BARNSWALLOWS GIVE FIRST PLISCOSA OF THE SEASON

Two Short Plays Are Presented

At the first informal event of the Barnswallows Association, on Saturday, October 29, two short plays, Dun- sany’s Golden Doors and Barrie’s Ros- siliad, were given. Since only one week of rehearsal is allowed for informal Barn events, this plan of giving two plays has been found more satisfactory than trying to present a single longer one.

The Golden Doors is a modern tale of 1919, when the young king was deposed and fled to America. The plot is based on this superstition. One of two children straying by the king’s gate stopped to write thereon a poem composed by his companion. The king, seeing this strange writing, called for the wise men, who interpreted this “mysterious message from the stars” to mean that he must humble himself to appease the stars. To do this, the king removed his crown and left it for a sacrifice before the gate. The two children carried it off for a loop, and the king, finding it gone, was satisfied that the stars were appeased.

Considering the short space of time used for rehearsal and the difficulty in presenting Dunstany’s plays, this one was well done. The outstanding part was that of the king, played by Carol Perrin. ’25. It did not, however, have the popular appeal of the sequel, Rosiliad.

This is a charming play, dealing with an amusing situation, and was very well acted. Anita Mary Wheeler, ’22, as the mother of Beatrice Page, (Continued on Page 7, Col. 2)

WELLESLEY AND TECH TO GIVE JOINT CONCERT

Applications for Tickets Should Be Made Now

The Wellesley Glee Club and the Tech Orchestra are planning to give a joint concert at the Barn on Wednesday evening, November 22, the night before Thanksgiving. Dancing in Tower Court and Clafin will follow the concert. Applications for tickets should be made before November 14 to Elizabeth Elhart, Pompey.

PARKING SPACE RESERVED

The space, which is being leveled north-east of Founders Hall, is to be used for parking automobiles. Because of the location of the object, and because the curve around the Administration Building is so sharp, the need was felt for this improvement. The allotted ground will accommodate thirty cars.

MANY ACTIVITIES PLANNED FOR OUTING CLUB

Membership to be Honorary

Through the efforts of Mildred Du- rant, President of the Athletic Asso- ciation and Elizabeth Parsons, the ap- pointed chairman of the Outing Club, all plans of organization and for yearly activities have been completed. Credit is due Maude Ludington, last year’s Athletic Association president, for originating the idea of an Outing Club. It is hoped that this club with its extensive program of activities, will stimulate greater interest and enthusiasm in Wellesley’s heretofore unorganized sports. Swimming, canoeing, and hiking and the winter sports, skating, snowshoeing and skating will hereafter be under supervision, for each will have its Head elected by the Club.

The Club will actively introduce itself at an all-college, cross country, hare and hound chase, which will take place early in December. If ar- rangements can be made, a weekly hike, for those of proven ability, will be made to Monadnock, this fall.

The Winter Carnival will be carried on in two classes, one for the already skilled and another for the beginners. In this way all may have an opportu- nity to participate, and “stars” will not outshine the novices. The after- noon events will include, as usual, ski- ing, snowshoeing and tobogganing, while in the evening ice-races, fancy skating and a hockey game will be features. Coaching for the ice-hockey teams will be given regularly by an instructor and class teams chosen.

In the spring of this year and in the fall of following years, as well as spring, a swimming instructor will give lessons for beginners, and teach cross and life-saving. Opportunity for passing the Red Cross life-saving tests will be offered. There will be a day, this spring, set aside for exhibition of aquatic sports, swimming, pedaling and canoe riding.

Give us your co-operation and enthu- siasm and let’s make Dartmouth’s Outing Club our model and only rival. We want your college athletic record, what you have done, your required sport, or what part you have chosen or tried to take in winter carnival sports. Have you been swimming in Waban? Do you paddle, or do you tramp to Pogee and be? Let us know. We want enthusi-asm primarily and athletic skill along with it. Membership is honor- ary and will be limited according to the applicants’ interest and ability. The activities of the club however, will be carried on for the entire college.

Insignia of some kind will be worn by all members and medals given for exceptional skill. At the close of the season a cup is to be

INTERCOLLEGATE DISARM- AMENT CONFERENCE HELD AT VASSAR

Secretary Hughes Telegraphs Encouragement

At the Intercollegiate Disarmament Conference held at Vassar on October 22, the representatives of twenty-two women’s colleges of the east met to- gether and formed a series of resolu- tions embodying the opinions of these colleges on the important question of international disarmament. The pur- pose of Vassar in calling the confer- ence, and the critical analyses of the problems at hand during the sessions, form a gratifying comment upon the awakening interest of college students in affairs other than those centering in campus or academic life.

The resolutions were formed after some group discussion, centering upon the questions of limitations, methods of control, and the financial and technical aspects of the situation. Professor Warner of Columbia, and Professor Rogers, on the Massachusetts Institute of Tech- nology, spoke on the financial and po- litical problems involved in the sev- eral forms of disarmament, in order to get a more complete conception of these more technical phases of the question. When the res- olutions had been drawn up, a mass meeting of Vassar College was held to discuss the propositions by means of an open forum.

Hamilton Holt, of New York City, and Dr. Gibbons, of Princeton, were speakers at this meeting. Mr. Holt believes that the nations cannot dis- arm, as long as they produce war. And he feels that the only means of obtaining just- ice is through an association of na- tions. Dr. Gibbons, on the contrary, asserted that “the League of Nations is the greatest instrument of oppres- sion that the world has ever seen, and that any move toward joining it or forming an association similar to it would be fatal to the liberty of any country involved.”

During the meeting a telegram was read from Charles E. Hughes, Secre- tary of State, in which he stated his sympathy with the purpose of the conference and his belief that it would aid in the “formation of a sound opin- ion based on all pertinent facts.”

The final resolutions which were drawn up and sent to the Secretary of State at Washington are as follows:

Resolved:

1. That there be immediate limitation of armaments with the end in view of complete disarmament.

2. That for the purpose of limitation of armaments our own country should set the example, not only of complete justice, but also of liberal- ity in the formation of international

1922 AGAIN WINS FIELD DAY

Seniors Uphold Athletic Reputa- tion Made Last Year

Once more the class of 1922 has marched off with the honors of out- side sports at Wellesley. That it was right and proper for the Senior class to emerge victorious seemed the general sentiment at Field Day on the afternoon of Saturday, October 29th; whether this generous attitude was the effect of the weather, which was ideal- ly brisk and clear, of the good fun prevalent everywhere, or of a tradi- tional notion in regard to the seniors’ place in college life, is not clear. Cer- tain it is that the announcement made at the close of the day by Mildred Du- rant, President of the Athletic Asso- ciation, that the first three places had been won by ’22, ’23, and ’25 respec- tively, received non-partisan and hearty applause from both visitors and students.

The first official event of Field Day was the appearance, at the end of the basketball field, of the college pro- cession, singing the marching song of 1922. The four classes, dressed en- tirely in white, were distinguished by four unique styles of cardboard head- dresses in four brilliant class buns, a feature which added the suitable holi- day touch to the occasion. Follow- ing the entrance and general scatter- ing of the college, the usual sports events, which were started almost si- multaneously, assumed, to the visitors seated in a newly erected grand-stand near Mary Hemmenway Gymnasium, somewhat the nature of a seven ring circus. The final half hour of the games, played off in a little over an hour, resulted as follows:

Archery was won by ’22, who de-

AMERICAN STUDENTS TO RAISE FRIENDSHIP FUND

Relief of European Students Undertaken by Eastern Colleges

The schools and colleges of the United States are called upon again this winter to bring relief to more than 50,000 European students struggling for an education against post-war conditions. At a joint meeting of representatives of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. from all the eastern colleges held in New York last week, these organizations pledged their active support in a nation-wide campaign to raise $500,000 for this relief work.

Last year the students of the schools and colleges of the United States contributed $580,000 for European relief through the American Relief Administration campaign. At the request of Herbert Hoover, relief work among the students was carried on by the World's Student Christian Federation, and it is to continue this work that the students of the United States have undertaken this Student Friendship Fund Campaign for $500,000. Those who are now returning from Europe tell pitiful stories of the conditions under which these European students are trying to work. Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip in a dispatch from Geneva to the New York conference said that this relief work was necessary, not so much to overcome the physical suffering these students are enduring, but to safeguard the life and efficiency of this generation of future leaders of Europe.

On the advisory committee, backing this campaign, are Herbert Hoover, Woodrow Wilson, Jane Addams, Mrs. Robert E. Speer, Mr. Carey Thomas, and James Rowland Angell. Contributions to this fund may be given to Margaret Hoaga, ’23, who attended the conference, or left in the office of the Christian Association.

Due to a small and struggling collegiate body it is a wonderful inspiration to realize that it is backed by one of the oldest women's colleges in the United States—to know that the latch-string is out in America. The goal of every Yen Ching student is Wellesley. One girl, asked why she preferred Wellesley to other colleges, replied simply, "I saw Miss Pendleton." Teaching in Yen Ching today are three representatives of the Herbert, Miss Kendall, formerly head of the History Department, and Miss Grace Boynton and Miss Margarette Atterbury, recent graduates.

After the addresses the assembly followed the choir, which sang an appropriate hymn, to the entrance of Founders where the tablets were unveiled by the President of College Government and the President of the Senior Class, assisted by Mary Machimann and Carol Perrin, two members of 1925 who are daughters of alumnae. These six tablets are only the first of a larger series which will be completed later.

The College Government Association announces that Miss Eleanor Parsons, Vassar 1920, will hold the position of secretarial assistant, which has just been created, during the coming year. Failure of Cotton Crop Is Causing Distress

Aunt Dinah Pace of Covington, Ga., who is trying to keep alive a home for colored orphan boys, is in great need. The cotton crop upon which she depended for part of her resources has failed. The boys usually pick cotton during September and October, earning a sum which helps in providing for the group.

The college aids Aunt Dinah with cereals and money twice a year. Just now two boys are in need of operations, but there is neither a public dispensary nor the money to pay for the operations. The sum of seventy-five dollars is needed at once for this purpose. Checks may be sent to Miss F. L. Ellery, College Library.

THE VASSAR CONFERENCE

It is a very simple matter to generalize and say that college students should take greater part in world affairs, but specific opportunities for showing this sort of interest do not often arise. For this reason, the occasion offered by the recent gathering at Vassar College of representatives from women's colleges all over the country for the purpose of discussing the disarmament question was a welcome one.

This action which resulted in the passing of resolutions in favor of disarmament draws the attention of the outside world to the fact that college students are alert to things other than impracticalisms. The telegram sent to the conference by Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes is a proof of this sort of recognition.

If a girl graduates from college after four years as an intellectual recluse, who has shown no interest in the affairs outside of her college community, the value of her alma mater, and of a college education in general, will be belittled in the eyes of the world. If college is more than a school for impracticalists, it should turn out good citizens.

Therefore the Vassar Conference was doubly valuable; first, because it offered a specific opportunity for college students to form and to voice definite opinions on a world question; and second, as a testimony of the world that students can take an intelligent part in current affairs.

THE GOLD STAR SYSTEM

Premiums have, of late, become an amazingly important factor in college life. Practically every organization now offers some variety of green trading stamp, to be passed in one's Wellesley Memorabilia and exchanged, when a sufficient number have been collected, for a reputation for class spirit. Clubs and associations of all kinds have come to vie with each other in creating a systematic network of offices and rewards which seem to exist for no other purpose than that of drawing more and more people into the service of college organizations as ends in themselves.

We are used to having our thinking organized into neat semester doses and rewarded with a mark which measures our ability in inelastic mathematical percentages. We receive report cards and gold stars in grade school, why not in college, pray tell? But this passion for a hierarchy of regulations leading to premiums of value only in securing other and greater ones is spreading into every field of college life with a speed which is truly alarming. Must every form of recreation, also, be snatched from the carefree realm of personal enjoyment and classified into a means of gaining yet more premiums to hang upon the class fetich? According to the latest reports, such is indeed the case. No longer are walking tours, skating, croquet, tennis, matters which represent the individual choice of the student in those hours when she is at last free from the routine of academic and college duties. They, too, have been drawn into the centrifugal system which organizes and commercializes all things for the sake of competition.

On winter afternoons, cold and weary undergraduates will be seen staggering into their rooms just in time for dinner, having spent, some afternoon coasting down Tower Court Hill, or walking to Natick and back, with the launderable ambition of adding to the class "points." Gone is the spontaneity of a picnic, and the thrill of the fun in itself.

Other organizations are following the lead of athletics down the merry road of premiums, a course which has the sanction of all the really up-to-date elementary schools. Music lovers are urged to forget their haunting belief in individual effort, and to hand in a program in an organization ruled with the firm hand of an official from their number, some truly "capable girl," Turning in other directions, we find language clubs, science clubs, mathe- matics clubs, bird clubs, all classification to the centrifugal system which offers ample opportunities to the seeker after the degree of a celebrity. Even the NEWS Board has succumbed to this spirit and has rewarded its members with an appropriate medal.

Two courses offer themselves as solutions to the situation. The first one is to carry the system to its logical conclusion and offer premiums in those neglected activities which, through lack of organization, are in danger of being wholly overlooked by the busy undergraduate, instead of filling up that memory book. The NEWS proposes that gold stars might be offered to the girls who have been, or ever expect to be, employed in the following ways:

1. Selling tickets at the El table.
2. Arising in time to index a notice before 7:45 A.M.
3. Wearing a cap and gown on Thursday (if a senior).
4. Exhibiting a utility pennant and pillow in room.
5. Learning all the words of The College Beautiful.
6. Standing in line at 9:45 to get reserve books for friends who are entertaining men.

One silver paper star might be given for each hour spent in any of these ways, and five silver stars exchanged for a gold one. The NEWS would be willing to offer a subcommittee which gains no chevron capable of being worn upon the sleeves of one's sweater. With those who do not care to accept the first alternative, the NEWS wishes to leave for consideration the following problems, which will be discussed in a later issue: To what extent and for what purposes is competition fostered in college life? What is class spirit? Has each school a definite function answering the need of a particular group of girls? To what extent have our actions, inside and outside of the classrooms, become dependent upon organization and control?

To the Wellesley College News:

The NEWS has lately started on a campaign against Wellesley's alleged "ignorance and indiffence to all matters connected with college government." A member of the group which finds much occasion for criticism of the present system, but is taking no measures to have its desires voiced in the House of Represen-tatives, is said to explain why this seeming indifference exists. The fact is that an appeal to the House of Representatives would be perfectly futile. Under the Faculty-Student Agreement that question which arouses the most interest in the

Why Is Iron Magnetic?

A horse-shoe magnet attracts a steel needle. But why? We don't know exactly. We do know that electricity and magnetism are related.

In dynamos and motors we apply electro-magnetic effects. All our power-stations, lighting systems, electric traction and motor drives, even the ignition systems of our automobiles, depend upon these magnetic effects which we use and do not understand.

Perhaps if we understood them we could utilize them much more efficiently. Perhaps we could discover combinations of metals more magnetic than iron.

The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company investigate magnetism by trying to find out more about electrons and their arrangement in atoms.

X-rays have shown that each iron atom consists of electrons grouped around a central nucleus—like planets around an infinitesimal sun. X-rays enable us to some extent to see into the atom and may at last reveal to us what makes for magnetism.

This is research in pure science, and nothing else. Only thus can real progress be made.

Studies of this kind are constantly resulting in minor improvements. But some day a discovery may be made which will enable a metallurgist to work out the formula for a magnetic alloy which has not yet been cast, but which will surely have the properties required. Such a result would be an achievement with tremendous possibilities. It would improve all electric generators, motors, and magnetic devices.

In the meantime the continual improvement in electrical machinery proceeds, in lesser steps. These summed up, constitute the phenomenal progress experienced in the electrical art during the past twenty-five years.

see one of these games, with a view to observing the tactics of their opponents.

A communication from the Vassar Miscellany to the Wellesley College News states that the superiority of the British players over Vassar was shown primarily in their speed. The dispatch reads: "It was easy to see from the first which way the game would go. The English team played a much speedier and more scientific game, making short, sure passes, rather than the long aimless ones of the varsity. While "dribbling" the ball down the field they would skilfully dodge the opposing defense and then give it to some member of their team in the centre who would shoot for the goal. Their passes in the striking circle were not so far ahead as those of the 'varsity, so were not as easily intercepted. At all times they seemed to have perfect control of the ball and never passed it to a member of their team who was guarded."

student body, namely chaperonage, is expressly removed from the province of student legislation.

The Wellesley College Government Association is permitted to legislate in these matters, but all such legislation is subject to the approval of the Academic Council. Apparently the initiative in such legislation may also be taken by the authorities, as witness the recent arbitrary ruling concerning automobiles. We can find no other provision under which such an action would be considered valid. How far the authorities may go under this provision is shown by the fact that a mandate has been issued to one of the bobbed-hair members of the community forbidding her to have her hair cut at the barber's in the village!

But let us consider how far student legislative power may go in matters within our own province. To be sure, it is hard to find such matters, since bridge playing, Sunday golf, and most of the other subjects in which we are most vitally interested, would probably be included in that phrase, "matters pertaining to the public health and safety of the students." But suppose such a ruling permitting Sunday golf should go through the House of Representatives. It would then go to the Senate, consisting of five student members and six faculty members. Now here, if one of the faculty members should state her opinions as opposed to Sunday golf, we may presume that the psychological effect on the freshman member, at least, would be such that she would hardly dare vote contrary to expressed faculty opinion. But the authorities do not rely on their power to inspire awe to secure their dominance. In Article V, Section 3, 7 of the Constitution, we find the statement, "Any three of the faculty members of the Senate may exercise conjointly a suspensory veto over the Senate's action by referring it to the Academic Council for decision." That statement dispels any illusion we may have had concerning "student government."

Since it is clear that student government does not exist at Wellesley, we have a clue to the repeated disregard of the Honor System. The whole Honor System is based on the idea that since the student body may change existing regulations at any time, it is bound to uphold them so long as they stand. But we have just seen that, practically, the student body has no power to change existing regulations in regard to many vital matters. There is, then, no reason for considering ourselves bound to uphold them under the Honor System.

In denying that Wellesley College has student government, we do not believe we are stating a new idea. The name given to our organization, the Wellesley College Government Association, contains no implication of a system of student government. It is merely, what it calls itself, an association for the government of the college, but not necessarily for the government of the college by the students. But owing to the confusion that has arisen, concerning the existing system, some reminder of the true condition seems necessary.

COLLEGE TO HEAR LECTURE ON BRITISH POLITICAL LEADERS

Miss Helen Fraser will lecture at Wellesley on the evening of November 11 in Billings Hall, on "Some Personalities in British Politics." The faculty and alumnae who heard Miss Fraser at the Alumnae Luncheon in June, 1918, in the darkest hours of the war, when she managed to bring courage in ringing, unforgettable tones, those who have the privilege of hearing her speak on the war conditions when she visited Wellesley in 1917-1918, will welcome her return as the homecoming of a friend.

Miss Fraser has for these three years in England been a member of important committees, and is now one of the three women candidates for Parliament under the Coalition Government at the next general election, and therefore knows thoroughly the prominent members of whom she speaks.

The Evening was particularly fitting that Miss Fraser should speak in the college lecture course on November 11, a day so significant in the war, and a day that may have an added significance as the beginning of disarmament.

A large audience should avail itself of this opportunity to hear a brilliant speaker on striking personalities of international interest, and to give an enthusiastic welcome to a friend of the college.

THE ORCHESTRA HAS NEW MEMBERS

"The Wellesley Symphony Orchestra, now numbering thirty-five members, is commencement what portends to be one of the most successful years it has ever known. With the addition of five new violins, three new cellos, one new cornet, one new flute, and one new piano, the orchestra possesses talent not only for the coming year, but much for four years more. Three faculty members play in the orchestra, Miss Tufts on the piano, Miss Rachel Blodgett of the Mathematics Department on the cornet, and Mr. MacDougall on the double bass.

Although this orchestra gives no concert until April, it may from time to time throughout the year, give music for college plays. Weekly rehearsals, however, are now held under the direction of Mr. Foster of Providence.

The officers of the orchestra are:

Florence Jeun, '22, president; Lucy Johnson, '23, secretary-treasurer; and Nancy Davidson, '24, student director.

the popular young actresses, played convincingly the part of a middle aged woman who didn't resent her "forty years and a bit over, and who, miraculously and at a moment's notice, took off her "real comfy, sloppy, middle-aged clothes," and became a radiant young girl, Beatrice Page herself, whose mother she had claimed to be for one short month, in order to "meet herself." Her funny, talkative landlady was quaintly portrayed by Priscilla Cowper, '25, Billy Baxter, '25, played the part of a youth of 23 who was in love with Beatrice. Refusing to find her mother, he was equally perplexed to find this same woman turn into the girl with whom he had "lunched two or three times," and whom he wanted to marry. Although Miss Baxter always takes the part of a man well, her acting as Charles was rather superficial, and detracted somewhat from the otherwise convincing plot.

As a whole, though, Rosalind was very entertaining, and was well adapted to the limitations of the Barn as a theater.
