Wellesley held high carnival on Tower Court Hill, Saturday afternoon, February 26. The honors of the day were carried off by 1923 individually and as a class. Edna Willis took first place in both skiing and snow-shoeing. The winning team of individual cup with a score of twenty points.

While a busy band cultivated the atmosphere with popular melodies, a large and appreciative audience watched the events. A wandering company of Geppetto the Bungler, with comical black face and ing. I suppose these steps were built miniature airs were an hilarious feature of the afternoon. Stunts on skis by Marjorie Batholomew, '23, Edna Willis, '23, and Elizabeth Parsons, '23, held the breathless attention of the carnival-goers. The vendors of coffee and doughnuts did a rushing business and a huge bonfire added to the gala day effect.

The Carnival opened with a pitched battle between the sophomores and freshmen, 1924 endeavoring to hold their fort against the onslaught of '23. At the end of ten minutes hostilities ceased with victory for the sophomores. Following this came the ski-ing contest won by Edna Willis, '23, with Marjorie Batholomew, '23, second, Thelma Bowman, '21, third, and Polly Coburn, '22, and Hildegarde Jacob, '23, fourth.

Helen Sherman, '21, and Helen Forbush, '22, tied for third. Second place in the Carnival was won by '21 with twenty-four points.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the Carnival consisted of Helen Sherman, '21, Alice Richards, '22, Hildegarde Jacob, '23, Josephine Atkinson, '24, Elizabeth Parsons, '22, Chairman.

MR. FOSDICK MAKES APPEAL FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

In commemoration of George Washington, Mr. Raymond Fosdick gave an address on foreign relations, the evening of February 22. As the keynote of his talk, Mr. Fosdick quoted the words of General Smuts, "Humanity has struck its tents and is once more on the march." These words would have appealed to Washington; he was a rebel, unafraid in the presence of new ideas. He must have answered in much the same words his countrymen who declared that democracy could never succeed. The new form of government instituted under Washington was scorned just as the League of Nations is today.

In the first place, the situation confronting the world today is a dangerous one. Industrially speaking, the world is skating on thin ice. Furthermore, racial animosities worse than those before 1914 have sprung up since the armistice. It seems as if another war would mean the end of civilization, and, said Mr. Fosdick, "we are fast steering toward that.

FACULTY PLAY TO BE PRESENTED SATURDAY AT BARN

Two plays will be produced and acted by members of the Faculty at the Barn, Saturday afternoon and evening. The proceeds are for the Semi-Centennial Fund. It is rumored that some extra seats "very high up" will be on sale, also that a poster, designed especially for the event by Miss Newkirk of the Art Department will be auctioned off. The management has refused to divulge the names of the cast, in advance. The names of Miss Tucil, Miss Strelbert, Dr. Lockwood, Miss Gamble and Mr. English, are, however, mentioned about campus as probable members of it.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF MISS TUFTS FOR SALE

Among the several individual enterprises for earning money for the Fund, is one which should appeal especially to the student body. Miss Tufts has kindly permitted her photographs to be sold to the students and alumnae, and has further consented to

THINK BEFORE YOU VOTE

Once more the spectre of all-college election haunts the college. Students keep late hours as they indulge in their annual speculations. Freshmen wonder what the college will do with the senior class; juniors dream of the great changes they will effect once they grasp the reins of college government. And, as in all past years, the News repeats its plea for intelligent voting.

Noise

Girls who giggle, workmen who swear, tractors which clang, trucks which rumble—all these and many other noises combine to add variety to recitations in Founders Hall. Of course, girls must pass and workmen work near Founders; but surely it is not curtailing their liberty of movement to suggest that they refrain from giggling and swearing when directly under the class-room windows.

Against the tractors and trucks, not so much can be said, for their accompanying noises are in many cases unavoidable. Yet, certainly, no effort must be made to lessen the disturbance which they cause. Shouting and yelling seem to be necessary accompaniments to every bend or laundry delivery at the back door of Wider; and the far from silent dramatic conducted there do not help one to follow a detailed lecture on French literature or Bible. It is quite possible, some of my well-meaning friends have suggested, that a free press appeal in the News will not affect many truck drivers or college workmen, yet I hope to jog the memory of at least a few of the girls who make daily use of the steps between Founders and the Art Building. I suppose those steps were built as a convenience rather than as a nuisance, yet that is what they have become to the freshmen and students who have classes in the first floor room at that end of the building. If we can take an object lesson from the thoughtless truck drivers and find the searchers after learning in Room 102 to search in peace, one noise nuisance would be eliminated.

WHAT IS THE TROUBLE?

The obituary in the last "News" of the Midyear Examination in Psychology 101 calls for a bit of reflection in the cases of all students. It was disastrous to find with the speed of the bi-weekly tests administered during the semester, but certainly, though hard, it was not unfair. Wes the writer of last week's article justified in her objection to the change in form? We are not such children, let it be hoped, that this innovation in type of examination should cause such hysterical consternation!

It is not the whole trouble, rather, with the administration of the course itself? The sections are overflowing, and unless one sits somewhere in the first ten rows it is almost impossible to gain anything from the lecture. The conferences are too short for adequate personal attention from an instructor to the troubles of individuals, and the whole machinery is worked at such long range that one cannot really become acquainted in a semester's time with such a voluminous subject. Is not it a proof that our Psychology class is a haphazard affair when the instructor, wishing to emphasize a point in lecture, is forced to ask of her several hundred-old students: "Will all who are knitting and writing letters please now pay special attention?"

EXAMINE YOUR BOOKCASE

In a recent copy of the News, a statement appeared to the effect that books be, and bug, in the Brooks Room of the Library. Miss Jenkins, 1923, left a number of her books there during her absence overseas. Upon her return she found the following books missing.

Blaidd—Three Essays Shakespeare—Histories High Tide Oxford Book of Verse Euphues—Sayings and Discoveries Le Monde d'Arthur 4 volumes Peabody—The Piper Jewett—Illustian Sketches Chesterton—Browning If 10 of her books have been removed, what is to protect the valuable Sophie Jewett library? This is a student proposition and therefore, the Executive Board of the College Government issues the following appeal:

Look through your bookcase and, if by any chance, you find one of these "missing books" return it to the College Government (no questions will be asked). All books returned will save us money which will otherwise be spent in replacing the lost books. As this will amount, perhaps, to a considerable sum, it is possible there may be a small tax on Pay Day to cover it. Therefore, the more books returned, the better off we’ll all be, including Miss Jenkins, who cares for her own books, some of them fully and valuable annotated by W. H. MAUGUS, WOOD, BROWN, POMEROY, RUTH.

It is now possible that arrangements could be made so that girls might go to dances in town where there are chaperones and then go to the Picnic for the night? Naturally the chaperones at such dances cannot go home with every single girl and it seems too bad that so many girls, not having chaperones in Boston with where they may stay, have to refuse invitations to dances just because of this after-dance problem. If we have an honor system, can’t we be trusted to go straight to the Prize? After an evening entertainment? What is the use of an honor system if, whenever the issue is one of importance, the old policy of surveillance is followed? After all, there is little difference between Boston and Wider. If a voter is not satisfied with the existing conditions of college dramatics or government, let her support the opposition candidate. There will always be one. If she approves of the past policy followed by the Christian Association, she can find the nominee who best promises to uphold that policy in all its ramifications. A vote that is reasoned is one that is free. The student who votes from friendship, sentimentality, or small politics attacks the college mornie. It is far better not to vote at all than to vote without honest cause.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE NEWS
What Is Air Pressure?

The air is composed of molecules. They constantly bombard you from all sides. A thousand taps by a thousand knuckles will close a barn door. The taps as a whole constitute a push. So the constant bombardment of the air molecules constitutes a push. At sea-level the air molecules push against every square inch of you with a total pressure of nearly fifteen pounds.

Pressure, then, is merely a matter of bombarding molecules.

When you boil water you make its molecules fly off. The water molecules collide with the air molecules. It takes a higher temperature to boil water at sea-level than on Pike's Peak. Why? Because there are more bombarding molecules at sea-level—more pressure.

Take away all the air pressure and you have a perfect vacuum. A perfect vacuum has never been created. In the best vacuum obtainable there are still over two billion molecules of air per cubic centimeter, or about as many as there are people on the whole earth.

Heat a substance in a vacuum and you may discover properties not revealed under ordinary pressure. A new field for scientific exploration is opened.

Into this field the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have penetrated. Thus one of the chemists in the Research Laboratories studied the disintegration of heated metals in highly exhausted bulbs. What happened to the glowing filament of a lamp, for example? The glass blackened. But why? He discovered that the metal distilled in the vacuum depositing on the glass.

This was research in pure science—research in what may be called the chemistry and physics of high vacua. It was undertaken to answer a question. It ended in the discovery of a method of filling lamp bulbs with an inert gas under pressure so that the filament would not evaporate so readily. Thus the efficient gas-filled lamp of today grew out of a purely scientific inquiry.

So, unforeseen, practical benefits often result when research is broadly applied.

Many people are criticizing the League on the grounds that it has accomplished little. This organization has been doing splendid work in the line of health, especially in fighting typhus in Eastern Europe. Those forty-six nations are fighting our fight, and disease may not be kept within the boundary of any country—it is international. So is the drug question. Moreover, the League has been effective in returning to their homes, since the armistice 250,000 prisoners of war, coddling and feeding them on the way.

With these examples in mind, no one can say the League has done nothing worth while. Toward the accomplishment of its foremost purpose, the prevention of war, some measures have been taken. There is a legislation requiring the registration of all treaties as a condition of their validity. This means that there may be no more secret treaties. It seems a pity that the United States has registered no treaty in the five great volumes already compiled. Also at the very time that a commission on armaments is in session at Geneva, the United States are spending and planning to spend millions of dollars in order that the navy in 1925 may be the largest and most powerful in the world.

Finally, Mr. Fosdick said that to those who insist that the League of Nations is but a vision, one must reply that so was democracy in Washington's time, and "where there is no vision, the people perish."

PAPYRUS OF 500 B. C. TO BE SHOWN

Unusual Exhibition at Library

Through the labour and interest of Miss Ethel D. Roberts, Wellesley, is to have an unusual literary treat. Beginning Saturday March fifth, an exhibition of the history of books will be open to all the members of the college. It is the aim of Miss Roberts to exhibit some of the priceless possessions of the library. Commencing with an Egyptian papyrus of 500 B.C. in which the colored vignettes and hieroglyphics have been wonderfully preserved, the exhibition takes the observer through the Assyrian period of seals and papyrus leaves to finely executed manuscripts of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries from the Plimpton collection. Perhaps the most interesting of these is the example of a palimpsest, a book in which the earlier manuscripts have been erased and the later ones written over them. Among the collection there are also a number of initial letters beautifully illumined on vellum.

The link between manuscripts and books is the so-called "block book." From the card attached to one of these one learns that "block books were so called because they were printed from engraved wood blocks, the text as well as the picture being cut on the block. Wood cuts were the earliest form of printing and the block books are the earliest books known." Of the entire exhibition, the block books only are facsimiles, the originals being preserved in the British Museum. There is also a very fine collection of wood and copper engravings from the fifteenth to the eighteenth century, a display showing the development of the title page and one showing examples of printing and book illustrations from the sixteenth to the eighteenth century in both England and on the Continent. The exhibition concludes with a very exquisite book of more recent make, printed by William Morris at Kelmscott Press.

It is needless to state that this exhibition provides an unusual opportunity to Wellesley students, not only to view some of the gems of the Treasure Room, but also to become acquainted with the history of books.

THIRTY SIX JUNIORS SIGN TO BE VILL SENIORS

Juniors who have signed up to be village seniors next year will have the opportunity of running for all college offices in the election beginning March 11. The amendment of the village senior list will not be made until after spring vacation for this reason.

Thirty six members of 1922 have signed up to go the village—a number approximately the same as last year. In spite of the fact that elections may change the list, the College Government officers have already begun to choose next year's village seniors.

CONCERT FOR THE WELLESLEY ENDOWMENT FUND

Mabel Lyon Sturgis, soprano, and William F. Dodge, violinist, will give a concert in the hall of the Natick High School, on Saturday evening, March 5, at 8 o'clock.

Miss Sturgis is a member of the class of 1902 and is giving this concert in aid of the Wellesley Drive. She has planned an attractive and varied program which will include Irish, English, Scottish, and plantation folk songs. Miss Sturgis has a clear, melodic voice, perfect enunciation, and a charming manner.

Mr. Dodge, who assists her, is a violinist of great natural ability to which has been added splendid technique.

The proceeds of the concert are to go to the Wellesley Endowment Fund. Tickets at $.75 and $1.00, may be secured from Miss Helen Forbes, 392 Pomeroy Hall or at The Perry Pharmacy in Natick.

HILL ALCOVE RECEIVES A VALENTINE

On February 14, twenty-five dollars was received from Mrs. Edith James Wheeler for the Junior Hill Alcove, bringing the total receipts for the Alcove up to forty-eight dollars and thirty-seven cents. As has already been stated in the News, several gifts have been made to the Alcove of most interesting music and books, and Mr. MacDougall will be very glad to accept anything suitable for preservation in the Alcove, or money with which he can buy much needed material.

Four Societies Accept

Various amendments were suggested. The one meeting most general approval, was put in the form of a motion for the InterSociety Council—that discussion of new members be permitted in the society before voting takes place. It was seen in the fall that the voting was very intelligent and many votes lost entirely as the societies voted for those who had no interest in them.

When Agora and Shakespeare have voted, the results will go before the InterSociety Council to be straightened out in some way so that each society will have as nearly as possible what it wants.

Just a year ago the societies voted to accept a new plan for organization and election of members. For several months a group of alumnae and undergraduate society members had been meeting to discuss possible changes that would make the societies more valuable and acceptable to the college and their members. A new form of election was adopted, the members were reduced from fifty to thirty-five, and restricted sophomore membership after mid-years. The plan was accepted for one year without the last clause of sophomore membership.

Renowned Scientist Demonstrates
Methods of Analyzing and Photographic Sound Waves

"Tchaikovsky's Marche Slave is merely a series of variations in the air density," said Professor Dayton C. Miller of the Case School of Applied Science last Thursday night. Those who were fortunate enough to reach the G. L. R. before all standing room was occupied heard this and other surprising statements in regard to Professor Miller's researches in the analysis and photography of sound waves. After a technical but clear explanation of the fundamentals of sound transmission, Mr. Miller went on to state that sound waves could be analyzed according to their rate of speed, intensity, or quality. His researches, however, are based on quality only. "For," said Professor Miller, "quality is the only important difference between the sound of a flute and that of a violin, or between one human voice and another." Quality is determined by the kind of sound waves produced by the sounding body, whether they are smooth and even, or whether they have ups and downs, or "humps," on them.

In a series of slides, the lecturer presented several instruments for the actual photography of sound waves, the most sensitive of which, invented by Professor Miller, is based on a very simple principle. The waves of sound pass into a horn, transferring their vibrations to a delicate glass diaphragm, which, in turn, sets in motion a mirror. A pin-hole of light, focused to strike this mirror, is reflected upon a film which records the passage of light upon it, thus graphing the original sound.

The operation of this machine was actually demonstrated to the audience. Caruso's voice, heard on a Victrola, was simultaneously depicted in a series of vibrating waves of light on the wall, while similar phonodisk graphs of the human voice, the violin, and the flute were exhibited to the spellbound audience. The amazement of those present was increased as they beheld their own applause automatically flashed upon the screen.

"The appreciation of music," said Professor Miller, "gives the same thrill as riding the bumps, except that it is a more refined and subtle reaction to vibration." "Jazz," he added, with a humorous twinkle, "is a degeneration of music toward chuting the chute.

In closing, the lecturer showed a slide of Mary Miles Minter's profile, which, as it resembled the photograph of a sound wave, was possible for a special calculating machine to reproduce. From the curve a mathematical equation of the movie star's profile was formulated, by means of which the curve, treated as a sound wave was translated into sound and depicted in musical notes on the screen. And who can doubt that it was a harmony?

On Saturday, February 19th, the New York Wellesley Club, had a most enthusiastic meeting in the attractive Fifth Avenue home of Janet Davidson Travell, '02, where the guests caught a glimpse of light gray walls, tulips, bayberries, handsomely crowned women and most delicious food. It was whispered that Mrs. Travell had returned the Club money sent her for tea and Nabiscos, thereafter furnishing her own refreshments of dainty sandwiches, tea, fruit punch, ice cream, delectable cakes and candies. Everybody was in royal mood and there were more real chats between real friends than at any Wellesley Club meeting in ages. Olive Smith, '97, was back from her labors abroad.

Caroline Newman, '03, held an animated conversation with Grace Humphrey, '96, about rearimg their adopted babies, everybody made much of Esther Randall Barton's "Betsey" who was present, ravishing in khite trouserettes. Last, but not least, there were enthusiastic speeches from District Chairmen and others.

Elise Goddard, '06, announced the Fund total to date as $127,479.36, and said that St. Louis, Cleveland, and New York could each report an individual gift of $25,000; that seven Alumnae had pledged $115,000, and that for speedy work the pains went to the Windy City, where at a luncheon, $80,000 was pledged in 15 minutes. Miss Goddard intimated that over $5,000 a minute was moving some and left it gracefully in the air for us to go and do likewise. She also spoke of the dinner at the Curtis Hotel, Minneapolis, tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Greene and interested friends of Wellesley. Mr. Greene is making a world-wide speaking tour in behalf of the Fund and not only 1916, but the College as well is proud of his achievement. Miss Goddard further remarked that all the 28 districts had reported and she knew we were going to be lucky because the drive had been started in such a wonderful birthday month—Mrs. Durand's the 20th, Mrs. Alice Freeman Palmer's the 21st, and then of course everybody knows about Washington and Lincoln, to say nothing of little St. Valentine himself.

Esther Randall Barton, '10, in gray and blue, introduced various chairmen from Metropolitan districts and incidentally mentioned that the East and West side teams are meeting daily for luncheon at the City Club in order to report progress. There are ten captains per side, each of whom works to announce the largest amount in order to claim the day's banner. The New York teams have begun to get so cocky that Esther has sent the following telegram to Grace Crocker, Boston:

"Said district eight to district four with eight hundred thousand and something more, we challenge you our mark to meet, 100% is no mean feat. We're out to win. Get busy quick. We challenge you to turn the trick."

Before making actual introductions, each one of which was greeted with a neat song about the speaker, Esther said the members of the New York Wellesley Club were nomads, and as they were never at home or had always moved, it was not easy to get hold of them.

Rita Halte, '97, reported that her Long Island district could announce an average to date of $235 per person and she hoped to increase the amount. Agnes Dunlap, '96, reported $1600 from the Westchester Division with the majority still contemplating their slips.

Stella Burnet, '04, speaking for Brooklyn, "New York's Dormitory," reported $6,158 with 71 names unheard from.

Elise Johnson, '06, reported $39,000 from Manhattan, which was later augmented by Frances Eddy's report. Mrs. Eddy announced $5 from a non-Wellesley woman who had heard a canvasser talking to a Wellesley girl, and that among the pledges was one who had promised $1000 more "if business picked up and she said she was sure it would." "But," said Mrs. Eddy, "I didn't think a bit more of this than of the girl who promised me $2 a year, sure!"

Perhaps the most interesting report was made by Barbara Tompkins, '18, "The Hair Net Queen," who claimed that New Jersey was such a large district it required 25 local chairmen, and then proceeded to give figures such an amazing rate no one could note them. (The most exciting part of her speech was in regard to the old bar room in Madison which the Wellesley women had converted into a tea shop where food, pottery, trays and all sorts of interesting things are sold. The equipment expenses of the tea shop were $1000, $500 of which was loaned by 7 persons. The long and short of this matter is that the tea shop is doing a $9000 a year business, and expects to have its debts paid by March. After that everything will be clear gain for Wellesley until the campaign closes, when a waiting party has contracted to buy the business for $3,000. This little tale of acumen made everyone join heartily in the song, "What's the matter with Madison? She's all right!"

Jessie Belle Herbert is inviting a "Slower of old shoes, be-a-brace, etc., for her Runaman sale and promises to send for discards on February 28th. Joe says she has to make a thousand or two and nobody doubts it will be done.

In recognition of her splendid news work, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus of Boston, has been made National Vice-Chairman of Publicity.

Every good Wellesleyite should own a copy of the Life of Alice Freeman Palmer. The book is being sold for the Fund. Buy one today!

What about better stickers and trunk labels? Have you bought yours? Remember every penny you spend this way helps the Fund and they are a convenience, too.

Mrs. Nelson Shreve, a friend of Gertrude Knight Shonk's, and an exceptional amateur photographer, kept her chauffeur waiting a goodly time the other day while she took pictures of headquarters and of Elise Goddard. It is hoped every girl passing through New York will stop for a moment. In this campaign as in every other, it is the "Get-togetherliness" that counts.

THE GLEE CLUB GIVES ITS ANNUAL CONCERT INDEPENDENTLY

Barn Takes on a Festive Air February 21

The Wellesley Glee Club was independent in its annual concert, given Monday evening, February 21. Although in some ways it lost by this very independence, the concert was successful, judging from the large audience and from the applause which greeted the varied numbers. Those who were in charge are to be congratulated on the results obtained in the necessarily small amount of time allowed for practice and rehearsals.

The Wellesley Medley, a combination of numerous Wellesley favorites, was especially popular. Mary Warder's merit attention to her two numbers, the Shadow March, about "as the wicked shadows coming tramp, tramp," and "If No One Ever Marries Me," which talked about her plans in such a case.

Dame Jane, the Music Mistress, was composed by Mr. MacDougall, and dedicated by him to Charlotte Homer and the Glee Club. For those two reasons they were especially anxious to sing it well, which they did, with Mr. MacDougall sitting in the front row to encourage their best efforts. The applause that greeted this talk about Dame Jane and Shocky the baker and their mysterious passion finally brought "Professor Mac," to his feet. After this, the concert came to its traditional close with the singing of Alma Mater.

Immediately following the concert there was dancing in the four quadrangle houses.

BARN PLAY FOR COLLEGIATE ALUMNAE

"Six Who Pass While Lentils Boll" is the play to be presented by the Barnswallows at the Barn at the meeting of the Collegiate Alumnae on March 2. Radcliffe and Boston University will contribute music and living pictures to the program, which is to be given by a Jacob Sleeper Hall. The play is by Stuart Walker's Portmanteau Plays, a charming child's pantomime, set "Anytime, Anywhere." Mrs. Hunt of the Reading and Speaking Department is coach and director.
