Psychologist to Come April 18

Professor E. G. Boring, Director of the Psychological Laboratory at Clark University, has been invited by the Department of Philosophy and Psychology to give a public lecture in 124 Founders Hall, on the evening of Tuesday, April 18th, at 8 o'clock.

The subject of the lecture will be: "The Expression of the Emotions."

Professor Boring will discuss the various theories that have been developed to explain the glandular and muscular reactions of the body and will demonstrate in terms of a model the application of some of these theories to the movements of the several parts of the human face. When analyzed it will be seen that a biological significance has been assigned to the position and contour of the forehead, eyebrows, eyes, nose, and mouth during the expression of any emotional disposition.

Professor Boring has studied this problem for a number of years and has lectured on the topic both at Clark and at Cornell University. He is a member of Sigma Xi, the honorary scientific society, and has been for the last three years the Secretary of the American Psychological Association. He also cooperates in the editing of the American Journal of Psychology.

College Chooses Delegates to Go to Hot Springs

Y. W. C. A. Mass Meeting Held in Chapel April 6

At the Y. W. C. A. Mass Meeting, held in Houghton Memorial Chapel Thursday, April 6, Emily Gordon, chairman, announced that the delegates who have been selected to represent the college at the National Convention at Hot Springs, Arkansas, are Margaret Conant, general secretary, Margaret Hoops, President of the Y. W. C. A. for 1923-24, and Augusta Wagner, newly elected Undergraduate Field Representative. Questions of the relation between the college student and the woman in industry, the basis of membership, and the problem of student management of Y. W. C. A. organizations were laid before the student body by the chairman of the meeting. All these issues are to come before Wellesley representatives at the forthcoming convention.

Miss Katherine Duffield of Boston, spoke on student industrial cooperation. "There is no gulf between the student world and the industrial world," said Miss Duffield. "The industrial girl has the same hopes, ambitions, as the college girl, but she has not the same chance to think and study." Miss Duffield emphasized the tremendous responsibility of the college girl towards the problems of the industrial girl, and said that the conference at Hot Springs was furnishing the two a chance to get together in a normal way.

Membership Basis Explained

The question of membership basis was explained by Emily Gordon, '22, chairman of the meeting. At present the Y. W. C. A. has an alternate basis of membership which was adopted two years ago at Cleveland. By this basis the colleges may decide for themselves.

Wellesley Symphony Orchestra to Give Concert

The annual concert of the college symphony orchestra is to occur in Billings Hall at 8:00 P.M. on April 21. According to all reports the concert should be a good one, especially since the services of eight professionals as well as a vocalist (Caroline Ewe, '22) are to be utilized. The program is as follows:

I Overture, "Rozamunda" Schubert
II Allegro con da 4th Symphony Tschaikowsky
III Scherzo Dvorak
IV Le Deluge Saint Saens Intermediate Delibes' Ballet "Nida"
V Dance from Henry VIII German
VI Pomp and Circumstance

VOL XXX. WELLESLEY, MASS., APRIL 13, 1922 No. 23

Mr. Vachel Lindsay, well known among the modern poets, will give one of the series of Poets' Readings which are being sponsored by the Department of English Literature. It will take place on Tuesday afternoon, April 18, at 4:40 P.M. in Billings Hall.

Expression of Emotions to Be Lecture Subject

Educational Program

Lectures Supplement Foreign Travel

Students and instructors in Wellesley College are invited to participate in the student tours which have been arranged for the coming summer under the auspices of the Institute of International Education.

There will be four student tours during the summer of 1922: one to Great Britain, one to France, one to the Scandinavian Countries. Since the tours have been organized on an entirely non-commercial basis, it has been possible to arrange for the patronage of the governments of the countries to be visited, the cooperation of foreign universities and colleges, and the sponsorship and support of international and educational organizations on both sides of the Atlantic, such as the English Speaking Union, and the Federation de l'Alliance Francaise.

Notable Program Offered

In the case of the Scandinavian tour, for instance, the members of the group will be received by the American minister in each of the three Scandinavian capitals. Lauritz Swenson, American minister to Norway, has planned, in consultation with the head of the Department of Education of the Norwegian Government, a trip for the days when the group will be present at the reading of Electra in Billings Hall.

FARNSWORTH MUSEUM RECEIVES CAST OF HAZARD MEMORIAL

Through the generosity of Miss Caroline Hazard, former president of the College, there has been placed in the Lecture Room of the Farnsworth Museum a magnificent life size cast of the Hazard Memorial, "The Weaver." This memorial, the original of which is in bronze, was designed by the widely known American sculptor, Daniel Chester French, and was erected in Peace Dale, Rhode Island, by Miss Hazard in memory of her father and brothers, who were among the leaders in the weaving industry of Rhode Island.

The inscription reads as follows:
"Life spins the thread Time weaves, The pattern God designed; The fabric of the stuff he leaves To men of noble minds.
In memory of a father and his sons. Roland Hazard, 1829-1898 Rowland Gibson Hazard, 1855-1911 Frederick Rowland Hazard, 1858-1917.

The panel represents a symbolic figure of a youth, "The Weaver," seated at his loom, to whom Life hands the thread from her distaff. Behind Life stands Time with the hour glass in her hand. Here French has once more shown himself technically the master of his medium and has imbued into his work that peculiar American quality of homely poetic feeling which makes his work so similar in conception to that of the poet Longfellow.

JAPANESE STUDENT MARRIED IN COLLEGE CHAPEL
Kikue Ide, '22, Weds Columbia Man

Houghton Memorial Chapel was the scene of a picturesque marriage ceremony the afternoon of March 30, when Kikue Ide, '22, became the bride of Mr. Noboru Asami, a graduate student of political science of Columbia University, Dr. Lemuel D. Surtin, president of Boston University, officiated, the Rev. Stanley Fisher of the Wellesley Congregational Church assisting.

All the wedding party were Japanese and appeared in native costume appropriate to the occasion. The bride wore a brocaded kimona of white satin, over which was draped another of scarlet satin. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilacs of the valley.

The bridesmaids were Matsuyo Takizawa, Yuki Domoto, Yoshi Kasuya, all Wellesley students, Mitsuko Moto da, and Midori Saito. The best man was Yoshitaro Kusuyama, and there were also a flower girl and ring bearer, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Yasuhashi of Brookline.

Appropriate decorations made the chapel a setting of floral beauty. The chancel was banked with palms and daffodils, and two tall baskets of daffodils and Easter lilies flanked the altar. Yellow tule streamers marked the entrance to the aisle.

Prof. Sophie C. Hart of the college faculty gave the bride away. Six Wellesley freshmen under the direction of Miss Edith Richardson served as ushers, the others being Misses Mary Allen, Charlotte Hamblen, Helen Sawyer, Eveline Towle and Harriet Brooks.

Following the marriage ceremony a reception was held at Zeta Alpha, which was attended by over a hundred guests. The bridal party was further entertained at a formal dinner in Shakespeare, at which thirty guests were present.

The bride and groom returned to their respective colleges at the end of spring vacation. After graduation they plan to sail for Europe, possibly at the end of the summer.

be in Christiania, including an audience with His Majesty King Haakon at his summer palace at Byglo, a reception at the American legation, and a lecture on Viking antiquities by Professor A. W. Brogger of the University of Christiania. Professor Adolph B. Benson, Professor of Scandinavian at Yale University, will accompany the student group as lecturer throughout the trip.

Similar provisions will apply in the case of the students’ tours to Great Britain, France, and Italy.

MODERATE MEMBERSHIP FEE

The non-commercial purpose of the tours, the support of established organizations, and the avoidance of advertising, contribute to the cost of the student tours lower than that of any other plan for organized travel. The membership fee is $675 to $710, depending upon the location of the steamship accommodations selected. It includes ocean transportation on the SS “Saxonia,” hotels, railroad travel, automobile and carriage drives, lectures, etc. The Casandar “Saxonia,” has been reserved to carry the student groups on both the eastbound and the return voyages, leaving New York on July 1st, 1922, and returning September 1st. The members of the British tour will land at Plymouth, the members of the French and Italian tours at Cherbourg, and the members of the Scandinavian tour at Hamburg. For the return voyage, all four of the groups will embark at Cherbourg on August 22nd.

Membership in the student tours is open to persons associated with institutions of higher learning in the United States, either as students or as instructors, and to teachers in secondary schools. Every provision has been made for their safety and comfort, as well as for educational opportunities. Experienced travel leaders, lecturers, chauffeurs, and trained nurses will accompany each of the groups. The details of administration are being handled on behalf of the Institute of International Education by Mr. Irwin Smith, 30 East 42nd Street, New York CITY.

BEST FOOT WRITING WILL RECEIVE PRIZE

Hygiene Department Announces Contest

Miss Haugen of the Hygiene Department has announced that at the close of the indoor season she will give a box of ??? for the best piece of foot writing done by a Wellesley student. The object of the competition is to arouse interest in strengthening the muscles of the foot and retaining good foot posture. The exact nature of the prize is kept secret. All those who are interested are urged to practice diligently. The contestants will be required to do their writing at Mary Hemenway Hall, to be sure that they have the correct toe grip. Either the left or the right foot may be used. Special credit will be given anyone who paints a picture beautiful writing her name. The specimens will be exhibited at the summer conference.

whether church membership or the personal basis should determine membership in the organization. The matter is to come before the Hot Springs conference for final decision. Miss Louise Pettibone Smith of the Bible Department, presented the two sides of the question, as it had come up at Bryn Mawr during her undergraduate days.

The problem of organization was also brought forward by Emily Gordon. At Hot Springs the question of having entire student management of the student organization will be brought up. The chairman suggested that any ideas which students wished presented at the conference should be given to the three delegates who will represent Wellesley. Emily Gordon will also attend the conference as national chairman of all the Field Student Councils.

Further Student Industrial Work

The Hot Springs Conference is highly significant because it is furthering Student Industrial Cooperation. Student-Industrial Co-operation is based on the philosophy that a right social order can come only from the mutual understanding and good will of the groups within it. The students and industrial girls began their work together informally at the Cleveland convention. Since that time joint groups of students and industrial girls over the country have been working out common problems. The issues studied have been Education, Health, Work, and the Cooperative Movement. April 24 will be students’ day at the convention, and the students, assisted by industrial girls, will have entire charge of the program. Four speakers, chosen at the Executive Committee meeting held on March 4, at the National Headquarters of the Y. W. C. A. in New York City, will present to the united convention interesting facts concerning student industrial progress, among them reports of London Labor College and the Bryn Mawr summer course.

WELLESLEY WILSON FUND TOTAL $290
List of Contributors Numbers 127

To the college contribution of $140 already reported, we have now added $69, making our total share in the Woodrow Wilson Foundation $209.

Our complete list of contributors numbers one hundred and twenty-seven—fifty-two members of the faculty, two graduate students, thirteen seniors, twelve juniors, eleven sophomores, eight freshmen, four unclassified students, and fifteen friends who wished to give through the college.

From the country at large there are so far reported over one hundred thousand contributors, carrying the fund well on into its second half-million. Until this basic million is completed, the opportunity to enroll a new member is still open. The undersigned, though her report has gone in, will still be glad to receive and forward to Headquarters any belated gifts.

Katharine L. Bates, Chairman.
UNLIMITED POSSIBILITIES

House presidents, as indispensable officials of the College Government Association, should fill an indispensable place in college life. The students at large, however, have failed to recognize the significance of the position of house presidents, so that status has fallen until a large part of the college considers them as little more than figureheads. They are valuable as decorative social assets, as precise machines who fill out error slips, and as convenient officials to preside at house meetings. Outside this fold, the college ceases to regard them.

That this is true is all too unfortunate because of the manifold possibilities in the position of house president. It offers continual opportunity of coming in contact with all kinds of people, and of acting as intermediary between the house mothers and the students, to prevent antagonisms and to increase cooperation.

But the work of house president goes further than this. Logically, the dormitories are the most natural and the most representative units in college. A group of girls from the three upper classes, living together for 4 years, have a most important and purposeful, and a solidarity lacking in any other group that may be found. In no matter what democracy there must always be one individual to whom the others may look for leadership. This is essential to cohesion; otherwise small groups separate from the larger, and the strength of community spirit and morale are lessened. Whether dormitories are to fulfill any function in college life outside of that of furnishing living quarters depends largely on the house presidents. An attitude of interest, ready enthusiasm, and initiative may mold the dormitory into a powerful unit; or, on the other hand, indifferency, and passivity may leave it only a group of individuals.

As part of the house president’s problem there are those inevitable instances of disregard for the canons of good taste which call for no summary fixing of a penalty nor recording of an error, but action of a less positive kind. They are the little things which tend to give the college a bad name, and which are discussed in great glee at private gatherings. These things cannot be overlooked indefinitely, and it is the house presidents alone who may bring them to light in a constructive way through the creation of public opinion at house councils and house meetings. Instead of being solely the mecanical meetings that the floor chairmen and presidents now hold, house councils might be further utilized to get at the matters which should be brought before the notice of the students. These matters could then easily be discussed at house meetings as hypothetical cases, so that the girl whom they touch may become aware of just how her fellow students regard the things she has hitherto not seriously considered.

To live powerful alive through public opinion has ever been forged, and if in this way the actions which no penalty could ever put an end to might be stopped, this plan should be worth trying.

It is the house presidents who must take the first steps in any new direction. The power of their position is created by those who hold them; possibilities are unlimited. The right girl may make a strong, centralized unit of her dormitory and help to bring forth a definite public opinion working to a definite end. If house presidents of one year make the position of real value to the college, more girls in the following year will be interested in running for the office. Now, in the midst of the changes taking place is the time to dissipate the idea that house presidents are only figureheads.

HOW COLLEGE SENIORS ARE CHOSEN

To the Wellesley College News:

In view of the fact that there seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to the method of choosing village seniors, it seems necessary to give the following explanation:

After the list of applicants for the position has been closed, it is sent to the Dean of the College and the Resident Physician for the approval of the academic and physical records of the candidates. The president and vice-president of the College Government Association meet in joint conference with each applicant individually. Each village head of House and each village senior gives her opinion concerning those candidates with whom she has come personally in contact, as well as her preferences for her distal. House or village, and the house presidents express their opinions concerning the qualifications of the candidates who live in their houses.

The Executive Board of the Senate, with the seniors' votes, by that body, consider this data and choose the village seniors by a process of grading. This list is submitted to the Senate for further discussion and confirmation.

Emmavall Luce, 1922.

a word for discrimination

To the Wellesley College News:

If it is one of the functions of a college to teach that nice discrimination which distinguishes the high values of life from the lower, perhaps it is not amiss to bear in mind this function in our consideration of society work in relation to the "harm plan." If a senior has learned this, it has taught her what, by graduation to "think, feel, bear fruit well," similarly the perspective of time should give a certain weight to the Alumnae point of view.

If one derives a bit into past history, it is obvious that each of the societies began as the result of need for organization of some special kind of work, or was the organization for work of some group of students with special common interests.

The societies of Phi Sigma and Z. A. were founded in the fall of 1876 by Mr. Durant as societies purely for literary value. Although, in 1881, this work was disbanded not to be re-established until 1888, traditions of the literary character of their work consistently held. Combination programs were often given in the very old days, as the work of the two was supplementary, no dramatics being attempted. As time went on, however, Phi Sigma worked out a very special interest along lines of Celtic study and folk lore, and the custom of these (original) Christmas masque grew, early in the century. Z. A., always consistent in its study of modern literature, is not known to have given any public presentation of work until 1899, when the dramatization of Pride and Prejudice set a standard for future performances of which The Goose shepherd, given in 1903, was one of the most distinct charm.

The Shakespeare Society, started shortly after Phi Sigma and Z. A., has always been dramatic in its interests, although one sometimes loses sight of the fact that it was originally far (Continued on Page 6, Column 1)
Man-Made Lightning

FRANKLIN removed some of the mystery. But only recently has science really explained the electrical phenomena of the thunderstorm.

Dr. C. P. Steinmetz expounds this theory. Raindrops retain on their surfaces electrical charges, given off by the sun and other incandescent bodies. In falling, raindrops combine, but their surfaces do not increase in proportion. Hence, the electrical pressure grows rapidly. Finally it reaches the limit the air can stand and the lightning flash results.

And now we have artificial lightning. One million volts of electricity—approximately one fiftieth of the voltage in a lightning flash—have been sent successfully over a transmission line in the General Engineering Laboratory of the General Electric Company. This is nearly five times the voltage ever before placed on a transmission line.

Much valuable knowledge of high voltage phenomena—essential for extending long distance transmission—was acquired from these tests. Engineers now see the potential power in remote mountain streams serving in industries hundreds of miles away.

Man-made lightning was the result of ungrudging and patient experimentation by the same engineers who first sent 15,000 volts over a long distance thirty years ago.

"Keeping everlastingly at it brings success." It is difficult to forecast what the results of the next thirty years may be.

France May Have to Pay Debt

April 6. The British government notified the French government that when the United States calls upon Great Britain to pay interest on her war debt to Washington, London will call on Paris to pay interest on her debt to England. The three-year arrangement which excused France from payment during that time will not be renewed at the expiration of this month.

New Legion Drive

April 6. The drive of the American Legion for $2,500,000 to establish a veterans' mountain camp in the Adirondacks, where sick and wounded ex-service men can be taken care of, was launched in New York City.

Cossack Leader Arrested

April 7. Gen. Semenoff, the Russian Cossack leader, was arrested on his arrival in New York by an American trading company on the charge of appropriating stores in the Siberian campaign. It was Gen. Semenoff who struck terror into the hearts of the Bolsheviki until he left Siberia a few months ago.

Demonstration for Hapsburgs

April 7. Following a requiem mass in Vienna, celebrated on the occasion of Emperor Charles' death, a great demonstration in favor of the Hapsburgs occurred. A procession several thousand strong marched through Vienna raising cheers for "Emperor Otto."

New York to Flich Crime Wave

April 7. Police Commissioner Enright of New York City was authorized to appoint 1,922 more patrolmen to check banditry. An issue at $1,000,000 worth of bonds will be necessary to pay the new appointees.

American Observer at Conference

April 8. Richard Washburn Child, the American ambassador to Italy, left for Genoa to attend the Genoa conference as an observer. Since no official representative from America is likely to be sent, Mr. Child will keep Washington informed.

Telephone Observation with Ship

April 8. The experimental station of the American Telephone Company of New York got into telephone communication with the U. S. liner America when about 150 miles at sea, by means of a new duplex radio set. An ordinary telephone conversation was carried on with ease.

Gift of Rare Books to Public

April 9. The famous art collection of Henry E. Huntington of California is to be given to the public. The collection includes Gainsborough's Blue Boy and several other noted Gainsboroughs and Romneys, beside his Library, which contains some of the most precious manuscripts and first editions in existence.

Opening of Genoa Conference

April 10. The great economic conference, in which England, France, Italy, Germany, and Russia are the main representatives, was opened at Genoa, Italy. Lloyd George felt confident on the eve of the meeting that a successful settlement of the chief questions at issue will be reached.
more in love with the literary aspects of its work than, until recently, it has grown to be. The programs of past Shakespearean meetings have shown the power of a play, but exhaustive and loving study of sources and text, as necessary to successful dramatic understanding.

T. Z. E. Society has been able to retain, perhaps more easily than any other, the original purpose for which it was founded in 1889 by Miss Denio, the professor of Art. For ten years, the study of art failed to take dramatic shape, but in 1906 a scheme for living pictures, suggested by Miss Brown, present professor of Art, was the beginning of those delightful studio receptions, which have covered a wide field and have been perhaps uniformly acceptable to the College public as well as to outside critics.

No less unique were the earlier open meetings of the Agora Society, founded in 1894 for the study of government. Without the slightest attempt at visual dramatization, programs were offered which were epoch-making in its history. The very first one—a debate in the U. S. Senate on the Wilson bill (1894) received generous outside praise. The society, variously resolved itself into: "A City Common Council" (1895); "The Central Labor Union" (1896); "The Cuban Constitutional Convention" (1901); "The House of Commons" (1903); "The Second Continental Congress (debating the resolution for independence)" (1905) and "A meeting of the Senate of the U. S. during the first session of the Thirty-first Congress, March 1859" (1906). An illustrous past, unaided by the use of paint, powder, or costume, should have preserved the Agora from that dramatic era when, to use its own words in 1919, its "presentations were a combination of tableaux, plays, poen original, readings of letters and documents of the time, talks and recitals, music and poetry!"

A. K. X., begun by students of the class of 1892 with classical interests, has always kept that distinction, though it is regrettable that the language interest, which formerly showed itself by the presentation of a play in the Greek language, has been somewhat obscured. Of its noteworthy productions we must mention "A Midsummer Night's Dream" of 1916, through the Iphigenia in Tauris of 1910, is too long to remain here, and the charm of Odysseus Among the Phaeacians of 1911, to be forgotten Professor Palmer's translation of the Nausicaa episode was used, and the presentation given at four o'clock in the afternoon at Longfellow Forum.

Under such traditions, and with such entire different achievements to their credit, the societies about 1922, fell upon that era when, in the attempt to make the college safe for democracy, a levelling movement was employed which not only did not accomplish its avowed purposes, but which, by over-emphasizing the importance of social harmony in college, reduced the place of society work to a negligible excuse for college existence. The attempt to standardize membership so standardized work that the individuality of the six societies has been greatly reduced. The period of specialization on the college has not yet been a failure, and thus the experiment has failed. The last of the four periods is to be expected that the enthusiasm manifest at the first meetings in January should still continue, but if there was anything behind it, it must have the cooperation of the student body, and in this case we cannot wait until next year to put that cooperation into effect. The incoming officers will have a doubly difficult problem next year, for besides the ordinary difficulties of holding an all-college affair, they are faced with the necessity of conforming to and making a success of a whole new system of government. It is up to the student body which has elected them, then, to make sure that they are not saddled with an inefficient or unsatisfactory form of government.

The fact that we have a committee on Faculty-Student Agreement, in which we have implicit confidence, is hardly sufficient justification for our relinquishment of responsibility in the matter. The calling of house meetings by the committee to find out the views of the student body is a significant indication that we have not made our wishes clear. Is it that we haven't any opinions, or merely that we aren't interested enough to express them? It is not to be expected that the enthusiasm manifest at the first meetings in January should still continue, but if there was anything behind it, it must have tempered down to a quiet, (Continued on Page 7, Col. 1) intelligent interest. If, on the contrary, it has degenerated into indifference, it is time for us to wake up, and save the luxury of spring fever until after this problem has been satisfactorily settled. ’24.

YEN CHING

To the Wellesley College News:

Wellesley has apparently, within her student body, three attitudes toward her sister college in China. The first is the blissful one of simple and unfettered ignorance. "Yen Ching" is a Chinese enigma either unheard of, or incomprehensible. The second attitude omits sympathy, but includes signs of slight intelligence. There is the knowledge that Yen Ching is some sort of a college somewhere in China, that Wellesley, for some mysterious reason, calls it her "sister college," and that probably Wellesley sends her some uncertain portion of the Service Fund. That attitude might prove hopeful, were it not that at this point stops all intelligence and all interest. The superior possessors of the third attitude are really fairly intelligent, have a microscopic amount of sisterly affection, and when called upon to become interested obligingly obey. But when we seek, in Wellesley, an earnest, active enthusiasm for Yen Ching, our sister college, we seek in vain. In Yen Ching College each girl knows what Wellesley is, and that, to foster international friendship, Wellesley has adopted her own college as a sister. "Wellesley must be a haven of idealism," thinks the Yen Ching girl. "Let us be like Wellesley." Do we, who form this Utopian college, make it worthy of such tribute? To be Yen Ching's sister is to be her model. It means that step-singing has already been adopted there, that perhaps Tree Day, Debate, May Day, Float Night in Yen Ching will follow. Do we care? If we ever become sufficiently self-reproachful to seize what opportunities may arise, we may find that Yen Ching is worthy of attention. Let us all be on the watch for a week that is coming soon, when we may show that Yen Ching means as much to us as we mean to her. In the meantime, let us inform ourselves. Let us find out what and where is Yen Ching. Let us find out what it means to have a sister college. ’24.

SHAKESPEARE AND T. Z. E. HOLD PROGRAM MEETINGS

Saturday evening, April 8, Shakespeare and T. Z. E. Societies held program meetings. At Shakespeare three papers were given: one on Shakespeare News, by Edith Meyer, ’23, and Winifred Van Horsten, ’23, one on Livy by Laura Dwight Sherrard, ’23; and one on Richard II and Hyperion by Muriel Morris, ’22. The papers were followed by three scenes from Cymbeline, coached by Adelie Eichler, ’22.

At T. Z. E. an art program was given. Three pictures were reproduced: Head of an Italian Girl, by Duveneck; Zephaniah, from Abbe's Frieze of the Prophets, and one of Sargent's Sisters from King Lear.

FUND THEATRE PARTY A SUCCESS

Legitimate New Yorkers and other representatives of Wellesley straying to the big city for spring vacation report that the theatre party announced for Monday night, April 3, at the Metropolitan, came off with flying colors. Not only was the house packed, a good sign for the Fund, but a show of Wellesley spirit on the part of both students and alumnae pervaded the air between acts. The curtain, decorated with a large Wellesley banner, evoked the college enthusiasm of the audience, who sang the usual repertoire. The sale, by usheresses during intermissions, of candy and "Wellesley beau" ribbon tied in bows, materially assisting both spirit and proceeds, was a feature of the occasion.

The theatre party was under the direction of Mrs. Louis Carney and a committee of alumnae. Betty Parsons, '22, was undergraduate member.

HONOR SCHOLARSHIPS FOR 1922

ANNOUNCED

Honor Scholarships have been established by the College for the purpose of giving recognition to a high degree of excellence in academic work, and of showing appreciation of loyalty to the high intellectual standards that the College seeks to maintain.

1. These honors fall into two classes. The students in the first, or higher class, are termed Durant Scholars. Students in the second class are termed Wellesley College Scholars.
2. These honors are awarded to seniors on the basis of two and one-half years' work, and to juniors on the basis of one and one-half years' work.
3. The standard in each case is absolute, not competitive.
4. All courses in the College are on the same footing.

ESSAY CONTEST ANNOUNCED ON CHINESE JUSTICE
Admiral Ts'ai Ting-kan Offers Prize to College Students

Admiral Ts'ai Ting-kan, who was one of the first Chinese students to come to the United States in 1873 and who was a member of the Chinese delegation at the Washington Conference, has offered a prize of $200 for the best essay on the subject, "International Justice For China." The conditions are as follows: 1. The contest is open to undergraduates of any nationality in all American colleges and universities. 2. The essays should not be longer than 2500 words and all manuscripts should be typewritten on one side of the paper. 3. The name, address, college and endorsement of the college registrar of each contestant should be typewritten on a separate sheet of paper and attached to the manuscript. The envelope in which the contestant's essay is mailed should be labeled, "Prize Essay Contest." 4. Contestants are advised to keep copies of their essays. Asia cannot be responsible for manuscripts that are lost or for the return of those submitted in the contest. 5. All essays must be mailed to reach the office of Asiatic, 627 Lexington Avenue, New York City, not later than May 15, 1922. 6. The award of the prize will be announced in the August, 1922, issue of Asia.

Letter Formed by Trees
A giant letter S, with dimensions running into hundreds of feet, is to be outlined in evergreen trees planted on Nittany Mt., next spring, by students of Pennsylvania State. The letter is to stand as the college symbol, and a traditional emblem.

Conference Held
A conference for the Intercollegiate issue of the "Round Table" was held recently at Mt. Holyoke. Representatives were present from Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar, Barnard and Mt. Holyoke.

New Chapel Planned
Princeton is to erect a new chapel to replace the one burned down two years ago. The new chapel will be virtually a small cathedral, and will cost more than one million dollars.

Another Anti-Man Club
A "Dateless Club" is the latest fad of co-eds at the University of Pennsylvania. This mysterious organization bans "mere men" from the society of its members on Wednesday and Saturday evenings, the "regular" evenings for the co-eds.

Plan for Campus Theatre
The University of Michigan is to have a campus theatre costing $400,000. Plans are now under way for this building, which will house campus productions, and give Michigan the lead in dramatic work.

BURLEIGH'S WATER COLORS TO BE SHOWN AT MUSEUM
An exhibition of water colors by Sydney Richmond Burleigh will be on view in the gallery of the Museum from April 5th through May 6th, 1922.
