1-15-1931

The Wellesley News (01-15-1931)

Wellesley College

Follow this and additional works at: http://repository.wellesley.edu/news

Recommended Citation
http://repository.wellesley.edu/news/874

This is brought to you for free and open access by the Archives at Wellesley College Digital Scholarship and Archive. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Wellesley News by an authorized administrator of Wellesley College Digital Scholarship and Archive. For more information, please contact ir@wellesley.edu.
For Events of 1930 Stated
As Hopeful and Disastrous

In the swiftly-moving world of today, events happen in H. H. Otis Hall, place after history has run its course. They merge so quickly into the past that it is sometimes difficult to look back on what has actually been accomplished in the one just passed. This summer’s Annual Review for New York Times for January 3, 1932.

The most generally interesting field of events for New England students is the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, held in Boston, Massachusetts, on January 19, 1932. This meeting, which includes the annual meeting of the Page Memorial Kindergarten for the meeting in Boston as well as a number of special sessions, will be held on January 19, at 4:30 p.m. in the Boston Opera House.

The committee also felt that unfortunately there were no events of much importance to the college, especially in view of the decreasing enrollment in the college, which is not surprising, as the college is relatively small. However, those who have attended the college for any length of time will be interested in the current events, as they are always topical and of interest to those who are kept informed of the college’s activities. The committee is always glad to receive reports of the college’s activities and welcomes any suggestions that may be made for the improvement of college life.

Wellesley College Art Museum

There are several exhibitions currently on view at the Art Museum. One of the most interesting is "The Art of the Book," which includes a collection of illuminated manuscripts and early printed books. The exhibition is open until the end of the month.

Another exhibition currently on view is "The Art of the Camera," which includes a selection of photographs from the late 19th century to the present day. This exhibition is open until the end of the month as well.

The third exhibition on view is "The Art of the Dance," which includes a selection of dance performances from around the world. This exhibition is also open until the end of the month.

The museum is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and admission is free. The museum is located at 100 Massachusetts Avenue, Wellesley, Massachusetts. For more information, please visit the museum’s website at wellesley.edu/artmuseum.
PERRY has just returned from his vacation, and is still musing the fact that he accidentally got a berth on the Wellesley Special, and so was able to travel all the way from New York with eighty-three girls. He notes how the girls old New Year's Eve (two of them had been sick in bed), and he knows what a considerable job work would probably consider a grand Christmas present, and what kind of cottage is best suited for them. But after the last ride from the station along a little path which led out of him; so he is still going around campus asking girls what they did on New Year's. The more girls that correct them the better. Of which course makes very popular.

And lastly to energy-saving Freeman, by the way, is regarded as having made herself a cardboard signs on which is printed "Simply simple! How was yours?" which, he carried around with her the first day of her return, and raised a lot of breath.

VERY promptly after their return—on Thursday the eight, as a matter of fact—Mrs. Illingworth's MAJORS' meeting was in the village for luncheon. The party was socially as well as on a discussion inter-related, and although only seven attended, the party served to have been a success. The conversations were chosen for the moocling place, because it was thought that much would be said out of the house society. Back to the old time-saving devices the very day that society began.

PERRY has board room that one of the Wellesleyites—not a member of the faculty—has returned from vacation with a sad, added she has somehow arranged to board out on campus. Such an arrangement must indeed be a great comfort for those New England winter evenings when one sits in one's dimly-lit, armchair, unifying, or reading, or treading.

The new Ad Building, Betty Green, or, as someone is heard to call it, the back of Founders is open—but not for inspection. Many were surprised to find that visiting was strictly discouraged, out of consideration for the works that could not attend to their duties while they are being constantly disturbed by visitors and excursions.

There has been much growing and moisturizing, and the chances one can forget ever vacation. Many were heard to say that if they ever knew as much as they had forgotten they must have been geniuses. But the most encouraging news was that Perry was made by one member of the faculty who cheerfully remarked to her class that complete amnesia after vacations was quite to be expected, and that it should not worry them in the least if they remembered nothing more about their literature course than the bare facts of the existence of the English poets.

The "II Legenda" seems to be finishing its last toils—the final issue will be December. The letters have been handed in, and the last of the snapshot has been called. Another "Legenda" will soon be launched.

There is annual protest heard on campus about work assigned to be done during the vacation, and a great deal of rumor was overheard saying that it was a shame to have to think about work during vacations—that she had been advised three French books to read, and had wasted less of an hour of her precious vacation trying to decide whether or not to read them?

Lake Waban, it is said, with all the time, in the condition for skating. The snow is thick, the ice is smooth, the air is not too cold, and as yet the ice has not cracked or caused any overly-exiting adventures. Perry found one especially

Sick People Love Flowers---

"My dear, have you heard---"

Everyone's talking about it. It keeps your wardrobe ready for unexpected dates and festive weekends.

It's especially kind to allowances, for it costs very little. It saves you time, because it is collected and delivered.

Try it this week.

New-Mode Cleaning

ECONOMY CLEANING

LAKE WABAN
LAUNDRY
WELLESLEY

You can Sport a Leather Jacket for $6.75

A well-bred jacket it is too, with a button-up-in-the-clen break, deep pockets, sweater back, and plaid slacks, and ready to slip into your winter wardrobe at only 87 87.
FREE PRESS COLUMN
All contributions for this column must be signed with the full name of the contributor. All comments and statements will be used if the writer so desires. The Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the information supplied. Contributions should be in the hands of the Editors by 3 A.M. on Sunday.

COLD
To the Wellesley College News:
Much attention has been paid recently by both faculty and students to the recent kidnappings of the student, Dr. Flehner, and the four men who entered the campus. It is most unfortunate that this should occur, and that our college has been involved in an affair so distressing.

It is time that a petition against colds be passed. Petitions against colds have never been effective. We have all tried to avoid them by wearing scarves and hats, but with no success. It is time that a petition against colds be passed, and that we all work together to keep our bodies warm.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

Wellesley, Mass., March 19, 1938

Oligon

and the World

Have you ever noticed how many people you see walking down the street with colds? It seems as though everyone is sick, and it is time that something be done about it.

The cold season is upon us, and we must take steps to prevent the spread of this terrible disease. Petitions against colds must be passed, and we must all work together to keep our bodies warm.

Sincerely,
[Signature]

Wellesley, Mass., March 20, 1938

Editor's Note

The Editors of the Wellesley College News are committed to providing a platform for all voices, including those who may have been historically underrepresented in our society. We encourage all readers to engage with the content in a respectful and thoughtful manner, and to consider the impact of their words on others.

If you have any questions or concerns about the content of this column, please feel free to contact the Editors at news@wellesley.edu. We are always open to feedback and suggestions for improvement.
Wellesley College News

CALENDAR

Wednesday, January 18: 9:15 A.M. M. M. Merrick, President, Northampton College of Education, delivered the annual Address before the Faculty. C. N. 151.

Affirmation of Faith for OWU Students by Rev. J. A. Merrick, Assistant Dean, Northampton College of Education, C. N. 152.

An Address before the Faculty by Rev. O. H. F. Wellesley, Dean of the College, C. N. 153.

A Visit from the President of the University of Southern California, C. N. 155.

A Visit from the President of the University of Southern California, C. N. 156.

Friday, January 20: 9:15 A.M. C. N. 158.

Monthly Bulletin of news and selection of current events. WMC: 162.

EVENTS OF 1930 ARE REVIEWED

(Continued From Page 1, Col. 4)

July 21, and in October, the United States, carrying out her part of the agreement, scrapped her submarines and 25 smaller vessels.

World peace received another boost with the acceptance of the Young Plan by the League of Nations on May 9. The German debt was cut to 6,700,000,000, and on June 30, the French resumed the collection of debts.

Alexander Other Countries

The rest of Europe has not been so quiet. On June 4, Prince Carol of Romania took the throne from his stepson by a surprise coup and set up a new government. In Poland, on August 21, Marshal Pilsudski became actual dictator. The Spanish Republic, in a move against its enemies, was taken over by General Francisco Franco, who was not welcomed by the people of Spain or by the government. In Russia, a neighborhood party over the disintegration continued, but the communists are still in charge. In China, this year was noted for the failure of the government to control the country.

Other international affairs of importance included the new interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.

Another international affairs of importance include the new interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.

Interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.

Interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.

Interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.

Interpretation of the League of Nations, which was accepted by the member nations in December, 1928, and published in March. This new interpretation on the rights of the Central American states, after the General Assembly, at its meeting at the international meetings, had not been realized by the end of the year.