PRESENT RULE BEST IS DECREE OF HOUSE

OBJECTIONS OUTWEIGHT ADVANTAGES, WHEN SUGGESTED FULL ENFORCEMENT IS CONSIDERED

That legislation should go into effect two weeks after enactment as in the past, was the decision of the House of Representatives during a meeting of November 18. The suggestion of the Legislative Committee made several weeks ago, that all rules should remain in force until the first Monday in December, was defeated by an almost unanimous vote. Discussion was brief, Yaw and Smith voted for and against, and the House adjourned for three weeks, and it was felt that the issue had been met with more favor. Sceptical men disliked the view that constitutional legislation would prove useless in practice than in theory. The point was made that rules are not put through by force, but that they are made are so much an expression of student opinion that they deserve immediate enforcement and are likely to be dissolved. The question of the citizenship system and the question of senior privileges are now to be taken up by the House. Likewise, the House of Represenatives will serve as a collection of student opinions and the discussion of 72 rules and others, and the budget, and subjects alike are now to be taken up.

NEW ENGLAND ARCHITECTURE HAS OWN DISTINCTIVE TYPE

An illustrated lecture to be given under the auspices of the English Department, by Mrs. Eliza Rogers, Lecturer in the History of Architecture, will be given on November 30, and December 1 at the Alpha Kappa Pi Carnival-Bazaar. Many technical and artistic articles, priced at one dollar or under, may be bought. Other features will be a raffle, with prizes including an etching of William Morris, a dinner at the new restaurant in Boston, which possesses a type of architecture which is entirely unique and which will be found nowhere else in the world. Many beautiful examples of this type of architecture may be found in the vicinity of Wellesley. Many Wellesley students come from sections of the United States where the architecture is entirely different from that of New England. Mrs. Rogers will show slides illustrating New England architecture to enable such students to recognize it better. The whole is expected to be a great success. Mrs. Rogers will take her subject "The Architecture of the New England States". The committee has been planning this for a year, and want to make it possible for a national exchange of ideas on this type of architecture, and also to have it known that there is an opportunity for a privilege, but a challenge to Wellesley's own architect, who must reply to this challenge with techniques.

The plan is for each of the three upper classes to elect one delegate, one who would represent truly the best kind of College can offer. Voting for delegates will take place at the last table on Friday, November 13th.

There are opportunities to attend our conference for any girl who is interested and would be willing to figure her own trip. If you are planning to be near Wellesley at the time of the conference or want to attend the conference simply for information in the Christian Association office, or from Ethel Marie Henderson, please register as soon as possible. This is the only way to make use of the car. Some of the car's most valuable features are:

1. A comfortable, stylish coach with plenty of seating. The car's spacious interior, designed for comfort, allows for easy conversation.
2. Mainstreaming capabilities, enabling the car to accommodate passengers of a wide range of backgrounds and abilities. This feature makes the car accessible to different groups, ensuring inclusivity.
3. A fully equipped kitchen, allowing for a variety of food options and catering to different dietary needs.
4. Entertainment systems, including comprises of laptops, providing wireless access to the internet and multimedia content.
5. A modern restroom, ensuring convenience for those traveling for extended periods.

To join the car, please register as soon as possible. The deadline for registration is November 13th.

Do you have questions or concerns about the car? Please feel free to reach out for assistance. The car's primary objective is to provide便利, comfort, and a memorable experience for all participants. We look forward to your participation and see you in the car soon!
MISS JOHNSON EXPLAINS THE FUNCTIONS OF PRESS BOARD

Since many members of the college have no clear idea of the function of the College Press Board and the relationship between its organization and that of the College NEWS, the committee in charge of selecting new members of the Press Board for the current year have requested me to explain certain points.

Members of the Press Board, whose headquarters are at Administration building, the Office of Publicity—responsible for Boston and other large city newspapers—all news from the college, received for such items as the page prior, the standard rates for each copy. Their aim is to make Wellesley press as fairly representative as possible of the true interests and ambitions of the college community. Thus through pictures as well as news stories, alumni and other friends of Wellesley College learn in one of the leading newspapers what the college is doing academically, socially, and socially.

As a part of the Publicity Office this Press Board thus acts as the official medium of distribution of college news to the outside world. Any request for statements on college subjects, of news of college members, or pictures for school growth of individuals should be referred to a member of the Press Board, which is under the supervision of the Director of Publicity and its assistant Miss Elizabeth M. Rogers.

Ostrich Evening Bags, Scarfs, Clocks, Powder Puffs and Puffs and many other novelties. Also unusual French Christmas Cards all ready for your approval in

THE LITTLE FRENCH SHOP Wellesley Arcade

MISS ROPER is in charge of the photograph copy connected with publicity. Press Board members are required for the current year: Dorothy Drain, '27, chairman; Mary Roston '27; Juliet Donahue '27; Helen Palmer '27; Justine Smith '27; Katherine Hart Adams '27; Ruth Graham '27; Margaret Lankin '27; Katherine Cohen '27; Helen Prim '28.

For those interested in journalism the Press Board offers practical experience through actual reporting and thorough contact with the various city editors with whom the student reporters have frequent conferences.

Though there is no direct connection between the College NEWS and the Press Board, there is a very cordial spirit of mutual interest and cooperation. Members of both organizations have found their college report experience of some value as preliminary training for positions in various branches of journalism.

Edith G. Johnson, Director of Publicity.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE NEWS

The 15th annual meeting of the Women's National Political Education Fund for Student Government was held at Trinity College, Washington, D. C. Representing the college were Pres. C. G. Professor and G. C. President, as well as Mrs. National Congress. The chief purpose of the organization is to encourage the study of student government problems.

At the meeting a series of talks on the role of student government were given by various speakers, including Mr. John N. T. Jones, representing the American Student Government. The talks were followed by a discussion of the various problems facing student government today.

The meeting was attended by representatives from colleges throughout the country.

REVIVING ACADEMIC INTERESTS

The idea that college is a stepping-off post of learning and a place of constant monotonous and tediously, especially in the prominent women's college which has a uniform and consequently consequent greater desirability because of the facilities of the institution.

The faculty, we take for granted, has always considered the major value of college students to be their employment. However, the students who have been out of college too long to make the distinction between the academic and the professional interest in college can do much to maintain its excellence.

The Student Curriculum Committee, the most prominent group of students independent of the student body, is attempting to revitalize the academic interests at college, is beginning its sec-

The Student Curriculum Committee does not want to have the student body consider such an activity to be a leisure activity, but to make the student body participate in the academic interest and questions and issues which have relation to the college in general, not only to the college administration, and not only to the student body but the College Government as a whole. It provides the interested, interaction oriented attitude towards academic interest.

A SECRET

One of the most interesting features of a valuable week-end at Vassar College was the Intercollegiate News Conference, which was held last spring. The chairman of the conference was William McPhee of "Literature," and he arranged for the participation of all the students, with special emphasis on the women's colleges.

The conference was opened with the "Problem of the Week," which was posed by the chairman. The problem was to write a story that should be read by a student, but should be read by no one else. The stories were read, and the best one was selected by the judges.

The conference was then divided into two sections, one for the women's colleges and one for the men's colleges. The women's section was chaired by Miss Meyer, and the men's section by Mr. Black. The women's section was divided into three parts: the "Problem of the Week," the "Question of the Day," and the "Miscellaneous Section.

The "Problem of the Week" was a short story, written by a student, and it was to be read by a friend of the student, but not by anyone else. The stories were read, and the best one was selected by the judges.

The "Question of the Day" was a question that was to be answered by the student. It was to be answered in a short essay, and it was to be read by the student.

The "Miscellaneous Section" was a section where the students could write anything they wanted to. It was to be read by the student.

The conference was then closed with a speech by the chairman, who thanked everyone for attending the conference.

The conference was a valuable week-end for all the students, and it was a success.

The Theater

REPERTORY—The afternoon in a Lot with Maud Allan. By Rudyard Kipling and Sidney Blackall. Directed by Rudyard Kipling and Sidney Blackall. Designed by Lillian Russel. Produced by the Autograph Theatre, with Lillian Russel and Emma Gruber. There was a note of subtle humor in the performances of Miss Rusell and Miss Gruber that was most enjoyable.

_NATURAL BUSINESS_

As a rule, a woman, when she meets another woman, serves the "alternative sex" as an inferior animal in every way, and as the "intellectual" sex, of the men, in the setting of This Woman Business. The play has just come to the St. Louis after a successful run in London and seems to have not only all the qualities of dialogue and action but also has the keenness of a novelist (and finished fiction essentials) on an absolutely new undertone.

Into the bachelor's paradise where the misogynist has only a few women to choose from, a sensational young woman who "all things to all men," and her friend, is a "one." She is a daughter of the aged and returned bachelor whose one love affair was thirty years ago. A mother who has tied her domesticated married men with seven diagonals; a sister to the whimsical and bumbling bachelor, the clerk's busy man; a "great ideal" to the woman in search of a "sensuous" mate and "something more" to the host, whom we shall find at the annual dinner party, the bachelor of the eighty-six-year-old judge, who after his first case knew all about women, is still able to express his love for all women. "She's a hoot," and "I'd be a fool not to like her." The搬 home is made of the group of "clear and honest" talents and "playmates" is faithfully led up to a final curtain presentation, and an astounding artistic ending.

Such a play with such a cast of distinctly typical persons, offers excellent opportunity for clever and acute dramatic writing, and this character fails to fit into the scheme and perform his function not only to the disappointment of the audience but to the disappointment of the writer. The whole is accomplished by Miss Rusell and Miss Gruber, the eighty-six-year-old judge, who after his first case knew all about women, is still able to express his love for all women. "She's a hoot," and "I'd be a fool not to like her." The搬 home is made of the group of "clear and honest" talents and "playmates" is faithfully led up to a final curtain presentation, and an astounding artistic ending.

The Theater

The performance of "This Woman Business" was a delight to the audience. The acting was excellent, the dialogue was clever, and the production was well directed.

 Haramay DRAMATIC CLUB will give a FAREWELL, "ORANGE COMEDY"

The Orange Comedy will be the last production of the Dramatic Club this season. The play, a modern farce by Gilbert Vines, has been a great success and offers great opportunity for development by the college dramatics.

The Orange Comedy was written by a student who has been before seen on the American stage. It has been completely revised by Gilbert Gilde, who, according to the script, has an amusing, versatile, humorous character, which will be enjoyed by both students and faculty.

Many of the institutions of modern style and the modern mode of writing have been reduced to a simple, unadorned, and efficient form. The play includes scenes from the stage, in which the students are employed as actors, critics, and audience; and the realistic, humorous, and romantic scenes are included.

This adaptation of the Orange Com-edy will be presented as a farewell to the student body and to the faculty.

DEMAND IS ALWAYS GROWING FOR PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING

Miss Hodgson, of the Yale School of Nursing, emphasized especially the need and great demand for trained Public Health nurses in America today, in her talk given under the auspices of the Personnel Bureau, November 15. Public Health Nursing, as such, is a comparatively recent development and largely grew out of the work of a group of people who had been trained fundamentally for nursing. During the war the U. S. government realized the important position the Public Health Nurse held and in 1917 the Rockefeller Foundation undertook an investigation of the field. The Rockefeller Foundation decided that the best person to assume the role of health teacher in the home and community was the Public Health nurse who could bridge the gap between the scientific laboratory of the university and the home. As a direct result of this study the Yale School of Nursing was established as a part of the University and has grown by having connections with the New York Association of Public Health Nurses. The Yale School is, in a way, an experiment since it believes that the care of the sick and the prevention of illness may be taught at the same time, thus giving the student the sense of community and social obligation.

Throughout the curriculum, which is adapted to this double purpose, the idea of Public Health Nursing is stressed. In the Yale School the nurse's method of work has also been instituted and is now being taught in many advanced courses. Detailed information may be obtained in the School catalog.

MISS WHITE NEW MEMBER OF ENGLISH LITERATURE FACULTY

After receiving her doctor's degree from Radcliffe last June Miss Olive White comes to Wellesley as a new instructor in the Department of English Literature. Miss White is a Radcliffe graduate, having graduated from there in 1918, many of her classes having honors in English. She was also a Fellow in English a.M. in 1920 and 1921. Having received her B.A. in 1925, the next six years she taught English in New York, five years of which were spent in the City's High School, a large general school in Boston. During the past two years she was on the staff at the University of Denver and last year for two years she taught English at Radcliffe while she was also teaching. Last year she was awarded the Oster Prize Fellowship for work done under Professor John Kenyon and for her work, deserves to be entirely paid for and also entirely paid for her work. She is married to the late Mr. White and is living in Wellesley. Miss White was born in Boston, and has taught English at Radcliffe while she was also teaching. She is married to the late Mr. White and is living in Wellesley. Miss White was born in Boston, and has taught English at Radcliffe while she was also teaching. She is married to the late Mr. White and is living in Wellesley.

The thesis which Miss White wrote is entitled "Introduction of the Background of Middle English and the English Century Period," and it was written in Latin. The work was done under Professor John Kenyon, Head of the Department of English. As yet Miss White has not been involved in teaching her work, but she has hopes to have this opportunity in the future. The thesis took a prize at Commencement last June. This little hint is a prize won by the author of the thesis in the school of English, and it was written by the student who had graduated in the school of English. The comparatively recent recognition of Physical Education as one of the basic elements of education has made evident the absolute necessity of placing the living person or character of high thought and purpose in the positions of responsibility and far-reaching influence. At the vocational lecture on Monday afternoon, Mr. Carl Beerbrauer, the State Superintendent of Physical Education, and Physical Education in the present and in the future, and the definite contribution to the profession which is within the grasp of the student.

Above all, it offers physical, almost unlimited service. The church has only lately come to appreciate the significance of Physical Education as a power in character building and citizen training. The teacher's work is primarily prevention not uplift. One of its most important features is the teaching of positive health. She is in constant touch with her pupils, and always in her activity an example stronger than any words. Oftentimes are no better for the girl with technical ability and a tendency to serious instruction. Physical Education has also been one of the considerations of her work. For those with a broad education Physical Education does not have to be a short-lived profession. The research worker will be as rich a field for study as the teacher has for administration.

Work That Correlates

Dr. DeBakey spoke of the relation that Physical Education work bears to Physical Education. The death rate from infectious disease is decreasing, but that from degenerative disease is increasing. Weak habits of living are in a large measure responsible for the disease of old age. The Physical Education work is therefore necessary, and the medical worker to raise the quality of living.

Miss Janette Hubbell brought out the appeal of Therapeutic Exercise. One works with individuals below par. It requires a woman of the highest type and in advantageous that in it may be a part time as well as whole time. It is a given time job. At the New York College of Physical Education, work with the medical worker to raise the quality of living.

The work of Miss White is also in the field of the educational significance of physical education. She has worked with the medical worker to raise the quality of living.

THIRD PHILOSOPHY LECTURER

The third of the special series of lectures in philosophy was given by Professor Marcia Gillon on Tuesday, November 30, at 8:30 o'clock in Paine Hall, on the subject, "The Evolution and Meaning of Medieval Philosophy." Miss Gillon is Professor of Medieval Philosophy in the Sorbonne, Director of Studies at the School of Advanced Religious Study and author of several books on St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Bonaventure, and Scholasticism. He is recognized as one of the foremost authorities on Medieval Philosophy and as a Cardinale scholar. His doctoral thesis was written on Descartes and he has also published an edition of Descartes' "Meditations." He is this year exchange professor at Harvard where he is lecturing on Descartes.

This lecture is offered jointly by the Departments of French and of Philosophy. It will be delivered in English. Professor Gillon has also been invited to deliver a French lecture early in January on "The University of Paris in the 15th Century."

WOMEN'S COLLEGES MEET TO COMPARE THEIR NEWSPAPERS

Vassar College was host on November 12 and 13 to the Women's News Association, meeting in an eleven-year annual conference. Representatives of colleges in the United States and in England and France met together to discuss problems, and offered their papers for criticism and discussion. The papers were of various subjects, and included those on art, music, and general interest. Miss D. M. Blakely, Editor of the New Statesman, gave an interesting lecture on the press, the inquired discussion at the meeting of officers and board of representatives. He took up the question of just what public opinion was and the results of the papers had to its public. He said that conspicuous editorial campaigns are coming to an end, and that the papers have a duty to the public. HONOR SYSTEM AT PRINCETON IS MOST HALLOWED TRADITION

Apropos of the continual discussion which is taking place in the colleges and universities over the Honor system, it is of interest to note the opinion of that most holy system, which is apparently wholly successful. Under the "honor system" at Princeton, the university's newspapers, say, part:...

UNIVERSITY DAILY CONDENS "BULLETIN BOARD" EDITORIAL

The New Student of November 17 reprint a discussion of editorial policy from publication from the Daily Fairfield (University of Oregon).

The article says:

"Student editors of the Pacific coast, at their annual convention, held last week, recognized student expression at the publications, but denied these publishers control of the editorial polities or programs. They evidenced, at the same time, unquestioned opposition to faculty interference in publications."

"So here we have the college editors, admitting that their newspapers are open to faculty interference, because and that they hold office by virtue of their representation and refusing to accept the voice of the students as the voice of the newspaper."

"Without any hesitation on our part, we again subscribe to this policy, long long ago, but which may come back to shock to many student bodies. How far the current agreements will go, is a question, but they do have news papers are editorially, as well as from a new standpoint, more influential, boards, simply reflecting with favor, every student body opinion without contact opinion. The change will come with difficulty.

"It is clear this condition is likely to continue for several quarters, regarded as means whereby the student body, through its editor presents favorable conditions for its place. The editor is not meant to present the student body policies, nor to shape or criticize."

"How revolutionary, then, is the new method of student independence. The editors deny allegiance to the publishers, refuse in faculty interferences, in other words, they declare that they are the boss of their ideas and the editors. All this is the consequence from that rather than be bound to all students they prefer to give up their obligation.
The editors do not take this attitude to be a reflection on the general student body mind. Perhaps it is that the editors are coming the frame of mind that is a fresh air. It is referred to as "rocky."

FURTHER, they may be reasonably concurring in an appreciation of the real potentialities and duties connected with their work.

They have discovered the idea that they can do more. Students pads as a whole, they have learned, not romantically attached by precedent and emotion and are often arms (right perhaps more often).

"The editors are making an attempt to appear either as crusaders or in the usual sense. They are not "standing out," neither are they resisting the thing just to cause a flare.

This is of course a gigantic task for an editor, and an ambitious plan for a college paper. But it goes to show how influential and inspired are your editors.
