outlet.
   b. Having our most artistic work done by an all-college organization of which every student would have a right to be proud.
3. The selfishness of the present system would be avoided by which four-fifths of the college are excluded from participation in the best dramatic efforts?
4. Better work would result since there would be the entire student body to furnish material which must be accepted by the group?
5. The Barn cannot under existing conditions give us plays of which we can be proud;
6. The general Society feeling is in favor of closed dates and especially that Commencement dates should not be given over to Society work?
7. That non-open Theatre such as Phi Sigma's Masque and Zeta Alpha's Play (1920) might give satisfactory opportunity for the work of Societies?
8. A central dramatic organization has proved highly successful in other large colleges?
M. G., 1920.

III.

Why Not Open Tree Days?

The ever present need for college buildings in Wellesley and the high cost of building run on side by side, increasing each year. The Student Alumni building and a swimming pool have been far-oft hopes of successive generations of students; but the idea for more dormitories is a constant one due to the inadequate hospital accommodations which have been exposed during the influenza epidemics and the need for a new building capable of caring for a larger number of students is recognized. In some way or other the necessity for new buildings must be reconciled with the financial condition of the college.

A drive for money is a possibility—one from which everyone recoils. Another alternative, less well begging presents itself. Last year the open Tree Day netted the Red Cross several thousand dollars. Must 1921's performance remain only as a memory? It seems a very obvious possibility that it could serve as an example for future years to follow. The money gained might be applied to a fund for new building, a, and though the amount raised would not build "another Tree Day," it would help the college in a very material way.

The difficulties of this plan are numerous. It would mean the relinquishing of the old tradition of closed Tree Days it would entail more laborm (on the part of the personnel) and yet the accomplished last year in the interests of charity, might well be imitated for the financial benefit of the college.

Why Not Give I. C. S. A. A Senior President?

I. C. S. A. has obviously been a success this year for not only is the membership larger than it has ever been before, but the work in Boston has been extended to numerous and varied fields of settlement-house-social work. With these facts as an encouragement it seems hopeful that I. C. S. A. may soon rank as a major organization at Wellesley, for it is surely one of the most definite and immediate ways in which we can give helpful service and get useful experience. Why should it not be so? Therefore, have we a president? Other associations here have seniors at their head through whom is added not only a certain dignity, but more efficient leadership and management.

At present we elect a sophomore each spring who immediately takes on the responsibility of carrying on our work at Denison House and at the many other settlement houses in which we are interested, as well as organizing a campaign for the association here at college. It seems to me to be too big a question of management for a sophomore to take up, and much greater success would be attained by choosing a girl who has had more than one year of college life.

I. C. S. A. is a self-supporting and independent organization and deserves to rank among the major organizations. Think about it and come to the I. C. S. A. chapter-meeting next week to discuss it!

V.

Political Delinquency.

Delinquency is neglect or failure in the performance of duty. Social delinquents are the people for whom we have organized a police force. We are political delinquents. We fail to do our full duty as citizens of this community. Like sheep, we follow a few leaders. How little independent constructive thinking is done! The lack of wide awake community consciousness is shown in the fact that almost the only sentiment to be warmly aroused by any movement is disapproval. When we leave Wellesley we expect to become intelligent, responsible citizens of a larger community. College is the place to learn. Why neglect the opportunities to help Wellesley and to help ourselves by intelligent citizenship here? Be your own policeman. Reform! Elections are coming! D. U., '22.

MARGARET SHEDD, 21 SHAFER
The Service of an Electrical Research Laboratory

The research facilities of the General Electric Company are an asset of world-wide importance, as recent war work has so clearly demonstrated. Their advantages in pursuits of peace made them of inestimable value in time of war.

A most interesting story tells of the devices evolved which substantially aided in solving one of the most pressing problems of the war—the submarine menace. Fanciful, but no less real, were the results attained in radio communication which enabled an aviator to control a fleet of flying battleships, and made possible the sending, without a wire, history-making messages and orders to ships at sea. Scarcely less important was the X-ray tube, specially designed for field hospital use and a notable contribution to the military surgical service. And many other products, both combatant and industrial use, did their full share in securing the victory.

In the laboratories are employed highly trained physicists, chemists, metallurgists and engineers, some of whom are experts of international reputation. These men are working not only to convert the resources of Nature to be of service to man, but to increase the usefulness of electricity in every line of endeavor. Their achievements benefit every individual wherever electricity is used.

Scientific research works hand in hand with the development of new devices, more efficient apparatus and processes of manufacture. It results in the discovery of better and more useful materials and ultimately in making happier and more livable the life of all mankind.

Booklet, Y-863, describing the company's plants, will be mailed upon request. Address Desk 37

SUNDAYS IN THE ORIENT.

At Vespers on Sunday, February 26, President Pendleton spoke in Houghton Memorial Chapel, describing the series of Sundays she spent in the Orient. As a representative of the Federation of Women's Foreign Mission's Board, Miss Pendleton went primarily to visit the three large women's colleges at Tokio, Peking and Nanking. The visit was confined to the more important cities.

In Japan, the assistance and hospitality of Wellesley graduates overcame the difficulties of the foreign language. Miss Pendleton's first Eastern Sunday started with a Japanese version of the hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers." In Pekin, an old priest showed them the Japanese temple, beautiful in its antique decorations. Another Sunday passed in Korea. Christianity is very real to the Koreans. In a town of only 2,000 or 2,500 inhabitants, the Korean churches are filled every Sunday with as many as 2,000 worshippers.

Several Sundays were spent in Peking. The first, with the faculty of the North China Union College; another at the British Legation Chapel—the refuge of many foreigners during the Boxer Rebellion of 1900. The following Sunday, students took part in the Christmas services at the chapel of the American Board. These students, gaily clad, from the tiniest tots up, came in, singing with more fervor than melody: "We Three Kings of Orient Are." The real Christmas services took place in the courtyard of Jing Ling College, about a living

MR. HERMANN HAGEDOM TO SPEAK AT CHAPEL.

On Sunday evening, March 7th, Mr. Hermann Hagedom, a well-known American author, will give an address in the Chapel. It is not as an author that Mr. Hagedom will speak however, but as one of Theodore Roosevelt’s closest friends, he will set forth the theories held by Colonel Roosevelt regarding Americanization—a subject in which the Colonel was intensely interested. It was one of his great ambitions that he should live to see the principles he felt were embodied in this idea, projected over the country. That he did not is one of those unavoidable tragedies of life, and it is the great hope of Mr. Hagedom and other of Roosevelt’s friends, that by carrying on the work which he began, they will be paying an everlasting tribute to the memory of the man who undeniably represents the finest type of American citizen.

CHINESE EDUCATORS VISIT AMERICAN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

Thirteen Chinese educators, headed by S. T. Yuan, former vice minister of education in the republic of China arrived recently in Des Moines to spend three days studying the schools in Iowa. The visitors are especially interested in the work of the rural schools, and they will study the methods employed in them with the assistance of the governor and the state school officials.

The commission will spend six months in America and Wellesley will be one of the colleges visited. Wellesley has a particular interest in the commission since the daughter of Mr. S. T. Yuan, its head, is a member of the junior class.

LATIN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES.

“The United States and Argentina may not be sister countries, but they are, at least, first cousins,” said Professor Calvo of Argentina, who spoke on “The Universities of Argentina,” at 7:30 P.M. on February twenty-sixth in Tower Court. Those who heard his informal talk gained a much larger understanding of the students and university life of Latin America than had been theirs, before. The most modern and best equipped of the universities is that of LaPlata. Sciences, especially, are being taught there with rapidly improving methods. Boys from five years on to men of twenty or thirty attend the college, or secondary school, to which girls also go. Professor Calvo mentioned several times that boys of fourteen or fifteen are deeply concerned with economic and social problems, which are really too big for their years. The students, themselves, with no outside aid, carry on beneficial social work among the lower classes and among the foreigners.

Many girls have entered the higher schools of the university, also. There are now about ten practising women lawyers in Argentina. Professor Calvo spoke of the eagerness when the educated people of his country have for more knowledge about the United States and its universities, and also of the surprising amount which they, now, possess. He prophesies that there soon will be many good opportunities for American teachers in the Argentine. Professor Calvo was brought to Wellesley by the South American study group.

MISS GAMBLE SPEAKS SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

In the Chapel, Sunday afternoon, there was held the second meeting of a series in connection with the great Nation-Wide Campaign of the Episcopal Church. Miss Gamble spoke, taking for her text, St. John 15:4; “Abide in me and I you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.” She said that to abide in Christ means three things—remembrance, obedience, and communion. To have Christ abide with us means the manifestation of the presence of His spirit and a resulting transformation in our lives.

SUNDAYS IN THE ORIENT.

Although President Pendleton had always admired the work of Wellesley graduates, her visit to the East filled her with great pride at what they have done and are doing there.

Plan for Dramatic Organization.

B. There shall be four informal events yearly.
1. These shall be of the Plscoleda type, and will include:
   a. The production of Original Plays.
   b. Improvised events—such as Hallow'e'en parties.
2. A chairman of Plscoledas shall have the general direction of these events.

V. Coaching:
A. Open Plays shall have a professional coach.
B. Operetta shall be coached by a student, chosen by the Executive Board. Professional advice shall be given to raise the standard of Operetta.
C. Junior Play may have a professional coach if the Junior class assumes the expense.

VI. Try-outs:
A. There shall be two All-College try-outs yearly—one in the Fall for plays of that semester, and one after Midyear for plays of the second semester.
B. Freshmen may try out in the Fall, but they are not permitted active participation in the Organization until after midyear of their Freshman year.

VII. Rehearsals:
The closed plays shall be allowed approximately the same amount of time as present Junior Plays. The open plays shall be allowed the same amount of time as Society open Plays or Senior Play.

VIII. Officers:
A. The officers shall be a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, and a Business Manager.

IX. Committees:
A. An Executive Committee or Board shall be composed of the officers of the association and the year chairman of the committees.
B. Other committees:
   1. There shall be for each year a standing chairman of Scenery, Costuming, Properties, Lighting, Make-up, Ushering, and Publicity.
   a. These are to be pointed offices, and candidates will be elected in the Spring by the Executive Board.
   b. The duties of these chairmen shall be:
      1. To be personally responsible for their special work for each event.
      2. To plan with the President their outline of work.
      3. To submit plans for each Play of that semester to the President at the beginning of that semester.
2. Drama Committee.
   a. The chairman of this committee shall be the Vice-President of the organization.

To Editor of Wellesley Week-end Papers:
Mr. Editor, boys and girls:
There are great troubles which I have heard and seen of late. Much student population grumblings. "I have got called back for senior play. What to do? Don't want to hanker for a song solo in Operetta, and too much trumpet in Shakespeare Play?"

"How to do it?"

"It ain't," she squeaks, "I know from room mate who in former fall term knew of a boy who is an orchid girl and who has been seen in residence of Wellesley horse; but both above have rehearsals on same moment as Fraternity Phil Sigma for making Christmas disguise."

"O gee," I whack, "how full of footsteps Wellesley are!

"Not such," she says, with expression resembling rah rah Wellesley. "Trouble in too many cooks? One cook is plenty. Such drama soup are best made in place similar like Community Kitchen."

"What good?" I gargle, with expression in nature of wet blanket.

"O stupid," she snarks, "All college years for plays like good theatre. My plan is necessary like League of Nations. It answer them who interrogate thus: Why should busy senior have heavy stage job Commencement week when young sophomores desire such? Why should only Fraternity sisters wear Greek garment when such good to all on hot June days? Why not have uprising of standards by letting all Wellesley maiden who can best do indulge in artistic life behind the footlights?"

"O swell," I wambles, "such change are signs of thought waves which are healthy."

Hoping you are the same,

Hashimura Togo

A member of Comp. 3 presents the following to Dr. Raymond.
Resolved: That quarantine should be lifted immediately.
I. By immediately, I shall mean by Saturday afternoon.
II. The history of the question, though well known, will bear repetition.
A. On Jan. 25, 1920, Wellesley students were ordered to remain in Wellesley.
B. Dr. Raymond repeatedly refused to grant permission to go to:
   1. Dartmouth
   2. Yale
   3. Williams
   4. Visits to the dentist in Boston.
III. The affirmative contends:
A. There is absolutely no danger of my getting "flu," in that:
   1. I always wear hat, heavy, and galoshes.
   2. I have had no signs of a cold since the week that I arrived in Boston.
B. It is imperative that I go to Boston to shop, in that:
   1. I must have a new pair of shoes, or that:
      a. My old ones are not good enough to dance.
   2. I have to buy a new hat, in that:
      a. I'll just die if I'm not one of the first girls to wear a spring hat.
   b. I must have a new one to wear Saturday.
C. For the sake of my mind, I should be able to leave Wellesley, in that:
   1. My mentality is low and cramped, in that:
      a. I haven't seen a good show for a month.
      b. I haven't cut a class this semester.
   2. My happiness depends upon my being able to
      a. I have a violent crush on her and have fifty pictures of her—some autographed.
      b. I wrote her I would see her on her first night and I can't disappoint her.
E. Most important of all, to make me stay here Saturday would cause me to lose my honor, in that:
   1. No girl with honor breaks dates.
      a. I am a girl of honor.
      b. Therefore I simply can't break my date with Bill on Saturday.

I'm often told I should not swear—
I don't.
Nor crown the proctor with a chair—
I don't.
Nor ever dream my time away,
Nor let my work's slide down from A,
Nor turn my mind from P. B. K—
I don't.
Some girls go skiing on the hill—
I don't.
Some girls go shopping in the village—
I don't.
The tea-room, too, I always shun,
I go to class with lessons done,
Perhaps you think I have no fun—
I don't.

ALL ABOUT A LAMENTABLY SIMPLE ONE OF OUR NUMBER.

As I was walking by the lake, at five o'clock at night,
I saw the lovely setting sun, which filled me with delight.
I thought that to the waiting world its beauty I'd divulge.
A fearful urge within me pressed, my brow began to bulge.
"Then ho for pen and ink," I cried, "a poem I would not write."
And I sat up and wrote a poem till one o'clock at night.
My genius burned like cotton waste, my choice of words was praiseworthy,
Each verse contained a simile, each stanza swam in coruscation.
I told just how the setting sun was sinking in the lake,
How beautiful it looked, how nice—I made no least mistake.
"Behold," I said, "the golden sun! Its daily course it now has run,
And now of course the day is done."

I gave into experienced hands this masterpiece in "Experimenter, Stern and Wise, here's gossamer
I've spun—
A little thing about the lake, about the setting sun."
The Board of Editors sat round, their minds were off in space
A look of mystic musing sat on each ethereal face.
They read my poem, gave three sniffs, then chortled out like fiends;
"This thing is crude—impossible! Why, we know what it means! You've said no word about your soul, its stirrings or its wings. You have no murky gropings-round, your thoughts are lucid things."

I trickled out; I aimed a gun,
I fired it at the setting sun,
I said, "With poetry I'm done." —92.

The Week of Prayer.

they "try to do religious things in somebody else's way." Mr. Gilkey showed us a God who is struggling against obstacles even as we struggle, speaking to us through our consciences and our unconquerable desire to make something out of our lives. "Each individual," said Mr. Gilkey, "has a different way to reach God; it is not the name of the road that matters, but the place the road goes to, and whether or not you get there."

The third meeting was on the subject of "Getting a Deeper Consciousness of God." Many college students are looking for God in the wrong place, they try to identify Him with the miraculous and so miss Him in the splendid normal things of life. We expect always to be excited by the nearness of God, forgetting that there are changing moods in every life and that only very seldom do we give any "chance, time, or opportunity for the best things to develop." We can deepen our sense of God by living at our best all of the time, by putting ourselves consciously in touch with Him through common worship and prayer, and by undertaking some definite piece of work that "would please the kind of God Christ talked about." And above all, as Mr. Gilkey pointed out, we must not forget that God is trying to find us just as hard as we are trying to find Him.

The last talk was "One's Own Work for God," a question which troubles us all at one time or another. "If God is as big as we think He is, He is big enough to have room in His plan and purpose for everyone." To find our own place in that plan Mr. Gilkey gave us three principles: first, "study your endowment"; second, "study your opportunity"; and thirdly, "study the need that is nearest to you." As Donald Hankey said, "Religion is betting your life that there is a God" and Mr. Gilkey's sympathetic and understanding talks showed us how to make that bet a winning one in our lives.

Plan for New Dramatic Organization.
A. When a play is given which lies within the special field of a society's interest, that society shall be asked to cooperate as a group in the production of the Play.
B. Societies are to be asked to give up their open meetings and retain only their semi-open meetings, giving their time and interest more largely to the All-College Dramatic Association.

St. John Ervine Coming to Wellesley.
Mr. Ervine, in his lecture at Wellesley, will probably give his impressions of Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, John Galsworthy, and other writers he has known.

Program Meetings.
At Shakespeare the meeting was very informal. Louise Chase read a paper on "Shylock," and Martha Richardson and Margaret McNaughton sang.
At Tau Zeta Epsilon the work was the Comparison of English and French art of the eighteenth century. First was a paper, the "Life of Christopher Gluck," read by Dorothy Dunlap. Following this, Mildred Masters read a paper on the "Life of Gainsborough." A picture of Gainsborough's "The Blue Boy" was posed by Eugenia Norris. The critic was Elizabeth Mancheater, and the sub-critic Dorothy Bright. Following this was a paper on the "Life of Fragonard" by Muriel Frita, and a picture "Chiffre d'Amour" posed by Helen Cope. The critic for this was Julia Kellogg, and the sub-critic Helen Ross. Virginia French read a paper on "Puritan Music," the first part on ballads, with music to illustrate it. Another picture, Gainsborough's "Mrs. Siddons" was posed by Elizabeth Kihler, the critic being Ruth Punshon and the sub-critic Josephine Rathbone. Virginia French then gave the second half of her paper, which was a consideration of the hymns of the period. In conclusion there was another picture by Fragonard, "Figuire de Fantaisie," posed by Margaret Gay, with Doris Adams as critic and Natalie Nickerson as sub-critic. Those in charge were Marjory Cook, chairman, Marion Reckford and Constance Van der Roest.

CHURCH CO-OPERATION.

In the Houghton Memorial Chapel, Sunday morning, February 29, Dr. Henry Tweedy of New Haven, preached on the necessity of co-operation in the church. "The church is not a theatre," he said earnestly, "in which the minister and the choir entertain a placid congregation." People can only receive from a service if they have brought something worth while to it. The minds of the congregation must not be receptive, but active. Dr. Tweedy suggested some means for achieving a truly co-operative frame of mind. He urged that every one should save the hour before church for earnest, contemplative thought. He protested against the meaningless way in which the average church-goer went through the service, and pleaded for more honesty therein. A hymn is at once a prayer, a song of praise, a vow of consecration. It should not be sung simply as a good tune. After the service, the religious sense should not be dropped at the church door, but carried through the week.

CHRISTMAS PARTY.

Saturday evening, December 11, Mrs. J. B. Goudreault, widow of President Thomas Goudreault, and daughter of the late Rev. Henry A. Larimer, of Middlebury, Vermont, received the students of Wellesley College at a Christmas party in her home on Meeting House Hill. The occasion was a gala one and only the largest and best rooms were used. A number of the students were present and a large number of the alumni were also present. A buffet supper was served at 6:30 and a dance was given at 8:30. The students wore their holiday garb and the alumni were dressed in the same style. The faculty were present in numbers and the students were very glad to see them.

AUGUST CHARTER PARTY.

Sunday, December 20, was the annual August Charter party at the home of Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Tweedy, Jr., of 655 Main Street. The occasion was a very success-ful one, many of the students being present. A buffet supper was served at 5:30 and a dance given at 7:00. The students were very glad to see the alumni and the faculty were present in numbers. The party was a great success and the students were very glad to see the alumni and the faculty were present in numbers.
