The Zoological wing of Savage Hall will be open on Friday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning January 10.

R. Alexander Campbell, Associate Professor of Art, has been appointed Assistant Field Director of the archeological excavation at Egalia and will be in charge on the site of the ancient city of Antioch in Syria this summer. Mr. Campbell, who was a member of the University's art museum, the Museum of Fine Arts, the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, and France are collaborating in the "dig." Mr. Campbell, who graduated from the University in 1926, has had a great deal of experience in the field of archeology. For two seasons, 1925-26, he was President of the Board of Trustees. He is in charge of the excavations of the Carthaginian Church of St. Martin, which was built at Antioch in the second century and burned down when a fourteen-century figure of the Virgin, very lavishly preserved and in full color, was uncovered, to the astonishment of the world of art and archeology.

The prophecies of Antioch will be carried on during the archeological session which will begin on March 1 until July. The site has never been excavated and although work must be mainly exploratory in the few months during which the work will be done from June first, the archeologists believe that the site will reward the effort. It promises a harvest of information.

The excavations will be financed through the use of a large sum of money which should do much to clear away the past which has so far obscured the true story of the early Christians, their religion and Christianity.

Professor Campbell will go to Angers for further diggings in the Church of St. Martin and will return to Wescott in September to resume his duties with the Department of Art.

EMERGENCY RELIEF DRIVE

THE COMMITTEE REPORTS

Two hundred and twenty-five pounds of canned goods have been collected.

Two girls were given two pairs of shoes and five pairs of socks.

Two girls and a baby were given two suits of clothes. The entire group of six children will be able to get the suits of clothes.

Good food is now being sent for children's diases. A truckload of goods was sent from the Society of Housewives to the Wescott Home for the aged and unemployable.

For some time there has been a question of whether all the food given is of good quality. The committee has decided to stop the delivery of food for the time being, as the question of the quality of the food must be settled before any further deliveries can be made.

Elho Signs Bill For Restoration of Credit

Unemployment work is being continued toward the knitting of sweaters of various colors, including those used for the foreign representatives in Wescott, but the national government has not made plans for any further employment until the situation in the country becomes more stable. A group of women in the factory had earned a total of $2.00 in three weeks of knitting and are now waiting for their paychecks.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, known as RFC, has been authorized to lend money to the national government, and the RFC has already lent the government $500,000. The RFC has also lent money to several banks and insurance companies, and the RFC has now authorized the banks and insurance companies to lend money to the government.

President Hoover has stated that the RFC will lend money to the government only if the government is willing to make the loans to the RFC. Manager. of all his perspicacity about the "white slaves," the types, the facts, and anything else that he believed was in his favor. His only fear was that he might not be able to explain his case in such a manner that would impress the jury, and that they might not understand the legal principles involved.

His first meeting was in the county court house, where he was arraigned on a charge of murder. He was found guilty and sentenced to the state penitentiary for life. He appealed the judgment, and after a long and bitter struggle, he was finally acquitted. He then returned to his home, where he spent the rest of his life in the company of his wife and children, and in his garden, which he had learned to love and tend with skill and care.

But there was something in the mind of the wolf which was more than a mere desire for food, or a hatred of man, or a desire for freedom; it was something deeper, something that could not be explained by any ordinary law of nature. It was the feeling of unutterable loneliness, the sense of being out of place in a world that was not made for him. And so, when he saw the sun on the horizon, and heard the cries of the birds, he would rise and go out to the mountains, to the places where he knew the other wolves were, to feel the warmth of the sun on his fur, and to listen to the songs of the birds in the trees.

And so, for many years, he lived in the mountains, and felt the joy of being free and wild. And when he died, many years later, his body was found in a tree, and the people who found it said that it was the most beautiful thing they had ever seen.
Just Before Midyears

With the approach of the midyear examination period the pressure of studies seems to increase. Most of the students on campus during the last week of classes by the work on final papers and sometimes also by engaging in last-minute examinations occurring early in the semester. It is because the Council has endeavored, therefore, to give some opportunity for extra work, by which some students may advance their standing within ten days of the beginning of the midyear examinations.

This legislation is no issue apparently being mulled in various ways by many of the students within the legal time limit, but without allowing sufficient time for the work, the students may not be able to obtain extensions, and the paper than falls due is turned in at the last minute. Students are extremely dependent of the student of that much needed time for preparation of examinations, and the Council is now considering the possibility of giving some more time to the students.

Legislation is for the benefit of all students. The rules and regulations concerning the examinations should be strictly followed.

COLEMAN-A Nadir Has Arranged
RELIGIOUS-Old French, Done Quick Moving, the former secreting to tax her with her high notes, but the latter given with much better control and interpretation. Clara Stro- macker, a student at Wellesley College, played Bach's Sarabande, from First Premium Suite, and Gigue (from First Premium Suite). The Sarabande was interpreted rather heavily, but the Gigue showed technical dexterity, and accorded well in hand. Marjorie Hesser and Patrice Phelan in a two-violin Suite antiquité, did fine work. One critic was completely dazed, and contrasted well with Matthew Dobson, who played the second. Dobson's performance showed the sustained quality of tone obtained and the skill of the two violinists. The second part was very smooth. Gigue, ending the suite, was played cripplingly and interpreted well. Horsmandan's Gigue in G Minor was played by Shirley Smythe, who did the best part of her work in the lyrical portion of the prelude. Gertrude McFarren interpreted Couperin's false D Major in A Flat in a spirited and expressive mood, with varying skill of technique. Evelyn Benet and Eunice Voss, Violins; Claire, from The Creation, by Haydn, with care. She put into Pastorale, and had the foliage demanded by the composition, and also succeeded in enunciating a bit more clearly.

The dance held on Wednesday by Miss Dorothy Mclvor, a high-strung, enthusiastic girl, added reality to the play. The dance offered the Boston's finest number for the new year-and-a very convincing, nerve- wrecking, well-staged affair, with the Crocus Club and the Crocus Club's affairs, the other boys, the Crocus Club and the Wellesley Colle- gians.

WELLESLENGRAD, MASS. FEBRUARY 1942

IN MEMORY OF SUMMONED
Great Call Goes Forth To Student Comrades!

Facility Helps Communism—Threatens All Student Aid

THERE were students at Wellesley College—some days ago—experiencing the need. The Wellesley College Student Council is an organization that works to the benefit of the whole student body. The problem is one that affects every student, from freshmen to seniors. It is a need that must be met, the need for financial aid.

The Wellesley College Student Council has been active in providing financial assistance to its members. In the past, the Council has been successful in raising money through various means, such as concerts, bake sales, and other events. The Council has also been successful in securing grants and other forms of financial support from outside sources.

This year, the Council has set a goal of raising $50,000 to support its financial aid program. The Council has already raised over $20,000 through a series of events, including a benefit concert and a bake sale.

The Council is aware of the difficulties that students face in these times of economic uncertainty. The Council believes that all students should have the opportunity to pursue their education without the burden of undue financial stress. The Council is committed to meeting the needs of its members and to providing the financial support that is necessary for their success.

The Council encourages all students to contribute to its efforts. Contributions can be made directly to the Wellesley College Student Council or through a variety of other avenues, such as online donations and other fundraising events.

The Council is grateful to all who have contributed to its efforts to date. The Council looks forward to continuing to work towards its goal of providing financial assistance to its members.

We hope that this letter brings a sense of hope and encouragement to our students. We are confident that together, we can meet this challenge and provide the financial support that is necessary for our students to succeed.

Sincerely,
The Wellesley College Student Council
