HOUSE OPPOSES SUNDAY AUTOMOBILE RULES

Other Radical Changes Proposed

The abolition of the rules in the Gray Book requiring chauffeurage for Sunday driving and for motoring in the village of Wellesley after 7:30 in the evening was voted unanimously in a motion passed in the House of Representatives at a meeting held in Founders Hall on Thursday afternoon, January 12. A great deal of discussion centered around the provisions regulating chauffeurage when a student is staying in Boston for the evening. This matter was not fully decided upon, but a measure requiring that the chauffeur return with the student after 7:30 P. M. was passed.

The meeting was opened with an announcement that the speaker of the House had appointed Katherine Cooke, 1922, and Margarete V. van 1923, members of the committee which is to nominate students for the new faculty-student agreement committee. The speaker explained that the rules in the Gray Book were to be considered by the House in order to determine the changes which had come from the different college houses.

Rule for Sunday driving Rejected

After a discussion of the danger of automobiling on Sunday, the question was put to the vote. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 3)

SENIORS ANNOUNCE JUNE SPEAKERS

Vote for Class Movie

Anticipating their commencement in June, the seniors have secured their speakers, who were announced by Nancy Toll, president of 1922, at a class meeting, Jan. 13. Raymond Fosdick has accepted the invitation to deliver the Commencement address, and Bishop Lawrence the Baccalaureate sermon. To both of these events the seniors voted to wear the formal academic costume.

Another notice concerning the festivities of commencement week was made by Eleanor Peckham, chairman of printing, who will distribute order blanks to the seniors for their invitations, announcements and programs. She cautioned the seniors against too many invitations.

Looking beyond their commencement to the time when they would return as alumni to reunions, the seniors voted to have a class moving picture taken of all the events important to 1922 which occur between now and graduation. The picture will be concerned chiefly with big events, such as May Day, Float Night, Tree Day, and also with some of the two hundred feet of film will be used to photograph the seniors in the every-day routine on campus,

FORUM TO MAKE PLANS FOR ALL-COLLEGE DISCUSSIONS

Plans Outlet For Student Opinion

Different means for promoting a more intelligent expression of college opinion which would better represent the views of the students on national questions were discussed at the suggestion of Miss Calkins in the Forum meeting held in Music Hall Library on Tuesday evening, January 12. The Forum also decided to accept with reservations the constitutional amendment suggested by the Academic Council which added a faculty member to the student program committee.

New Organization for Mass Meetings

An organization which would carry on mass meetings for the discussion of absorbing national questions, and circulate petitions expressing the student relation to these questions was thought necessary because of the vague response of the college to the plea concerning disarmament petitions. The Forum felt that a new organization should be avoided if possible, and voted that a committee should be appointed to report on the situation.

Amendment From Faculty Accepted

The amendment to the constitution proposed by the Academic Council and suggesting that a faculty member with veto power be added to the program committee was considered at length. Its purpose was to prevent undesirable speakers from coming to the college. The final vote of the Forum expressed its willingness to accept this amendment with the insertion that in cases of doubt the faculty member of the committee should refer the matter to President Pendleton instead of exercising an absolute veto.

Wellesley 1921 Tends Switchboard Instead of Museum

A "brand-new Wellesley graduate" whose hair is "high lights in bronze" said the following to Miss Sturges: "I majored in Art at college, and came to New York with every expectation of getting into the Metropolitan Museum. I am now at the New York Telephone Company answering calls. I have four bells to attend to, and when they ring I can never tell which one. The greatest problem of my life now is to master those bells. I also do files."

STEP-SCRUBBING IN SATIN

A general commotion was aroused in the senior class meeting on Jan. 13, when some one from the floor called attention to the fact that May Day Step Scrubbing would have to be carried on in evening clothes if it were celebrated as usual on the first Saturday in May. This great divergence from custom would be necessary because, it was thought, the seniors who attended the Prom at the Copley on May 5, the first Friday in May, would scarcely have time to change their party clothes for the traditional scrub-woman garb. The consternation was increased by a member of the Senate, who explained that May Day was to be observed on April 29 instead of May 6.

OUTING CLUB TO BE A LIVE ORGANIZATION

Heads of Sports Elected

Outing Club officers were elected and the plan and purpose of the club discussed at a meeting held directly after the Athletic Association mass meeting on Thursday, January 12. Elizabeth Parsons, ’22, acting as chairman pro tem., conducted the meeting.

The Outing Club is to be in close alliance with the Athletic Association, the former supervising the unorganized sports. The chairman of the Outing Club will be the first vice president of A.A., and the president of A.A. will determine the policy for both organizations.

The only conditions of membership in the Outing Club are interest in it and membership in A.A. Yearly dues will be only fifty cents, and this money will be used to supply skis and toboggan.

VACATION ACTIVITIES SWELL ENDOWMENT FUND

Marionettes and Movies Bring New Contributions

Wellesley women, through Wellesley Clubs and by individual enterprises, have made the Christmas vacation pay dividends to the Semi-Centennial Fund. Through the efforts of Caroline Paul, ’24, a successful benefit was held at Wakefield, New Hampshire. Two films, the Wellesley film and Wallace Reid in ‘Too Much Speed,’ were shown. A dance followed at which clothes-pin dolls dressed in Wellesley basket-ball costumes were distributed as favors.

The Berkeley Wellesley Club enlisted the services of Tony Sarg’s marionettes, for a benefit on December 29th, which was shown at the Strand Theatre, under the auspices of the Chicago Wellesley Club. Almost all the larger cities have shown the film or have made plans for presenting it in the near future.

Activities for the Fund are numerous at Wellesley. Wellesley tags and stickers for packages and for laundry cases are on sale in room 28, At Building, as well as Alice Freeman Palmer Hall of Fame editions and the Calendar of Wellesley Verse compiled by the Buffalo Wellesley Club.

Orders for yarn can still be made with the guarantee of a certain percentage of the money going to the Fund, and word comes that the New Haven Knitting Mills have extended 1,000 of their orders to the Fund part of the money received from Wellesley women for horsey orders.

STUDENT PETITION GRANTED

The Academic Council granted the petition of 1,650 students, who asked that Tuesday, January 31, be free from academic appointments, with the expectation that the granting of the petition would result in given, and an investigation was conducted. The petition was granted by the Academic Council.

COLLEGE GIRLS CANNOT FIND JOBS

1921 Eats Humble Pie According to Times Writer

The Class of 1921 is clerking. Its members are either frantically seeking good jobs or filling inferior ones—at low salaries. No longer is higher education an open sesame to splendid positions.

Such is the purport of an article by Marlon Van B. Sturges appearing The New York Times Book Review for January 5th. This deplorable state of affairs is said to prevail generally among recent graduates. "The B. A. degree has lost the pull it used to have with employers." The Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations itself, usually such a good getter of good jobs, has evaporated into thin air—vanished. In short, the Class of 1921 has gone job-hunting along with the rest of Johns Hopkins.

The omniscient writer varies this theme for almost a page, interrupted here and there by cleverly drawn illustrations of pretty girls in attitudes of hunger and despair.

Although the facts given is nowhere found for, the conviction with which they are handed to the reader is hardly encouraging to the tired college student. In particular is the article brought home to Wellesley, the only college mentioned by name.

Students Discuss Armament in Faneuil Hall

Read Resolution to President

Students from eleven suburban colleges met in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Wednesday evening, January 18, under the auspices of the National Students' Committee for Disarmament. Several prominent outside speakers gave introductory addresses. A resolution, to be sent to President Harding, was presented, and later, open discussion from the floor was in order. Robert Worsam of Harvard presided, introducing M. Maurice Case-nave, Economic Adviser to the French Delegation at the Washington Arms Conference; Signor Guiseppe Gentile, Economic Adviser to the Italian Delegation, and Dr. John Mea, Washington correspondent to the Frankfort Zeitung. These men all brought out interesting points of view on the subject in hand.

The resolution reads as follows: 'Resolved: That a conference of the Powers, including Russia and Germany, which shall deal with the economic consequences of the Peace as arranged at Paris, is the logical sequel of the Washington Arms Conference, and that such a conference is fundamental to the civilization of Europe and to the prosperity of the United States.'

Following the discussion there was student expression from the floor, and many economic problems of international importance were talked over.

Miss Haines Tells of Famine

States Conditions in Russia

Owing to the blizzard, Christian Association meeting was held in Tower Court instead of in Billings Hall, on Wednesday evening, January 11. Miss Haines gave an informal talk on "The Famine Conditions in Russia" to the few students and faculty members who dared to brave the storm.

Miss Haines spoke authoritatively on her subject, as she has recently returned from Russia. Conditions there, as she described them, seem unbelievably terrible. The only food which most people have is a kind of pancake made from powdered horsehoofs and bones mixed with a little grass and water. Even tae babies have nothing else. Food cannot be bought at any price. In the Volga valley, where the average yield of wheat per acre is 1000 bushels, only 14 bushels were harvested this year. Consequently many of the towns will be uninhabited by spring, for none of the people can hope to live through the winter.

Between the months of March and August of last year the death rate had increased over one hundred per cent. "The people seem to be dying cheerfully," said Miss Haines. "Their one hope is that although they may die, their village will live on."

America has done great work by her large appropriation for helping these people, yet there is much more to be accomplished. Wheat, especially, must be shipped over there and planted this spring, or the food supply will be less next year. It is only by a gradual increase that Russia can again supply herself with food.

Miss Haines is to address the women of the college on Wednesday, January 18.

The Theatre

Shubert-Majestic

Vaudeville has become, to many, such a synonym for coarse humor and poor music that a bill including Nonette and Milton Hayes should be a educational requirement for all disillusioned audiences. Nonette, who appeared last week at the Shubert-Majestic, sings well and plays her violin with real ability and sympathetic interpretation. Milton Hayes offers a monologue act of real humor, entirely without nudge-provoking qualities. If the Majestic continues to offer vaudeville of consistent excellence, we predict that that large and well-appointed theatre will be filled to capacity.

"Orphans of the Storm"

A spectacular photoplay, so well done that the screen seems a window through which one sees the events of the most thrilling years of France's history, will occupy the Tremont Theatre for an indefinite engagement. The play, Orphans of the Storm, is adapted from the American theatre classic, Two Orphans, but a wealth of historic background of the French Revolution is introduced.

The play may include anachronisms, but after the first few episodes the conviction of actuality is so strong that one can not look for defects. The hand of Griffith is apparent in the excellent pictorial quality of the scenes and in the convincing mob action. In the acting of Lillian and Dorothy Gish, and particularly in that of Joseph Schleidkranz, the riciest predictions for cinema art seem on the verge of fulfilment. There is a feeling for subtle restraint in the portrayal of deep emotion that makes for some of the best acting seen in a Griffith feature since the days of Henry Walthall and Mac Marsh in The Birth of a Nation.

COUNCIL GRANTS PETITION
1050 Students Sign

"Superlative results are now to be expected in the mid-year examinations," said Dean Waite in announcing at Friday morning chapel, January 13, the decision of the Academic Council to omit classes on the Tuesday preceding the examination period. This decision was the result of a petition presented to the Council at its meeting Thursday, January 12, drawn up and signed by 1050 students, explaining the difficulty of attending classes and at the same time preparing for the various examinations which come early in the first week. The petition emphasized the good faith of the students and their intention of using the time for essential review. It did not imply that the granting of the concession would insure better work, but simply that it was necessary to maintain the standard of the past.

The previous plan of having classes Monday and Tuesday, explained Dean Waite, had been decided on last year. Two reasons for this action were given. First, the examination period is this year being shortened, expressly with the idea of lengthening the academic year by those two days. Further, reports from the housemothers show that large numbers of girls customarily go away for this week-end, and that those remaining are far from maintaining an atmosphere of studious quiet. However, in considering the petition, the majority of the faculty were convinced of the sincerity of the students, and of their feeling of responsibility.

Miss Waite then announced the closing hymn, "Work, for the Night is Coming."

Eleanor M. Barnes, '19, is spending several weeks in Wellesley.

Miss Tuitis has issued an announcement advising the students to take especial care of their health during the present epidemic of mumps and measles in Boston and vicinity.

Hallett Morse, '24, in Stone Hall, is giving madrigal waves for the benefit of the Endowment Fund. The price for long hair is thirty cents, and for bobbed hair, fifty cents.

Marion Speer, '24, is typing final papers for the class.

"Manchuria" was the subject of the Discussion Group that met at Shakespearne on Sunday evening, January 16. Miss Hart and Pau Kong Yang spoke on the subject.

The Executive Board of the Unitarian Club met January 12 to discuss the selection of speakers for the next meeting.

Sleigh rides have been exceedingly popular among the students on campus and in the vil, this past week. Practically every freshman house has enjoyed a house sleigh ride.

The sophomores recently presented a gavel to the freshman president.

The vocational guidance shelf in the library offers ready access to many books and pamphlets for students desiring information of that character.

STUDENT VOLUNTEER UNION HOLDING MEETING

Ten Students From Wellesley Attend

At a meeting of the Student Volunteer Union on January 9, at Simmons College, Ruth Earp, '24, was elected alternate delegate to the National Council of Student Volunteers, which is to meet some time in February.

Lalith Pinnge, '22; Ruby Phillips, '22; Miriam Bond, '23; Ruth Matthews, '23; Sally Bishop, '23; Gladys Clark, '24; Ruth Earp, '24; Margaret Bland, '25; and Jean Douglas, unclassified, were Wellesley's representatives at the meeting, where were students of all the colleges, universities and training schools in or near Boston.

The speaker for the evening was Miss Hancock of the Gordon Bible School, who gave a very interesting talk on the Holy Land. Two volunteer workers told about their work, the experiences they had had, and their reasons for choosing it. A social hour followed the meeting.

HOUSE OPPOSES SUNDAY AUTO. MOBILE RULES

of propriety was considered. Since neither of these matters seemed to affect the situation vitally, the House declared itself unambiguously against this rule.

The measure inserted in the Gray Book this year which required chaperonage for motorizing with men in the village of Wellesley after 7:30 P. M. had previously met with so much opposition that its abolition was voted without discussion.

The last measure voted upon by the House at this meeting was intended rather to clear up an ambiguous statement than to establish any change in the regulations. According to the rule finally passed a student returning to Wellesley after 7:30 P. M. must be accompanied by her chaperon. Further consideration of this rule was laid on the table until the next meeting.

RING IN THE NEW

To the Wellesley College News:

While Wellesley greets the New Year with the old cheer, now grown significant, "Ring out the old, ring in the new!" that feeling of satisfaction that always accompanies a change in government seems to be prevalent. It is, however, too soon to be satisfied. Even if the proposed changes had been incorporated into the constitution, there would still be no guaranty of success. What is lacking, and has been lacking, is a sense of individual responsibility. This sounds hackneyed and probably is hackneyed, but it is true. The true significance "sinks in" no government, on matter how perfect it is ideally, will ever be a practical success at Wellesley.

Girls are elaborating on their grievances to the press system to sympathetic audiences, while all of them continue to disobey rules which a very short time ago they pledged themselves to obey. And what is still worse, the ex-pilots are looked upon, not with scorn and disapproval, but with tolerance and even applause, if you please. Only the other day a girl, who was telling how she evaded guilt in breaking a certain rule, was greeted with exclamations of, "I guess that's pretty cute!", from girls who themselves would never have broken the rule. And that is one of the biggest difficulties of all, the lack of sympathy the girls in a different and unenlightened way than the faculty, should have greater powers than the faculty in a body which is to judge the misdemeanor which occur in the social life of the college.

HOW TO PREPARE FOR EXAMS

The Y. M. C. A. at Wisconsin University is offering a unique course to be given as a tonic for mid-years. It announces that "How to Prepare for an Examination" will be discussed. The benefit of all students who were not getting as high grades as they should, especially freshmen.

In view of the recently granted petition, Wellesley's concern seems to be, "Why, not how" to prepare for its examinations.

THE SNEEK (Cinema Scenario, in 6 reels)

Reel 1: Young American seen pacing street of Constantinople is cut by beautiful American damsel in chair. Furious, he plots revenge. Reel 2: Sections of vast area of undulating sands. Camel appears on horizon, orchestra simultaneously chiming in with "The Campbells Are Coming." Sealed on approaching animal, a siren is steadily gaining, and the orchestra plays "Sweet and Low." Suddenly his goat quivers and his lips shape the words, "Citronella! She shall pay for it!" With a lunge he goes the camel forward but the beast morally disdains it and runs off. Orchestra plays "Sweet and Low." Euphoric with the whirring invincibles, Snee blows resounding blast on police whistle. Instantly Arabian horses gallop from all horizons. He searches for the proper Turkish translation of camel. Finally resorting to the common bond of Arabian numerals, he instantly becomes their chosen leader, and canter off to their head on desired camel. Orchestra: "The Sheikh of Arabiy."

Reels Two to Five Censored

Next scene discloses chiton pavilion trimmed with gold braid and fencer secured. Bedouin guards without. In plain sight within sits beautiful American damsel, pouting and manicuring finger nails. Enter Snee, throwing fan, fuming and at Citronella and shouting, "Sabbi sodik!" Citronella rushes to side of tent and coeurs, Crisis about to occur. Interrupted by noise of Muezzin ascending to the mezzanine floor of nearby mosque, and calling other prayers in somber tones. All Muselmans in vicinity instantaneously prostrate themselves towards Mecca and invoke Allah. Quarell in tent and muslem dressing in immediately after prayers discovers happens still in kneeling attitudes. Print: "Better kneel, my friends! The bowing dervishes are coming! Orchestra plays "Lost Chord" and audience howls.

BARON KORFF REVIEWS CONFERENCE ACHIEVEMENTS

Public Support an Influential Factor

In reviewing the achievements of the Washington Conference Baron S. A. Korff, addressing a large audience in chapel Sunday evening, declared that public backing had made possible these momentous steps, and that its support in the future would influence further advancement.

The Conference, he stated, was characterized by plain talk and open diplomacy that made it unique in the history of the world. Its leading figure was Secretary Hughes, who played so important a part in bringing the Conference to a successful termination.

Results are Momentous

The achievements of the Conference, Baron Korff believes, outweigh all disappointments. Among the most important are: the treaty by which four nations agree to arbitrate disagreements arising from their relations in the Pacific; the nullification of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance by a new treaty in no way replacing the former agreement, and the agreement upon a ten-year naval holiday. Although no settlements with regard to China and the Far East were effected, issues were clarified and details determined.

The events of the past months, the Baron believes, reflect honor upon our government.

Expression of Public Opinion

Apreat of Baron Korff's statement that public opinion must continue in support of this movement toward lasting peace was the report given by Miss Muriel Morris on the meeting in Chicago of students from over two hundred colleges. A National Student Committee for Limitation of Armaments was formed which is now asking all colleges to pass resolutions expressing a hearty endorsement of the work accomplished by the Conference.

EXCHANGES

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

Franklin Field, the university's stadium, is being rebuilt so that it will have a maximum seating capacity of 90,000 for the 1922 football season. The new stand will be exceeded in seating capacity, among eastern colleges, only by the Yale Bowl.

Hunter College has recently been placed on the approved list by the Association of American Universities.

L. C. S.

The following placements for Wellesley students for the past Christmas vacation were made by the Central Committee:

BOSTON: Eva Reiber, Denison House; Grace Harding, Elizabeth Peabody House; Constance Beall, Elizabeth Bueche, Frances Willard.

NEW YORK: Sophie Rubinowitz, Recreation Room and Settlement.

OUTING CLUB

- gans for Outing Club members, to pay for adequate swimming instruction, to clear the ice, and for the various items incident to its proper operation.

Annual Winter Carnivals Planned

Under Outing Club activities will fall an annual winter carnival. Effort will be made to put this on a par with Field Day. Skiing, snowboarding, toboggan, and obstacle races will be planned. Unless weather complications forbid, the carnival this year will be held either on February 11 or February 25.

- and a hope that the movement toward an international understanding will be carried on. These resolutions will soon be submitted to the student body.

In addition to this, an ice carnival, more purely social, will be held yearly. Competition at this time will be limited to two or three informal dashes, and possibly a game of ice hockey, if interest in its warrants the work of getting teams ready.

Swimming to receive Attention

To further opportunity for enjoying the unorganized sports will be the general aim of the club. Effort will be made to improve the place opened to swimming, and an instructor may be hired to teach swimming and diving, probably on Thursday afternoons. If the season is long enough and other conditions are favorable, a water carnival will be conducted, including swimming races, diving and life-saving exhibitions.

Hiking to Have Prominent Place

Hikes will be planned in the spring, and probably occasional week-end parties which will take two days. There are many among the faculty who are very much interested in the Outing Club. Some of these will probably be willing to chaperon such outings.

Officers Elected

The following were elected officers of the club: Secretary and treasurer, Jean Fleming, '24; head of hiking, Thaddeus Wilson, '22; head of swimming, Dorotha Smith, '23; head of skating, Hildegarde Churchill, '22; head of skiing and snowshoeing, Hildegarde Jacob, '23.

Since the chairman of Outing Club will hold an all-college position, she could not be elected at the meeting because a quorum was not present.

AUTHOR TO READ AT C. A.

Steel Beaded Russian Overblouses
—an importation from Paris

Priced From 13.50 to 35.00

Ornamented with thousands of tiny steel beads, in beautiful patterns and all-over designs, these Overblouses are little less than marvelous at such low prices.

They are made of heavy crepe de chine, although there are some styles developed of georgette. In black and popular dark colors.

Speaker, Miss Jean Mackenzie, missionary to the province of Cameroun, West Africa; also a charming writer (author of "Black Sheep," 1916; "An African Trail," 1917, and various articles which have appeared in periodicals, especially in the Atlantic Monthly), and distinguished as a speaker as well.

bored and telephoned up to another department.

"'College girl,' was shouted back.

"What's the idea?" he yawned and replied, 'Wants to break into the business world.'

"I thought, of course," she finished, "that would be the end of it. But I was taken on at fifteen a week."

A college girl has to all appearances become a "drug on the market." Where she formerly lent prestige to a firm, she is now said to be turned away because her education is impractical. The liberal arts are giving way to filing, stenography, and the ability to stand on one's feet for eight hours at a stretch—according to Miss Sturges.

NEWS FROM OTHER COLLEGES

BRYN MAWR

Miss Sarah Wambaugh, associate professor of the Economics Department at Wellesley, has recently visited Bryn Mawr, where she spoke under the auspices of the World Citizenship Committee. Miss Wambaugh, who attended the first conference of the League of Nations at Geneva, based her lecture on plebitics of Central Europe, on which she is an authority.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PHILIPPINES

White caps and gowns instead of black will be worn here for commencement by faculty and students, on account of the tropical climate.

GOUCHER

Goucher has recently organized a Press Club, made up of about forty girls who will see that their home newspapers get all the news about the college that should be printed.

Princess Talatuna, the American Indian mezzo-soprano, and Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer and pianist, who came to Wellesley two years ago, gave a musical program at Goucher recently.

UNIVERSITY OF TOLEDO

This university has established a new tradition, "Ivy Week." Hereafter, during the first week in November, vines will be planted around the Administration and Science buildings.

YALE

Yale has recently started the first school of citizenship ever established by an American university.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

The students and alumni of the University of Georgia have begun a drive for a million dollars, the purpose in view being the erection of a memorial to the Georgia men who lost their lives in the war.
