FLOAT NIGHT PAGEANT TO TELL STORY OF STARS

The story which the pageant of floats will tell this year describes the mythology of the constellations, each star representing a mythical character who retains or her present shape either as a punishment of misdeeds or reward of virtue. The constellations depicted are Cassiopeia, Andromeda, Orion, Pleiades, Oceanus, Virgo and Boötes, Delphinus, Calisto, Arianne, Lyra, and Capricornus.

The program for Float Night will be as usual. An important feature will be the parade of the Varsity Crew. Membership in this body is based on individual excellence, and selection is made from all classes. Following is the personnel of the crew:

Bow Little, Alene...
2 Davis, Rebecca...
3 Mayne, Miriam...
4 Crosby, Hilda...
5 Richards, Alice...
6 Bates, Barbara...
7 Hastie, Elizabeth...

FUNERAL OF BEATRICE CHRISTIAN HELD MAY 25

The funeral services of Beatrice Christian, '23, who was drowned while swimming in the lake on Tuesday, May 25, were held in Houghton Memorial Chapel at nine o'clock on May 25. The Reverend Stanley Fisher of the Wellesley Congregational Church officiated. The service was a short but beautiful one. In his prayer, Dr. Fisher spoke of Beatrice's contribution to the college community, of the great loss it has sustained. Six of her closest friends, Margaret Fauer, Dorothy Holloway, and Dorothy Lakens of the class of 1922, Mabel Robbins, '23, and Betham Paris and Clara Lakens, '24, acted as pall bearers. The class of 1922 attended in caps and gowns, leaving the chapel first, and proceeding to East Lodge, where they waited on both sides of the road for the hearse to pass.

BARN PLAN TO BE RETAINED

As a result of all-college voting, the present Farm Plan is to be retained. Its two-year trial has evidently proved satisfactory, for it was passed with a tremendous majority.

COMMITTEE MAKES ONE REVISION IN FACULTY-STUDENT AGREEMENT

Lays Seven Constitutional Changes before the House

At a memorable meeting of the House of Representatives, which met both afternoon and evening of May 25, the results of the work of the Committee which was organized in January to fulfill the demand of an all-college mass meeting for the purpose of discussing revisions of the Faculty-Student Agreement, were presented by Emmanuile Luce, president of the College Government Association. The only actual change made in the Agreement was in the clause relating to the faculty the power over the public health, safety and chaperonage of students. The word "chaperonage" was dropped out, authorizing the faculty to legislate concerning public health and safety alone. This was passed provisionally pending the acceptance of the Agreement by the faculty and students.

Judicial Body Voted

In addition to this change in the Faculty-Student Agreement, the Committee suggested many changes in the constitution of the College Government. The present system of House and council meetings and two-year terms is to be abolished. Instead of the present system there will be a Senate as now and a Juridical Committee consisting of a senior chairman, a second, two junior and three faculty representatives with the president and vice-president of College Government as officers. The objections to this system were: that the machinery would be too complicated, that there would be an overlapping of energy, the difficulty of procuring adequate material for membership, etc. These, however, were overruled and the motion passed.

Legislative Machinery

As before, all legislation is to be initiated in the House of Representatives, but there is to be a standing legislative committee of the House to consider all legislation proposed by not less than twenty-five members of the College Government Association or by the Academic Council. All measures dealing with chaperonage are to be introduced by the House through its Legislative Committee by the Academic Council. A change has also been made in the veto power, but like the change in the Faculty-Student Agreement, was passed without the proviso on the previous and the Senate. If defeated in the House a measure is to pass to the Senate for further action. If the Senate then takes action contrary to this of the House, the measure is to be returned to the House for reconsideration. If the House reaffirms its adverse vote the measure is to be returned to the Senate for further consideration when any of the faculty members of the Senate may jointly appeal to the Academic Council for decision. A proposed amendment to the Constitution is to be postponed at least one week before it is to be presented for discussion and the vote to be taken until at least one week after its first discussion. A two-thirds majority vote of the House is to refer the amendment to the Association. A two-thirds majority, vote both of the Association and of the Academic Council, is required for its adoption.

Decrease House Membership

Another of the suggested amendments was the decreasing of membership of the House of Representatives to:

- Freshmen from each dining room district
- Village seniors elected by the village seniors
- Representative from each class from each house
- House presidents elected by the house presidents
- Members from each class at large

All village seniors, house presidents, editor-in-chief of the News, presidents of the Debate Club, are to be ex officio members. House vice presidents are to be chosen or approved by the Senate at the beginning of each college year and their term of office is to be one college year. Dormitory meetings may be made compulsory.

Change Chaperon Rules

In addition to these larger questions other business was transacted by the House. "Final" is to be inserted before the word "destination" in the Gray Book Rule for registration. As a suggestion to abolish Rule 2 under chaperonage "Student shall not be in any unapproved hotel outside of Wellesley after 6:30 P.M. on week days and 6:00 P.M. on Sundays without an approved faculty letter, which shall be needed until the final" is inserted."

WELLESLEY AND MT. HOLYoke PLAN RUMMAGE SALE

Wellesley and Mt. Holyoke will hold a joint rummage sale in the Wellesley Town Hall, June 8. The two colleges will divide the proceeds in proportion to the contributions of each. Wellesley girls are urged to donate their old clothing, shoes, hats, books, pictures, furniture or any other item to the best advantage. Notices telling where to put the articles to be collected will be posted on the dormitory bulletin boards, June 5.

FIRE DESTROYS COLLEGE ICE HOUSE WITH LOSS OF $3,000

The college ice house was destroyed by fire May 29. Although the exact cause of the conflagration is unknown, it is thought that electric stubs left by the workmen may have started the blaze. The building itself, valued at almost $1,000, was utterly destroyed, and $200 worth of ice was lost.

HOUSE TABLES QUESTION OF NEW HONOR SYSTEM

College Votes Down Proposal Of Required Reporting

The present and proposed Honor Systems were discussed at length at the last meeting of the House of Representatives. No final decision will be made, however, until next Fall. As it was felt that adequate decisions could not be made with the present Gray Book Rules, Blanche Schievelbein, '23, has charge of the simplification of the rules and will present her revisions to the House next year. The results of a report of the opinion on required reporting, taken in all campus houses the week previously was announced. With a total of 1291 voting the results were:

For Against
All College 622 689
Senior 157 167
Junior 324 330

(Freshman report not complete)

A slight change was made in the present honor system. The House of Representatives moved to change the wording of the honor system to "Members of the college are to be required to speak to offenders who are required to report themselves." Incoming freshmen will be informed of this Honor System in advanced. Susanna Paxton, '24, has charge of notifying them.

PLAN FOR NEW MUSICAL SOCIETY FORMULATED

May de Forest '24 Suggests Forum For Discussion of Music

The feeling that society Tau Zeta Epulon stressed the social side of its work too little and places too great an emphasis on its art, has led to the evolving by May de Forest, '24, of plans for a new society of music. Such an organization would concern itself entirely with the study of music and make the spreading of a wider and more definite interest in music throughout the college its object. One of its main features would be a sort of forum in which discussion of composers and compositions would be held, and in which students could learn more of what is being done in music now the world at large.

"I feel sure that there are many people in the college who would like such an opportunity to know more of what is being done in the field of music and that many would like to have a chance to express their opinions," declared May de Forest, when interviewed as to the purpose and details of her new plan. All students who are interested in the formation of such a society are urged to confer with her about the practical working out of such a plan and to give her any suggestions they may have.
COMMITTEE MAKES ONE REVISION IN FACULTY-STUDENT AGREEMENT

(Continued From Page 1) "chaperon" was sent to the Senate. It was felt that all places in Boston were covered by Rule 1, b: "A student must register under an approved chaperon for absence from her hours of residence after 7:30 P.M. outside the village of Wellesley. If the student is staying away for the evening, she must meet her chaperon by 6:30 P.M., unless she is staying at an approved place." and places outside Boston were not deemed objectionable. A similar motion to abolish Rule 3 concerning chaperonage for evening riding, was passed. This rule seems inadequate to meet the problem at hand.

RADIO CONCERTS AT WELLESLEY MAY MATERIALIZE NEXT YEAR

According to plans formulated by the Physics Department in response to the growing student interest in radio, September 1922, may mark the beginning of the open season for radio at Wellesley.

Miss McDowell, head of the department, stated in a recent interview that they propose to complete the receiving set with a speaking attachment next fall. This attachment was successfully demonstrated at a radio lecture by Miss McDowell, May 17, when an audience of students heard concerts and lectures broadcast from stations in Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York.

A second radio lecture is planned by Miss McDowell for the fall, and with the speaking attachment in the possession of the department a schedule of radio concerts open to the entire college may well materialize. The capacity of the Geology Lecture Room will limit the number in the audiences, but it is suggested that an serial be set up over Billings Hall and larger audiences accommodated. With the completion of the Student-Alumnae Building provisions might well be made for installing the set and giving concerts in that building.

M. MORIZE PLEADS FOR BETTER UNDERSTANDING OF FRANCE

Explains True Post-War Situation

"Because of misunderstandings between France and America, we have not only to speak of France, but to defend and plead for France with you," declared M. Andre Morize of Harvard, in his lecture on "The Case of France." On Friday, May 26. In order to present to an American audience the true facts about post-war conditions in France, he outlined briefly the history of that nation from the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918, to the present time, and explained the problems confronting it then and now.

In 1918, France won the war," was the emphatic statement which began this history. M. Morize explained that he considered that France had won the war, not because she did not have help from her allies, but because she had to suffer the largest amount of sacrifices and burdens. More than a million and a half men were killed on the frontier, and the same number crippled and disabled forever, the best part of French territory, which used to pay 27% of France's taxes, was destroyed, and France was and is overwhelmed by a tremendous burden of debt.

Problems of the Nation

"France came to the Peace Conference with a clear notion of two problems which she had to face, first, the problem of security, or guarantee, for the future, and second, the problem of reparations," to have a plan of Poch and Clemenceau, to have a strip of Germany made neutral territory between France and Germany in order to prevent the possibility of further attack, was rejected at the Conference, in behalf of the principle of national sovereignty, and in return France was offered two things. These were the League of Nations, the disarmament of Germany, and an alliance between France, England, and the United States, saying that in case of unjust invasion France would be helped by the United States and Great Britain. But these remedies turned out to be disappointments, and added to those problems, France had that of the payment of the German indemnity. The defensive alliance was rejected by the United States Senate; as M. Morize declared: "The Treaty of Versailles was killed, murdered at Washington a few days after its birth." The League of Nations, where it was important to France, was also rejected by the United States. German disarmament was found to be only nominal, since discoveries of huge guns, periscopes, tanks of liquid chlorine, and a military police force showed that Germany was secretly keeping up her armament. And the payment of the German indemnity does not seem to be forthcoming today except by force, while England, having gained the colonies and the destruction of the German navy and merchant marine, is not helping France to get her reserved reparation from Germany.

FRANCE NO MORE MILITARISTIC

France is not spending any undue sum on armaments, but is merely striving to provide adequate self-protection. "We want people to realize that France is not a militaristic nation. The great number of French people want peace, but the country is still suffering and bleeding. France wants to live again and set to work, she needs help. She doesn't want pity or admiration, but she wants justice."

chose a student-faculty committee to represent Wellesley at Junior Month in New York City this spring. Junior Month is run by the New York Charity Organization Society at 165 East 22nd Street. Miss Clare Trowbley, who spoke to the students this spring on the profession of social work.

From July 4 to August 2 ten girls from the different colleges will live together at Junior House in New York, and through field work, lectures, and trips will be given a panoramic view of the broad field of social work. Their expenses are paid by the society, and the juniors are chosen for the opportunity by a student faculty committee at each college. This committee carefully considers the qualifications of all the juniors who apply, before deciding which one shall represent the college in New York.

At first glance the difference of one word between the old and the new Faculty-Student Agreements does not appear an especially significant result for four months of work. The mere removal of chaperonage from the powers reserved to the faculty seems less a change in the fundamental basis of Agreement than a compromise achieved by the concession of one sore point.

Yet even if this were all that had been accomplished, it would be more than any but the blindest optimist could contemplate. Though the vered phrase "public health and safety" still stands, the student body may chafe under it less, having been brought to realize by the tragedy of the recent accident the terrible weight of responsibility which rests on those to whom control is given.

The committee has done its work ably. The changes in legislative and judicial machinery which its proposed amendments to the constitution involve are designed to meet practical obstacles to the working out of the College Government theory. With the initiation of laws confined to the House of Representatives, through the standing committee, and the veto of the faculty, though absolute, so arranged that it will only be used in cases of grave importance, the most favorable conditions are guaranteed for future development of student power.

If the changes recommended by the Committee and passed by the House of Representatives are carried out by the Academic Council and by the students, the latter will be entrusted with virtual complete control of the extremely important question of chaperonage. This is a definite change in the status of the student body and a step they can do with it, and by analogy, with extended powers in the future. In such a situation it will hardly be the best move to reject the half loaf, and refuse to live up to the present arrangement because it does not embody all the features of one's pet ideal. It is not difficult to recognize the saneness of gradual emancipation. No green pilot is permitted to make his first flight a solo.

THE DEADLOCK

The college, apparently, has bitten off more than it can successfully chew. Revision in one year of the Faculty-Student Agreement and of the Honor System is too much to ask of a community whose other interests loom so large. Accordingly, following the split vote on required reporting as the basis of a new Honor System, the House has tabled the decision until next year.

It is quite true that in the crowded spring term time is lacking to give so serious a matter as a new Honor System adequate consideration. If the hollowness of the vote points to a deadlock, and it seems a dreary business to be coming back in the fall with it all to do over again, at least there is encouragement in the fact that practically the whole college has shaken out and aired its principles. Much of the preliminary thinking has been done; each student has taken a definite stand on the truth to required reporting; and the need for a simplified Gray Book and a less unwieldy House of Representatives has been expressed and provided for.

Meaningful action by a changed college does away with the ambiguity of the former degree of honor, the college is enabled to limp along a little longer under its refurbished, if shabby, Honor System.

There is, we believe, a deeper reason for the divided opinion in college as to the form of a new Honor System. It will be futile to go on debating ways and means while the students continue to resent and to break rules which they feel to be, if not unjust, at least unnecessarily complicated. It is claimed by many who favor and would stand for an Honor System on general principle, that in Wellesley's specific case the mass of involved legislation contained in the Gray Book binds and hampers at every turn, without in any sense meeting the situations for which it was inserted. The college books with singular unanimity to a simplified Gray Book as the solution of all its difficulties, and confidently expects with that achieved an Honor System based on required reporting will be unnecessary.

THE WELLESLEY COLLEGE NEWS

AN APPRECIATION

A shadow has been cast over the closing days of college studies by the sudden passing of Beatrice Christian. Devoted to her college work, and eagerly looking forward to a career of usefulness, she was quickly called away; and, just as was her custom to answer promptly the roll-call of her classes, so she quietly responded to the higher summation.

To the casual observer, Miss Christian evinced a modest and unobtrusive personality, of gentle and refined manners. As one came to know her more intimately, however, other qualities of character were constantly revealed. With her mind intently fixed upon the highest ideals, she strove to realize these ideals by faithful and conscientious work and by careful attention to every incidental detail. Punctually present at every class appointment, she was ever ready in response; and though by nature shy and retiring, she shrived no task to which she was assigned.

While she thus strove to do her best in all her studies, her natural gifts attracted her especially toward music. Expert as a pianist, she continued the study of this instrument during her junior and senior years at Wellesley, continually growing in dexterity and musical insight, and developing a strength of execution that bled her somewhat fragile stature. On the day of the accident, at her piano lesson, she discussed her future musical work, and confidently proposed plans for further advancement in the days after graduation.

Thus, though her career was cut so short, she yet had time to enrich the world by the example of a beautiful character, which reacted in its fineness upon all her friends and associates. And we who mourn her loss may well phrase our sad parting in the words of Euripides' Medea:

"Pardon! Our eyes have seen thee as thou art,
A gentle and a righteous heart."

A Gateway to Progress

There it stands—a simple forty-foot gateway but unlike any other in the entire world. Through it have come many of the engineering ideas that have made this an electrical America.

The story of electrical development begins in the Research Laboratories. Here the ruling spirit is one of knowledge—truth—rather than immediate practical results. In this manner are established new theories—tools for future use—which sooner or later find ready application.

The great industries that cluster around Niagara Falls, the electrically driven battleships, the trolley cars and electrified railways that carry millions, the lamps that glow in homes and streets, the household conveniences that have relieved women of drudgery, the labor-saving electrical tools of factories, all owe their existence, partly at least, to the co-ordinated efforts of the thousands who daily stream through this gateway.

MEMBERS OF FACULTY PLAN TO STUDY AND TRAVEL

The plans for many of the faculty, who will be away next year either temporarily or permanently, have been made known. Study and travel seems to be the object of most of them. Mr. Hamilton C. Maedoung of the Music Department, accompanied by his son, will sail on July 4 on the Agulinhac to study and travel in Europe for the summer and fall.

Miss Avery of the Art Department will go to Egypt, France, and Greece for further study.

Miss Kendrick of the Bible Department, after traveling in Europe, will teach at Yenching College, Peking, China.

Miss Merrill of the Mathematics Department intends to visit and study at Cambridge, England, and in Paris and Rome.

Miss Miller of the German Department will stay in Germany.

Miss Lowater of the Physics Department will do individual research work in the Imperial College of Science in South Kingston, England, on spectroscopy.

Miss Manwaring of the English Composition Department will spend her time studying at Yale.

Miss Sherwood and Miss Shackford of the English Literature Department will winter in Italy.

Miss Walton of the Art Department will spend the summer in Spain, and the winter studying in Rome and Egypt.

Miss Kanan of the Zoology Department will do graduate work for a degree in Columbia University.

Two of the members, who are leaving permanently, Miss Palomo and Miss Blodgett, will be married this summer.

Miss Hughes of the English Department will take charge of the Literature Department of Bryn Mawr College.

Miss Kelly of the English Department is leaving to be head-mistress of Bryn Mawr School, Pa.

SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY GIVES “CYMBELINE”

Shakespeare Society presented “Cymbeline” at its semi-open meeting on Saturday evening, May 27. The play was given out-doors on the Guest House lawn.

Considering that the play contains a large majority of non-characters, the cast achieved great success. Imogen was the only woman character who had a prominent part. Mildred Darrat, who played this part, made the scenes in which she appeared especially vivid and delightful. Imogen is the third longest woman’s part in Shakespeare. The sureness and confidence with which the lines of this character were rendered proved the ability of the actress. Marion Johnson as Cleen was excellent in her comedy part. Dorothy Muzey appealed to the audience as the impetuous youth Arviragus. Adele Ehrlich played the part of the villain, Iachimo, with conspicuous ability.

The role of Pisano was well handled by Carr Iglehart, whose struggle between duty and inclination was one of the most moving elements of the play.

The romantic atmosphere of the play was well maintained by effective costuming, as well as by the beauty of the scene. Although the cutting was most judicious, the final scene was somewhat too long in proportion to the rest of the play.

A large measure of credit for the performance goes to Adele Ehrlich, coach. Mrs. Hunt of the Reading and Speaking Department assisted her.

The cast follows:

Cymbeline, King of Britain, Frances Sturgis
Cloten, son to the Queen, by a former husband .......... Marian Johnson
Posthumus Leonatus, a gentleman, husband to Imogen ...... Irene Ott
Belarius, a banished Lord disguised under the name of Morgan .......... Catherine McLennan
Guiderius and Arviragus, sons to Cymbeline, disguised under names of Polyoferc and Cadwal, supposed sons to Morgan .......... Helen Soudler, Dorothy Muzey
Philario, friend to Posthumus; Jachimo, friend to Philario, Italians .......... Adele Ehrlich
Caius Lucius, general of the Roman forces .......... Margaret Hoops

“Say it with Flowers”

Memories of the events of these last few June days will live when you “Say it with Flowers.” Make these hours of delight living memories for the years that follow.

The many delightful parties and dances require settings for harmony and beauty. Flowers and floral decorations are a necessary part.

SOCIETY MASS MEETING FAVORS NEW SOCIETY

At a joint meeting of the six societies held Monday evening, May 22, the question of whether or not the present societies wish another society to be formed in Wellesley was discussed, and a motion carried to the effect that the societies would sponsor any new society, and help it by giving the use of their houses.

Pauline Watkins, president of the Intersociety Council, presided over the meeting. Questions of the basis of the new society and its membership were discussed. In conclusion the societies voted to leave the matter of presenting the societies' views to the classes to Miss Dennis, Miss Conant, and the president of the Intersociety Council.

At meetings of the juniors and seniors, held Thursday afternoon, May 25, Miss Dennis outlined the society system and spoke on the question of the formation of a new society.
