Catalog Statement
The information contained in this catalog is accurate as of July 2009. However, Wellesley College reserves the right to make changes at its discretion affecting policies, fees, curricula or other matters announced in this catalog.

Disclosure of Graduation Rate
In accordance with the Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act (Public Law 101-542), the graduation rate for students who entered Wellesley College as first-year students in September 2002 on a full-time basis was 91%. (The period covered is equal to 150% of the normal time for graduation.)

Nondiscriminatory Policies
Wellesley College admits students without regard to race, color, religion or national origin, to all the rights, privileges, programs, and activities generally accorded or made available to students at the College. The College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or sexual orientation, in administration of its educational policies, scholarship or loan programs, athletic and other college-administered programs or in its employment policies.

Wellesley College, as an independent, undergraduate educational institution for women, does not discriminate on the basis of sex against its students in the educational programs or activities in which it operates and does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its employment policies, in compliance with the regulations of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, nor does the College discriminate on the basis of handicap in violation of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Inquiries, Visits, and Correspondence

Wellesley College welcomes inquiries and visits to the College from prospective students, their parents, and other interested individuals. For those who would like more detailed information on many of the programs and opportunities described in this catalog, the College publishes a number of brochures and booklets. These publications as well as answers to any specific questions can be obtained by writing to the appropriate office as listed under "For Correspondence."

For those who would like to visit the College, the administrative offices in Green Hall and the Admission Office in Weaver House are open, Monday through Friday, 8:30 am to 4:30 pm. The Board of Admission is open on most Saturday mornings during the academic term. With the exception of a few holidays, arrangements can usually be made for prospective students to meet with Wellesley students during the College's vacation periods. Student guides provide scheduled tours for visitors without appointments. However, visitors should check the schedule online at www.wellesley.edu/Admission/ or call the Board of Admission at 781.283.2270 prior to coming to Wellesley to obtain information regarding scheduled tours and to learn more about the College. A prospective student who wishes to arrange an interview with a member of the Board of Admission should make an appointment at least two weeks in advance.

Accommodations for alumnae and for parents of students or prospective students are available on the campus in the Wellesley College Club and may be reserved by calling the College Club at 781.283.2700. For a list of area hotels and inns, please visit the Admission Web site.

The College

The mission of Wellesley College is to provide an excellent liberal arts education for women who will make a difference in the world.

Wellesley is a college for the student who has high personal, intellectual, and professional expectations. Beyond this common ground, there is no typical Wellesley student. Students come from all over the world, from different cultures and backgrounds, and they have prepared for Wellesley at hundreds of different secondary schools. Through the Davis Degree Program, women beyond the traditional college age, many with families, are part of the student body working toward a Wellesley degree. Women and men from other colleges and universities study at Wellesley through various exchange programs.

This diversity is made possible, in large part, by the College's need-blind admission policy. Students are accepted without consideration of their ability to pay. Once admitted, those with demonstrated need receive financial aid through a variety of services.

Henry Fowle Durant, Wellesley's founder, was an impassioned believer in educational opportunity for women. His strong philosophy carries over to the present day. Throughout its 130-year history Wellesley has been one of the country’s preeminent liberal arts colleges, and a distinguished leader in the education of women.

The Liberal Arts Program

In some respects, the liberal arts curriculum at Wellesley has not changed significantly since the College was founded. Though the structure of distribution requirements has evolved, the requirement that each student should be acquainted with the main fields of human interest has remained a constant. The concept of the major—the opportunity for each student to establish mastery in a single area through concentrated study during her junior and senior years—has remained consistent as well. The College is committed to this framework because it emphasizes the essence of education: the ability to speak and write clearly, the knowledge to manage quantitative data with ease, the confidence to approach new material, and the capacity to make critical judgments. These skills are essential—whatever the student chooses to do with her life.

Within this traditional liberal arts framework, the Wellesley curriculum is dynamic and responsive to social change and new fields of study. The dramatic expansion of information of the last decades has led to an increasingly interdisciplinary course of study. Single majors in traditional disciplines have been joined by double majors and specially designed interdisciplinary and interdepartmental majors. Some departments also offer minors.

The Faculty

The Wellesley faculty is a community of recognized scholars. Dedicated to teaching, they bring a vast range of academic and professional interests to the College. Many members of the faculty live on or near the campus. They are committed to all aspects of life in the Wellesley community and accessible to students outside of the classroom.

Wellesley College has a student/faculty ratio of 9 to 1. The average class size ranges from 17 to 20 students. A few popular introductory courses enroll more than 100, but these classes routinely break into small discussion groups under the direction of a faculty member. Seminars typically bring together 15 to 18 students and a faculty member to investigate clearly defined areas of interest. The low student-faculty ratio offers an opportunity for students to undertake individual work with faculty or honors projects and research.

Academic Facilities

Excellent academic facilities support learning at Wellesley and all resources are available to students. Students have access to virtually all the collections on campus through a computerized library system totaling over 1.6 million items. The holdings include more than 400 electronic databases; 13,000 electronic journals; 22,000 electronic books; 10,000 films on VHS and DVD; and 8,000 music CDs. Among the special holdings are a world-renowned Browning Collection, a Book Arts Collection, and a Rare Book Collection. Interlibrary loans through the Boston Library Consortium augment the College's own holdings.

Wellesley's strength in the sciences dates to the nineteenth century, when the College's physics laboratory was the second in the country (the first being MIT). The Science Center brings together all the science departments, including mathematics and computer science, in a contemporary setting that fosters interdisciplinary discussion and study. Laboratories are completely equipped for a wide variety of fields. The Center also includes an observatory and an extensive complex of greenhouses.

One of the first liberal arts colleges to establish a separate computer science department and computer science major, Wellesley remains at the forefront of technological development. Students and faculty in all disciplines use the College’s academic computing facilities in their courses and research. The Knapp Media and Technology Center provides state-of-the-art technology for students in courses ranging from multimedia language instruction to graphic arts.

The well-known Wellesley Centers for Women, composed of the Center for Research on Women and the Stone Center for Developmental Services and Studies, produce work of national importance about issues facing women in contemporary society.

Students in the arts find excellent facilities in the Jewett Arts Center and the Davis Museum and Cultural Center.

Academic Exchange Opportunities

The Wellesley-MIT cross-registration program allows students to combine the strengths of both institutions while remaining in residence on their own campuses. Students can complement their Wellesley majors with additional MIT courses in a variety of subjects including architectural design, urban planning, linguistics, financial accounting, computer science, engineering, mathematics, and the sciences.

The Twelve College Exchange Program brings women and men from member colleges to Wellesley for a semester or a year, and enables Wellesley students to live and study on another campus. The College also offers exchanges with nearby Brandeis University, Babson College, and Olin College of Engineering; and out of state, Spelman College, a historically Black liberal arts college for women in Atlanta, Georgia, and Mills College in Oakland, California. In addition, Wellesley students are encouraged to spend a semester or a year abroad in programs at many institutions. Approximately 45% of Wellesley College students elect to spend a semester or year abroad.
Life at Wellesley
Wellesley recognizes that classroom activities and studying are only part of a college education. The residence hall system not only provides a pleasant and comfortable place to live, but seeks to integrate academic and extracurricular life through educational programs. Residence life is administered in several ways, ranging from residence halls staffed by professional resident directors to student-run cooperatives.

Leadership opportunities are available in many areas of academic, social, and community life. For many students, the lessons learned competing on the athletic field, publishing the Wellesley News, or participating in a Wellesley-sponsored summer internship in Washington, D.C., have lifelong impact. The College encourages self-expression through over 170 established student organizations, as well as any interest that a student may choose to pursue alone or with a group of friends.

Wellesley also supports those students who investigate religious issues and thought. The Office of Religious and Spiritual Life offers religious programs in many faiths, including denominational services for those who wish to participate.

As a small community, Wellesley’s quality of life depends upon the involvement and commitment of each of its constituents. For this reason, students participate in decision making in nearly every aspect of College life. They serve, frequently as voting members, on almost every major committee of the Board of Trustees, including the Investment Committee, as well as the Academic Council, the Board of Admission, and the Committee on Curriculum and Instruction. In academic departments, they frequently participate in the curriculum and faculty search committees. They also serve on committees that set policy for residential life.

Established in 1901 by student and faculty agreement, the Wellesley College Government Association is the official organization of all Wellesley students. Through Senate, its elected representative body, College Government officers are elected each spring on a campus-wide basis; Senate representatives are elected from each residence hall and from the Davis Scholars and Wellesley off-campus students.

Alumnae Network
Each student who comes to Wellesley College joins an extended community of more than 35,000 alumnae. Some of them have been outstanding scholars and researchers, others have been businesswomen and leaders in politics and social issues, and still others have made important contributions to their communities through volunteer work. No matter how they have chosen to make their mark in the world, these women have proven that four years at Wellesley College is just a beginning.

Facilities and Resources
State-of-the-art academic facilities, ranging from creative arts media and advanced scientific research equipment, support Wellesley’s curriculum. These facilities are available to all students.

Botanic Gardens
www.wellesley.edu/WCBG
Wellesley has a long history of excellence in plant science, supported by remarkable botanical facilities. The Alexandra Botanic Garden and the H. H. Hunnewell Arboretum showcase an extensive collection of hardy trees and shrubs, and habitats ranging from wetlands to meadow to woodland. This 22-acre outdoor laboratory is complemented by the Margaret C. Ferguson Greenhouses, which contain a diverse array of plants from around the world, as well as rooms dedicated to courses and research. The gardens are an outstanding teaching facility and community resource visited by thousands each year.

Child Study Center
www.wellesley.edu/childstudy
The Child Study Center, a laboratory preschool under the direction of the psychology department, was originally designed in 1913 as a school for young children. Students and faculty from any discipline are encouraged to study, observe, conduct approved research, volunteer, or assistant teach in classes with children ages two to five. In addition to the observation and testing booths in the historic Anne Page Building, there is a developmental laboratory at the Science Center.

Classrooms
The three primary classroom buildings on campus are Founders Hall for the humanities, Pendleton Hall for the social sciences and arts, and the Science Center.

Computer Facilities
www.wellesley.edu/Computing/computing.html
Students have access to hundreds of computers across campus and wireless access in academic buildings and throughout residence halls, encouraging mobility and collaboration. Advanced computing and multimedia equipment and software are available in the Knapp Media and Technology Center, located in the Margaret Clapp Library. Information Services provides support to students who use the high-speed, campus-wide wired and wireless network from their own rooms to access electronic resources both on campus and around the world. These resources include: the College Web site; the library online catalog and full-text electronic resources; decentralized e-mail and conferencing; Element K® online courses for desktop applications, and an array of instructional software.

Continuing Education House
www.wellesley.edu/NSP
A “home on campus” for Davis Scholars and Postbaccalaureate students, CE House is a place where students gather for programs, meetings, group study, or simply conversation.

Davis Museum and Cultural Center
www.davismuseum.wellesley.edu
Located at the center of the campus, the Davis Museum is a vital force in the intellectual, pedagogical, and social life of Wellesley College. The museum’s goal is to create a challenging environment that fosters visual literacy; supports interdisciplinary study; inspires new ideas, research, discourse, and critical thinking. It is a dynamic venue where cultural pluralism forms a basis for an involvement with the arts in the academy and in life.

As the art museum of Wellesley, the Davis collects, preserves, exhibits, and interprets works of art for on- and off-campus audiences. Its collection of more than 10,000 works of art spanning 3,000 years of art history is an educational resource for the College and for the surrounding community. The museum offers innovative temporary exhibitions, newly installed permanent collection galleries in 2007, technology-based installations, films, lectures, podcasts, and publications.
Green Hall
The offices of the president, the deans, and others directly affecting the academic and business management of the College, as well as the Susan and Donald Newhouse Center for the Humanities, are located in Green Hall. The hall’s Galen Stone Tower, a focal point of the campus, rises to 182 feet and houses the carillon, which is played regularly by student carillonneurs and for major College events.

Harambee House
www.wellesley.edu/Harambee/index.html
The cultural and social center for Wellesley students of African descent, Harambee House offers programs to the entire College community that highlight various aspects of African, African American, and African Caribbean culture. Harambee has a growing library dedicated to the history and culture of African and African American peoples and a library of classical jazz by Black artists, which is located in the Jewett Music Library. Harambee House also houses various organizations for students of African descent, and Ethos Woman (a literary magazine), as well as meeting and function rooms.

Houghton Chapel and the Multifaith Center
Since its dedication in June 1899, the historic Houghton Chapel has served as a center of community life at Wellesley College. The Chapel has also provided a critical venue for College ceremonies and traditions, for concerts, lectures, and other performances. For nearly the entire history of Wellesley College, Houghton Chapel has afforded the community a spiritual space, which supports and complements the pursuit of intellectual excellence and personal growth. As indicated by the three keys given to each president of Wellesley College as she takes office (to the library, the dormitory, and the Chapel), the Chapel reflects the College’s commitment that the education of the whole person—intellectually, relationally, and spiritually—remains at the core of the mission of the institution.

In the spring of 2008, renovations were completed to Houghton Chapel including the restoration of the upper Chapel and the creation of the new Multifaith Center on the first level of the building. The Multifaith Center is a global center of learning and discovery for all people; a place for prayer, meditation, study, worship, and education. By adding new sacred spaces to our existing facilities in the Chapel and Hillel Lounge (Billings Hall), the Center provides spaces for regular gathering for all of our religious communities including Bahá’í, Buddhist, Christian (Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox, and Evangelical), Hindu, Humanist, Jain, Jewish, Muslim, Native African, Native American, Quaker, Sikh, and Unitarian Universalist groups. The Center is also home to Wellesley’s nationally recognized programs in Religious and Spiritual Life including “Beyond Tolerance,” which engages community members in programs on interfaith understanding, dialogue and conflict resolution, and “Education as Transformation,” which offers opportunities for constructing meaning through spiritual reflection and practice.

Jewett Arts Center and Pendleton West
The Jewett Arts Center consists of the Mary Cooper Jewett Art Wing and the Margaret Weyerhaeuser Jewett Music Wing. The Art Wing includes classrooms, studios, darkrooms, video and digital facilities, plus the Art Library, the Student Art Gallery, and the Visual Resources Collection. The Jewett Sculpture Court serves as a wireless student lounge and exhibition space. The Music Wing holds the Music Library, listening rooms, practice studios, classrooms, and a collection of musical instruments from various periods available for the student’s use. Music performances, theatre events, lectures, and symposia are held in the Jewett Auditorium, a 320-seat theatre. The arts facilities of Pendleton West include drawing and painting studios, sculpture studios and foundry, a print studio, a state-of-the-art papermaking studio, and a concert salon.

Nannerl Overholser Keohane Sports Center and Outdoor Fields Complex www.wellesley.edu/athletics/
Classes for all indoor sports, aquatics, fitness, martial arts and dance are conducted in the Nannerl Overholser Keohane Sports Center. The facility includes an eight-lane competition swimming pool; badminton, squash, and racquetball courts; two weight rooms; exercise/dance/yoga studios; volleyball courts; and an athletic training area. The Field House has a basketball/volleyball arena; indoor tennis courts; a 200-meter track; and a cardiovascular machine area. Included in the cardiovascular area are 39 new pieces of cardio/strength training equipment. Treadmills include a virtual-reality interface with iPod support.

The outdoor sports facilities include a state-of-the-art turf field for lacrosse and field hockey; an eight-lane track; a grass soccer playing field; a softball venue; and a recreation field. Outdoor water sports focus around the boathouse on Lake Waban, where the canoes, sailboats, kayaks and crew shells are kept. Wellesley also maintains a nine-hole golf course, Nehoiden Golf Club, which is the oldest nine-hole course in New England.

Knapp Media and Technology Center
www.wellesley.edu/Knapp
The Knapp Media and Technology Center, located in the Margaret Clapp Library, contains 43 computer workstations capable of viewing and digitizing audio and video, scanning printed images, slides, film and negatives and creating digital images and animations; audio-and video-production studios; a video-conferencing site; three computer and media-equipped project rooms; two video-editing rooms; a large format printer; and other multimedia equipment and software.

Information services staff assist faculty, students, and staff in the use of these resources and collaborate in the development of multimedia projects.

The Knapp Center also provides support for course reserves, laptops, cameras, and other equipment available for check out.

Knapp Social Science Center
The Knapp Social Science Center at Pendleton Hall East integrates the social sciences and provides instructional space that is varied in design and layout. The physical space includes case-study classrooms, computer classrooms with individual student workstations, seminar rooms, traditional lecture halls, a video-conferencing facility and an anthropology laboratory. Public spaces include a viewing room equipped with a large TV/VCR/DVD set-up, wireless computing capability and a two-story atrium with bleachers and informal seating.

Library
www.wellesley.edu/Library
The Wellesley College Library, consisting of the Margaret Clapp, Art, Astronomy, Music, and Science libraries, number over 1.6 million volumes in collections. The Library’s... physical holdings are supplemented by a wealth of online materials and through resource sharing with the Boston Library Consortium and NExpress.

The Library received the first nationwide "Excellence in Academic Libraries" award. Among its notable features are the College Archives, the Book Arts Lab, where typography and letterpress printing are taught, and the Special Collections, which contain rare books and manuscripts that support student research.

Research and instruction specialists staff service desks, help with in-depth research, and teach hands-on sessions for professors and their classes. All libraries offer computer workstations, quiet and comfortable study space, help from knowledgeable staff, and information to enhance life and learning.

Susan and Donald Newhouse Center for the Humanities
www.wellesley.edu/NCH/
The Newhouse Center aims to enrich the intellectual life of the Wellesley College community and, in particular, to promote excellence and innovation in humanistic studies. The Newhouse Center occupies a newly renovated space on the second floor of Green Hall, with office space for a collaborative research community of resident scholars (including postdoctoral fellows, visiting scholars from other institutions, and Wellesley faculty on sabbatical leave), and small and large seminar rooms that are the site of faculty seminars and reading groups as well as a variety of activities for the benefit of the community at large. In addition, the Newhouse Center sponsors and coordinates many other programs and activities on campus, including the Mary J. Cornille Distinguished Visiting Professorship in the Humanities, the Common Text Project, and more.

Parking
Student parking by permit is available at the Davis Parking Facility and the Distribution Center lots. Because of limited parking on campus, resident first-year students are not permitted to have cars on campus. The chief of campus police, or designated representative, must approve any exemptions to this policy. The director of disability services must approve any temporary or permanent exemptions to this policy due to medical or accessibility circumstances. The parking fee for sophomores, juniors, and seniors is currently $75 per semester or $135 per year, and for off-campus students $60 per semester or $100 per year. The College may further restrict normal parking procedures to accommodate campus construction projects, or other special events as needed.

President’s House
Formerly the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fowle Durant, Wellesley’s founders, the President’s House is located on a hill bordering Lake Waban just south of the main campus. It is frequently the site of alumnae and trustee gatherings, and events for faculty, staff, and students throughout the year.

Residence Halls
www.wellesley.edu/ResLife/
Wellesley’s 21 resident halls vary in size and house students from all four class years in a combination of single, double, and triple rooms, as well as suites. Most upperclass students are assigned single rooms. However, first-year and sophomore students have one or more roommates. The residence halls are grouped in three areas of the campus: Bates, Freeman, McAfee, Simpson West, Cedar Lodge, Dower, French House, Homestead, Instead, and Stone-Davis are near the Route 16 entrance to the campus; Tower Court, Severance, Cervantes, Lake, and Claflin are situated off College Road in the center of the campus; and Shafer, Pomeroy, Cazeno, Beebe, and Munger are located by the Route 135 entrance to the College.

Science Center
www.wellesley.edu/ScienceCenter/
The Science Center houses the Departments of Astronomy, Biological Sciences, Chemistry, Computer Science, Geosciences, Mathematics, Physics, and Psychology, as well as several interdepartmental programs such as Neuroscience and Biological Chemistry. The Center includes up-to-date teaching and research laboratories, extensive computer facilities, and modern classrooms. The Science Library contains more than 120,000 volumes, maintains subscriptions to a wide array of print and electronic journals, and provides access to online databases.

The Science Center contains a variety of state-of-the-art instrumentation including: a confocal microscope, two NMR spectrometers (one with a micro-MRI accessory), a MALDI-TOF mass spectrometer, energy dispersive X-ray fluorescence spectrometers, microcalorimeters, an automated capillary DNA sequencer, a high-power pulsed tunable laser, and a 16-node supercomputer equipped with state-of-the-art bioinformatics tools.

Schneider Center
Schneider Center houses the following student groups: Wellesley News; Legenda, the college yearbook; WZLY; Spectrum; Mezcla and Wellesley Asian Alliance (WAA). Other facilities and offices in Schneider include a lounge and kosher kitchen for Hillel, the Office of Religious and Spiritual Life; the Offices of the Asian Advisor and the Latina Advisor; the Advisor to Lesbian, Transsexual and Transgender Students; the Office of Residential Life; and the Office of Summer Programs.

During the 2009-2010 academic year, Schneider Center will temporarily house the theatre department and some administrative offices while the Diana Chapman Walsh ‘66 Alumnae Hall is renovated.

Slater International Center
www.wellesley.edu/SICISS/
Headquarters for international activities, Slater International Center is dedicated to encouraging greater understanding among all cultures through personal association and cooperative endeavor. The Center serves campus organizations, academic and administrative departments that have an interest in international issues and helps sponsor seminars and speakers. The Office of the Advisor to International Students and Scholars is located in the Center. The advisor counsels international students, advises international organizations, and handles immigration matters for students and faculty. The Center also coordinates a peer-advising group of international students to help newcomers adjust to the United States. International students can also use the Center to study and meet informally.

Society Houses
Wellesley has three society houses: Shakespeare House, for students interested in Shakespearean drama; Tau Zeta Epsilon House, for students interested in art and music; and Zeta Alpha House, for students interested in literature. Each has kitchen and dining facilities, a living room, and other gathering areas.
Transportation
www.wellesley.edu/Housing
There are several modes of transportation for students on campus. The College offers an hourly bus service from campus to MIT in Cambridge which runs Monday–Friday between 7am and 12am, with subway connections to the Greater Boston area. The Wellesley-Olin-Babson Shuttle operates Monday–Friday from 7:40am until 6:10pm. On weekends the College provides bus service to Boston and Cambridge on an expanded schedule tailored to students’ needs. Also available on Saturdays is a shuttle to transports students to the Natick Mall and nearby movie theatres.

The College also partners with Zipcar, a membership-based car sharing service. There are three Zipcars parked on campus. Students may join Zipcar by visiting www.zipcar.com/wellesley.

Diana Chapin Walsh ’66 Alumnae Hall
Housing the largest auditorium on campus, Alumnae Hall also contains a large ballroom, a classroom and the Ruth Nagel Jones Theater. The building is currently closed for renovation and will reopen in late spring of 2010. The renovations will update the seating, lighting and technology for the 1000 seat auditorium, enhance the acoustical characteristics of the whole building, provide accessibility throughout including the installation of an elevator, and establish a primary entry for the Ruth Nagel Jones Theater at the main entrance to the building. This is the first comprehensive renovation in the more than 80-year history of the building.

Lulu Chow Wang Campus Center
www.wellesley.edu/WangCampusCenter/
The mission of the Wang Campus Center is to enable faculty, students, and staff as well as their friends and associates to play and work together in common space; to give student organizations flexible meeting space; to allow small and large groups of students to gather spontaneously and for planned events. It is the gathering space for all members of the campus community.

The Campus Center offers services for all members of the community, including a bookstore that offers a variety of products and an information center where the master events calendar is kept and displayed. It is a place for fun and relaxation, and also a space where students, faculty, and staff can get things done: have a meeting, mail a letter, consult with a professor, purchase sundries, check email, or make photocopies. The Center provides space and food offerings that demonstrate its purpose as a multiconstituency gathering place for coffee and meals, on weekdays, weekends, and late into the night. Also, the Center reinforces the strongly held Wellesley value of small group experiences, while underscoring that those groups are part of the larger community that make up the College.

Wellesley Centers for Women
www.wcwonline.org
For 35 years, scholars at the Wellesley Centers for Women (WCW) have conducted social science research and developed training and evaluation programs that place women’s experiences at the center of its work. WCW has informed public policy and programs by ensuring that findings reach policy makers, practitioners, educators, and other agents of change. The work at the Centers focuses on three major areas: the social and economic status of women and girls and the advancement of their human rights both in the United States and around the globe; the education, care, and development of children and youth; and the emotional well-being of families and individuals. Issues of diversity and equity are central across all the work as are the experiences and perspectives of women from a variety of backgrounds and cultures.

Primarily self-funded, the WCW is the largest organization dedicated to gender-focused research in the country and is the only organization of its kind affiliated with an undergraduate college.

The WCW was formed in 1995, when the Center for Research on Women and the Stone Center for Development Services and Studies joined together to become a single organization. The Center for Research on Women was instituted by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation in 1974 to conduct social science research that grows from the lives and perspectives of women. The Stone Center for Developmental Services and Studies, founded in 1981 with a gift from Grace W. and Robert S. Stone, is dedicated to the prevention of psychological problems, the enhancement of psychological well-being, and the search for a better understanding of human development. The WCW maintains close ties with the College’s counseling division—known as the Stone Center Counseling Service.

Work and psychological-theoretical focus of WCW are incorporated into the clinical work and programs of the Stone Center Counseling Service which are directed to the mental health needs and overall psychological well-being of Wellesley College students. The Stone Center is a part of the Division of Student Life and reports directly to the Office of the Dean of Students.

Wellesley College Club
www.wellesley.edu/CollegeClub
A center for faculty, staff, and alumnae, the Wellesley College Club's reception and dining rooms are open for lunch and dinner to members, their guests, and parents of students. Overnight accommodations are available for all members, alumnae, and parents of current and prospective students.

Whitin Observatory
www.wellesley.edu/Astronomy/
The Whitin Observatory contains laboratories, classrooms, a darkroom, and the Astronomy Library. It is an unusually fine facility for undergraduate training in astronomy. Located on campus, its fleet of telescopes is used nearly every clear night for teaching and research. In addition to 6- and 12-inch telescopes best suited for visual observing, the Observatory houses six 8-inch computer-controlled telescopes for student use. The 24-inch Sawyer telescope is a research-grade instrument with state-of-the-art cameras, electronics, and computers, and is used for advanced observing classes and faculty-supervised student research. The Observatory is scheduled for expansion in 2010.

Division of Student Life
The Division of Student Life guides and fosters the intellectual, ethical, personal and social development of Wellesley students as they explore their place and purpose as engaged learners in a diverse and interdependent college and world.

The professionals in the division work in the following areas: Dean of Students Office, Center for Work and Services, Advising and Academic Support Services, Religious and Spiritual Life, Residential Life and Student Activities, Pforzheimer Learning and Teaching Center, Disability Services, the Davis Degree Program, Health and Counseling Services, and student advising for: International Students, Latina Students, Students of African Descent, Students of Asian Descent, and Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgendered Students.

Through the work of these areas, the college offers many opportunities for students to challenge their development and receive support.

Campus Life

Student Organizations

Wellesley sponsors 150 student organizations that reflect many interests including ethnic, social, political, service, and religious interests. More than 20 multiculturals organizations include the Slater International Association; Mezcla, an association for Latina students; Ethos, an organization of Black students; the Asian Student Union, composed of Asian and Asian American students; and the Korean American Student Association. Religious groups such as the Newman Club, the Wellesley Christian Fellowship, Hillel, Al-Muslimat, and Ministry to Black Women offer many programs throughout the year. Students produce a number of publications, including: Wellesley News, the weekly student newspaper; Counterpoint, a monthly publication produced by students from Wellesley College and MIT; Ethos Woman, a literary magazine that represents women of African descent; GenerAsian, a magazine by and about the Asian/Asian American community; and Legenda, the College yearbook. An all-student staff operates WZLY, the campus radio station.

Service

The Center for Work and Service lists many internship and volunteer opportunities in government agencies and not-for-profit organizations in the greater Boston area. In addition, the Center coordinates weekend domestic and international alternative break service projects and connects students with term time volunteer opportunities at organizations affiliated with the College, ranging from local public school systems to women’s advocacy groups.

Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics

Athletics has become a significant part of life at Wellesley. Students are frequent trophy winners in NCAA, Division III, and other intercollegiate events in the College’s 13 sports including basketball, crew, cross-country, fencing, field hockey, golf, lacrosse, tennis, soccer, softball, squash, swimming/diving, volleyball. For students interested in sports for recreation, there are opportunities in club sports such as equestrian, ice hockey, rugby, sailing, skiing, ultimate frisbee and water polo, as well as recreation and intramural opportunities including yoga, zumba, badminton, table tennis, night hikes, fun runs/walks, snowboarding, cultural dance and more. The Nannerl Overholser Keohane Sports Center and outdoor fields complex provide facilities for varsity and club sports, intramurals and recreation including all new cardio and weight equipment (see The Campus for details). Lake Waban is used for water sports and Paramcium Pond for ice skating.

The Arts

Traditionally the arts are an essential part of the Wellesley experience. Students with musical interests can explore the Wellesley College Orchestra, the Prism Jazz Ensemble, Yanvalou Dance and Drum Ensemble, the Tupelos, the Blue Notes, the Toons, the Widows, Graceful Harmony, the Guild of Carillonneurs, and the MIT Orchestra. Those with theatrical interests can choose from the Wellesley College Theatre and the Shakespeare Society. At the Jewett Arts Center’s Student Gallery, students can exhibit their work or organize and curate shows. To take advantage of the extensive opportunities offered by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts whose collections accord it a world ranking, free entry has been purchased for all students thanks to the generosity of Marion Burr Sober ’30.

Technology

An important extension of both social and academic life, technology is integral to the Wellesley experience. The entire College community exchanges ideas and information on Wellesley’s electronic bulletin boards. Every student has access to the Internet, the e-mail system, and the campus-wide network from most buildings across campus, including her residence hall room. Wireless access is also available in many spaces across campus. In addition, clusters of computers are located in every residence hall and the Knapp Media and Technology Center in the main library.

Wellesley Traditions and Centers

A number of traditional social events have become part of life at Wellesley: Junior Show, Family and Friends Weekend, and Spring Weekend are supplemented by frequent informal parties.

There are a variety of social centers on campus. The new Lulu Wang Campus Center serves as the focal point of community activities. Slater International Center is the frequent setting for international and multicultural events and celebrations. Harambee House, the social and cultural center of Wellesley’s African American community, sponsors lectures and music and dance performances. Lectures and cultural programs are also presented by many other student organizations. The Davis Museum and Cultural Center, with its Collins Cinema and Café, is a place to relax with friends, view domestic and international films, and listen to lectures and live performances.

Residential Life Philosophy

The philosophy of the Office of Residential Life at Wellesley College closely follows the mission of the College.

Our mission is to share and model a commitment to the education of women through our various roles on campus. In these roles we:

1. Foster inclusive learning communities where each member contributes her own unique history, culture, perspective, talents and creativity, and where each member appreciates the contributions of other community members.
2. Challenge each other to think critically and reflect upon the many aspects of life as we move from one stage to another.
3. Model all of the above in our own lives and in our work with each other.

The operations of the residential life team are grounded in two related theoretical assertions: that individuals grow and change over time, and that healthy growth is fostered by a supportive community. Our professional team utilizes theories of student development to form the basis of the residential life department mission. We support, encourage, and serve as nonpeer resources so that students may safely challenge their own limitations and fears.

Eighty-eight student staff members, who are the resident assistants, residence managers and house presidents, assist the professional staff. Our role is crucial to providing the comfort and structure, which permits and allows residential life to flourish.

The residential life team also works to build strong communities within each residence hall. A strong community is a place that practices hospitality, holds all members to the same standard of accountability, and develops a trusting and respectful space that celebrates its members. Living in a community establishes a model of civic responsibility within the Wellesley community. The staff and students work together to create an environment where learning can occur.

Residence Halls

Each residence hall has a distinctive character and structure. Resident directors, professionals trained in working with young women and issues that arise from living in a small community, staff 15 of the larger halls (most housing 120–140 students). Each resident director is a liaison to the College community, and supervises a residence staff that includes a resident assistant on each floor of the building and a house president. The resident assistants and house presidents are trained in community programming and act as resources and referral agents for all students. The smaller halls each house fewer than 20 upperclass students and are staffed by student resident assistants and offer more independent government.

Many opportunities exist for students to assume leadership positions. Students in the larger residence halls elect a house council that administers the hall government. The house council in each hall plans a variety of social, cultural, and educational events throughout the year. Each residence hall also elects representatives to the College Government Senate. These students consult with members of the residence hall on campus-wide issues and convey opinions of their constituencies to the student government.

Most of the residence halls contain single, double, and triple rooms, and some suites. All incoming first-year students and sophomores are placed in double or triple rooms. The cost of all rooms is the same, regardless of whether they are shared, and students are required to sign a residence hall agreement. Each large hall has a spacious living room, smaller common rooms, and a study room. All but three of the large halls have dining facilities open on a five- or seven-day basis. All dining rooms offer vegetarian entrees; Pomeroy serves kosher/vegetarian food at all meals, and Cazenove is a nut-free dining area. There are kitchenette facilities in the halls for preparing snacks. Each building is equipped with coin-operated washers and dryers.

The College supplies a bed, a desk, a chair, a lamp (halogen lamps are not allowed), a bookcase, and a dresser for each resident student. Students furnish their own linen, blankets, quilts, curtains, pictures, rugs, and posters.

Services for Students with Disabilities

www.wellesley.edu/DisabilityServices/DShome

Wellesley College is committed to providing students with disabilities the access and support they need to achieve their academic potential and to participate fully in Wellesley's activities.

Each student is viewed as an individual with a unique set of strengths and abilities. Disability services professionals, who are part of the Division of Student Life, are available to provide individualized assistance and information to students. The director of disability services works with all students with disabilities, temporary or permanent, and is the first contact point for students with physical disabilities, learning disabilities, and attention disorders. The director of disability services receives support from the director of the Stone Center Counseling Services who assists students with psychological and emotional disabilities and from the director of the health service who helps students who identify as having health or medical disabilities. These staff members work collaboratively with faculty and other campus members to assist the director of disability services to coordinate services for students with disabilities.

Students with disabilities are encouraged to explore more information about services and resources confidentially and in-person or through our Web site.

Stone Center Counseling Services

www.wellesley.edu/Counseling

Many students benefit from talking with a professional about personal matters affecting their daily life or their basic sense of purpose and direction. Members of the Wellesley College Counseling Service, located in the Stone Center and affiliated with the Wellesley Centers for Women, provide short-term individual and group counseling for Wellesley College students who need or desire this support. The Counseling Service also provides educational programs, training sessions and workshops to the College community that address mental health and developmental issues.

Licensed clinical staff members include psychologists, social workers, a psychiatrist, and a clinical nurse practitioner. Time-limited therapy is provided to the students at no cost. For long-term treatment, students are referred to private, clinical professionals and agencies in the community. Professional confidentiality is maintained at all times in accordance with the law.

The Counseling Service offers a Clinical Training Program for advanced-level graduate students in the fields of social work and psychology in collaboration with the Wellesley Centers for Women's Jean Baker Miller Training Institute. The Clinical Training Program includes advanced practicum training for social work and psychology students and internship-level training for psychology students. The clinical work of the Counseling Service is informed by the Relational Cultural model developed by the Jean Baker Miller and colleagues.

Religious and Spiritual Life

www.wellesley.edu/RelLife

Wellesley's Office of Religious and Spiritual Life fosters a sense of community by supporting the diverse religious traditions and spiritual perspectives represented in the Wellesley community and offering all students the opportunity to deepen their understanding of the religious and spiritual traditions of the world as well as gain skills in interreligious dialogue and spiritual growth.

The religious life team includes a Buddhist advisor, a Hindu advisor, a Hillel director and associate director, a Muslim chaplain, a director of Newman Catholic Ministry, a Protestant Christian chaplain, a liaison to the Evangelical Christian community, and a Unitarian Universalist chaplain. The program also includes advisors and student groups for the Bahá’í, Jain, Native African, Native American, Pagan, Sikh, and Zoroastrian communities, to name just a few. Chaplains and advisors are available for religious and pastoral counseling. Students, faculty, and staff are invited to take part in one or more of these faith communities, for worship, meditation, practice and discussion on a weekly basis.
as well as educational and social activities throughout the academic year. In addition, the Dean of Religious and Spiritual Life coordinates a program that examines the role of spirituality in the educational process at Wellesley and officiates at multifaith community worship.

Many opportunities are available for students to express their spirituality. Flower Sunday, one of Wellesley’s oldest traditions, is a multifaith celebration held at the beginning of each academic year. Religious and spiritual spaces on campus include: Houghton Memorial Chapel, the new Multifaith Center (on the ground level of the Chapel), the Hillel Lounge and Kosher Kitchen located in Billings Hall, and the religious and spiritual life offices also in Billings Hall.

College Health Service
www.wellesley.edu/Health
The College Health Service is a licensed outpatient clinic staffed by physicians, nurse practitioners, and nurses. The services provide primary medical, gynecological care, nutrition counseling and physical therapy care to all students. There is also a small on-site laboratory. When required, consultation with specialists is available both locally and in Boston.

Emphasis on education and preventive measures to promote healthy lifestyles are integral to the health service philosophy. The health service collaborates with other College services such as counseling service, residential life, physical education, and recreational athletics.

The confidentiality of the clinician-patient relationship is carefully maintained; a student’s medical information is not shared with College authorities or parents without the student’s specific consent. When there is concern about a student’s safety, however, that concern takes precedence over issues of confidentiality. Information may also be disclosed to meet insurance claims or legal requirements.

There is no charge for outpatient visits to a nurse, nurse practitioner, or physician at the health service. There are charges for laboratory tests, immunizations, and some procedures. A college-sponsored Student Accident and Sickness Insurance Program is available to cover most of these charges. For more details on the insurance program, please visit http://www.wellesley.edu/Health/Information/insurance.html

Student Government

Honor Code
Inherent in Wellesley’s democratic system of governance and its accompanying law is the Honor Code. As the vital foundation of government, the Honor Code rests on the assumption that individual integrity is of fundamental value to each member of the community. Within the philosophy of self-government, the personal honor and responsibility of each individual as she or he approaches both the regulated and nonregulated areas of academic, social, and residence hall life in the Wellesley community are of central importance.

The Honor Code covers all duly adopted rules of the College for the governance of academic work, for the use of College resources, and for the conduct of its members. Each student—degree candidate, exchange student, and Postbaccalaureate student—is bound by all the rules.

As a member of the student body of Wellesley College both on and off the campus, each student is expected to subscribe to the following Honor Code:

As a Wellesley College student, I will act with honesty, integrity, and respect. In making this commitment, I am accountable to the community and dedicate myself to a life of honor.

She/he should also remember that she/he is subject to federal, state, and local laws that are beyond the jurisdiction of Wellesley College.

The Honor Code can work only with full support of the entire College community. In addition to upholding the regulations and spirit of the Honor Code personally, both students and faculty are responsible for the success of the system. This includes guarding against and, if necessary, reporting any inadvertent or intentional abuses of the Honor Code by any member of the community.

College Government
Responsibilities of College Government include governance of all student organizations, appointment of students to College committees, and allocation of the student activity fund. Many of these responsibilities are assumed by Senate, the elected legislative body of College Government, which also provides the official representative voice of the student body. Violations of the Honor Code are adjudicated through General Judiciary.

Center for Work and Service
www.wellesley.edu/CWS
The Center for Work and Service (CWS) offers comprehensive career preparation and resources for students and alumnae. A wide range of information and services to help students explore the world of work, participate in community service, and prepare for their futures is available. A staff of experienced professionals counsels students and alumnae at all stages of career exploration.

Students can explore various professions, educational options, internships, and community service opportunities using the resources of the Center for Work and Service. Among the offerings are:

• career advising and inventories
• internship search and funding resources
• community service events
• week-long service trips
• fellowship and graduate school advising
• administration of Wellesley College Graduate Fellowships and other fellowship programs
• prelaw and prehealth advising
• job and internship recruiting programs
• not-for-profit and public service job search track
• career fairs for science majors and students interested in public service
• alumnae panel presentations
• workshops
• online W Network (over 34,000 Wellesley graduates who have volunteered to serve as contacts for career exploration)
• online job, internship, and community service databases and directories
• an interactive Web site and career library
• MyCWS, an individualized portal

In recent years CWS has undertaken programs that align it more closely with the educational core of the College. Faculty and the CWS staff collaborate to help integrate the student’s overall career decision-making process and to amplify the connection between her academic experience and life outside the classroom.

After graduation, CWS remains a resource for alumnae by offering career counseling, job listings, regional career programs, Internet resources, use of the Center for Work and Service library, and a reference file service.
Admission

www.wellesley.edu/admission

Wellesley College encourages qualified applicants from a wide variety of cultural, economic, and ethnic backgrounds to join its diverse multicultural student population. Each application is evaluated on its own merits, without regard to race, religion, color, creed, national origin, or sexual orientation.

The Board of Admission admits students who will benefit from the education Wellesley offers and who will be able to meet the graduation requirements. Consideration is given to creativity, high motivation, and strong academic potential. The Board includes faculty, administration, and students. In selecting candidates for admission, the Board considers several factors: high school records; rank in class; standardized test scores; letters of recommendation from teachers, guidance counselors, or principals; the student’s own statements about herself and her activities; and interview reports when available from the staff or alumnae.

The Board values evidence of unusual talent and involvement in all areas of academic and social concern. The admission decision is never based on a single factor. Each part of the application contributes to a well-rounded appraisal of a student’s strengths and helps determine whether Wellesley would be the right place for her to continue her education.

Criteria for Admission

General Requirements for First-year Student Applicants

Wellesley College does not require a fixed plan of secondary school course preparation. Entering students normally have completed four years of college preparatory studies in secondary school that includes training in clear and coherent writing and in interpreting literature; history; training in the principles of mathematics (typically four years); competence in at least one foreign language, ancient or modern (usually four years of study); and experience in at least two laboratory sciences.

Students planning to concentrate in mathematics, premedical studies, or natural sciences are urged to elect additional courses in mathematics and science in secondary school. Students planning to concentrate in language or literature are urged to study a modern foreign language and Latin or Greek.

There are often exceptions to the above, and the Board will consider an applicant whose educational background varies from this description. Wellesley’s applicant pool has been consistently strong. As a result, not all applicants who are qualified are admitted. For more information about the admission process, please visit our Web site.

The Application

The Wellesley application consists of the Common Application plus the Wellesley supplement. You may apply online at the Common Application Web site at www.commonapp.org or you may download the application from the Board of Admission Web site at www.wellesley.edu/admission/application.html.

The Interview

While Wellesley does not require a personal interview for the first-year application, prospective students are strongly recommended to arrange one. An interview is required of transfer applicants, accelerating candidates and Davis Degree candidates (see related sections). If a candidate cannot come to the College, and would like to request an off-campus interview with an alumna in her area, she should complete the off-campus interview request form www.wellesley.edu/Admission/offcampusinterview.

Campus Visit

Students who are seriously considering Wellesley will have a better understanding of student life here if they can arrange to spend a day on campus. Candidates are welcome to attend classes, have meals in the residence halls, and talk informally with Wellesley students. Prospective students who plan to visit are urged to notify the Board of Admission at least two weeks in advance so that tours, interviews, meals, and class attendance can be arranged.

Standard Tests

Applicants must take either the College Board Scholastic Assessment Tests (SATs) or the ACT Assessment. If an applicant is taking the SATs, she must take the SAT Reasoning Test and two SAT Subject Tests. Wellesley recommends one Subject Test to be quantitative (math or science). If she is taking the ACT, she must take the ACT with Writing Test.

The applicant may register online or obtain the registration form at school. Each applicant is responsible for arranging to take the tests and having the test results sent to Wellesley College. The College Board and ACT send the publications and the registration forms for the tests to all American secondary schools and many centers abroad.

Students should register six weeks before the College Board test dates. Limited walk-in registration may be available at some centers. For the ACT, students should register four to six weeks prior to the test date. No walk-in registration is available.

The latest test date from which scores can be used for September admission is December of the previous year.

The College Board Code Number for Wellesley College is 3957. The ACT Code Number for Wellesley College is 1926.

Admission Plans

Regular Decision

Candidates applying under the regular decision plan must file an application by January 15 of the year for which they are applying. Applicants will be notified of the Board of Admission’s decisions in April. Applicants for regular decision may take SATs or the ACT any time through December of the senior year. Results of tests taken after December arrive too late for consideration.

Early Decision

Students with strong high school records who have selected Wellesley as their first-choice college by the fall of senior year should consider the early decision plan. Candidates may initiate applications at other colleges, but they agree to make only one early decision application. Once admitted under early decision, all other applications must be withdrawn.

Applications must be submitted by November 1 and indicate that they are intended for the early decision plan. Although College Board tests taken through the November test date or ACT tests taken through the October test date may be used, it is preferred that students complete the tests by the end of their junior year. Decisions on admission and financial aid will be mailed no later than mid-December.
Early Evaluation
Candidates whose credentials are complete by January 1, and who select this plan on the Wellesley Supplement form, will receive an early evaluation notice of their chances for admission. These evaluations will be sent by the end of February. Candidates will receive the final decision from the Board of Admission in April.

Accelerating Candidates
Candidates who have demonstrated academic strength and personal/social maturity may apply to enter college after completing their junior year of high school. These candidates are considered with other applicants in the regular decision plan, but are requested to identify themselves as accelerating candidates in their correspondence with the Board of Admission. An interview is required, preferably at the College. Accelerating candidates are not eligible for early decision or early evaluation. In all other respects they follow the same procedures as the regular decision plan.

Deferred Entrance
Some students who apply successfully to Wellesley may then desire to defer their entrance to the first-year class for one year. If so, they should accept the offer of admission by May 1, and submit their deposit. At that point, the request for deferral should be made to the dean of admission in writing. Students who attend another American college full-time during the year between high school and their entrance to Wellesley are not considered deferred students but must reapply for entrance as transfers. Ordinarily, transfer students may not defer entrance to the following semester or year. This also applies to international students.

International and Transfer Students
Through the years Wellesley has attracted a large international student population. The resulting cosmopolitan atmosphere has benefited the entire campus. The College also seeks highly qualified transfer students who believe that Wellesley’s special opportunities will help them achieve specific goals. For international and transfer students there are some additional and different application procedures and deadlines.

International Students
All non-U.S. citizens attending secondary schools or universities outside of the United States and all U.S. citizens who are completing their high school diploma in a school system abroad should complete all sections of the application for admission that pertain to international students.

Admission is considered for September entrance only. The application and all required credentials must be received by January 15 in the year in which the student plans to enter. The application form should be returned with a nonrefundable $50 application fee drawn on a U.S. bank, or a fee waiver request from the secondary school. The application fee is waived for students who apply online.

Financial aid is available for only a limited number of non-U.S. citizens. Therefore, admission is highly competitive for students who apply for financial assistance. Wellesley’s established policy is to accept only those international students for whom we can provide the necessary financial support.

The SAT Reasoning and Subject Tests or the ACT with Writing Test are required of all international students in addition to predicted or, if completed, final results of their own national examinations. The TOEFL (Test of English as a Foreign Language) is strongly recommended for all students for whom English is not their first language and who have been studying in English for less than five years. The TOEFL is not needed if English is the candidate’s first language. The official ACT or the official SAT Reasoning Test and SAT Subject Tests score reports must be forwarded directly to Wellesley College by the College Board, using Wellesley’s Code Number 3957 on the College Board registration form. If the ACT or the SAT Reasoning and Subject Tests are not administered in an applicant’s country, she may take only the TOEFL.

Interested students are encouraged to initiate the application process one full year in advance of the planned entrance date. Please contact the Board of Admission or complete the online form: www.wellesley.edu/admission/contactus.html to obtain additional information. Students may also apply electronically at www.commonapp.org. Inquiries should include the student’s country of citizenship, present school, academic level, and the year of planned college entrance. Our fax number is 781.283.3678.

International Students Applying from U.S. High Schools
Citizens of other countries who are currently in secondary school in the United States before entering college apply through the regular admission program. International citizens applying through the regular admission program who also wish to apply for the limited financial aid funds available are eligible to apply only under the regular decision plan (January 15 deadline).

Admission of Transfer Students
Wellesley College accepts transfer students from accredited four- and two-year colleges. They must offer an excellent academic record at the college level and strong recommendations from their dean and college instructors. Students wishing to transfer into Wellesley should apply by March 1 (and by January 15 for international students seeking financial aid) for entrance in September, and by November 1 for January entrance. Notification is in mid-May and December, respectively. The application forms should be returned with a nonrefundable $50 application fee or a fee waiver request authorized by a financial aid officer or college dean. The application fee is waived for students who apply online.

The College will accept for transfer credit only those courses that are comparable to the ones offered in the liberal arts curriculum at Wellesley. Candidates accepted for transfer will be given a tentative evaluation of their credit status at the time of admission. Transfer credit for studies completed outside of the United States will be granted only when the registrar’s office has given specific approval of the courses taken, as well as the institutions granting the credit. To receive a Wellesley degree, a transfer student must complete a minimum of 16 units of work and two academic years at the College, so ordinarily only incoming sophomores and juniors are eligible to apply. A Wellesley unit is equivalent to four semester hours. Some transfer students may need to carry more than the usual four courses per semester in order to complete their degree requirements within four years. Incoming juniors, in particular, should be aware that Wellesley requires evidence of proficiency in one foreign language before the beginning of the senior year. In addition, all transfer students should note Wellesley’s course distribution, quantitative reasoning and writing requirements, which must be fulfilled for graduation (see The Curriculum section of this catalog). Incoming junior transfer students may not take part in the Twelve College Exchange Program or Junior Year Abroad. All transfer students may elect to take courses through the cross-registration program with MIT.

For International Transfer Applicants
If you are a non-U.S. citizen attending a college or university outside the United States and you wish to transfer to Wellesley, you may only apply for admission as a first-year student and for September entrance only. The application deadline is January 15. After successfully completing one year of study at Wellesley, you may be eligible for transfer credit for courses from your previous institution. Please note that financial aid funding is available for a very limited number of international students studying outside the United States, and admission is very competitive.

If you are a non-U.S. citizen attending a college within the United States and you are not seeking financial assistance, you may apply as a transfer candidate for entrance in September or January. The application deadline for September entrance is March 1, and the deadline for January entrance is November 1. If you are a non-U.S. citizen attending a college within the United States and you are seeking financial assistance, you may apply for entrance in September only. The application deadline for September entrance is January 15. Please note that because financial aid for non-U.S. citizens is limited, admission for international students is very competitive.

Nontraditional Students
Wellesley College offers two programs for students beyond traditional college age: the Elisabeth Kaiser Davis Degree Program and the Postbaccalaureate Study Program. The Davis Degree Program is designed for women who have not yet completed their Bachelor of Arts degree. The Postbaccalaureate Study Program is available for women and men who already have a bachelor’s degree and seek non-degree coursework. Students in both programs enroll in the same courses as the traditional-age undergraduates.

For more information about any of the programs described in this section, please visit the admission Web site.

Elisabeth Kaiser Davis Degree Program
Candidates for the Davis Degree Program are women, usually over the age of 24, whose education has been interrupted for at least two years or whose life experience makes enrollment through the Davis Degree Program the logical avenue of admission. These students, known as Davis Scholars, meet all degree requirements of the College, but the flexibility of the Davis Degree Program makes it possible to combine school with work and family responsibilities. Some Davis Scholars live on campus, usually in small residence halls especially reserved for Davis Scholars. Each Davis Scholar in residence must carry a full academic course load of four courses a semester and should consult with her class dean to determine how many semesters she will have to complete her degree. Nonresident Davis Scholars, other than international students, may enroll on a full-time or part-time basis and have no time limit for completing their degrees. International Davis Scholars must be full-time students whether or not they are in residence.

Many applicants to the Davis Degree Program have not experienced a traditional college-preparatory secondary-school program, or their transcripts from the past are not an accurate reflection of current abilities. Such applicants are urged to complete at least four college-level courses for credit to strengthen their academic skills and credentials before applying to the program.

An applicant must demonstrate strong writing skills and the ability to think coherently and analytically. She also needs to show training in the principles of mathematics, including algebra and trigonometry. A student who has never pursued a foreign language should also complete some course work for credit in a foreign language prior to applying.

The College will accept courses for transfer credit only if they are comparable to ones offered in the liberal arts curriculum at Wellesley and if a grade of C or better was earned. Course work presented for transfer credit must be accompanied by an official transcript from an accredited college. Descriptions of courses at the time they were taken, and the degree requirements of the institution. All information should be sent with the application for admission. Please visit our Web site at www.wellesley.edu/admission/admission/davis.html for more information about the program.

Postbaccalaureate Study Program
Candidates for the Postbaccalaureate Study Program are men and women who already have a bachelor’s degree and wish to do further undergraduate work. Postbaccalaureate students may, for example, take courses to prepare for graduate school or a career change or to enrich their personal lives. The Premedical Study program is a popular choice. The Postbaccalaureate Study Program does not offer a degree, nor is there campus housing or financial aid for students in the program. For more information, please contact the Board of Admission or visit the admission Web site.

Admission
Applications for the Elisabeth Kaiser Davis Degree Program are considered once a year for fall semester entrance only. The application deadline is March 1 for admission in the fall. The deadline for international applicants for this program is January 15. Candidates for the Davis Degree program may apply online at www.wellesley.edu/admission/application.

Official transcripts, essays, and letters of recommendation must be submitted before a candidate is considered. A personal interview is also required. The Board of Admission looks for evidence such as work, volunteer experience, and especially recent course work that demonstrates a candidate’s intellectual ability and initiative.

The application deadlines for postbaccalaureate applicants are November 15 for January admission and March 1 for September admission.
The Academic Program

The process of learning begins with the mind and motivation of the student herself. The most tempting array of courses and the most carefully planned requirements alone will not guarantee the growth of an educated mind. The academic experience is designed for the student who seeks a broad acquaintance with the many and diverse fields of human inquiry as well as the opportunity to explore her personal intellectual interests in depth. It provides for the acquisition of knowledge and the skills appropriate to the liberal arts but above all it is responsive to the student who genuinely wishes to acquire the habit of learning. It seeks to stimulate the mind, refine the eye, and enlarge the capacity for free, independent, and discriminating choice.

Students may access the Wellesley College course information and class schedules online at www.wellesley.edu.

The Curriculum

The curriculum at Wellesley is structured to provide strong guidance and to allow, at the same time, great personal choice. By the time a Wellesley student has earned the Bachelor of Arts degree, she should be acquainted with the main fields of human inquiry, capable of integrating knowledge from various fields, and prepared for continuous scholarly and personal growth. In her major field, the student is expected to demonstrate maturity of thought, acquaintance with recognized authorities in the field, and general competence in dealing with sources of research or analysis.

Information about degree requirements is available at: www.wellesley.edu/Courses/home.html

Additional Academic Opportunities

Research or Individual Study

Each academic department provides the opportunity for qualified students to undertake a program of individual study directed by a member of the faculty. Under this program, an eligible student may undertake a research project or a program of reading in a particular field. The results of this work normally are presented in a final report or in a series of short essays. Further conditions for such work are described (in departmental listings) under the courses 250, 250H, 350, and 350H ("H" designates 0.5 unit course). Students may do no more than two units of 350 work in any one department. Individual study courses may not be used to satisfy distribution requirements. For further opportunities for research and individual study see the Honors section under Academic Distinctions.

Preparation for Law School

The prelaw student should develop three basic competencies: skill in analysis and reasoning, effective writing and speaking, and breadth of understanding of the diverse factors that make up the community in which the legal system functions (see Legal Studies courses). These competencies can be developed in any field in which the student chooses to major, whether in the social sciences, the humanities, or the natural sciences. Law schools do not specify particular major fields or particular courses of study for admission. Law schools require applicants to submit transcripts from all institutions at which they have completed courses, including summer school and study abroad programs.

Preparation for Medical School and Other Health Professions

Medical, dental, and veterinary medical schools require special undergraduate preparation. Students should consult as early as possible with the Health Professions Advisory Committee to plan their academic preparation to meet their individual needs and interests. Appointments can be made with the health professions secretary in the Science Center.

In general, most health profession schools require two units of English and two units of each of the following science courses (with lab): Introductory Biology, Introductory Chemistry, Organic Chemistry, and Physics. Many schools also require mathematics, in some cases two units of calculus, and additional science courses. Veterinary schools frequently require courses such as speech, technical writing, animal nutrition, genetics, and biochemistry. Requirements vary and catalogues of individual schools should be consulted.

All science requirements should be completed before taking the Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) or the Dental Admission Test (DAT), which are taken approximately 16 months before entering medical or dental school. In order to receive the full support of the Health Professions Advisory Committee, undergraduate students should plan to complete at least six of the science and math course requirements at Wellesley and/or its exchange colleges.

Preparation for Engineering

Wellesley students interested in engineering can take advantage of the exchanges with MIT and Olin College. They are encouraged to enroll in EXTD160: Introduction to Engineering Science at Wellesley before taking specific engineering courses at MIT or Olin. Those who would like to go on to graduate study in engineering can combine a set of engineering courses with a science major at Wellesley in a four-year program. They should consult with the relevant Wellesley advisor to develop a curricular plan. Students interested in an undergraduate engineering degree can apply to the Wellesley/MIT Double Degree Program (see Special Academic Programs). Alternatively, students can earn a certificate in engineering studies from Olin College.

Students interested in engineering should take mathematics and physics at Wellesley in preparation for courses at MIT and Olin. The Wellesley faculty advisors can provide information concerning engineering fields, prerequisites, and contact persons at MIT and Olin.

Special Academic Programs

Many special academic programs enrich the traditional four-year curriculum offered at Wellesley. The College administers some programs while other programs are run by other institutions in which Wellesley students may participate. Students may participate in some while in residence at the College; others involve living at other colleges or abroad for a semester or a year.

Wintersession

Wintersession is a time in January when some students return to campus to pursue thesis research, internships, or a limited number of courses offered for academic credit. Wellesley also offers a number of immersion experiences involving travel abroad. Several credit-bearing courses are also available at MIT during Wintersession.
Students taking Wintersession courses are subject to academic regulations as if they were taking the course during a regular semester.

Wellesley College Summer School
This program is open to undergraduates, postgraduates, and high school juniors and seniors in good academic standing. It offers a range of courses drawn from the Wellesley College curriculum and taught by Wellesley faculty. College students and college graduates may opt to live in the Summer School residence hall or off campus. Housing is not available for high school students or 2009 high school graduates. Tuition and other fees for summer school are not included in the regular-year tuition. Wellesley students may apply for limited financial aid from the Summer School Office; no financial aid is available to non-Wellesley students.

Wellesley Summer School courses carry full academic course credit; they count as regular units for Wellesley students and are included on the student’s transcript and in the calculation of her grade point average; they do not count toward the limit of four summer school units that Wellesley students can apply to their degrees. For more information, please contact the Summer School Office, our Web site at www.wellesley.edu/SummerSchool, or consult your class dean.

Cross-registration Program with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Wellesley operates a program of cross-registration with Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A Wellesley student interested in taking specific classes at MIT should consult with the faculty advisor for the relevant MIT department. Registration in MIT courses takes place each semester in both the Wellesley registrar’s office and in the Exchange Office at MIT. Students electing to take courses at MIT must register at both institutions during an extended drop period of one week each semester. A student will not receive credit for an MIT course unless she has registered properly for it at both MIT and Wellesley. First-year students in their first semester may not take courses at MIT. The amount of Wellesley credit is determined by the total number of hours listed for a course in the MIT catalog as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Total MIT Hours</th>

Wellesley Double Degree Program
Wellesley offers a double degree program that enables Wellesley students who are accepted to MIT as transfer students to earn a BA degree from Wellesley and an SB degree from MIT over the course of five years. Students fulfill degree and major requirements at both institutions. Interested Wellesley students apply for transfer admission to MIT during the spring semester of their sophomore year. Students may only consider the MIT departments listed on the double degree Web site www.wellesley.edu/USStudy/mitdoubledegree.html. Students should also be aware that access to a given department could at times be limited for transfer students. Wellesley applicants are subject to the same admissions criteria and financial aid policies used by MIT for all other college transfer applicants.

Accepted students do not enroll at MIT until they have completed their junior year at Wellesley. During this “bridge year” students are assigned major advisors at both institutions so that they can plan a program that will advance their work toward both degrees. During the fourth and fifth years, students enroll at MIT. Our existing Wellesley/MIT Exchange permits cross-registration throughout the five-year period, this enables students to integrate their two courses of study more completely.

Wellesley/Brandeis BA/MAief Five-Year Program
Brandeis University’s Master of Arts in International Economics and Finance (MAief) is a two-year graduate program in its International Business School. This program prepares students for careers in international finance, business, policymaking and other fields that require strong analytical skills in international economics and finance. Qualified Wellesley undergraduate economics majors who wish to earn the MAief may apply in their junior year to pursue a special track, the BA/MAief, beginning in the senior undergraduate year. The BA/MAief program allows a student to complete a Wellesley BA and then the MAief with only one year of post-BA study. Additional information on the BA/MAief program can be obtained from the Department of Economics.

Cross-registration Programs with Babson College, Brandeis University, and Olin College of Engineering
Wellesley has established cooperative programs with Babson College, Brandeis University, and Olin College of Engineering. Students may also enroll in the Certificate in Engineering Studies program offered at Olin. All courses must be approved individually for transfer credit and for the major by the relevant Wellesley department. Students interested in taking specific courses at Olin should consult with the Wellesley faculty advisor for the relevant Olin department.

The Twelve College Exchange Program
Wellesley belongs to a consortium that includes Amherst, Bowdoin, Connecticut College, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Trinity, Vassar, Wesleyan, and Wheaton. Two one-semester programs associated with the Twelve College Exchange are the National Theater Institute in Woodstock, Connecticut, and the Williams Mystic Seaport Program in American Maritime Studies. Students in good standing may apply for a semester or full academic year in residence at any of the member institutions. Preference is given to students planning to participate in their junior year. Applications and additional information are available from the Office of International Study.

The Wellesley-Spelman Exchange Program
Wellesley maintains a student exchange program with Spelman College in Atlanta, Georgia, a historically black college for women. The program is open to students in their junior or senior year.

The Wellesley-Mills Exchange Program
Wellesley maintains an exchange program with Mills College, a women’s college in Oakland, California, which has a cross-registration program with the University of California at Berkeley.

Semester in Environmental Science at Woods Hole
Qualified Wellesley students may apply for the Semester in Environmental Science Program held each fall at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole.
Massachusetts. This 14-week program emphasizes the measurement and understanding of biogeochemical cycles and processes in terrestrial, freshwater, and marine ecosystems. Intended primarily for juniors, participation is limited to approximately two students per year. Interested students should contact the Department of Biological Sciences for additional information.

International Study
Approximately half of students elect to spend a semester or year abroad, normally during the junior year, in order to gain language proficiency, develop a new perspective on their majors, or to take courses that are not available on campus. Wellesley sponsors study abroad programs and exchanges in Austria, England, France, Italy, Japan, Korea, Mexico and Spain. In addition, students may choose from a list of more than 100 approved externally administered programs worldwide. For more information on the available study abroad programs, please visit the Office of International Study.

Students who enroll in any approved study abroad program pay regular Wellesley tuition and remain eligible for Wellesley financial aid.

Students considering study abroad should consult their class dean and the director of international studies in the fall of their sophomore year in order to determine eligibility and application requirements. Upon successful completion of an approved program of study abroad, students may earn up to four Wellesley units per semester. The Office of International Study must approve all courses in advance, and official transcripts must be sent from the program provider to the registrar’s office.

More information on the available study abroad programs and application procedures can be found at www.wellesley.edu/ois/.

Summer International Study
In lieu of or in addition to a semester or year abroad, many students participate in international summer programs, either for academic credit or personal enrichment. The Office of International Study can assist students in locating and applying to appropriate summer programs. Students wishing to earn credit for a summer program must have courses approved in advance both by the relevant academic department chair and by the director of international studies.

Academic Support
Academic Advising
At Wellesley, academic advising is provided by the class deans and the faculty. The class deans are central sources of information about degree requirements, academic legislation, and resources available at the College to help students achieve their academic goals. They advise students about course selections and sequences, and are available throughout a student’s years at Wellesley for consultation about matters of more general intellectual and personal concern.

Starting with Orientation, the faculty serve as mentors about the liberal arts experience, helping first-year students discuss their academic interests, goals, and experiences during their first year at Wellesley and introducing them to areas of the curriculum about which they may lack knowledge. In addition, each first-year student is assigned a faculty advisor to ensure that she has an opportunity to explore her individual interests and concerns about the degree.

Faculty and the class deans share the advising of juniors and seniors. This arrangement provides for systematic and equitable supervision of each student’s progress toward the BA degree. In addition, it has the double benefit of specialized advice from faculty in the major field and detailed examination of the student’s overall program.

The Pforzheimer Learning & Teaching Center
The Pforzheimer Learning & Teaching Center, located in the Margaret Clapp Library, plays a significant role in supporting the intellectual life of both students and faculty on the Wellesley campus. The mission of the Center is to provide students with a variety of programs and services designed to help them realize their academic potential and to give faculty members the opportunity to explore issues in higher education, teaching methodologies and the academic culture of Wellesley College.

Tutoring is the heart of the Center’s academic support services. The PLTC offers a variety of tutorial programs focused on individualized peer tutoring, supplemental instruction and study skills instruction. Peer tutors and PLTC staff help students build on their academic strengths, overcome difficulties, and develop effective strategies for academic success. Faculty members participate in programs that enable them to share insights, refine teaching skills, and implement pedagogical innovations.

Student Achievement
The Ruhlman Conference
www.wellesley.edu/DeanCollege/Ruhlman
Founded in 1997 as a forum for students to present their work in public, the Ruhlman Conference provides an opportunity for students, faculty, staff, friends, family, and alumnae to gather and celebrate student achievement.

Students submit presentation proposals for consideration at the end of the fall semester. Sensitive to the diversity of student interest and accomplishment, the conference allows a variety of presentation formats: talks, colloquia, panels, poster sessions, exhibitions, musical and theatrical performances, and readings of original work. By providing an opportunity for public presentation of what is often a private, isolated activity, the Ruhlman Conference underscores the idea that research can be part of an ongoing conversation in a community of scholars.

Held each spring, the conference has been made possible by the Barbara Peterson Ruhlman Fund for Interdisciplinary Study.

The Tanner Conference
www.wellesley.edu/CWS/Tanner/index.html
Established through the generosity of alumna Estelle “Nicki” Newman Tanner, the Tanner Conference celebrates the relationship between the liberal arts classroom and student participation in an increasingly diverse and interdependent world. The Tanner Conference provides a venue for students and alumnae to analyze and share their off-campus experiences with others in the College community.

Encompassing the diversity of off-campus experiences of students, the conference explores the learning that occurs through internships, service learning experiences, student teaching, study abroad, international Winter session programs, experiential learning in courses, and independent study and research conducted away from Wellesley. Held each fall, the conference also presents an opportunity for alumnae to return to campus to discuss how their participation in these experiences as Wellesley students has enriched their lives.
Academic Distinctions

The College confers a number of academic distinctions to give recognition for superior or advanced work, either upon graduation or during the student’s career.

Honors in the Major Field

Students who have shown marked excellence in their major field may earn honors in the major. The usual route to honors, offered by all departments and programs, involves writing an honors thesis and successfully passing an oral examination by a thesis committee. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level. Some departments and programs require a higher average. Departments may petition on behalf of exceptional students whose averages fall between 3.0 and 3.5. Students enroll in Senior Thesis Research (360) in the first semester and carry out independent work under the supervision of a faculty member. If sufficient progress is made, students continue with Senior Thesis (370) in the second semester. Specific requirements vary with departments and programs; see the relevant sections of the catalog for details. Some departments and programs offer other routes to honors in the major; these are described in their Directions for Election.

Other Academic Distinctions

Students with an average of 3.60 or higher will be Wellesley College Scholars cum laude; those with an average of 3.75 or higher will be Durant Scholars magna cum laude; students with a 3.90 or higher average will be Durant Scholars summa cum laude.

For purposes of establishing honors, grade point averages are truncated to two decimal places. Students whose records contain more than three incompletes within the last 24 units or who have taken more than a stipulated number of credit/noncredit courses shall not be eligible for these honors.

Juniors and seniors are elected to membership in the Eta of Massachusetts chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on the basis of their total academic achievement in college. Seniors who have done research in the sciences may be elected to associate membership in the Wellesley chapter of Sigma Xi.

The Pamela Daniels ’59 Fellowship is available to seniors carrying out independent or honors work; The Fellowship is a merit award, meant to provide an opportunity for a senior to envision and carry out a piece of work that she would love to do before she graduates. It was endowed by friends and former students of Pamela Daniels ’59, class dean from 1981 to 2000.

On recommendation of the faculty, the trustees award the title of Trustee Scholar to four seniors who intend to pursue graduate studies. The awards are made on a competitive basis; the title is honorary. Certain prizes have been established at the College for the recognition of excellence in a particular field. Recipients are selected by the appropriate academic department; each award carries a small stipend or gift and usually bears the name of the donor or the person honored.

Costs

www.wellesley.edu/SFS

Wellesley offers a variety of payment plans and financing options to assist all students and their families in meeting the costs of a Wellesley education. In addition, through financial aid, the College is able to offer its education to all students regardless of their financial circumstances (please refer to the Financial Aid section on page 21 of this catalog).

Information and communications about payments are directed to the student, rather than a parent or guardian. If a parent or other individual handles the educational finances, it is the student's responsibility to make the information contained in this catalog available to the person who is responsible.

Comprehensive Fees

STUDENT ACTIVITY FEE

The Student College Government administers the student activity fee. The fee provides resources from which student organizations can plan and implement extracurricular activities.

STUDENT ACCIDENT AND INSURANCE PROGRAM

Students enrolled at least \( \frac{3}{4} \) time are required by Massachusetts State Law to be enrolled in an insurance program. All students enrolled in courses at Wellesley College may see a physician, nurse practitioner, or nurse at the Health Service office without charge; however, charges are incurred for certain procedures, treatments and laboratory tests. The Student Accident and Sickness Insurance Program covers most of these charges. Insurance coverage is effective from August 15, 2009 through August 14, 2010. Please refer to the online insurance brochure for additional information at the Student Financial Services Web Site www.wellesley.edu/SFS.

The premium for 2009-2010 is $1,385. The fee for insurance appears on the first bill of the fall semester. There is no separate plan for the fall semester.

All students are assessed insurance; however, if a student is covered by other comparable insurance and does not wish to participate in the College plan, she may waive the coverage. A waiver form must be completed online. All fields of the form must be completed and submitted by the end of the first week of classes to waive the College plan.

Financial responsibility for all medical and dental expenses rests with the student and her family. Wellesley College does not assume financial responsibility for injuries incurred in instructional, intercollegiate, intramural, or recreational programs. The College carries an NCAA policy to provide limited supplement coverage for students injured while participating in intercollegiate athletics under the auspices of the Department of Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics.

Please visit the Student Financial Services Web site for billing and waiver information.

GENERAL DEPOSIT

A nonrefundable general deposit of $300 paid by each entering student will be credited to the student's account.

TUITION REFUND PLAN (OPTIONAL)

The Tuition Refund Plan, sponsored by A.W.G. Dewar, Inc., is designed to protect the family from the loss of funds paid for tuition, fees, room and board should the student find it necessary to withdraw due to medical reasons. The Plan complements the Wellesley College refund policy and covers not only payments made by the student or parent, but also loans and grants received.

The cost of the Plan is based on the amount of tuition and fees or tuition, fees, room and board.

- The 2009-2010 resident student option plan is $349 and the off-campus option is $266.

You must enroll in the plan before the first day of classes for the semester.

Billing and Payment

Fall semester billing statements will be mailed in early July. Wellesley College must receive payment by August 1.

Spring semester billing statements are mailed in early December. Wellesley College must receive payment by January 2. Charges incurred after the payment deadline, including those as a result of add/drop, music charges, parking and library fines, etc., are due immediately and subject to late payment fees.

Bills are mailed in the student's name to the student's home address when classes are not in session or to her on-campus address during the school year. Students should retain the statements for their records.

Billing statements are mailed only in July and August for the fall term, and December and January for the spring term. In any month in which there is an outstanding balance on the student account, an email is sent to the student's Wellesley College email address informing them of the balance due and providing a link to view their account detail online. Current students may visit the Student Financial Services Web site to view their account detail online, 24-hours-a-day.

As a part of the registration process, all students will be required to acknowledge the cost of tuition and relevant fees prior to online registration for each term.

Payment Procedures

Full payment and/or acceptable documentation demonstrating that the balance will be fully paid must be received prior to the published deadline. Acceptable documentation includes enrollment in the Tuition Management Systems (TMS) monthly payment plan, a copy of an award letter for an outside scholarship, or a copy of a billing authorization or sponsorship letter. Loans based on the credit worthiness of the borrower may not be deducted without approval from the lender. A copy of an approval notice with disbursement dates and amounts, and/or a signed promissory note will be accepted as documentation for this type of loan.

The student’s name and Wellesley College ID or social security number must be included on all payments and correspondence.

The student is responsible for monitoring her account balance and for keeping track of payment due dates, even if someone else is handling the finances. It is the student’s responsibility to ensure that loans, grants, and other payments are sent to the College by the payment due dates. As the student will be the only recipient of statements and email notifications, she needs to communicate her account status to anyone paying her charges.

Inquiries regarding late payment fees may be resolved after the account has been settled if a written petition has been received. The petition should include the student’s name and ID number, the term, the late fee was charged, and the circumstances to be reviewed.

There are potential consequences if payment responsibilities are not met. Monthly late fees may be assessed on any balance remaining unpaid after the payment deadline. Wellesley College also reserves the right to withhold services if the student has not fulfilled her financial obligation. The student may be prevented from participating... in the housing process, registering, accepting a place in an associated leave program (i.e., Junior Year Abroad program), receiving transcripts, or receiving her diploma. In addition, the College reserves the right to place a student on leave and withdraw her if a balance continues to remain unpaid.

If any overdue obligation is referred to either the College Collection Department or to an outside agency or attorney for collection efforts and/or legal suit, the debt is increased to cover all reasonable costs of collection, including collection agency fees and court costs. By registering for any class in the College, each student accepts and agrees to be bound by the foregoing College policy as applied to any preexisting or future obligation to the College.

Outside Scholarships or Grants
If a student receives a scholarship or other outside award not previously considered in the determination of her financial aid award, federal regulations require her to notify Student Financial Services. These awards will not be reflected on a student’s account or billing statement until the College has received the funds. Please note, unless specifically stated in the sponsorship letter, all outside scholarships will be evenly applied to the fall and spring semesters.

For security reasons, we urge students not to carry large sums of cash.

Wellesley College does not accept credit card payments; however, you may charge your semester bill via American Express, MasterCard, or Discover by visiting the Tuition Management Systems Web site at www.afford.com or by phone at 800.722.4867. You may also use this site to make an online payment using your checking or statement savings account. Please note, for both transactions, a teleprocessing fee is assessed.

Wire Transfer
Wire transfer of funds electronically from a U.S. or international bank to Wellesley College’s bank involve bank fees which are deducted from the funds wired to Wellesley College. The net amount applied to the student account will be the amount of the wire transfer less the bank fees. Please remember to reference the student’s name and Wellesley College identification number. For security purposes, students must email the “Student Wire Account Info” conference using their Wellesley-provided email account to receive the information necessary to conduct a wire transfer.

Monthly Payment Plan
If you plan to use your savings and/or current income to cover all or part of your educational expenses, the Interest-Free Monthly Payment option offered through Tuition Management Systems (TMS) helps by providing more manageable cash flow and greater budgeting flexibility. Instead of lump-sum payments, the TMS plan allows you to pay all or part of your educational expenses in manageable monthly installments. You may use the TMS plan to pay your balance after financial aid or in combination with other loans. By enrolling in the TMS Monthly Payment Plan, your student account will receive a credit each semester representing 1/6 of the full amount of your contract. We will credit your student account in advance of your making all of your payments to TMS. Although Student Financial Services can provide assistance, you are responsible for determining the contract amount. TMS is not responsible for this decision and will make changes only upon your request.

The toll free number is 800.722.4867 (if calling from outside of the United States, please use 401.849.1550) or you may visit their Web site at www.afford.com.

Tuition Stabilization Plan
This program provides a written contract guaranteeing that the cost of tuition will remain the same for each of four consecutive years at Wellesley College, provided the student pays by June 30 of the entering year an amount equal to four times the first year’s tuition cost. Provisions are made for leaves of absence (up to two semesters), refunds, and withdrawals. This program only stabilizes the cost of tuition at Wellesley College; all other charges such as room and board will be billed at the rate for the applicable year, as will tuition for any exchange program or other college at which the student enrolls.

Please contact Student Financial Services for enrollment information.

Refund Policy
To be eligible for a refund the student must notify her class dean in writing that she is leaving Wellesley. The effective date of leave or withdrawal is the date the written notice is received by the dean, or the date the College determines that the student has gone on leave or withdrawn.

Refunds are made for withdrawal or leave of absence prior to the ninth week of the semester. The comprehensive fee is prorated on a calendar week basis. No refund is made after the eighth week.

Refunds are prorated among the sources of original payment. Scholarships, grants, and educational loans are refunded to the grantor or lender.

Wellesley College maintains credit balances for returning students and applies the credit to future charges. A student may request a refund of a credit balance by submitting a written request to Student Financial Services.

A student who leaves Wellesley during her first semester at the College has her charges prorated based on the number of weeks in attendance until the tenth week. Students who complete ten weeks but do not complete the first full semester are not eligible for a refund.

An off-campus Davis Scholar or Post-baccalaureate student who withdraws from a course prior to the end of the add period receives a full refund. Charges are prorated on a calendar basis thereafter until the eighth week.

All other students have charges refunded as follows:

High School Student Fees and Refunds
High school students taking courses at Wellesley pay the per course semester fees; for refunds, charges are prorated on a calendar week basis until the eighth week. High school students also pay the General Deposit, but are not eligible for Student Insurance.

Financing Options
To finance a Wellesley education, several options are available whether or not a student has been awarded financial aid, other scholarships, or loans. Detailed information can be obtained from the Office of Student Financial Services or by visiting www.wellesley.edu/SFS/EducationalFinancing.html.

Federal Parent Loan for Undergraduate Students (PLUS)
Under this federally guaranteed loan program, parents may borrow the cost of education, less financial aid and other education grants or loans, from participating banks and other lenders. The applicant and student must be U.S. citizens or U.S. permanent residents.

Monthly repayment begins a minimum of 30 days after the second disbursement; however, repayment of the loan principal and, under certain circumstances, interest, may be deferred while the borrower is a full-time student or experiencing economic hardship.

MEFA
This joint loan program of the Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority and Wellesley College provides fixed or variable low interest rate loans and convenient repayment terms. The full cost of education or tuition stabilization may be borrowed and a home equity option is available in most states.

Federal Unsubsidized Stafford Loan
Under this federally guaranteed loan program, a student with attendance costs not met by financial aid who is not eligible (based on federal rules for determining financial need) to borrow up to federal maximums under the Federal Subsidized Stafford Loan Program, may borrow the difference between her subsidized Stafford Loan (if any) and the Unsubsidized Stafford program limits.

An independent student or a dependent student whose parent does not qualify for a Federal PLUS Loan may also borrow up to additional federal maximums if she has costs of attendance not met by financial aid and she has already borrowed her basic Federal Stafford Loan maximum.

Interest starts to accrue immediately, but repayment may be deferred while the student is enrolled at least half-time or is experiencing economic hardship.

First-time Federal Stafford borrowers must complete an online entrance interview and e-sign a Master Promissory note before funds may be disbursed to her student account.

Alternative Educational Loans
Please visit www.wellesley.edu/SFS/EducationalFinancing.html to view borrower benefits, preferred lenders and loan application links or contact the Student Financial Services for assistance.

Financial Aid
The Wellesley College financial aid program opens educational opportunities to able students of diverse backgrounds, regardless of their financial resources. Admission is need-blind for U.S. citizens and permanent residents.

Financial aid is also available for many international students. Over 50 percent of all Wellesley students receive financial aid, based on need, from the College. Wellesley meets 100% of a student's need as defined through the College's financial aid policies.

Amounts of aid vary in size according to the resources of the individual and her family and may equal or exceed the comprehensive College fee. Although aid is granted for one year at a time, the College expects to offer aid as needed throughout the student's four years, as long as the student continues to have need as defined by Wellesley's policies. Applicants to the College and continuing students must file the aid application on time to receive full consideration for grant aid.

Determining the amount of aid begins with the examination of family financial resources. Using both federal and institutional methodologies, the financial aid staff establishes the amount the parents can reasonably be expected to contribute. The staff also looks at the amount that the student can contribute from her earnings, assets, and benefits. Each year, the Financial Aid Committee determines a standard amount expected from the student's summer and vacation earnings. For 2009-2010 the summer/vacation amounts are: $1,250 for first year students, $1,900 for sophomore, $1,950 for juniors and seniors. The total contribution from the family is then subtracted from the student's cost of attendance. For the typical dependent student residing on campus, the cost of attendance is composed of the College's comprehensive fee, a standard amount for books and personal expenses, and a standard amount for travel based on the student's home state. The remainder equals the financial need of the student and is offered in aid. The financial aid is packaged in a combination of three types of aid: work, loan, and grant.

Work
Generally, a portion of a student's financial aid is met through a job on or off campus, usually as part of the Federal Work Study Program. Students are expected to work up to ten hours a week. For 2009-2010, first-year students and sophomore are expected to earn $2,100; juniors and seniors, $2,300. The Student Employment Office maintains listings of campus and off-campus part-time job opportunities.

Financial aid students receive priority for on-campus jobs during the first two weeks of the semester. Students can work in academic and administrative offices, museums, libraries, and in a variety of off-campus nonprofit and community service agencies. Some off-campus jobs are restricted to students with federal work-study.

Loans
The next portion of a student's financial aid is met through low-interest educational loans. The College packages loans in relation to the family's finances. Information about loan levels and programs is available online at www.wellesley.edu/SFS/. The suggested loan amount and loan program are specified in the aid offer. Higher loan amounts are packaged in certain circumstances, such as late filing of aid applications. In addition, students studying away from Wellesley on an approved program usually borrow an additional loan amount to make up for the lack of work-study.
First-time borrowers must complete an entrance interview online and sign a promissory note before the College is permitted to disburse loan funds to her student account.

REPAYMENT OF STUDENT LOANS
A student who has received a loan enters repayment if she enrolls less than half time, withdraws, graduates, or takes a leave of absence for more than six months. Before she leaves the College she should make arrangements for an online exit interview by emailing edfinance@wellesley.edu or by visiting the Office of Student Financial Services. In the loan exit interview, she will learn about her rights and responsibilities regarding the loan and be given a repayment schedule.

Students with Students’ Aid Society Loans conduct entrance and exit interviews with the Students’ Aid Society.

In order to be eligible for financial aid from the College, transfer students and Davis Scholars who have been enrolled elsewhere cannot be in default on prior educational loans. The College will not offer any federal, state, or institutional aid to students in default on prior educational loans.

Grants
The remaining portion of the student need is awarded in grants by the College from its own resources, from the federal government through the Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, Federal Pell Grant, Federal Achievement Grant, Federal SMART Grant, or from outside agencies.

Students who apply for aid from Wellesley College are required to apply for state and federal grants. If the student does not apply or fails to apply on time, the College will not replace the amount she would have received. In addition, whenever possible, students should seek grants from local programs, from educational foundations, and from other private sources. Students who qualify for nongovernmental outside scholarships usually benefit from loan and work reductions.

Applying for Financial Aid
Applicants for admission who intend to apply for financial aid must file five forms: the Wellesley College Application for Financial Aid, the Financial Aid Profile of the College Scholarship Service (CSS), the Free Application for Federal Student Assistance (FAFSA), and signed copies of all pages and schedules of both the parents’ and the student’s most recent federal tax returns and W2s. Applicants may also be asked to have the IRS send a tax transcript directly to Student Financial Services. Additional documents are required if parents are no longer together.

The College considers information from both parents regardless of their marital status. Students are expected to furnish information from parents in their initial year and all remaining years. Students in the Davis Degree Program who satisfy federal guidelines for self-supporting students and are not dependent upon their parents for support are exempt from this requirement. Davis Scholars who are supported by their parents file the aid application with parental information.

Application Due Dates
The due dates for applications are posted to the Student Financial Services Web site.

Academic Requirements for Financial Aid
Evaluations of all students’ academic records are made at the end of each semester by the Academic Review Board. Eligibility for financial aid is reviewed on a semester basis. Students must make satisfactory progress toward the degree and maintain a C average. No credit is associated with course incompletion, course withdrawal, noncredit remedial courses or course repetition; therefore, these courses do not count in establishing satisfactory progress. If a student has not maintained a C average, she may have a probationary semester for federal and state aid during which she has the opportunity to bring up her average.

Ordinarily, a full-time undergraduate student completes the requirements for the B.A. degree in eight semesters. The Academic Review Board will consider special circumstances and may permit a student to have additional time to complete the degree. A student may request financial aid for additional semesters if the Academic Review Board has approved the extension. In matters concerning satisfactory progress, Student Financial Services works with the class deans.

Verification of Data in the Aid Application
Student Financial Services is required by federal law and Wellesley College policy to verify data on the financial aid application. Students must respond within 30 days of the request for information in order to insure that aid will be available and student accounts credited in time for registration and other College services.

Town Tuition Grants
Wellesley College funds ten Town Tuition Grants to residents of the town of Wellesley who qualify for admission and who meet the town’s residency requirements. Application is made to the Board of Selectmen. Recipients may live at home or on campus, but the Town Grant is credited to tuition only. Grants are awarded on the basis of financial need.

ROTC Scholarships
ROTC admission criteria conflict with the nondiscrimination policy of Wellesley College (see inside front cover). Students, however, may enroll in ROTC programs offered at MIT through the College’s cross-registration program. Wellesley students may apply for scholarship aid from the Air Force and Army. Interested students should contact the appropriate service office at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, MA 02139, or call: Air Force, 617.253.4475; Army, 617.253.4471.

Financial Aid for International Students
Aid is available to international students, but its amount is limited. If an international student enters without aid, she will not be eligible for it in future years. Although aid is limited, the College is able to assist a number of international students.

Financial Aid for Davis Scholars
Students in the Elisabeth Kaiser Davis Degree Program are admitted on a need-blind basis. The cost of education will vary for Davis Scholars living off campus in accordance with the number of courses for which they are enrolled during first and second semesters and during the Summer session. In order to be eligible for aid during a semester, students must take at least two units. Financial aid is not necessarily available to meet the full costs of living off campus, but staff will work with students to see if financing plans are applicable. For students with dependent children, we can actually cover many of these costs.

Wellesley Students’ Aid Society
The Wellesley Students’ Aid Society, Inc. is an organization of Wellesley College alumnae. In addition to providing funds... for grants and long-term tuition loans, the organization also serves as a resource for short-term emergency loans and other student services.

Assistance for Families
Not Eligible for Aid
Wellesley has special concern for middle-and upper-income families who find it difficult to finance the cost of education through current income. The Office of Student Financial Services is available to assist all families, including families not qualifying for financial aid.

The College assists nonaided students and parents ineligible for aid in several ways. Jobs on campus may be available to nonaided students. Student Financial Services will furnish information and advice on obtaining student and parent loans. The College offers three payment programs: a Semester Plan, a Monthly Plan, and a Prepaid Tuition Stabilization Plan. For more information, please visit the student financial services Web site.

Graduate Fellowships
Wellesley College offers a number of fellowships and scholarships for graduate study, research, or work that are open to graduating seniors and Wellesley alumnae. Two of these are open to women graduates of any American institution. Awards are usually made to applicants currently enrolled in or applying to graduate school for the following year. Preference in all cases, except for the Peggy Howard Fellowship, will be given to applicants who have not held one of these awards previously. Decisions are based on merit and need, with the exception of the Knafel and Trustee awards, which are determined on merit alone. U.S. tax laws apply. Please note that the awards are for study at institutions other than Wellesley College and are open to all nationalities. For more information about graduate fellowships and graduate school, visit the CWS Web site www.wellesley.edu/CWS.

For Wellesley College Graduates: Opportunities in Asia

Elisabeth Luce Moore '24 Wellesley-Yenching Program
The Wellesley-Yenching Program is a lasting example of Wellesley College’s long tradition of interest and involvement in China, dating from 1906. In 1999, Wellesley received a generous grant from the Henry Luce Foundation to honor Elisabeth Luce Moore ’24 who was born in China and was a strong supporter of the College’s ties to Asia. Part of this grant was used to endow the Wellesley-Yenching Program and to strengthen the following three opportunities to work in Asia:

Wellesley-Yenching Graduate Fellowship at Chung Chi College in Hong Kong
The fellow’s time may be divided between helping to organize and promote English language activities at Chung Chi College as a whole, and serving as a teaching or research assistant for an academic department.

Wellesley-Yenching Graduate Fellowship at Ginling College in Nanjing, China
The fellows teach English in the classroom for approximately 12 to 14 hours each week with office hours three to four times a week.

Wellesley-Yenching Graduate Fellowship at the National Palace Museum in Taipei, Taiwan
Approximately one-half of the fellow’s work will be with the NPM Secretariat where she will write, translate, and revise English documents for various departments. The other half of the fellow’s work will be with one of the Museum’s other departments.

Application information is available in the Center for Work and Service, 106 Central Street, Wellesley, MA 02481 or it can be found online at www.wellesley.edu/CWS. The deadline is February 22, 2010.

Instructions for Applying
Applications for the Peggy Howard Fellowship may be obtained by contacting the Economics Department, Wellesley College, or online at www.wellesley.edu/Economics/Beyond/peggy.html. Applications and supporting materials are due by April 1.

Applicants for the Jacqueline Krieger Klein ’53 Fellowship should send a resume and a brief description of their program to Professor Frances Malino, Department of Religion.

Applications for the Knafel awards, the Mary Elvira Stevens Traveling Fellowship, and all other fellowships may be obtained from the Secretary to the Committee on Graduate Fellowships, Center for Work and Service, Wellesley College, 106 Central Street, Wellesley, MA 02481, or they can be found online at www.wellesley.edu/CWS. Applications and supporting material for the Knafel awards must be received by February 4, 2010. Applications and supporting material for the Mary Elvira Stevens Fellowship must be received by December 1, 2009. Applications and supporting material for all other fellowships must be postmarked no later than January 4, 2010. If hand-delivered, the application must be received in the Center for Work and Service no later than January 4, 2010.

Academic Policies and Procedures

The academic policies and procedures of the College have been subject to continuous change and examination throughout the College’s history, responding to changes in student lifestyles and innovations in the curriculum. The policies and procedures that govern most routine aspects of academic life are available at www.wellesley.edu/Courses/home/html.
Courses of Instruction

A semester course that carries one unit of credit requires approximately eleven hours of work each week spent partly in class and partly in preparation. The amount of time scheduled for classes varies with the subject from two periods each week in many courses in the humanities and social sciences to three, four, or five scheduled periods in certain courses in foreign languages, in art and music, and in the sciences. A 0.5 unit course requires approximately 5.5 hours of work each week, including scheduled class time and preparation. A semester course which carries 1.25 units of credit ordinarily includes at least 300 minutes per week of scheduled class time as well as significant work outside of class. Classes are scheduled from Monday morning through late Friday afternoon.

Department of Africana Studies

Professor: Cudjoe (Chair), Steady
Associate Professor: Obeng
Assistant Professor: Patterson

Africana Studies is the critical, intellectual and representational expression of the history, culture and ideas of people of Africa and the African Diaspora, past and present. Founded in 1969, it is an interdisciplinary and transnational program of study that includes theoretical and methodological approaches reflective of the experience and intellectual traditions of Black people. It also includes studies of political and social movements, such as Negritude, Garveyism, pan-Africanism, the Civil Rights Movement, Decolonization, Black Consciousness, Black Identities and Black Feminism, Zora Neale Hurston, Frantz Fanon, Walter Rodney, C.L.R. James, W.E.B. Du Bois, Kwame Nkrumah, Patricia Hill Collins, Angela Davis, Andre Lorde, Ama Ata Aidoo, Buchi Emechta, Samir Amin and Oyeronke Oyewumi are among the writers and intellectuals studied. Through the disciplines of history, literature, psychology, sociology, anthropology, political science, economics, religion and the creative arts, students examine the African world and the relationship between African people and the larger world system. Students obtain a wide range of knowledge and analytical ability as well as intellectual grounding, coherence, and integrity of the major. Each student will be assigned a faculty advisor, and be required to take the introductory course and attend a colloquium titled: “Africana Colloquium: The Common Intellectual Experience.”

As an intellectual expression of Africana peoples, Africana Studies is designed to acquaint students with a critical perspective on the Africana world that is found primarily in Africa, the United States, the Caribbean and South America, but also among peoples of African descent in Asia and Europe. Grounded in the history, culture and philosophy of Africana peoples, Africana Studies promotes knowledge of the contribution of Africana people to the world, develops a critical perspective to examine the Africana experience, and cultivates a respect for the multiracial and multicultural character of our common world humanity. Although Africana Studies emphasizes an interdisciplinary and multicultural approach to scholarship and learning, it also seeks to provide grounding in a specific discipline and an understanding of the breadth of the Africana experience. As a result, the Africana Studies department expects its students to develop an intellectually critical and analytic apparatus to examine knowledge, seeks to contribute to a student’s self-awareness, and attempts to broaden a student’s perspective in ways that allow her to understand her world in its diversity and complexity.

Goals for the Major

- To ensure an understanding of the concepts, theories, knowledge, research methodologies and skills in Africana Studies from a multidisciplinary perspective, through a series of required, core, elective and experiential courses and a mandatory colloquium;
- To develop students’ ability to understand and communicate specialized and general knowledge in the field of Africana Studies that includes Africa and the African Diaspora in the U.S., the Caribbean, Latin America, Europe and Asia;
- To provide students with a representational and wide-ranging multidisciplinary education and an ability to apply knowledge to critical thinking that is also rational, creative, persuasive and linked to problem solving;
- To develop skills and abilities necessary to conduct high-quality library and field research; apply methodological tools and use modern technology for discovering information and interpreting investigative data;
- To attend the compulsory “Africana Colloquium: The Common Intellectual Experience” and provide students with an understanding of the discourses of the African Diaspora through a variety of disciplines that culminate in a common intellectual experience;
- To develop skills that will be essential for a range of careers and leadership roles in an increasingly global and diverse world.

SWA 101-102 Elementary Swahili
TBA

The primary focus of Elementary Swahili is to develop listening, speaking, reading, and writing skills. Aspects of Swahili/African culture will be introduced and highlighted as necessary components towards achieving communicative competence. Each semester earns 1.0 unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for each course.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

AFR 105 Introduction to the Black Experience
Patterson

This course serves as the introductory offering in Africana Studies. It explores, in an interdisciplinary fashion, salient aspects of the Black experience, both ancient and modern, at home and abroad. This course provides an overview of many related themes, including slavery, Africanisms, gender, colonialism, civil rights, and pan-African exchange.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

AFR 201 The African-American Literary Tradition
Cudjoe

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of the Afro-American experience as depicted in literature from the eighteenth century through the present. Study of various forms of literary expression including the short story, autobiography, literary criticism, poetry, drama, and essays as they have been used as vehicles of expression for Black writers during and since the slave experience.

Prerequisite: None

Requirements for the Major

A major in Africana Studies requires nine units. An Africana Studies major will choose one of three possible concentrations: Africa, the Caribbean, and the United States. All of the three concentrations encompass the interdisciplinary approach of the department, while allowing students to focus on a particular area and gain expertise in one discipline.

Majors must take 105 by the end of the junior year. This course provides an overview of the discipline of Africana Studies, including its philosophical and historical foundations, and introduces students to its major fields of inquiry. Of the nine units required for an Africana Studies major, at least two must be at the 300 level and 344 is strongly recommended. Ordinarily, not more than two units may be taken outside the department. All majors must attend the "Africana Studies Colloquium: The Common Experience" each semester.

Africa: This program of study is designed to provide students with an interdisciplinary and integrated understanding of the peoples of the African continent, from its ancient foundation through its current geopolitical situation. However, to ensure students' breadth of knowledge of the African world, two courses that focus on a geographic area other than Africa are required. Six courses that focus on Africa are the foundation of this concentration: one course must be in history; one must be in a social science (economics, political science, sociology, anthropology, or psychology); one must be chosen from the humanities (literature, language, art, music, philosophy, and religion); and two should be chosen from a specific discipline. The following courses are appropriate for the Africa concentration.

History: AFR 105, [200], [319], 340, HIST 265, Social Sciences: AFR [204], [205], [213], [223], 235, 236, [245], [280], 297, 301, 306, [307], 318, 341

FREN 218, 330, MUS 209, 224/REL 224

The Caribbean: This program of study also provides students with an interdisciplinary knowledge of a particular geographic area: the Caribbean—its history, peoples, culture, and significance in the world system. As with the other concentrations, students focusing on the Caribbean are expected also to acquire some breadth of knowledge about the African world; thus, two courses focused on other areas are required. Of the five courses on the Caribbean, one must be a humanities course; one must be a social science; one must be a history course; and two must be chosen from one discipline. (See the African track for the specific disciplines considered "humanities" and "social sciences.") The following courses are appropriate for the Caribbean concentration:
American Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Director: Imber (Sociology)
Assistant Professor: Fisher, Jeffries
Advisory Board: Cain (English), Creel (Women's and Gender Studies), Kodera (Religion), Lee (English), Revery (Women's and Gender Studies), Shelley (English)

American Studies is the academic area of inquiry that seeks an integrated and interdisciplinary understanding of American culture. Rooted in the traditional disciplines of literature and history, the field has evolved from its establishment in the first half of the twentieth century to include artifacts, methodologies, and practitioners drawn from a wide variety of disciplines within the humanities, including Political Science, Sociology, Religion, Anthropology, Music, Art History, Film Studies, Architecture, Women's and Gender Studies, and other fields of inquiry.

Goals for the Major

- To expose students to exemplary models of interdisciplinary learning and critical inquiry in the arts, humanities, and social sciences.
- To provide a broad understanding of American culture and society and their complex interrelationships.
- To delineate the influence and impact of America beyond its borders and the transnational, racial, ethnic, and religious interactions that, in turn, define its own identity.
- To introduce students to the many innovations within disciplines that attend to changes in historical understanding, literary and artistic sensibilities, and social life.
- To enable students to make connections among disciplines in sharp and critical ways.
- To offer students the opportunity to become critical thinkers, cogent writers, and skillful researchers on a broad range of topics in American life through their course work, individual study, and honors work.

Requirements for the Minor

A minor in Africana Studies will consist of five units, including one 300-level course. AFR 105 is strongly recommended. Minors are strongly encouraged to take courses in at least two geographic areas (e.g., the United States and the Caribbean) and in two or more disciplines. Minors are also encouraged to attend departmentally sponsored extracurricular lectures, especially those (required of majors) that focus on methodology.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level. The department may petition on behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.3 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

AMST 101 Introduction to American Studies

Fisher

An interdisciplinary examination of some of the varieties of American experience, aimed at developing a functional vocabulary for further work in American Studies or related fields. After a brief, intense review of American history, the course will direct its focus towards important moments in that history, investigating each of them in relation to selected cultural, historical, artistic, and political events, figures, institutions, and texts.

Prerequisite: This course is required of American Studies majors and should be completed before the end of the junior year.

Distribution: Historical Studies

Unit: 1.0

AMST 120 Sport and Society

Jeffries

Commonplace understandings of sport tend to assign either an entertainment or recreational value to participation and attention paid to such activities. A closer look at competitive athletics reveals that its meaning and significance stretches far beyond entertainment and recreation. Sport studies tell us about ourselves and our society, as its impact extends to the business world, to community building and child socialization, to race, gender, and sexual politics. This course introduces the academic study of sport, touching on a wide range of topics primarily through a sociological lens. Students are encouraged to think critically about their own experiences and to follow current events and pop cultural debates about sports, in order to apply methods and theory from the readings to their everyday sports lives.

AMST 151 The Asian-American Experience

Creel (Women's and Gender Studies)

An interdisciplinary introduction to the study of Asian Americans, the fastest-growing ethnic group in North America. Critical examination of different stages of their experience from the "coolie labor" and "yellow peril" to the model minority and struggles for identity; roots of Asian stereotypes; myth and reality of Asian women; prejudice against, among, and by Asians; and Asian contributions to a more pluralistic, tolerant, and just American society. Readings, films, lectures, and discussions.

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

AMST 152 Race, Ethnicity, and Politics in America

Jeffries

The politics of race and ethnicity in America are constantly shifting, due to demographic, political, and economic transformations. However, fundamental questions about the nature of racial and ethnic divisions in America help frame the investigation of race and ethnicity across historical contexts. Some of the questions that will guide our discussions are: Are racial and ethnic hierarchies built into American political life? Are episodes and regimes of racial injustice the result of economic structure or a shameful absence of political will? How do gender and class influence our understandings of racial and ethnic categorization and inequality? To what extent are racial and ethnic identification a matter of personal choice?

AMST 212 Korean American Literature and Culture

Widmer (East Asian Languages and Literatures)

This course introduces a group of fictional and dramatic writings by Korean-American writers. These are our main focus, but most class assignments will also include an article on some aspect of Korean-American experience. Videos will constitute another facet of the course. Not all videos are directly about Korean-Americans; if not they represent the work of Korean-American producers, authors, and artists. Together, the three streams—literary writing, descriptive writing, and videos—aim to convey a picture of the Korean-American experience since the beginning of the twentieth century, but with primary emphasis on the past two decades.
AMST 240/ENG 266 The Rise of an American Empire: Wealth and Conflict in the Gilded Age

This interdisciplinary exploration of the so-called Gilded Age and the Progressive era in the United States between the Civil War and World War I, emphasizing both the conflicts and achievements of the period. Topics will include Reconstruction and African-American experience in the South; technological development and industrial expansion; the exploitation of the West and resistance by Native Americans and Latinos; feminism, "New Women," and divorce; tycoons, workers, and the rich poor divide; immigration from Europe, Asia, and new American overseas possessions; as well as a vibrant period of American art, architecture, literature, music, and material culture, to be studied by means of the rich cultural resources of the Boston area. Students may register for either AMST 240 or ENG 266 and credit will be granted accordingly.

AMST 286/ENG 286 New Literatures

This course will explore significant lesbian and gay literature from classical times to the present, including contemporary transformations of society, politics, and consciousness. The course will introduce elements of "queer theory" and gender theory; it will address issues of sexual orientation and sexual identification in works of poetry, autobiography, and fiction. Readings will include such writers as Sappho, Plato, William Shakespeare, Thomas Mann, Virginia Woolf, James Baldwin, Audre Lorde, Adrienne Rich, David Leavitt, Leslie Feinberg, Shaym Selvadurai, and Jeannette Winterson. Students may register for either AMST 286 or ENG 286 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

AMST 315 Beats, Rhymes, and Life: Hip-Hop Studies

This course offers an intensive exploration of "hip-hop" studies where students learn about the history of hip-hop as a social movement and art form comprised of the following four elements: Dling, MCing, break dancing, and graffiti art. Once a common understanding of hip-hop's genesis and history is established, attention is turned to how hip-hop is studied in the academy. This section of the course features a wide range of interdisciplinary studies of hip-hop music and culture in order to demonstrate the different methodological and theoretical frames used in hip-hop scholarship. In the final section of the course, we focus on hip-hop-related debates and discussions in popular culture, such as black authenticity, non-black consumption of hip-hop, concerns about the new black "hyperghetto," prison, and the representation of sexism and gender scripts within hip-hop culture.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. Preference given to AMST majors and seniors. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

AMST 317/SOC 344 Greed in America

This course will examine the representation of greed in popular culture and the cultural contradictions of American capitalist society in which the profit motive competes with values and norms of restraint and temperance. Students will read classical and contemporary sociological, social-scientific, and cultural critiques of greed and greed symbolization in American life. Students may register for either AMST 317 or SOC 344 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors only. Permission of the instructor required. Enrollment is limited and preference is given to AMST majors and seniors. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

AMST 335/CAM 345/ENG 363 Seminar. Film Noir

A journey through the dark side of the American imagination. Where classic Hollywood filmmaking trades in uplift and happy endings, film noir inhabits a pessimistic, morally ambiguous universe. This course will explore the development of this alternative vision of the American experience, from its origins around the time of World War II, through the renewal of the genre in the early 1970s, to its ongoing influence in contemporary cinema. We will pay particular attention to noir's definition of American cinematic style, and to its representations of masculinity and femininity. Films that may be studied include Howard Hawk's The Big Sleep, Billy Wilder's Double Indemnity, Robert Altman's The Long Goodbye, Roman Polanski's Chinatown, and David Lynch's Mulholland Drive. Students may register for AMST 335, CAMS 345, or ENG 363 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

AMST 337/ARTH 340 Seminar. Disneyland and American Culture

This seminar will examine Disneyland as an expression of middle-class American values, as a locus of corporatism and consumerism, as a postmodern venue, as a utopia, and as an influence upon architecture and urban design. In a broader sense, we will use Disney to explore the ideals, the desires, and the anxieties that have shaped post-World War II American culture. Students may register for either AMST 337 or ARTH 340 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. Enrollment is limited and preference is given to Art and American Studies majors. Distribution: Arsh, Music, Theatre, Film, Video, and Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

AMST 350 Research or Individual Study

Open by permission of the director to juniors and seniors.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

AMST 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: By permission of the director. Students eligible for honors work and considering doing a thesis during their senior year should plan to identify a thesis advisor, specify their project, and aim to begin work before the end of their junior year. See Academic Distinctions.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

The American Studies major seeks to understand the American experience through a multidisciplinary program of study. The requirements for the major are as follows: Nine units of course work are required for the major, at least six of which should be taken at Wellesley College. These courses include AMST 101, which should be completed before the end of the junior year; at least two courses in historical studies; one course in literature; one course in the arts; and one course from any one of the following three areas: social and behavioral analysis; or epistemology and cognition; or religion, ethics, and moral philosophy. Students are also expected to take at least two 300-level courses, one of which should be AMST 317, taken in the junior or senior year. AMST 350, 360 and 370 do not count towards this requirement.

To ensure some concentration in a field of American society and culture, at least three courses should be elected in one department. In consultation with the director, a student may choose to focus her concentration in an area or field, such as law, women, or Asian America, assembling her group of three or more courses in this topic from two or more departments. American Studies majors with an Asian-American concentration are encouraged to take courses that specifically address Asian-American issues, such as AMST 151, AMST 212, ENG 269, HIST 277, WGST 249/CAMS 241, and WGST 305.

Within this structure, students are encouraged to explore the diversity of American culture and the many ways to interpret it. Most courses at the College that are primarily American in content may be applied to the American Studies major. American Studies majors are encouraged to take as part of, or in addition to, their major courses, surveys of American history, literature, and art (for example, HIST 203/204, ENG 262/266, ARTH 231/232) and a course on the U.S. Constitution and political thought (for example, POL 430). In addition, students are urged to take one or more courses outside the major that explore the theory and methods of knowledge creation and production (for example, ECON 103/SOC 190, PHIL 345, POL 199, QR 180, SOC 301).

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Department of Anthropology

Professor: Karina Kastend, Kohl (Chair)
Assistant Professor: Van Arsdale
Lecturer: Rup

The study of anthropology provides a broad perspective on human cultural and biological variation across time and space. This includes a natural historical perspective on the history of humanity that documents the evolution and contemporary biological diversity of Homo sapiens from its origins in Africa to its current position as the dominant species on earth. It also traces the cultural and technological changes that have accompanied human development for millennia through the Stone, Bronze, and Iron Ages to the emergence of early complex civilizations in both the Old and New Worlds. Anthropologists study cultures throughout the world at various levels of cultural and technological development from mobile hunting and foraging bands to highly stratified agrarian societies and contemporary ethnically diverse nation states. Western and non-Western cultures are appreciated in terms of their own values and unique historical trajectories. The perspective of anthropology is inherently multiculturally and multidisciplinary, and, as such, students are "led out" (educe) of their own personal backgrounds to appreciate the incredible cultural diversity of humanity, receiving an exceptionally broad liberal arts education.

Goals for the Major

• An understanding of cultural diversity throughout the world that evaluates cultures at different levels of economic and social development on their own terms
• A familiarity with the vast ways in which human cultures vary in their social institutions and practices from small bands of egalitarian hunter-gatherers to sharply stratified states
• An understanding of how diverse cultures have traditionally adapted to and interacted with their environment and how today they are responding to and confronting the challenges of globalization
• An awareness of how humans have evolved as a species and how and why they exhibit patterns of physical variation today, including a critical social and biological understanding of "racial" diversity
• A familiarity with basic features of world prehistory and human cultural evolution from the Old Stone Age to the emergence of early civilizations
• Critical knowledge of methods used in anthropological field research, including the excavation of paleo-anthropological and archaeological sites and the construction of ethnographies based upon personal interaction with local cultures
• An appreciation for the different theoretical approaches used to understand human variation in its myriad of forms
ANTH 104 Introduction to Cultural and Social Anthropology
Karakadou
A comparative approach to the concept of culture and an analysis of how culture structures the worlds we live in. The course examines human societies from their tribal beginnings to the postindustrial age. We will consider the development of various types of social organization and their significance based on family and kinship, economics, politics, and religion.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 203 Indigenous People, Global Development, and Human Rights
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The course focuses on the processes and consequences of the encroachment of Western societies on indigenous peoples. We will examine issues raised by colonial enterprises that continue to be crucial to the current situations of indigenous societies vis-à-vis nation-states: political power, economic development, cultural difference, gender relations, health, education and religion. We will study ethnographic cases drawn from different parts of the world and analyze these topics from a historical and comparative perspective. Special attention will be given to indigenous peoples and ongoing struggles in Latin America. Key to this course will be issues of indigenous autonomy, development, and rights within human rights movements, international law, and global politics.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 204 Physical Anthropology
Van Arsdale
This course will examine the evolutionary foundations of human variability. This theme is approached broadly from the perspectives of anatomy, paleontology, genetics, primatology, and ecology. For this purpose, the course will address the principles of human evolution, fossil evidence, behavior, and morphological characteristics of human and nonhuman primates. Explanation of the interrelationships between biological and sociobehavioral aspects of human evolution, such as the changing social role of sex, are discussed. In addition, human inter-population differences and environmental factors that account for these differences will be evaluated.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 206 Archaeology
Kohl
A survey of the development of archaeology. The methods and techniques of archaeology are presented through an analysis of excavations and prehistoric remains. Materials studied range from early hominid sites in Africa to the Bronze Age civilizations of the Old World and the Aztec and Inca empires of the New World. Students are introduced to techniques for reconstructing the past from material remains. The course includes a field trip to a neighboring archaeological site.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 207 Hominid Evolution
Van Arsdale
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The hominid fossil record provides direct evidence for the evolution of humans and our ancestors through the past five to seven million years. This will provide an overview of human evolutionary history from the time of our last common ancestor with the living great apes through the emergence of "modern" humans. Emphasis is placed on evolutionary mechanisms, and context is provided through an understanding of the prehuman primates. The human story begins with origins and the appearance of unique human features such as bipedality, the loss of cutting canines, the appearance of continual sexual receptivity, births requiring midwifery, and the development of complex social interactions. An early adaptive shift sets the stage for the subsequent evolution of intelligence, technology, and the changes in physical form that are the consequences of the unique feedback system involving cultural and biological change.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 209 Forensic Anthropology
Van Arsdale
The identification of human remains for criminological and political purposes is widespread. This course explores issues in the identification and interpretation of human bones including methods for determining sex, age, stature, and ancestry as well as for identifying pathologies and anomalies. The course will pay particular attention to those anatomical elements, both soft tissue and bones, that aid in the reconstruction of individuals and their lifestyles. In addition, the course explores search and recovery techniques, crime-scene analysis, the use of DNA in solving crimes, and the role of forensic anthropology in the investigation of mass fatalities from both accidents and human rights violations. It also addresses ballistics and the use of photography in forensic investigation. The course will include a weekly lab component focused on human osteology and skeletal analysis.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 211/RAST 211 Wintersession Program in the Republic of Georgia
Kohl
Students travel to Tbilisi, Georgia, for Wintersession. They attend lectures in English at Tbilisi State University on Georgian history, language and culture and on contemporary political developments there and visit sites of historical interest in and around Tbilisi. They live with Georgian families and spend three weeks completing a self-designed internship with a local organization. Students may register for either ANTH 211 or RAST 211 and credit will be granted accordingly. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean’s Office approval.
Prerequisite: One course in anthropology or Russian Area Studies. Application required.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis or Historical Studies
Semester: Wintersession
Unit: 0.5

ANTH 214 Race and Human Variation
Van Arsdale
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This is a course about race concepts and human biological variation, viewed from historical and biological perspectives. This course thus has two intertwined emphases. One is placed on the historical connection between science and sociopolitical ideologies and policies. The other is on the evolutionary origin of human biological and cultural diversity. Through lecture and discussion, topics explored include the role of polygenism, historically and in current scientific thought; biological determinism and scientific racism; the Holocaust and other examples of "applied biology"; and the role of the race concept in current scientific debates, such as those over the place of the Neanderthals in human evolution, as well as those over the book The Bell Curve. The course seeks to guide students through a critical exercise in studying the evolutionary origins of contemporary human biological variation and its close relationship with scientific and popular concepts of race.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 217 Peoples, Histories, and Cultures of the Balkans
Karakadou
The Balkan region has been a major trade and cultural crossroads for millennia and encompasses a variety of landscapes, peoples, and cultures. We will read authoritative historical studies and ethnographies as well as short stories, poetry, books of travel and fiction. We will consider the legacy of the classical world, the impact of Islam, the emergence of European commercial empires, the impact of the European Enlightenment in national movements, the emergence of modernization, and the socialist experiments in the hinterlands. The course offers a critical overview of the politics of historical continuity and the resurgence of Balkan nationalisms during the last decade of the twentieth century.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 218 Everyday Life in South Asia
Lynch (Olin)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course is an anthropological introduction to South Asia, with an emphasis on India and Sri Lanka. It focuses on the daily lives and experiences of real people as portrayed in ethnographies, novels, and films. The emphasis will be on the dynamics of power in which everyday lives are embedded. Topics include labor, gender, modernity, ethnicity, development, and globalization. Specific cases include practices of childbirth in South India, masculinity and ethnic identity in Sri Lanka, damming and displacement along the Narmada River, global garment production in Sri Lanka, and the Bhopal chemical disaster.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 220 Identity and Community Formation: Asian-American Perspectives
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course offers analytic tools for grappling with the historical and contemporary complexities of Asian-American identification and community formation. Each section of this course introduces students to different theoretical frames for exploring the meaningful contours of the term “Asian American” in relation to other racialized and ethnic groups in the U.S. We will pay particular attention to the historical conditions and ongoing processes for the social formation of persons and collectivities under the rubric of “Asian American” as well as examine multiplicities, contradictions, and gaps of Asian-American identifications and politics. Students will learn to think critically about Asian-American identification in the wider contexts of orientalism, U.S. imperialism and nationalism, racialization and racism, state governmentality, economic restructuring, transnationalism and other social processes.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 223 Contemporary Chinese Society
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course draws from anthropological and cultural-historical frameworks to explore the contemporary terrain of China in relation to an emergent "New World (Dis)Order." While introducing students to key concepts and major historical developments in twentieth-century China, the course will focus largely on ethnographic studies of social change and everyday life between and during the Mao (1949–1978) and post-Mao (1978 to the present) eras. Topics examined include nation-building, Chinese modernities, capitalist development, gendered desires, class inequalities, religious revivalism and cosmopolitan identities. Students will be asked to critically and creatively think about change and continuity in contemporary China not only in terms of the organization of Chinese political institutions, but also in relation to the role of Chinese diasporic populations and other transnational and globalizing forces in producing spatial-temporal imaginaries.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 224 Ancient China: From the Neolithic to Imperial Unification
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores the development of social, economic, political and cultural systems in ancient China, from the Neolithic period through the Han dynasty. Drawing on archaeological data and historical texts, we will examine the emergence of state-level polities and their subsequent unification under imperial authority. Special attention will be devoted to political economy, social organization, ritual exchange, and notions of power and rulership expressed in philosophical thought.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 232 Anthropology of the Media
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course introduces students to key analytic frameworks through which media and the mediation of culture have been examined. Using an anthropological approach, students will explore how media as representation and as cultural practice have been fundamental to the (trans)formation of modern sensibilities and social relations. We will examine several technologies of mediation—from the Maussian body as “Man’s first technical instrument” to print capitalism, radio and cassette cultures, cinematic and televisial publics, war journalism, the digital revolution and the political milieu of spin and public relations. Themes in this course include: media in the transformation of the senses; media in the production of cultural subjectivities and publics; and the social worlds and cultural logics of media institutions and sites of production.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 233 Language and Culture
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to linguistic anthropology. We will explore the interaction of language and culture, learning how anthropology adds to our understandings of language, and how linguistic tools and concepts likewise help us understand culture. Topics to be examined include: the nature, origin, and history of language; folk understandings of language; orality versus literacy; how culture mediates communication, cognition, and meaning; the ethnography of speaking; language’s mediation of gender and ethnic/racial/national identity; the politics of bilingualism; and the power of language. Case studies will deal with languages from around the world, with emphasis on the Americas. Assignments (including basic fieldwork) will offer training in linguistic-anthropological methodologies.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 234/ES 234 Cultural Ecology
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores theoretical and methodological issues in the study of human culture and social activity in relation to ecological systems and the environment. Readings include both classic studies as well as contemporary research, with particular emphasis placed on the various dimensions and scales of social organization and activity, and on the role of cultural, religious, and political institutions in shaping ecological relationships as well as economic behavior. Students may register for either ANTH 234 or ES 234 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 238 The Vulnerable Body: Anthropological Understandings
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course begins with the assumption that the human body is a unit upon which collective categories are engraved. These categories can vary from social values, to religious beliefs, to feelings of national belonging, to standards of sexuality and beauty. Readings in this course will concentrate around the classic and recent attempts in the social and historical sciences to develop ways of understanding this phenomenon of “embodiment.”

We will begin with an overview of what is considered to be the “construction” of the human body in various societies and investigate how the body has been observed, experienced, classified, modified, and sacralized in different social formations.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 242 "Civilization" and "Barbarism" during the Bronze Age, 3500–2000 B.C.E. Kohl
A review of the earliest emergence of state-stratified societies in the Old World (Pharaonic Egypt, Mesopotamia, the Indus Valley, and Shang China) and their integration through trade, conflict, migrations, and diffusions of technologies, particularly metalworking, with neighboring illiterate societies on their peripheries. The course concludes with a comparison with core-periphery relations in pre-Columbian Mesoamerica and Peru.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 247 Societies and Cultures of Eurasia Kohl
A survey of the non-Russian, largely non-European peoples of the former Soviet Union (particularly ethnic groups in Transcaucasia, Central Asia, and Siberia). The course will review how traditional cultures in these areas changed during the years of Soviet rule and will examine the problems they face today with newly gained independence or greatly increased autonomy. Nationality policies of the former Soviet Union will be discussed with a particular emphasis on how they affect the current territorial disputes and conflicts among different ethnic groups (e.g., the unresolved war between Armenia and Azerbaijan over the enclave of Nagorno-Karabagh).

Prerequisite: One unit in anthropology, economics, history, political science, or sociology.
Distribution: Historical Studies or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 104 and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 104 and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

ANTH 251 Cultures of Cancer
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course critically examines cancer as a pervasive disease and a metaphor of global modern cultures. Students will be exposed to the ways cancer is perceived as a somatic and social standard within locally constructed cognitive frameworks. They will investigate the scientific and emotional responses to the disease and the ways cancer challenges our faith and spirituality, our ways of life, notions of pollution and cleanliness and our healing strategies. This approach to cancer is comparative and interdisciplinary and focuses on how specialists in different societies have described the disease, how its victims in different cultures have narrated their experiences, how causality has been perceived, and what interventions (sacred or secular) have been undertaken as therapy and prevention.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 260 Media and Modernity in South Asia
A survey of postcolonial media and modernity in South Asian societies. Focus is on how the production of media and their modes of reception have been influenced by colonial and postcolonial experiences.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: None
Semester: None
Unit: None

ANTH 261 Media, Nation, and Culture in South Asia
A study of how media and culture in South Asia reflect and shape the nation-building process. The course examines the role of media in constructing and sustaining national identities.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: None
Unit: None

ANTH 262 Media and Nation in South Asia
A course on the role of media in the construction of nationhood in South Asia. It explores the ways in which media have shaped national identity and the challenges faced by media in contemporary South Asia.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: None
Unit: None

ANTH 263 Media and the Nation in South Asia
A study of how media have been used to construct and sustain national identities in South Asia. The course examines the role of media in the construction of a sense of nationhood.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

ANTH 256 A History of Archaeological Thought

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A History of Archaeological Thought is an intermediate level course intended to introduce students to the development of archaeological theory from the early nineteenth-century realization that the remote past could be reconstructed solely on the basis of the archaeological record to later developments, such as attempts to identify ethnic/linguistic groups exclusively from material remains. It will trace the emergence of archaeology as a subfield within anthropology and its continuing close interaction with broader developments in anthropological theory. The course contrasts perspectives that emphasize internal social evolution and adaptation to local environmental settings with postmodern responses that stress multiple perspectives on a contingent past. Students will be introduced to different theoretical approaches to interpreting the archaeological record, such as cultural ecology, feminist or engendered archaeology, Marxist historical materialism, world systems theory, and so-called symbolic/cognitive archaeology. The suitability of these theoretical approaches for interpreting the archaeological record will be critically examined.

Prerequisite: 104 or 206 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 260 Cultures and Peoples of Mesoamerica

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores the complex history, politics, and cultures of the region that includes Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Belize, and Nicaragua. Critically examining diverse scholarship, we will examine ancient, colonial, and "post-colonial" Mesoamerican civilizations, and their continuing influence on North American society. Topics include: the legacies of pre-Hispanic civilizations; colonization and conflict; indigenous identity and activism; political-economic changes; ethnicity and gender; and transnational flows of people, commodities, and ideas. Special attention is given to the Maya Area and to recent political and cultural activism in Chiapas, Guatemala, and Mesoamerican enclaves in North America. Lectures, readings, and discussions will draw parallels to other parts of the world.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 269 Anthropology of Gender, Marriage, and the Family

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of the variations in gender and family life globally. Comparisons of patterns of behavior and belief systems surrounding marriage, sexuality, parenthood, male and female power, and masculine and feminine temperament. Emphasis on the ways kinship and family life organize society and the ways gender is constructed in conjunction with other identities such as race, class, and nationality. Discussion of the cultural context of male violence against women and women's rights as human rights.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 274 Anthropological Genetics

Van Arsdale

This course will provide an introduction into the core concepts of population genetics, with special focus on their application to human and nonhuman primate evolution. Population genetics is the branch of evolutionary biology concerned with how genetic variation is patterned within and between populations and how these patterns change over time. Though the theory is applicable to all organisms, specific examples drawn from the human and nonhuman primate literature will be used as case studies. Topics will also include the genetic basis for disease, pedigree analysis, and personal genomics. The course will be structured around lectures and discussion with regular computer labs to provide first-hand experience working with anthropological genetic topics and analyses of genetic data sets.

Prerequisite: BISC 110, or BISC 111, or permission of instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 300 Ethnographic Methods and Ethnographic Writing

Ruf

An exploration of anthropological research and writing through the analytical and practical study of "fieldwork" and "ethnography." Examines a variety of anthropological research methods and genres of representation paying particular attention to questions of knowledge, location, evidence, ethics, power, translation, experience, and the way theoretical problems can be framed in terms of ethnographic research. Students will be asked to apply critical knowledge in a fieldwork project of their own design.

Prerequisite: 301 or two 200-level units in anthropology, economics, history, political science, or sociology, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 301 History and Theory in Anthropology

Karikaridou

This course introduces students to contemporary anthropology by tracing its historical development and its specific application in ethnographic writing. It examines the social context in which each selected model or "paradigm" took hold and the extent of cognitive sharing, by either intellectual borrowing or breakthrough. The development of contemporary theory will be examined both as internal to the discipline and as a response to changing intellectual climates and social milieus. The course will focus on each theory in action, as the theoretical principles and methods apply to ethnographic case studies.

Prerequisite: Two 200-level units in anthropology, economics, history, political science, or sociology, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 305 Ethnographic Film

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar explores ethnographic film as a genre for representing "reality," anthropological knowledge and cultural lives. We will examine how ethnographic film emerged in a particular intellectual and political economic context as well as how subsequent conceptual and formal innovations have shaped the genre. We will also consider social responses to ethnographic film in terms of: the contexts for producing and circulating these works; the ethical and political concerns raised by cross-cultural representation; and the development of indigenous media and other practices in conversation with ethnographic film.

Throughout the course, we will situate ethnographic film within the larger project for representing "culture," addressing the status of ethnographic film in relation to other documentary practices, including written ethnography, museum exhibitions and documentary film.

Prerequisite: 301 or two 200-level units in anthropology, cinema and media studies, economics, history, political science, or sociology or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 314 Human Biology and Society

Van Arsdale

This seminar will provide an anthropological perspective on the intersection between human biology and society in three related topics. The first unit will focus on human genetic diversity and the increasing use of genetic information in society. Included in this unit will be discussions of genetic ancestry testing and the construction of identity. The second unit will examine in more detail the genetic basis of phenotypic traits and disease, exploring what our genes can reveal about us while also considering the problems of biological determinism. The final unit will extend the understanding of human biological variation by looking at the relationship between humans and our environment, how our environment changed throughout prehistory and contemporary times, and what role the environment plays in shaping human variation.

Prerequisite: ANTH 204, ANTH 314, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 319 Nationalism, Politics, and the Use of the Remote Past

Kohl

This seminar critically examines the use of prehistory and antiquity for the construction of accounts of national origins, historical claims to specific territories, or the biased assessment of specific peoples. The course begins with an examination of the phenomenon of nationalism and the historically recent emergence of contemporary nation-states. It then proceeds comparatively, selectively examining politically motivated appropriations of the remote past that either were popular earlier in this century or have ongoing relevance for some of the ethnic conflicts raging throughout the world today. The course will attempt to develop criteria for distinguishing credible and acceptable reconstructions of the past from those that are unbelievable and/or dangerous.

Prerequisite: One 200-level unit in anthropology, economics, political science, sociology, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Historical Studies or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ANTH 344 The Middle East: Anthropological Perspectives

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course discusses traditional subsistence economies (e.g., irrigation agriculture, pastoral nomadism) and tribal forms of social organization and analyzes their transform with the emergence of independent territorial nation-states and the advent of oil wealth during the twentieth century. The course considers different sects and expressions of Islam in specific countries and discusses kinship structures and family relationships, including the varying roles of women in specific societies. Contemporary political and economic issues and conflicts in Afghanistan, Iran, Turkey, Iraq, and Israel/Palestine will be studied from an anthropologically informed perspective of cultural continuity and change and the continuous refashioning of religious, ethnic, and national identities over time.

Prerequisite: Normally open to students who have taken a grade II unit in anthropology and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject matter. Not open to students who have taken [ANTH 244].
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major
For students entering in the fall of 2007 and later, a major in anthropology consists of a minimum of nine units (which may include courses from MIT’s anthropology offerings), of which 104, either 204 or 206, 300 and 301 are required. For students who entered prior to fall of 2007, a major in anthropology consists of a minimum of eight units (which may include courses from MIT’s anthropology offerings), of which 104, 300 and 301 are required. Students may also elect other relevant statistics or calculus courses, depending on the particular need and interest of the student. Majors are encouraged to take other courses that have a cultural or multicultural focus.

Requirements for the Minor
A minor in anthropology consists of five units: 104, two 200-level courses, and two 300-level courses. Students minoring in anthropology are encouraged to choose at least one ethnographic area course and at least one course which focuses on a particular theoretical problem.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Architecture

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: Harvey (Studio Art), Friedman (Art History—Fall only), McNamara (Art History), Tobin (Art History—Spring only)

A major in architecture offers the opportunity for study of architectural history and practice through an interdisciplinary program. Following the ancient Roman architect, Vitruvius' advice on the education of the architect, the program encourages students to familiarize themselves with a broad range of subjects in the humanities, sciences, and social sciences. Students may also elect courses in studio art, mathematics, and physics that lead to the appreciation of the principles of design and the fundamental techniques of architecture.

Goals for the Major

The goals of the Architecture major are threefold:

• Architecture majors should develop skills in design and spatial thinking through the practices of drafting, design, modeling and digital media production

• Majors should understand architecture and urban form in their historic context

• Majors should have an appreciation of the roles of client, program and economic conditions on the practice of architecture and the shaping of the built environment

Students are encouraged to consider study or travel abroad as part of their education in architecture. Majors should be aware, however, that study abroad credits usually do not transfer in at the 300 level.

ARCH 301 Introduction to AutoCAD 2008
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores the use of computer aided design and drafting techniques. The primary aim is to provide students with solid working knowledge of AutoCAD 2008 and its applications in architecture and design. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's office approval.

Prerequisite: ARTS 105, plus two 200-level courses in: either architectural history, drawing, or design, or MIT studio (at least one of these must be a studio art course).

Preference to Architecture majors.

Requirements for the Major

Each student designs her program of study individually in consultation with the directors. Majors are required to take ARTH 100-101 and ARTH 105. In addition, four units of course work above the 100 level and two 300-level units of course work must be taken in the Department of Art. At least three of these art units (including one at the 300 level) must be taken at Wellesley College.
Honors
In extraordinary circumstances, students who meet the college’s eligibility requirements for honors may, with the permission of the directors, elect 360/370 independent work as a path to honors. This is the program’s only path to honors.

Transfer Credit
Although courses at MIT are not required for the major, the MIT-Wellesley exchange provides a unique opportunity for students to elect advanced courses in design and construction. Students are also encouraged to consider travel or study abroad as important aspects of their education in architecture, and to take advantage of the wide resources of the College and the Department of Art in pursuing their projects.

Department of Art

Professor: Bernard, Carroll (Chair, Spring ‘10); Dorrien, Friedman, Harvey, Marvin, McGibbons (Director of Studio Art), Mekuria
Associate Professor: Black, Liu (Chair, Fall ’09), Musacchio
Assistant Professor: Bedell, Martin, Olson, Rivera, Tohme
Adjunct Assistant Professor: Rhodes
Senior Lecturer: Meng, Oles
Cornille Visiting Professor: Klinburg-Salier
Visiting Lecturer: Freed, Lief, Mowbray, Newman, C. Rogers
Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow: Cumming
Administrative Teaching Staff: McNamara

The Department of Art offers majors in the history of art and studio art as well as minors in the history of art and studio art. It is also possible to double major in studio art and the history of art.

The art department encourages students to explore opportunities for study abroad. For further information on study abroad programs, please see your advisor as well as the Office for International Studies.

Students with disabilities who will be taking art courses and need disability-related classroom or testing accommodations are encouraged to meet with the department chair to make arrangements.

Goals for the Majors
The department program is an integral component of a strong liberal arts curriculum. Our majors in art history and studio are structured to provide the following:

- Development of critical thinking about visual culture coupled with a solid foundation in visual literacy for future study in any field requiring close observation of visual material or data
- Development of a sophisticated appreciation of art and its history through an understanding of the philosophical and cultural significance of art in society
- Development of an understanding of the breadth of knowledge and appreciation for the degree of difficulty and complexity of art and its global practice
- A wide range of courses that provide depth and global coverage in both temporal and spatial media, recognizing the interdisciplinary nature of their chosen field
- Development of a solid body of work, written and/or visual, as part of preparedness for advanced study

History of Art

ARTH 100 Introduction to the History of Art

Part I: Ancient and Medieval Art

Staff
A broad multicultural survey of the art of the ancient and medieval worlds. This team-taught course focuses upon major monuments and masterpieces, including the Egyptian pyramids, the temples and sculptures of Greece and Rome, the Buddhist shrines of India, the painted scrolls of China and Japan, the mosques of the Islamic Near East, and the Gothic cathedrals of Europe. Two lectures and one conference per week. Conferences emphasize the interpretation of original works of art, and offer hands-on sampling of historical materials and techniques.

Required course for all art history, architecture, and studio art majors, who should plan to elect both ARTH 100 and 101 in their first or second year at Wellesley.

Prerequisite: None.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 100/WRIT 125 Introduction to the History of Art Part I: Ancient and Medieval Art
Rhodes, McNamara
See description for ARTH 100 above. Students in this section of ARTH 100 will attend the same twice-weekly lectures as the other ARTH 100 students, but their assignments will be different, and they will attend two special WRIT 125 conferences each week instead of the regular ARTH 100 conferences. Through writing about art, students in 100/125 will develop skills in visual and critical analysis. Enrolling in this course automatically enrolls one in ARTH 100. There is no need to register separately for either ARTH 100 or an ARTH 100 conference. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit towards a major in art history, architecture, or studio art.

Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 101 Introduction to the History of Art Part II: Renaissance to the Present

Staff
A foundation course in the history of art from Michelangelo to media culture. This team-taught course introduces visual culture beginning with the European Renaissance, using key issues and monuments as the focus of discussion. Two lectures and one conference per week.
Weekly conferences emphasize observational and analytical skills and are normally given in the Davis Museum and Cultural Center. Required course for all art history, architecture, studio art, and media arts and sciences majors, who should plan to elect both ARTH 100 and 101 in their first or second year at Wellesley.

Prerequisite: ARTH 100 and 101 can be selected separately, but students are advised to elect 100 before 101.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 101/WRIT 125 Introduction to the History of Art Part II: Renaissance to the Present
Rhodes
See description for ARTH 101 above. Students in this section of ARTH 101 will attend the same twice-weekly lectures as the other ARTH 101 students, but their assignments will be different, and they will attend two special WRIT 125 conferences each week. Through writing about art, students in 101/125 will develop skills in visual and critical analysis. Enrolling in this course automatically enrolls one in ARTH 101. There is no need to register separately for either ARTH 101 or an ARTH 101 conference. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit towards a major in art history, architecture, studio art, or media arts and sciences.

ARTH 225 Modern Art Since 1945
Berman
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of art since World War II, examining major movements of the historical avant-garde (such as cubism, expressionism, dada, and surrealism) as well as alternative practices. Painting, sculpture, photography, cinema, and the functional arts will be discussed, and critical issues, including the art market, gender, national, and cultural identities, will be examined.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 226/CMST 207 History of Photography: From Invention to Media Age
Berman
Photography is so much a part of our private and public lives, and it plays such an influential role in our environment, that we often forget to examine its aesthetics, meanings, and histories. This course provides an introduction to these analyses by examining the history of photography from the 1830s to the present. Considering fine arts and mass media practices, the class will examine the works of individual practitioners as well as the emergence of technologies, aesthetic directions, markets, and meanings. Normally offered in alternate years. Students may register for either ARTH 226 or CMST 207 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 strongly recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 228 Modern Architecture
Friedman
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of the major movements in architecture in Europe and the Americas from neoclassicism to the present.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Winter
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 231 Architecture and Urbanism in North America
McNamara
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will present a survey of American architecture and urbanism from prehistory to the late twentieth century. Lectures and discussions will focus particularly on placing the American built environment in its diverse political, economic and cultural contexts. We will also explore various themes relating to Americans' shaping of their physical surroundings, including the evolution of domestic architecture, the organization and planning of cities and towns, the relationships among urban, suburban and rural environments, the impact of technology, and Americans' ever-changing relationship to nature.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video Semester: Summer
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 232 American Painting
Bedell
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of American art from the Colonial period to World War II.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0
ARTH 235 Landscape and Garden Architecture
Rhodes
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of the major formal and ideological developments in landscape and garden architecture from the Renaissance to the present day, with particular emphasis on the eighteenth and twentieth centuries. Visits to local landscapes and gardens. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 236 Art, Architecture, and Culture in the Ancient Americas
Oles
Before the arrival of the Europeans in the late fifteenth century, several brilliant civilizations emerged in North and South America, including the Maya, Aztec, Moche, and Inca. Incorporating the tools of art history, cultural studies, and archaeology, this course explores the visual culture of these pre-Conquest peoples. Lectures that introduce the broader aspects of each civilization will be accompanied by workshops that explore cutting-edge issues. We will also work extensively with objects on display in the Davis Museum. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 237 Art, Architecture, and Culture in Post-Conquest Mexico
Oles
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of visual culture in Mexico from the Spanish conquest in the 1520s to current developments in contemporary art. Against a rich spectrum of historical events, we will examine key works of art and architecture, from colonial manuscripts to Frida Kahlo's self-portraits to recent videos, focusing on how art has served to build a sense of cultural or national identity. Specific topics to be addressed include the construction of race and gender, official patronage of public art, and the myths that have shaped, and continue to shape, what it means to be "Mexican." Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 239 Art and Architecture of South Asia
Cambridge
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will explore the visual cultures of India from the ancient Indus Valley civilization through the mid-seventeenth century C.E. Using a contextual approach, we will examine the relationships between the works of art and the political, economic, social, and cultural conditions that have shaped the direction of the visual arts. Fundamentally, this course will be the meaning and symbolic content of the works of art, specifically in relation to the major religious traditions of India, in this case, primarily Hinduism, Buddhism, and Islam. Issues of styles, iconography, methodological approaches, and current discourses will also be addressed. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 240 Asian Art and Architecture
Liu
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course surveys the major artistic traditions of Asia from prehistory to the turn of the twentieth century in India, Southeast Asia, China, Korea, and Japan. It will study monuments with emphasis on the way in which artistic creativity and style are tied to religion, philosophy, social and political change, and other historical contexts. Trips to the Museum of Fine Arts and the Harvard's Sackler Museum. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 241 Egyptian Art and Archaeology
Fedel
The greater Nile Valley has yielded some of the world's most ancient and compelling monuments. During the first part of this course we will survey the art of ancient Egypt from Neolithic times (ca. 6000 B.C.) through the New Kingdom (ca. 1000 B.C.). During the second half, we will take advantage of a special exhibition in the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston to examine in detail the funerary arts of the Middle Kingdom through the extensive contents of a tomb of about 2000 B.C. Some class sessions will meet in the Museum and students will be required to complete a project based on the exhibition. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 242 Life, Love, and Art in Ancient Greece
Mavro
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Greek art did more than just initiate the Western artistic tradition. It reflects a paradoxical society that prized freedom, inspired western democracy, invented philosophy, held slaves, degraded women, and institutionalized pedophilia. We will look at the historical development of Greek sculpture and painting, what they meant to the people who made them, and to the later centuries that prized them. Repeated trips to the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: One unit of art history or classical civilization. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 243 Roman Art and the Roman Empire
March
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Although created by force, and composed of peoples sharing neither language, culture, nor religion, the Roman Empire remained stable for centuries. One of the tools Rome used to bind her subjects together was an official art, a language of power. Standard architecture, sculpture, painting, luxury arts, and even fine tableware united every city in the Empire. We will examine the development of that visual language and how it was deployed as an agent of imperial power. Repeated visits to the Museum of Fine Arts. Prerequisite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors or by permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 244 Art, Patronage, and Society in Sixteenth-Century Italy
Muscatello
This course will examine the so-called High Renaissance and Mannerist periods in Italy. We will focus in particular on papal Rome, ducal Florence, and republican Venice, and the work of Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Raphael, Titian, and their followers in relation to the social and cultural currents of the time. Issues such as private patronage, female artists, contemporary sexuality, and the connections between monumental and decorative art will be examined in light of recent scholarship in the field. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 246 Collectors, Saints, and Cheese Eaters in Baroque Italy
Muscatello
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course surveys a selection of the arts in Italy from circa 1575 to circa 1750. The works of artists such as the Carracci, Caravaggio, Bernini, Gentileschi, and Longhi will be examined within their social, political, social, religious, and economic settings. Particular emphasis will be placed on Rome and the impact of the papacy on the arts, but Bologna, Florence, and Venice will also play a part, especially in regard to the growing interest in scientific enquiry and the production of arts in the courts and for the Grand Tour. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 247 Islamic Art and Architecture
Tobin
This course offers an introduction to the history of Islamic art and architecture from the seventh century to the nineteenth century. The course will address such themes as stylistic change, figurative representation, sacred space, and ornament within contemporary political, religious, and social contexts. Normally offered in alternate years. Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 248 Chinese Painting
Liu
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Chinese painting is the only tradition in world art that can rival the European painting tradition in the quantity and diversity of its output, the number of recorded artists, the complexity of aesthetic issues attached to it, and the sophistication of the written literature that accompanies it through the centuries. This course will examine Chinese painting from early times to the turn of the twentieth century with an introduction to traditional connoisseurship. Issues to be considered include major themes, styles, and functions of Chinese painting. Special attention will be given to: imperial patronage; the relationship between painting, calligraphy, and poetry; amateurism versus professionalism; gender in painting; and the tension between tradition and creativity. Trips to the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. Normally offered in alternate years.
ARTH 249 Arts of Japan
Liu
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course is a survey of the rich visual arts of Japan from the Neolithic period to the turn of the twentieth century with emphasis on painting, ceramics, sculpture, and architecture in the tenth to eighteenth centuries. It examines Japan's early cultural ties to India, China, and Korea and the development of a distinct Japanese national identity and styles in narrative hand scrolls and screen paintings, and the emergence of genre in woodblock prints. Special attention is given to the sociopolitical forces, religious thoughts, and intellectual discourses that shaped the representation and expression of these arts.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 250H Research or Individual Study

Unit: 0.5

ARTH 251 Renaissance Italy Before and After the Black Death
Musacchio
This course surveys a selection of the arts in Renaissance Italy, focusing primarily on Tuscany and central Italy from circa 1300 to circa 1500. This period witnessed the rise of the mendicant orders, the devastation of the Black Death, the growth of civic and private patronage, and, finally, the exile of the Medici family, all of which had a profound impact on the visual arts. The work of major artists and workshops will be examined and contextualized within their political, social, and economic settings by readings and discussions of contemporary texts and recent scholarship. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 255 Twentieth-Century Chinese Art
Liu
This course examines Chinese art in the socially and politically tumultuous twentieth century that has witnessed the end of the more than 2000-year-long imperial China, the founding of the Republic, the rise of the People's Republic, the impact of the West, and the ongoing reform. Critical issues of examination include the encounters of East and West, the tensions of tradition and revolution, the burdens of cultural memory and historical trauma, the interpretations of modernism, the emergence of avant-garde, and the problems of globalization and national identity. The major theme is art and society. The focus is from the Cultural Revolution (1966–1976) to the turn of the twenty-first century. The course is designed to develop an understanding of the diverse threads of twentieth-century Chinese art.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 258 African Spaces: Architecture and Installation
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the theories of space-making in African architecture and installation in both traditional and contemporary contexts. Architectural forms, such as the traditional anthropomorphic edifices in Togo, the nomadic dome structures of West Africa, and palace and tomb design of West Africa, will be considered along with examples from East and South Africa. The work of new and emerging artists, such as Dineo Bopape of South Africa, who use the autobiographical verging on diaristic to make highly personalized installations, and others like Abdoulaye Kourate, who use techniques of Minimalism to create spaces signifying a collective Malian identity, will be analyzed. The way atypical spaces such as vans and buses used in urban centers as well as other modes of transport such as ferries and boats are constructed will also be considered. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 259 The Art and Architecture of the European Enlightenment
Martin
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to European art and architecture in the Age of Enlightenment (1660–1815). Beginning with Louis XIV's development of Versailles and ending with Napoleon's Egyptian campaign, we will examine works of art in relation to social, political, cultural, and scientific debates of the period. Topics include new ideas of nature and landscape design; medical theory and the representation of the body; spaces of social reform and libertinage; travel and the rediscovery of antiquity; colonialism; and counter-Enlightenment trends. The course combines recent scholarship in art history with readings from the history of science, French and English literature, and cultural studies. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 261 Modernisms in Art and Architecture
Berman and Friedmann
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the notion of, and practices associated with, Modernism in the visual arts and built environment. The course will look at allied developments in painting, sculpture, photography, film, architecture, city planning, and the functional arts from c. 1890 to the present. Using case studies, the course will locate Modernist theory and practice in twentieth-century and contemporary social and cultural life. Themes to be addressed will include mass production, shopping and consumption, political theory and social practice, gender, and publicity. Assignments include independent research projects and a trip to New York.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 264 Painting in India
Cummings
This course will examine mural, manuscript, and miniature painting from India from the fifth to the nineteenth centuries. The focus will be on miniature painting in the Mughal, Rajput, and Deccan regions and topics will include courtly and religious patronage and the development of regional styles.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 267 Cross-Cultural Encounters in the Medieval Mediterranean
Tohme
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course focuses on the visual and material culture (architecture, art, everyday objects) of the various cultures of the medieval Mediterranean, and explores specific sites of interaction such as the early Islamic Levant, Norman Sicily, Byzantine North Africa, Islamic Spain, and Crusader Palestine. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 268 Art, Architecture, and Pilgrimage in the Medieval World
Tohme
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the phenomenon of medieval pilgrimage and its various components. It considers specific types of journeys, as well as theoretical approaches to pilgrimage in general. In addition to examining architecture and art of particular pilgrimage sites, this course also considers their social, political, theological and economic contexts. While the primary area of inquiry will be the medieval Christian pilgrimage experience, both Byzantine and Western European, we will also explore Muslim pilgrimage. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 289 European Art and Architecture, 1750–1900
Martin
This course surveys art and architecture in Europe from 1750–1900, focusing on such major movements as Neoclassicism, Romanticism, Realism, and Impressionism. We will examine the relationship of art to tradition, revolution, empire, social change, technology, and identity. Particular emphasis is placed on the representation and experience of modern life, in paintings by David, Goya, Turner, Manet, Seurat, and others, and in venues ranging from political festivals to avant-garde art galleries to London's Crystal Palace exhibition. Topics include the expanded audience for art, Orientalism, gender and representation, and the aesthetic expression of leisure. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: None. ARTH 100 and 101 recommended.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 311 Envisioning Empire
Martin

This seminar examines the complex, dynamic relationship between European art and imperialism and colonialism in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. We will emphasize the active role that visual culture played in shaping, and at times undermining, imperial practices, aesthetics, and beliefs. Each week focuses on a different encounter between Europeans and a colonial or foreign territory, including India, Africa, the Near and Far East, and North America. Topics include the representation of landscape and native populations; luxury goods and the slave trade; colonial portraiture and identity; the spectacle of empire; and the imagery of military conquest and defeat.
Prerequisites: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 316 Topics in African/African-American Art

Unit: 1.0

ARTH 318 New England Arts and Architecture McNamara

This seminar will introduce students to the visual and material culture of New England from the period of European contact to the end of the twentieth century, with particular emphasis on Boston and environs. Course readings, lectures, and discussion will address the broad range of artistic expression from decorative arts to cultural landscapes, placing them in their social, political, and economic contexts as well as in the larger context of American art and architecture. A major theme of the course will be the question of New England's development as a distinct cultural region and the validity of regionalism as a category of analysis. The course will include a number of required field trips to New England museums and cultural institutions.
Prerequisite: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 320 Seminar. American Architecture Friedman

Topic for 2009-10: The Modern House. This seminar will investigate the history, theory, and design of the single-family house from the early twentieth century to the present time, with particular attention to buildings and texts by Modern Movement architects in Europe; the United States, and Latin America.
Prerequisite: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 322 Seminar. Memory and Identity in Contemporary Visual Art of the African Diaspora

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Since the 1950s, projects of black liberation and empowerment have influenced the work of artists of African descent in the Black Atlantic. Pivotol historic events, such as the Civil Rights movement, the dismantling of colonial rule in Africa and the Brixton race riots in England, have urged black artists to reexamine issues of memory, identity, history, and belonging. This course considers those artists who trace a visual genealogy of the African diaspora and work in what has been identified as a tradition of remembrance. We will focus on artists working after 1960, but also consider the roots of this tradition in the beginning of the twentieth century and in earlier periods. Trips to the Studio Museum in Harlem and other museums.
Prerequisites: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 325 Seminar. Rococo and Neoclassical Interiors
Martin

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar explores the eighteenth-century European interior through an analysis of architecture, painting, sculpture, and decorative arts. By focusing on domestic interiors as well as garden pavilions, theaters, and political arenas, we will examine the role that objects and spaces played in the formation of eighteenth-century ideas of desire and identity. Specific patrons and artists discussed include Marie-Antoinette, Francois Boucher, Robert Adam, and Claude-Nicolas Ledoux. We will also examine the Rococo's revival in later periods—including nineteenth-century France and Gilded Age America—and its relevance for contemporary art. Museum visits will allow us to explore the phenomenon of the "period room."
Prerequisites: ARTH 101 and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 330 Seminar. Italian Renaissance Art Busacchio

Topic for 2009-10: Women Artists in Renaissance and Baroque Italy. This seminar will analyze the lives of women artists and the women they faced as they pursued their professions. Some, like Caterina Vigni, were cloistered nuns engaged in manuscript illumination or embroidery. Others, like Lavinia Fontana and Artemisia Gentileschi, were daughters of prominent painters trained in family workshops. Still others, like Solonbata Anguissola, were childhood prodigies who learned their trade despite the pressure of societal norms. The work of these women will be examined in the context of their social, political, and economic circumstances using recent scholarship in a variety of fields.
Prerequisites: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 331 Seminar. The Art of Northern Europe Carroll

Topic for 2009-10: Bosch and Bruegel. This seminar will examine the work of two of the most intriguing painters in the northern European tradition: Hieronymus Bosch (c. 1450-1516) and Pieter Bruegel the Elder (c. 1530-1569). Bosch is best known for fantastical works like the Garden of Earthly Delights, and Bruegel for his scenes of sweeping landscapes, festive peasants, and playing children. This course will study the ways in which each artist drew upon prior pictorial tradition and transformed it in such a way as to address the social and political upheavals of the world in which he lived.
Prerequisites: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 332 Seminar. Topics in Medieval Art Tohline

Topic for 2009-10: At the Crossroads of the Medieval Mediterranean: Southern Italy and Sicily, 1000-1300 C.E. This seminar focuses on the art produced in medieval Sicily and Southern Italy. It considers all aspects of art production, from large-scale building projects to metalwork and textiles. Some of the topics discussed include the development of pilgrimage sites, the eclecticism of Norman palerms, Byzantine and Latin monasticism, the role of patronage, as well as technological innovations in architecture.
Prerequisite: At least one of the following: ARTH 100, 201, 227, 247, 267, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 333/CAMS 343 Seminar. Visual Analysis of Film Carroll

Topic for 2009-10: The Melodramatic Tradition from D.W. Griffith to Wong Kar-Wai. The focus of this course will be a series of films that take as their theme the disruptive tensions—between the sexes and between generations—that emerge with shocking force in seemingly ordinary domestic settings. After briefly considering the pictorial roots of this tradition in seventeenth- and eighteenth-century painting, the class will turn to films directed by D.W. Griffith, G.W. Pabst, Marcel Ophuls, Douglas Sirk, Todd Haynes, and Wong Kar-Wai. The class will explore the extensive critical and theoretical literature that is devoted to these films; at the same time we will pay scrupulous attention to their visual qualities through the close analysis of mise-en-scene, lighting, camera-work, and editing. Students may register for either ARTH 333 or CAMS 343 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ARTH 101, or 224 or 226 or CAMS 207, or CAMS 101, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 334 Seminar. Paris, Capital of the Nineteenth Century Martin

This seminar examines the art, architecture, and material culture of Paris from the French Revolution to the Universal Exposition of 1900. We will explore how the city became the undisputed arts capital in this era as well as a catalyst for political activism, urban change, aesthetic innovation and modernity. Topics discussed include Haussmannization; the growth of mass media; cross-cultural encounters; and the rise of the avant-garde. We will also consider the relationship of art and architecture to literature and criticism as expressed in the writings of Baudelaire, Zola and Victor Hugo, among others. Artists discussed include Ingres, Garnier, Degas, Cassatt, Rodin and Gauvard.

Prerequisites: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 335 Seminar. Topics in Modern Art
Berman

Topic for 2009-10: The Bauhaus. This seminar considers the Bauhaus, the school of architecture, art, and design that was founded in Weimar Germany at the end of World War I, closed under National Socialism in the mid-30s, and reestablished in Chicago in 1937. The class will consider the historical position of the Bauhaus; examine the school's curriculum, philosophy, practices, and faculty (which included Walter Gropius, Mies van der Rohe, Wassily Kandinsky, Anni and Josef Albers, Paul Klee, and Laszlo Moholy-Nagy); study contemporaneous developments and contacts in the international art and design world; and examine the legacies of the Bauhaus in recent architecture, photography, and design. The seminar will provide an integrative examination of visual arts disciplines, and bring together interdisciplinary approaches to the historical material. We will visit the major Bauhaus retrospective at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York as well as local collections.

Prerequisite: ARTH 101 or other art history course covering the period; permission of the instructor is also required. Preference will be given to seniors; non-majors are welcome. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 336 Seminar. Museum Issues
TBA

This seminar will examine the art museum, from both a historical and a theoretical perspective. Topics will include the evolution of the institution and its architectures, the philosophical and social implications of categorizing, collecting and display; ethical issues in museum practice, the rights of the work of art, the competing demands of new and traditional stakeholders, and contemporary challenges. The goal will be to achieve a well-founded and critical understanding of the art museum's problematic, but productive role in structuring and facilitating experience and knowledge for a variety of constituencies.

Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or 101 or permission of the instructor required. Preference given to junior and senior art majors. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 337 Seminar. Topics in Chinese Art
Liu

Topic for 2009-10: The Northern Song Imperial Painting Academy. The Imperial Painting Academy (984-1125) as an institution was the first of its kind in the history of world art. This seminar investigates the nature of imperial patronage and the achievements of the Painting Academy. We will explore the relationship between emperors and academy painters through close reading of the painters' biographies written by Song contemporaries (in translation). We will also examine the mobility of academy painters and attempt to identify how exactly imperial commissions were initiated and carried out. Special attention is given to critical analysis of primary texts and images. Trips to the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or 240 or 248 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 338 Seminar. Topics in Latin American Art
Oles

Topic for 2009-10: Latin American Art on Display. This seminar will explore the invention of "Latin American art" as a separate discipline by critics, historians, and institutions in the United States, with a focus on the arts of Mexico, Brazil, and Argentina. We will analyze museum collections and the art market, and a wide range of books and exhibitions. Our main goal will be to understand how shifting political and cultural contexts have shaped the meaning and content of Latin American art. An important component of this course will relate to acquisition strategies, exhibitions and programs at the Davis Museum.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor required. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 340/AMST 317 Seminar. Disneyland and American Culture
Biedoll

NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. One of the most visited tourist attractions in the world, subject of thousands of books and articles, adored by millions, yet reviled by many intellectuals, Disneyland has occupied a prominent place in American culture since it opened in 1955. This seminar will examine Disneyland as an expression of middle-class American values, as a locus of corporatism and consumerism, as a postmodern venue, as a utopia, and as an influence upon architecture and urban design. In a broader sense, we will use Disney to explore the ideals, the desires, and the anxieties that have shaped post-World War II American culture. Students may register for either ARTH 340 or AMST 317 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor required. Enrollment is limited and permission is given to Art and American Studies majors. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video or Historical Studies. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 341 Seminar. The Landscape Painting of China, Korea, and Japan
Liu

NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. The landscape painting of China, Korea, and Japan is among the great traditions of world art. What did it mean? How was it used? Why is landscape still a popular subject in modern Chinese, Korean, and Japanese art? Following the development of landscape painting from the early period to the twentieth century, the course will examine issues such as landscape and national development, ideology and power, landscape as representation of nature, landscape as images of the mind, and the tension of tradition and creativity in painting landscape. Comparisons will be made with Dutch, English, and American landscape painting to provide a global perspective.

Prerequisite: ARTH 101 or 240 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 342 Seminar. Domesticity and Its Discontents
Carroll

NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. This class will study changing representations of the family and the home from the late Middle Ages through the present. The first part of the course will focus on paintings of family life and domestic interiors from the fifteenth through the nineteenth centuries. The second part will focus on the analysis of films that take up domestic themes. Normally offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: ARTH 101 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 345 Seminar. Methods of Art History
Martin

NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. What are the ways in which art has been defined, evaluated, theorized, and researched? What assumptions underlie the discipline of art history? This seminar provides a survey of all major approaches to the critical understanding of visual art. These include connoisseurship, iconography, Marxism, psychoanalysis, semiotics, gender and ethnicity studies, and cultural studies. Critical reading and intensive class discussion will be emphasized. Recommended for all majors.

Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or 101 and one 200-level course, or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 347 The Buddha's Biography: Buddhist Narrative Art in South Asia
Klinburg-Salter

This seminar examines some central questions pertaining to visual narrative through an analysis of the most important theme in Buddhist art—the life of the historical Buddha Sakyanuni and his previous lives (jataka). Narrative images include monuments from India (Barhut, Sanchi, Amaravati, Mathura, Sarnath); Pakistan (Gandhara); Afghanistan (Kapisa, Hadda); and elsewhere. The relationship between text and image, the role of oral transmission in pan-Indian culture, and the differing functions of sacred narrative in literary and visual media are among critical issues to be examined. We will also investigate how the visual grammar, syntax, and modes of composition convey the narrative to the observer. These questions will be explored through visits to the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, classroom discussion and research assignments.

Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or any 200-level Asian art studies course or permission of instructor. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

ARTH 364/CAMS 328 Women Filmmakers: History and Theory of Subversion
Mekuria
A survey of the history of women making films and an exploration of the issues of representation using films directed by women from around the world. We will review the history and emergence of women/feminist filmmakers and examine the impact of feminism and feminist film theory on women filmmakers in particular, and the film industry in general. Required activities include weekly screenings of films, written analytical reports, and classroom presentations. Students may register for either ARTH 364 or CAMS 328 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One of the following courses: ARTH 224, 225, ARTH 226/CAMS 207, or WGST 126 or 222; or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video

ARTH 369 Seminar, Conservation Studies: The Materials and Techniques of Painting and Sculpture
Newman
This seminar will provide an introduction to the materials and techniques used by painters and sculptors. Units on painting will focus on: ancient painting (from the earliest cave paintings through ancient Egypt and classical antiquity); wall paintings from various parts of the world, with emphasis on the fresco painting technique; Western easel painting of the medieval, Renaissance, and later periods; traditional Asian paintings on silk and paper supports; and modern painting. Units on sculpture will focus on: metal and ceramics, using artifacts from many cultures and periods of time, ranging from ancient China to the Italian Renaissance and later. Modern sculptural materials, including plastics, will also be introduced.
Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or 101 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video

ARTH 391/CAMS 341 Persuasive Images
Berman
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Visual images have always been enlisted to influence individual and collective decision-making, action, and identity. However, the rise of the mass media in the nineteenth century, and the multiplication of visual technologies in the twentieth century, have created unprecedented opportunities for the diffusion of persuasive images. This seminar enlists case studies to examine the uses and functions of visual images in advertising and propaganda and considers, in particular, graphic arts, photography, film, and other reproductive media. It also considers the interplay between elite and popular arts. The goal of the course is to refine our critical understanding and reception of the visual world. Students may register for either ARTH 391 or CAMS 341 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: 200-level courses in Art or Media Arts and Sciences.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTH 397 Seminar, Architecture in India in the Post-Mughal Era: 1650–1950
Cummings
With the decline of the Mughal empire in the late-seventeenth century, India’s regional seats of power developed an abundance of new and hybrid architectural styles. Secular and religious architecture blended conformity to older Indian building with influence from Islamic courts, a blend that was expressed in a variety of ways in different regions. Added to this blend were European architectural idioms, whose forms were often incorporated into otherwise vernacular Indian architecture. This course will examine secular and religious architecture in India from the decline of Mughal supremacy and the early colonial period in India, to the immediate post-Independence era. We will consider the interconnections between Sultana, Mughal, Jain, Hindu, Rajput and British styles that produced the great variety of regional building in India between 1650–1950.
Prerequisite: ARTH 100 or 101, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

Studio Art
A student registered for a studio art course must attend the first class meeting in order to retain her spot in the course. Due to the hands-on nature of studio-based instruction, enrollments must be limited. Note that some courses require students to file an application with the art department before preregistration.

ARTS 105 Drawing I
Staff
An introduction to the fundamentals of drawing with attention to the articulation of line, shape, form, gesture, perspective, and value. Studio work introduces a range of traditional drawing tools and observational methods while exploring a variety of approaches to image making and visual expression. In-class drawing exercises and weekly homework assignments address a range of subjects with brief attention given to the human figure.
Prerequisite: None. Not open to seniors except by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 106 Introduction to Chinese Painting
Meng
This course introduces the basic concepts and techniques of traditional Chinese painting. Class activities will emphasize the theoretical and aesthetic principles associated with the use of brushstroke, composition, ink, and color. Subjects include Chinese calligraphy as well as the three major categories of traditional Chinese painting: flower and bird, mountain and river, and figure painting. Weekly studio assignments introduce a range of techniques, and by the end of the term students compose their own paintings in a traditional Chinese manner.
Prerequisite: None. Not open to seniors except by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 107 Book Arts Studio
R. Rogers and Ruffin (Clapp Library)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In an interactive setting, students will gain hands-on experience in bookmaking, with an emphasis on the creative possibilities of ancient craft and contemporary art. Class sessions will frequently draw on examples from Wellesley’s Special Collections, providing a historical context. In the Library’s Book Arts Lab, students will learn to set type by hand and print on hand presses. Students will create limited edition broadsides and artists’ books that may involve use of the Knapp Media and Technology Center. Mandatory credit/non-credit only.
Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructors required. File application in department before preregistration.
Distribution: None
Semester: N/O
Unit: 0.5

ARTS 108/CAMS 138 Photography I
C. Rogers
This introductory course explores photography as a means of visual communication by producing and analyzing photographic images. Emphasis is on acquiring basic black-and-white technical skills with 35mm cameras and traditional darkroom practices. Class discussions and studio projects address a range of technical, compositional, and aesthetic issues fundamental to image-making. Strong emphasis is on the development of both a technical grasp of the tools and a critical awareness of the medium through assignments and critiques. Students may register for either ARTS 108 or CAMS 138 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department Web site before preregistration.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 109/CAMS 139 Basic Two-Dimensional Design
Rivera, Olen
This studio course focuses on the issue of composition in two-dimensional imagery. It introduces the fundamental elements of design (e.g., line, shape, value, space, color) and their function in the process of composition. Studio projects emphasize formal problem-solving skills as a means of achieving more effective visual communication. Weekly assignments given in a variety of media. This course is not digitally based, but students will have the opportunity to use digital media to solve certain problems. Recommended for those interested in pursuing any type of two-dimensional work, including painting, photography or Web design. Students may register for either ARTS 109 or CAMS 139 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to seniors except by permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 113 Basic Three-Dimensional Design
Dorrien, Mowbray
This introductory course explores the basic formal and spatial considerations when working with three-dimensional structure and form. Studio projects incorporate a range of materials and methods of visualization. Outside assignments and class discussions are aimed towards helping students enhance their creativity and spatial awareness while acquiring sensitivity for placement, process, and materials. Strongly recommended for those interested in sculpture, architecture, installation art, and/or product design.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to seniors except by permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 165/CAMS 135 Introduction to Video Production
Meikarta
Introduction to the principles of video production with emphasis on developing basic skills of recording with a video camera, scripting, directing, and editing short videos. Students may register for either ARTS 165 or CAMS 135 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department Web site before preregistration.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 204 Painting Techniques
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of significant techniques and materials related to the history of Western painting. Students will do projects in gold leaf, egg tempera, Venetian oil technique (the indirect method), and the direct oil technique. They will also experiment with acrylic, encaustic, and pastel. This course gives a broad overview of the technical aspects of these media and their role in stylistic changes throughout the course of Western painting. Studio art majors are encouraged to enroll; art history and architecture majors are also welcome. Most materials provided. Studio fee $50.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department before preregistration.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 206 Chinese Painting II
Ming
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course offers students advanced training in traditional and nontraditional methods of Chinese painting. Students may choose to focus on a specific area of subject matter, such as landscape, flowers and birds, or figurative studies, and students will be encouraged to develop a personal vision using the media of Chinese painting techniques. In addition to field trips to museums and galleries, there will be lectures and demonstrations by visiting artists.

Prerequisites: ARTS 106 or permission of the instructor required.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 207 Sculpture I
Dorrien
An exploration of sculptural concepts through the completion of projects dealing with a variety of materials including clay, wood, plaster, stone, and metals, with an introduction to basic foundry processes. Emphasis on working from direct observation of the model. Studio fee $50.

Prerequisite: ARTS 105 or 113 or permission of the instructor required.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 208/CAMS 238 Photography II
C. Rogers
Building on the foundation of ARTS 108/CAMS 138, initial digital camera and scanning techniques are introduced to provide a background in color image production through use of the Inkjet printer. Using the traditional wet darkroom, students will explore the medium: format camera and advanced developing and printing processes. Other techniques include lighting equipment and metering. Strong emphasis is on the development of a personal photographic vision and a critical awareness of the medium and its history through research and critiques. Students may register for either ARTS 208 or CAMS 238 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: ARTS 108/CAMS 138, or permission of the instructor required.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 216 Spatial Investigations
McGibbon
A mixed media course designed for architecture and studio art majors wishing to strengthen their visual, creative, and spatial responsiveness. Class work explores various forms of drawing in two and three dimensions, including architectural drafting, fixed viewpoint perspective, mapping, modeling, some digital work, and temporary site-built installations. Following a series of studio projects and discussions, students may register for either ARTS 216 or CAMS 138 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department Web site before preregistration.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 217 Life Drawing
Harvey
Understanding the human figure by direct observation of and drawing from the model. A highly structured approach with emphasis on finding a balance between gestural response and careful measurement. Rigorous in-class drawings as well as homework assignments. Dry and wet media as well as work on a variety of scales. Recommended for architecture majors as well as studio art students who intend to do further work from the figure.

Prerequisite: ARTS 105
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 218 Introductory Painting
Harvey, Rivera
An introduction to the fundamental issues of painting, emphasizing color, composition, and paint manipulation through direct observation. Outside assignments, slide presentations, and class discussions aimed towards helping students gain technical skills, visual sophistication, and critical awareness. Students paint from a variety of subjects, including the self-portrait and still life.

Prerequisite: ARTS 105 or 109/CAMS 139 or permission of the instructor required.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 219 Introductory Print Methods: Lithography/Monotype
McGibbon
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to the central concepts of printmaking, using planographic printing methods such as stone and plate lithography, image transfers, and monotype. Students develop visual and creative flexibility through hands-on work with image sequences, text, and multiples. Several assignments explore color layering and some incorporate digital methods. Students participate in a collaborative print exchange in addition to completing individual projects. Normally offered in alternate years. ARTS 219 and 220 are complementary courses addressing similar concepts but different printing techniques and may be elected in either order. Studio fee of $35.

Prerequisite: ARTS 105 or 109/CAMS 139 or permission of the instructor required.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 220 Introductory Print Methods: Intaglio/Relief
McGibbon
An introduction to the central concepts of printmaking using intaglio and relief methods such as copperplate etching and woodcut. Students develop visual and creative flexibility through hands-on work with image sequences, text, and multiples. Several projects explore color layering and some incorporate digital methods. Students participate in a collaborative print exchange in addition to completing individual projects. Normally offered in alternate years. ARTS 219 and
ARTS 221/CAMS 239 Digital Imaging
Olsen
Introduction to artistic production through electronic imaging, manipulation and output. Emphasis on expression, continuity, and sequential structuring of visuals through the integration of image, type and motion. Image output for print, screen, and adaptive surfaces are explored in conjunction with production techniques of image capture, lighting and processing. Lectures and discussions of the historic and contemporary uses of technology for artistic and social application of electronic imaging. Students may register for either ARTS 221 or CAMS 239 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ARTS 106/CAMS 130 or 109/CAMS 129
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 222 Introductory Print Methods:
Typography/Book Arts
Raffo (Book Arts Lab, Clapp Library)
This advanced studio course explores the relationship between text and image through relief printing techniques and innovative book structures. Studio projects will include the production of limited edition artist’s books that focus on the interplay of two and three dimensions in the book form. Emphasis will be placed on creative problem solving within the limitations of technology and on the importance of the act of revision. Class sessions in the Printmaking Studio and Special Collections will augment intensive studio work in Clapp Library's Book Arts Lab.
Prerequisite: ARTS 105,106/CAMS 128, or 109/CAMS 129
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open to qualified students by permission of the instructor and department chair.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open to qualified students by permission of the instructor and department chair.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

ARTS 255 Dynamic Interface Design
Olsen
Critical examination of the expanding field of information and interface design for interactive media. Emphasis will be on effective visual communication, information design and creative content within online media. Hands-on production will focus on design methods, multimedia web, vector-based media, and dynamic audio. Screenings and discussions on contemporary practices, theoretical, artistic and cultural issues.
Prerequisite: ARTS/CAMS 138, or 109/CAMS 139 and CS 110 or 111
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 260/CAMS 230 Moving Image Studio
Olsen
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Creative exploration of the moving image as it relates to digital methods of animation, video, and motion graphics. Hands-on production of audio, image, text, and time-based media synthesis, with a conceptual emphasis on nonlinear narrative, communication design and visual expression. Screenings and lectures on historical and contemporary practices, coupled with readings and discussions of the theoretical, artistic, and cultural issues in the moving image. Normally offered in alternate years. Students may register for either ARTS 260 or CAMS 230 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ARTS 108/CAMS 130 or ARTS 165/CAMS 130 or ARTS 221/CAMS 239
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 265/CAMS 235 Intermediate Video Production/The Documentary Form
Mekuria
An exploration of the techniques and styles of producing documentary videos. We will survey current issues surrounding objectivity and representation as it concerns the documentary form. Strong emphasis on storytelling. Special focus on lighting, sound recording, and editing. We will screen and analyze various styles of documentary films. Final projects will be short documentaries. Students may register for either ARTS 265 or CAMS 235 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ARTS 165/CAMS 135 or permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 307 Sculpture II
Darrien
Continuation on a more advanced level of sculptural issues raised in ARTS 207. Projects include working from the figure, metal welding or wood construction, and metal casting in the foundry as well as stone carving. Studio fee of $50.
Prerequisite: ARTS 207 or permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 308/CAMS 338 Photography III
Black
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Advanced explorations of aesthetic and content issues through the use of both traditional light sensitive and digital methodologies are explored. Advanced photographic techniques and equipment will be presented to solve visual problems arising from each student’s work. Continued emphasis is placed on research into the content and context of the photographic image in contemporary practice through gallery visits, guest lecturers, and library work. Students may register for either ARTS 308 or CAMS 338 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ARTS 108/CAMS 138, ARTS 208/CAMS 238, and either ARTS 109/CAMS 139, ARTS 221/CAMS 239, or another 200-level studio course, or permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 313 Virtual Form
Olsen
Introduction to the design and production of three-dimensional objects and spaces using industry-standard modeling software. Overview of basic modeling, surface design, and camera techniques. Emphasis on creative application of the media, in relation to architectural, experimental and time-based forms. Screenings and lectures on traditional and contemporary practices, coupled with readings and discussions of the theoretical, artistic, and cultural issues in the virtual world. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisites: ARTS 113 or MIT 4.101. Strong computer familiarity required. Not open to students who have taken ARTS 264.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 314 Advanced Drawing
Rivera
Aimed towards studio art and architecture majors wishing to strengthen their visual, conceptual and spatial flexibility in drawing. Building upon methods introduced in previous courses, this studio reconsiders drawing as a process of visual thinking as well as an art form. Classwork includes observational exercises including various systems of visual perspective, technical experimentation including work in color, sketchbooks, critiques, and field trips. Following a period of interactive studio research, exploration and dialogue, each student completes a body of self-directed work. ARTS 314 may be repeated, ordinarily for a maximum of two semesters.
Prerequisite: ARTS 105 and either 109/CAMS 139, 127 or MIT 4.101 or permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 315 Advanced Painting
Rivera
Each student will spend time exploring further the issues of color, composition, paint handling, and subject matter. This studio course is designed to provide advanced students with the opportunity of sharing their painting practice, benefit from an intensive and informed creative dialogue while developing projects that aim to challenge the pre-established expectation of the painting discipline. Advanced painting is a project-based course. The course will function in a seminar fashion where topics will be formulated and students will be asked to develop independent projects around them. In addition, students will be required to establish and develop personal imagery and an individual vocabulary. ARTS 315 may be repeated, ordinarily for a maximum of two semesters.
Prerequisite: ARTS 218 or permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 317 Seminar. Topics in the Visual Arts
Harvey
Topic for 2009-10: Art's Dialog with Nature. For advanced studio and architecture students interested in exploring their individual connections to the natural world and developing personal visual vocabularies to express those connections. The course emphasizes close observation and active interpretation of selected natural subjects, which could range from butterfly wing patterns to geological formations to the human nervous system. It's a vast subject! Starting with observational drawing on several scales, and some selected readings, the course follows with a series of structured assignments that encourage experimentation/exploration in a wide variety of media. During the second half of the semester, each student will evolve a self-directed body of work with weekly group critiques resulting in a final projects group exhibition. Depending on weather and class size, field trips and outdoor assignments are expected.

Prerequisite: ARTS 101, ARTS 103 and three other studio courses with at least one at the 300 level. Or if missing the 300 level course, permission of instructor required based on presentation of portfolio.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theater, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 322 Advanced Print Concepts
McGibbon
A conceptually driven studio exploring experimental uses of the graphic arts, including artist books, mail art and site works. Studio projects explore a combination of digital and traditional handprint methods. Readings and discussions consider the use of sequential imagery and multiples in contemporary art. Following a series of collaborative projects, each student develops a self-directed body of work.

Prerequisite: One or more of the following: ARTS 219, 220, 221/CAMS 239, 222, or by permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Arts Music, Theater, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 350H Research or Individual Study

ARTS 365/CAMS 335 Advanced Video Production
Mekuria
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An intensive course in story development, writing screenplay, directing actors and technical crew, and producing short, dramatic or mixed-genre videos. Rigorous work on advanced camera operation, lighting, sound recording, and editing techniques. We will screen and analyze short films and sample screenings. Course requires strong organizational and directorial aptitude. The final projects will be short narrative, experimental, or mixed-genre videos. Students may register for either ARTS 365 or CAMS 335 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: ARTS 165/CAMS 135, ARTS 265/CAMS 235, and permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARTS 370 Senior Thesis
Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

Applied Arts Program
In addition to the regular studio art curriculum, a separately funded program allows the art department to offer a series of short, noncredit workshops with visiting artist instructors. These workshops vary throughout the year, but address a variety of studio topics, which have included book arts, woodworking, fiber arts, and graphic design. These workshops are noncredit and open to all students without prerequisite. Upcoming workshops are announced throughout the year through art department electronic distribution lists, and by posting on "Community," "Art" and other FirstClass® conferences. Sign-up sheets are posted in the art department.

Note
For the purposes of meeting the "18 units" requirement (See Academic Program, Other Requirements or Articles of Legislation, Book II, Article I, Section 8, A), art history and studio art are considered separate departments. Courses in studio art are counted as units "outside the department" for art history majors. Courses in art history are counted as courses "outside the department" for studio art majors.

History of Art
Requirements for the Major
A. ARTH 100 and 101. AP credit will not be accepted in fulfillment of this requirement.

B. One of the following courses in studio art:

C. A minimum of six further units in history of art to make a total of nine units, which must include distribution requirements. At least two of these must be 300-level courses.

Among the six units, a student must select one from each of the following four distribution areas:

1. Ancient/Medieval or Art before 1400: 201, 202, 227, 241, 242, 243, 267, 268, 332

2. Renaissance/Baroque/Rococo or Art of Fifteenth to Eighteenth Centuries: 218, 221, 244, 246, 251, 259, 305, [310], *311, 325, 330, 331, *342

*Double-listed courses 227, 255, 311, 316, 322, 342 can be used to fulfill either of the two listed distribution areas but not both.

Normally ARTH 345 and 369 do not count toward this distribution requirements. They do count toward the major.

If approved by the department chair, up to three (see "Minimum Major" below) courses elected at other institutions may be used to meet the distribution requirement. Courses from two-year colleges will not be credited to the major.

Although the department does not encourage over-specialization, by careful choice of related courses a student may plan a field of concentration emphasizing one period or area. Students interested in such a plan should consult the department as early as possible. Art majors are not encouraged to take courses in the language, culture, and history of the areas associated with their specific fields of interest.

History of Art Minimum Major
Only one related course may be counted toward the minimum major. No more than one unit of 350 credit may be counted toward the minimum major. Ordinarily, no more than three units of transfer credit (one studio, two art history) may be counted toward the minimum major.

Requirements for the Minor
A history of art minor must elect a minimum of six units:

A. ARTH 100 and 101

B. Four additional units above the 100 level with at least two at the 300 level; maximum one unit of 350. Of the four units above the 100 level, three shall, in the opinion of the student's faculty advisor, represent a coherent and integrated field of interest. The fourth unit shall, in the case of students whose primary field is Western European or American art, be a course in non-Western or ancient art. In the case of students whose primary field of interest is ancient or non-Western art, the fourth unit shall be Western European or American art.

Of the six units, only one related course may be counted toward the minor.

Honors
The only path towards departmental honors is the 360/370 Honors Thesis. Art history majors who meet the following requirements are encouraged to apply to the department to do an honors thesis: 3.6 GPA in the major; at least five art history units above the 100 level, four of which must be taken at Wellesley and one of which must be at the 300 level. Contact the department in the spring semester prior to the proposed honors year for information about deadlines, honors eligibility, and the selection of a thesis advisor.

Graduate Study
For students considering graduate study in the history of art, ARTH 345 is strongly recommended. Graduate programs in the history of Western art require students to pass exams in French and German. Graduate programs in the history of Asian art require Chinese and/or Japanese.

Students interested in graduate study in the field of art conservation should consult the department chair regarding requirements for entrance into conservation programs. Ordinarily college-level chemistry through organic should be elected, and a strong studio art background is required.

48 Art
Studio Art

Requirements for the Major
A. ARTH 100 and 101. There is no exemption from this requirement by Advanced Placement, or by IB, or by an exemption examination.
B. One additional art history course in twentieth century or contemporary art
C. ARTS 105
D. Any two of the following: ARTS 106, 108/CAMS 138, 109/CAMS 139, 113, or 165/CAMS 135.
E. Five additional studio courses must be taken above the 100 level. At least two of these studio courses must be at the 300 level.

Some 300-level studio art courses may be repeated for credit in the major.

Requirements for the Minor
For students entering Wellesley in the fall of 2009 or later, a studio art minor must elect a minimum of two units consisting of ARTH 101, ARTS 105, one unit of either 106, 108/CAMS 138, 109/CAMS 139, 113, 165/CAMS 135, plus four additional units in studio art, one of which is at the 300 level (250s and 350s excluded). For students who entered Wellesley prior to the fall of 2009, a studio art minor must elect a minimum of six units consisting of ARTS 105, one unit of either 106, 108/CAMS 138, 109/CAMS 139, 113, 165/CAMS 135, plus four additional units in studio art, one of which is at the 300 level (250s and 350s excluded).

Additional Information
Prospective studio art majors and minors are strongly encouraged to elect 100-level art courses (including ARTH 100 and 101) during their first two years at Wellesley in order to establish a solid visual foundation and a broad understanding of the field. Studio art majors intending to study abroad should make a special effort to complete all 100-level requirements for the major prior to leaving campus during the junior year. Normally, no more than three units of transfer credit in studio art, one in art history) may be applied towards the minimum requirements of the major or minor. Students interested in placement beyond the introductory level of a specific medium may present a portfolio of work to the director of studio for assessment. Students interested in pursuing graduate or professional work in the studio arts should elect additional course work in art history and cultural studies as well as studio art whenever possible, especially in courses that address twentieth-century art and visual culture. Since contemporary art often addresses interdisciplinary issues, students are encouraged to discuss the breadth of their overall course selections (including non-art courses) with their studio art advisor. All prospective majors and minors should obtain a copy of the art department course guide from the art office or departmental Web site for a more comprehensive discussion of the major as well as special opportunities within the arts at Wellesley.

In tandem with the Davis Museum and Cultural Center, the art department offers numerous opportunities for students to deepen their experiential knowledge of the arts through special exhibitions, visiting artist lectures and projects, work-study positions, and internships. Studio art majors and minors are strongly encouraged to exhibit their work, and to gain practical experience. In organizing exhibitions and installing art in the Jewett Arts Center student galleries, and other venues on campus. Each year a number of professional artists visit the campus and studio art students are encouraged to take advantage of these opportunities for interaction.

Honors
Seniors who qualify for honors and have completed all 100-level requirements in the major may propose a senior thesis project for honors. If approved by the studio faculty as a whole, this yearlong project culminates in a spring exhibition. A student interested in thesis work should discuss her ideas with a potential thesis advisor and take at least one advanced course in her proposed media concentration before the senior year.

A list of requirements for honors eligibility is available from the director of studio art. A proposal must be written and accepted. Contact the department in the spring semester prior to the proposed honors year for deadlines and information. Information is also available on the department Web page.

History of Art/Studio Art Double Major
For the double major in art history and studio art, a student must elect ARTH 100-101, six additional units in art history (following the requirements for the art history major, with the added requirement that one course be in modern art) and eight additional units in studio art (including the requirements in studio art for the studio major), for a total of 16 units.

A minimum of two courses must be taken at the 300 level in each major. At least one course must consider art made before 1500, one must address the history of modern or contemporary art, and one must be outside the tradition of Western art.

Teacher Certification
Students interested in obtaining certification to teach art in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult the director of studio art and the chair of the Department of Education.

Interdepartmental Majors
The attention of students is called to the interdepartmental majors in Architecture, Media Arts and Sciences, Cinema and Media Studies, Medieval/Renaissance Studies, and American Studies.

Department of Astronomy

Professor: Bauer, French (Chair)
Associate Professor: McLeod
Instructor in Astronomy Laboratory: Slivan

Astronomy is the study of the universe—from planets and stars to the Milky Way and distant galaxies, from the instant of the Big Bang to the current era of rapid expansion and beyond to the distant future. Modern astronomers rely on careful observations of the cosmos and on their understanding of physical laws to make sense of our often baffling, but always fascinating universe. The astronomy curriculum emphasizes hands-on observations at the Whitin Observatory, using a fleet of small telescopes in introductory courses and the 24-inch research telescope for advanced classes and student research. The underlying physical principles of astronomy are elucidated at all levels, from introductory courses for non-science majors to upper-level classes in advanced astrophysics.

For students intending to pursue a Ph.D. in Astronomy, we offer, jointly with the Department of Physics, a major in Astrophysics.

For students interested in other pursuits, such as education, journalism, computing, and public outreach in museums, we offer a major in Astronomy. Majors in Astronomy will have a broad understanding of the varied phenomena in the heavens, from the solar system and stars to the realm of galaxies and the large-scale structure and evolution of the universe. They will understand the motions of the night sky, be familiar with modern observational techniques and computational tools, and have carried out an independent project using our 24-inch telescope. They will have the problem solving and critical thinking skills necessary to understand astronomical research, and the ability to communicate these results with clarity and precision, both orally and in writing.

The astronomy department offers two introductory survey courses geared to non-science majors: 100 and 101. These courses are taught at a similar level and both fulfill the Natural and Physical Science distribution requirement; 101 fulfills the Mathematical Modeling requirement. Students who elect to take both may do so in either order.

ASTR 108 is a seminar for first year students emphasizing hands-on astronomy. ASTR [109] and 206 fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

ASTR 100 Life in the Universe
Bauer, McLeod
This course investigates the origin of life on the earth and the prospects for finding life elsewhere in the cosmos, and begins with an overview of the earth's place in the solar system and the universe. The course examines the early history of the earth and the development of life, changes in the sun that affect the earth, characteristics of the other objects in our solar system and their potential for supporting life, the detection of planets around stars other than the sun, and the search for extraterrestrial life. Some nighttime observing will be required. This course does not count toward a major in Astrophysics.
Astronomy

ASTR 101 Introduction to Stars, Galaxies, and Cosmology with Laboratory French, Bailer
This course examines the life stories of stars, from birth in clouds of gas and dust, through placid middle age, to violent explosive demise, leaving white dwarfs, neutron stars, or black holes. It also explores the makeup and structure of galaxies, which contain billions of stars and are racing away from each other as part of the overall expansion of the universe. Finally, it presents modern cosmological models for the origin and ultimate fate of the universe. The course emphasizes the interaction of observations and the mathematical models developed from these data. Weekly hands-on astronomy laboratory introduces visual observing and astronomical imaging, including both historical (visual, film astrophotography, darkroom) and modern (electronic imaging) equipment and techniques. Evening laboratory at the observatory.

de Warren (Philosophy), French
This First Year Seminar explores the changing views of the universe from the Ancient Greeks, through the emergence of the scientific revolution to the startling advances in cosmology during the twentieth century, and includes visits to the Special Collections Library and observations from the Whitin Observatory; no particular competence in mathematics is required. We begin with readings from Plato, Aristotle and ancient Greek astronomers and their concern to understand the inherent rationality of the universe. We next turn to the discoveries of Copernicus, Kepler, Galileo, and Newton. Our exploration of philosophy and astronomy will then address Einstein's theories of special and general relativity, evidence for the Big Bang, and contemporary perplexity regarding the presence of dark matter and dark energy. Students may register for either ASTR 104 or PHIL 104 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prequisite: None. Open only to first-year students. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ASTR 108 Discovering Our Universe with Laboratory McLeod
This course leads first-year students through hands-on exploration of the structure of the Universe and our place within it. We will measure the size, shape, and spin of the earth by using simple homemade instruments to observe the sky. We will learn to use Wellesley's own telescopes to explore the arrangement and contents of our own Solar System. Finally, we will determine our place within the Milky Way galaxy and the universe using data obtained from the National Virtual Observatory. No prior experience in astronomy is required, but algebra and trigonometry will be used. Evening laboratory at the observatory. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

ASTR 201 Motions in the Sky: Archaeoastronomy and the Copernican Revolution Bauer
This course examines the motions of the sun, moon, and planets in the sky and how humans have interpreted them throughout time. Archaeoastronomy is the study of astronomical knowledge in a culture as revealed through the archaeological record, written records, and ethnography. We will discuss the archaeoastronomy of several cultures, including the Mayans and the Anasazi. We will follow the beginnings of modern astronomy from the ancient Greeks through the Copernican revolution and Newton's formulation of the laws of motion. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prequisite: Any 100-level astronomy course, and familiarity with trigonometric functions. Distribution: Natural and Physical Science Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ASTR 203/GEOS 213 Planetary Geology
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Spacecraft observations have revealed a breathtaking diversity of geologic features in the solar system, from ancient river valleys on Mars and violent volcanic eruptions on Io to ice fountains on Enceladus and the complex surfaces of comets and asteroids. From a comparative point of view, this course examines the formation and evolution of the planets and small bodies in the solar system. Topics will include: volcanism, tectonic activity, impacts, and tides. Students may register for either ASTR 203 or GEOS 213 and credit will be granted accordingly. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement and any 100-level ASTR or GEOS course. Distribution: Natural and Physical Science Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.0

ASTR 205 Relativity and Cosmology
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Einstein's theories of space and time have brought about a fundamental change in our conceptual understanding of the universe. Using trigonometry and algebra, this course explores special and general relativity, space travel, black holes, gravitational lensing, galaxy evolution, dark matter, and the expanding universe. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prequisite: 101, 103, or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.0

ASTR 206 Astronomical Techniques with Laboratory McLeod
This course provides an introduction to modern methods of astronomical observation. Students will learn to use the Whitin Observatory's 24-inch research telescope. Topics include: planning observations, modern instrumentation, and the acquisition and quantitative analysis of astronomical images. This course requires substantial nighttime telescope use and culminates with an independent observing project.

ASTR 301 Seminar. Topics in Multiwavelength Astronomy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. The newest generation of Earth- and space-based telescopes has allowed astronomers to survey the entire sky across the entire electromagnetic spectrum, from gamma rays to radio waves. This course provides an introduction to modern astronomical research, making use of multiwavelength observations.
Prequisite: 206 Distribution: Natural and Physical Science Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.0

ASTR 311/PHYS 311 Elements of Astrophysics
Bauer
Astrophysics is the application of physics to the study of the universe. We will use elements of mechanics, thermodynamics, electromagnetic, quantum mechanics, special relativity, and nuclear physics to investigate selected topics such as planets, the life stories of stars and galaxies, dark matter, and the origin of the universe. Our goals will be to develop insight into the physical underpinnings of the natural world, and to develop a "universal toolkit" of practical astrophysical techniques that can be applied to the entire celestial menagerie. These tools include scaling analysis, numerical solutions to complex problems, and other research approaches advanced in professional literature. Students must register for either ASTR 311 or PHYS 311 and credit will be granted accordingly. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prequisite: PHYS 202 and 203 Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ASTR 350 Research or Individual Study
Prequisite: By permission of department. Distribution: None Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

ASTR 360 Senior Thesis Research
Prequisite: By permission of department. See Academic Distinctions. Distribution: None Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

ASTR 370 Senior Thesis
Prequisite: 360 and permission of department. Distribution: None Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

PHYS 202 Introduction to Quantum Mechanics and Thermodynamics with Laboratory
PHYS 203 Vibrations, Waves, and Special Relativity with Laboratory
PHYS 216 Mathematics for the Sciences II
Requirements for the Major

The Astronomy Major consists of 10 courses. Required courses include ASTR 101, 108, or [110]; ASTR 206; ASTR 301; PHYS 107; and either PHYS 106 or PHYS 108. The other five courses include one additional ASTR course at the 300-level; two in ASTR at the 200-level or above; one in MATH at the 200-level, and an additional course in ASTR or a related field. Students should consult with faculty about choosing electives and research opportunities appropriate for their fields of study. For example, students interested in earth science should elect ASTR 203/GEOS 213 (Planetary Geology) and additional courses in geosciences and chemistry. Students working towards teacher certification would add courses in other sciences and in education, and might coordinate their fieldwork in aSTR 350, while those planning to enter the technical workforce might elect additional courses in computer science. Students planning to pursue graduate study in astronomy should instead elect an interdepartmental major in Astrophysics.

Requirements for the Minor

A minor in astronomy (five units) consists of: 101, 108, or [110]; 206, 301; and two additional units in astronomy.

Honors

To earn honors in the major, students must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. The student must complete a significant research project culminating in a paper and an oral examination. The project must be conducted after the junior year and approved in advance by the Astrophysics Advisory Committee, and might be satisfied by a thesis, a summer internship, or a 350. See Academic Distinctions.

Astrophysics

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: French (Astronomy)

Advisory Committee: Bauer (Astronomy), French (Astronomy), McLeod (Astronomy), Lannert (Physics), Stark (Physics)

The Departments of Astronomy and Physics offer an interdepartmental major in astrophysics, with an emphasis on what is majorly a foundation of course work in astronomy. This major should be considered by students interested in graduate study in astronomy or astrophysics, and by those who would like a coordinated astronomy extension to the physics major.

Goals for the Major

A student majoring in the astrophysics major, a student will be prepared for advanced study leading to a professional career in astronomy, other sciences related to astrophysics, or related physical sciences. Majors in astrophysics will have a broad understanding of the physical processes at work in a range of astronomical settings, from the solar system and the structure and evolution of stars to the realm of galaxies and the large-scale structure and evolution of the universe. They will understand the motions of the night sky, be familiar with modern observational techniques and computational tools, and have carried out a research project using our 24-inch telescope. They will have the problem solving and critical thinking skills necessary to interpret astronomical research, and the ability to communicate these results with clarity and precision, both orally and in writing.

ASPH 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors. Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

ASPH 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: By permission of director. See Academic Distinctions. Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

ASPH 370 Senior Thesis

Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department. Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

In addition to the nine courses required for the physics major, the student takes four astronomy courses. An astrophysics major consists of: PHYS 107, 108, 202, 203, 302, 305, 306, 314; PHYS 216; ASTR 101 or 108; 206; 311/PHYS 311; and either 301 or a 350 in either astronomy or astrophysics, or ASPH 370. PHYS 219 is strongly recommended. In planning the major, students should note that some of the courses have prerequisites in mathematics.
Biological Chemistry

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: Peterman (Biological Sciences)

Biological Chemistry Advisory Committee: Enmore (Chemistry), Hood-DeGruyter (Biological Sciences), Peterman (Biological Sciences), Varadar Uhl (Chemistry), Wolfs (Chemistry)

Biological Chemistry is an interdisciplinary major offered by the Departments of Biological Sciences and Chemistry, allowing students to explore the chemistry of biological systems. Biological Chemistry includes fields we call biochemistry, cell and molecular biology, as well as other molecular aspects of the life sciences. It deals with the structure, function and regulation of cellular components and biologically active molecules, such as proteins, carbohydrates, lipids, and nucleic acids. Expertise in biological chemistry is central to breakthroughs in DNA technology, drug discovery and design, and molecular approaches to disease.

Goals for the Major

• Fundamental knowledge of the principles of chemistry and biology in relation to biological chemistry, and the ability to specifically apply this knowledge to problems at the interface of these disciplines
• Familiarity with the structure and function of biomolecules involved in biochemical pathways and regulation of cellular processes
• Strong problem-solving abilities, and ability to adapt knowledge acquired in new situations to evaluate data, to competently approach new problems and to be independent learners
• Strong quantitative skills and critical thinking abilities; skills in hypothesis generation and testing, data interpretation and analysis, and designing experiments
• Good experimental skills in the laboratory, experience with the operation of complex instrumentation and computers, and the understanding of general lab protocols and safety issues
• Ability to collaborate with other researchers, and awareness of ethical issues in both biochemistry and molecular biology
• Strong communication skills involving oral and written competencies in scientific topics, and the ability to read and critically evaluate a scientific paper for content or techniques.

BIOC 240 Seminar in Biological Chemistry for Newly-Declared Majors

Staff

A seminar for newly declared majors, to be taken in the spring of their sophomore or junior year. Students will read and discuss papers related to the research of prominent scientists working in the fields of biological chemistry and molecular biology and attend seminars in which those researchers will present their work at Wellesley. Some seminars may be scheduled outside of the normal class meeting time. Mandatory credit/ noncredit.

Prerequisite: Limited to sophomore or junior Biological Chemistry majors or by permission of instructor.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring

Unit: 0.5

BIOC 250 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: By permission of the instructor.

Distribution: None

Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

In addition to two courses in biochemistry (CHEM 221 and 326), the major must include the following courses: CHEM (a) both 105 and 205, or 105 and 211; (b) 221; (c) 234, 236; (d) 300-level courses from among the following: BISC 303/CS 303, C309; 310, 313, 316, 319, 320 or a seminar course if relevant to the major and approved by the director, excluding 350, 360, 370. At least one of these two 300-level courses must be a laboratory course; PHYS 104 or 107, MATH 116, 120 or equivalent. For students who enter the College in the fall of 2008 or later, BIOC 240 will be required for the major. For students who entered the College prior to the fall of 2008, BIOC 240 is strongly recommended.

Students should be sure to satisfy the prerequisites for the 300-level courses in biological sciences and chemistry. Students planning graduate work in biochemistry should consider taking additional courses in chemistry, such as analytical, inorganic, and the second semesters of organic and physical chemistry. Students planning graduate work in molecular or cell biology should consider taking additional advanced biological sciences courses in those areas.

Independent research (350 and/or 360/370) is highly recommended, especially for those considering graduate study.

A recommended sequence of required courses would be:

Year I, CHEM 105 and math or physics; CHEM 205 and BISC 110
Year II, CHEM 211 and BISC 219; BISC 220 and math or physics
Year III, CHEM 221 and math; CHEM 328 and 232
Year IV, 300-level biological sciences courses and independent study

Please discuss your program with the director as soon as possible.

Honors

BIOC 250, 250H, 350, 360 and 370 research can be advised by any faculty member of the Departments of Biological Sciences or Chemistry. Advisors for honors work can be members of either department and students should enroll in BIOC 360/370 after approval by the Advisory Committee. The honors program will follow the guidelines of the appropriate department, but each honors candidate must be approved by the Biological Chemistry Advisory Committee.
BISC 103 Human Biology

Sommers Smith

The anatomy and physiology of human tissues, organs, and organ systems will be the focus of this course, intended for non-majors or those students seeking to fulfill natural/physical science requirements. The course will be structured around four-week-long units. Each unit will consist of four lecture/discussions and one computer laboratory module (WebLab). WebLabs will consist of medical case studies focused on the lecture and discussion material for that week.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken BISC 112.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

BISC 104 Science or Science Fiction?

Königer

This course will examine the scientific facts behind phenomena portrayed in a variety of Hollywood and foreign movies. We will cover topics ranging from the definition and recreation of life, genetics, behavior to evolution and environmental issues. The course will include weekly screenings of movies outside of class time as well as lectures, assigned readings and discussions. While obtaining an introduction to key concepts in biology, students will also explore misconceptions about science and scientists that are perpetuated by these movies.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

BISC 105 Stem Cells: A New Frontier in Biomedicine

O'Donnell

The exciting area of stem cell research has led to many recent discoveries. As researchers have learned more about the properties of these amazing cells, many potential biomedical applications have been envisioned. In this course, we will focus on understanding the unique biological properties of stem cells, and how these cells might lead to novel patient therapies. Questions to be addressed include: How were stem cells discovered? Where do stem cells come from, and what are stem cell lines? What are the similarities and differences between embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells, and recently discovered “induced pluripotent stem cells”? We will also discuss the bioethical issues and scientific controversies associated with recent stem cell discoveries. Promising areas of current research will be described.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

BISC 107 Biotechnology

Königer

This course focuses on applications of recently developed biological techniques, including recombinant DNA, antibody techniques and reproductive technology. The social and ethical issues surrounding these techniques are also discussed. No prior knowledge of biology is expected, as all necessary background information will be discussed.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.25

BISC 108 Environmental Horticulture with Laboratory

Griffith, McDonough, Thomas

This course will examine how plants function, both as individual organisms and as critical members of ecological communities, with special emphasis on human uses of plants. Topics will include plant adaptations, reproduction, environmentally sound landscape practices, urban horticulture, and the use of medicinal plants. The laboratory involves extensive use of the greenhouses, experimental design, data collection and analysis, and field trips.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Preference given to first-year students and sophomores.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.25

BISC 109 Human Biology with Laboratory

Ellerby, McDonough, Skow

In this class, we will explore human biology through case studies, lectures, and laboratories. Lecture topics will include the structure and function of the major physiological systems; recent developments in health care human genetics; and the impacts of human activity on the environment. Laboratories involve data collection, using computers, physiological test equipment, limited animal dissection, a personal nutrition study and field trips.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Preference given to first-year students and sophomores. Not open to students who have taken BISC 103 in Summer School.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.25

BISC 110 Introductory Cellular and Molecular Biology with Laboratory

Staff

Introduction to eukaryotic and prokaryotic cell structure, chemistry, and function. Topics include: cell metabolism, molecular genetics, cellular interactions and mechanisms of growth and differentiation. Laboratories focus on experimental approaches to these topics. Either 110 or 111 may be taken first.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.25

BISC 111 Introductory Organismal Biology with Laboratory

Staff

Introduction to the central questions, concepts, and methods of experimental analysis in selected areas of organismal biology. Topics include: evolution, ecology, and plant and animal structure and physiology. Either 110 or 111 may be taken first.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.25
BISC 198 Statistics in the Biosciences
Hughes
This course combines statistical theory and practical application, the latter using examples from ecology and experimental biology to illustrate some of the more common techniques of experimental design and data analysis. Students will learn how to plan an experiment and consider the observations, measurements, and potential statistical tests before data are collected and analyzed. Other topics include graphical representation of data, probability distributions and their applications, one- and two-way ANOVA and t-tests, regression and correlation, goodness-of-fit tests, and nonparametric alternatives. Students will design and analyze their own experiment in the interactive laboratory component of class. Students also learn to use statistical computer software.
Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement and one course in biology, chemistry, or environmental science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

BISC 201 Ecology with Laboratory
Rodenhaur, Thien
An introduction to the scientific study of interactions between organisms and their environments. Topics include evolutionary adaptations to environmental constraints, foraging behavior, sexual reproduction and mate selection, population growth and regulation, species interactions, and the structure and function of biological communities and ecosystems. Emphasis is placed on experimental ecology and its uses in addressing environmental issues such as biological control of pests, conservation of endangered species and global climate change. Laboratories occur primarily in the field where exercises introduce students to local habitats, including meadows, forests, alpine tundra, bogs, dunes, marshes, lakes, and streams.
Prerequisite: 108 or 111 or ES 110, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

BISC 202 Evolution with Laboratory
Buchholz
Examination of evolution, the central paradigm of biology, at the level of populations, species, and lineages. Topics include the genetics of populations, the definition of species, the roles of natural selection and chance in evolution, the reconstruction of phylogeny using molecular and morphological evidence, and patterns in the origination, diversity, and extinction of species over time.
Prerequisites: 110 and 111
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

BISC 203 Comparative Physiology and Anatomy of Vertebrates with Laboratory
Cameron, Buchholz, Doele, Hellboy
The physiology and functional anatomy of vertebrate animals, with an emphasis on comparisons among representative groups. The course covers topics in thermoregulatory, osmoregulatory, reproductive, cardiovascular, respiratory, digestive, neural and ecological physiology. The laboratories incorporate the study of preserved materials and physiological experiments.
Prerequisites: 109 or 111, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

BISC 206 Histology I: Human Microscopic Anatomy with Laboratory
Sommers, Smith, Hosapiti
The structure and function of human tissues, and their cells, using light microscopic, histochromic and electron microscopic techniques. Topics covered include the connective tissues, epithelia, nervous tissue, blood, lymphoid tissue and immunology, as well as others. Laboratory study includes direct experience with selected techniques.
Prerequisite: 110
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

BISC 207 The Biology of Plants with Laboratory
Peterman, König
An introduction to experimental plant biology. Topics will include growth and development, stress physiology, plant defense, applications of genetic engineering to the study and improvement of plants and the properties of medicinal plants. The project-oriented laboratory sessions will provide an introduction to some of the techniques currently employed in answering research questions ranging from the organismal to the cellular level.
Prerequisite: 110 or 111
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

BISC 209 Microbiology with Laboratory
Newton, Crum, McDonough
Introduction to the microbial world, with emphasis on bacteria and viruses and their activities in nature, using examples of how these microbes influence human activity. Both medical and nonmedical applications, and useful (food production, genetic engineering) as well as harmful (disease, bioterrorism) consequences of microbes will be discussed along with consideration of biological principles and techniques characterizing the organisms.
Prerequisites: 110 and one unit of college chemistry
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

BISC 210 Marine Biology with Laboratory
Moore, Hughes
Oceans cover more than 70 percent of the earth's surface and are our planet's primary life support system. This course examines adaptations and interactions of plants, animals and their environments in marine habitats. Focal habitats include the photic zone of the open ocean, the deep-sea, subtidal and intertidal zones, estuaries, and coral reefs. Emphasis is placed on the dominant organisms, food webs, and experimental studies conducted within each habitat. Laboratories will emphasize primarily fieldwork outdoors in marine habitats where students will gather data for the testing of student-generated hypotheses.
Prerequisite: 111 or ES 101, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

BISC 211 Animal Behavior with Laboratory
Ellerby, Mattila
In meeting the challenges of survival and reproduction, animals have evolved behaviors that can be spectacular and sometimes unpleasant. With an eye to how behaviors ultimately shape an animal's fitness, we will explore the aspects of life that makes each animal's strategy unique, including communication, orientation, foraging, conflict and aggression, mating, parental care, and social life. Laboratories will expose students to the challenges of collecting, analyzing, interpreting, and presenting data on animal behavior.
Prerequisite: 109 or 111, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

BISC 216 Mechanisms of Animal Development with Laboratory
O'Donnell, Suzuki, Skow
In this course, we will explore animal development beginning with the process of fertilization. We will consider how a single cell gives rise to the many specialized cell types of the adult and how the development of tissues and the whole body is coordinated. The mechanisms that determine cell fate during embryonic and postembryonic maturation of animals will be discussed. Topics will include: embryonic induction, pattern formation, organ development, regeneration, stem cells, growth, developmental plasticity and aging. Laboratory sessions will focus on experimental approaches to development.
Prerequisites: 110 and 111, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

BISC 217 Field Botany with Laboratory
Griffith
Field Botany is a combination of "What's that wildflower?" and "Why does it grow over there and not there?" The course merges aspects of plant systematics and identification (with an emphasis on learning the local flora and important plant families) and plant ecology (with an emphasis on ecological interactions and phenomena unique to plants). Laboratories will primarily be taught in the field and greenhouses and will include using dichotomous and web-based keys to identify plants, observational and experimental studies, and long-term study of forest patches on the Wellesley campus. Laboratories will also include experimental design and data analysis. The goal of Field Botany is not only to train students in botany and plant ecology, but to engage them in botany every time they step outside. Students may register for either BISC 217 or ES 217 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: 108 or 111 or ES 101
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

BISC 219 Genetics with Laboratory
Webb, Sequeira, Beers, Crum
The goal of the course is to develop an understanding of the fundamental principles of genetics at the molecular, cellular, and organismal levels. The mechanisms that regulate the control of gene expression leading to alteration in phenotype during cellular differential will be studied. A link will be established between the generation of genetic variants through mutation... and recombination, their patterns of inheritance, interactions between genes to produce complex phenotypes and the maintenance of such genetic variation in natural populations. Topics will include: organization of the eukaryotic genome, gene structure and function, multi-level gene control, genetics of pattern formation, inheritance of gene differences, gene and allele interactions and aspects of population and evolutionary genetics. Laboratory experiments will expose students to the fundamentals of genetics including modern molecular techniques for genetic analysis.

BISC 220 Cellular Physiology with Laboratory Hood-DeGroot, Beers
This course will focus on structure/function relationships in eukaryotic cells. Topics include protein structure and introductory enzyme kinetics, membrane and membrane-bound organelle structure and function, cytoskeleton, transport mechanisms, cell communication, cell cycle, apoptosis, and cancer cell biology with an emphasis on experimental methods for investigating these topics. The laboratory consists of three projects: enzyme purification and characterization, investigation of cellular transport pathways in yeast, and an analysis of the cytoskeleton in cultured mammalian cells using fluorescence microscopy.

Prerequisite: N/O. Unit: 1.0

BISC 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: By permission of the instructor. Unit: 1.0

BISC 250H Research or Individual Study

BISC 302 Animal Physiology with Laboratory Cameron, Paul (Neuroscience)
This course takes an integrated approach to the study of organ system function in animals, with an emphasis on human physiology. We will examine control mechanisms that allow the human body to maintain a constant balance in the face of environmental challenges, such as exercise, temperature change, and high altitude. Our particular focus will be recent findings in the areas of neural, cardiovascular, respiratory, renal, and muscle physiology. In the laboratory, students gain experience with tools of modern physiological research at both the cellular and organismal levels.

BISC 303/CS 303 Bioinformatics Tjaden (Computer Science)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A multidisciplinary seminar exploring the origins, present and future applications, and challenges of the intersection of biological and computer science. The field of bioinformatics, generated in response to the era of genomics, encompasses all aspects of biological data acquisition, storage, processing, analysis and interpretation with a view to generating in silico models of cellular function. Students may register for either BISC 303 or CS 303 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisites: 219 or 220 or CS 231. Not open to students who have taken CS 313.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

BISC 304 Histology II: Microscopic Anatomy of Human Systems with Laboratory Staff, Hapaxian
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Analysis of structure-function relationships of human systems, based principally on microscopic techniques. Examination of selected pathologic states in each system, as well as discussion of recent literature. Laboratory study includes tissue preparation for microscopy, as well as hands-on experience at the transmission electron microscope and participation in a group research project.

Prerequisite: 206

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

BISC 305 Seminar. Evolution Buchholz
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A brief history of life. Origin of life from nonlife, evolution of replicate molecules, origin of eukaryotic cellular structure, diversification of organic domains, kingdoms and animal phyla, development of strategies for life in terrestrial environments, patterns of extinction. The course will emphasize student participation and make extensive use of the primary literature.

Prerequisites: BISC 200 or permission of the instructor

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

BISC 306/NEUR 306 Principles of Neural Development with Laboratory Beltz (Neuroscience), Paul (Neuroscience)
This course will discuss aspects of nervous system development and how they relate to the development of the organism as a whole. Topics such as neural induction, neurogenesis, programmed cell death, axon guidance, synaptogenesis and the development of behavior will be discussed, with an emphasis on the primary literature and critical reading skills. Laboratory sessions focus on a variety of methods used to define developing neural systems. Students may register for either BISC 306 or NEUR 306 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: BISC 213/NEUR 213, or BISC 216, or NEUR 200, or permission of the instructor

Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science

BISC 307/ES 307 Advanced Topics in Ecology with Laboratory Rodenhouse
Topic for 2009-10: Global Change Biology. Environmental conditions for nearly all life forms on Earth are changing at unprecedented rates largely due to human activities: agriculture, deforestation, urbanization, pollution, climate change, transplantation of species, hunting and harvesting. These causes of change and their consequences are not confined by national boundaries or even historical ecological boundaries. This course will examine critically the causes of change, how complex biological systems are studied, and the observed and projected biological consequences of environmental change. Labs will explore how relevant data are gathered and structured for analysis and modeling. Each student will complete an independent project of her choosing on a relevant topic. Students may register for either BISC 307 or ES 307 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisites: Two units in Biological Sciences at the 200-level or above, or permission of the instructor

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

BISC 310 Advanced Topics in Cellular Regulation with Laboratory Hood-DeGroot
Eukaryotic cells possess a diverse array of molecular circuits that regulate their normal activities and respond to external signals. Common modes of regulation include modulation of protein expression or localization, covalent protein modifications, and protein-protein interactions. This course will examine the molecular mechanisms that regulate processes such as cell division, cell differentiation, stress responses, and others, in a format that combines lectures and student presentations of current literature articles. A semester-long investigative laboratory project will focus on a particular regulatory pathway using the budding yeast Saccharomyces cerevisiae as a model organism.

Prerequisite: 219 or 220 (both recommended)

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science

BISC 311 Evolutionary Developmental Biology with Laboratory Suzuki
The diversity of organismal forms has fascinated human beings for centuries. How did butterflies get eyespots? What is the evolutionary origin of bird feathers? How did snakes get to be so long? The field of evolutionary developmental biology or evo-devo integrates the long separate fields of evolutionary biology and developmental biology to answer these questions. In this course, we will explore topics such as the evolution of novel body parts, body plan evolution, developmental constraints, convergent evolution and the role of environmental changes in evolution. Through reading of original papers, we will examine recent advances made in evo-devo and critically analyze the role of evo-devo in biology and the implications beyond biology. Students will have the opportunity to design and conduct an independent research project using arthropods.

Prerequisite: 202 or 216 or by permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken [309].
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall  Unit: 1.25

BISC 313 Seminar. Microbial Physiology and Biochemistry
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Topic: Microbial Communication and Development. Many bacteria are social creatures, interacting and communicating with each other. Quorum sensing, where population density alters gene expression, controls a diverse range of behaviors such as virulence factor production, genetic competence, sporulation, biofilm production, and programmed cell death. Signaling pathways and the molecules that regulate them will be studied, as well as the molecular mechanisms that regulate and produce developmental change in prokaryotes. Student participation and discussion of original literature will be emphasized.
Prerequisite: 209, 219 or 220, and CHEM 211, or permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O  Unit: 1.0

BISC 315/NEUR 315 Neuroendocrinology with Laboratory
Tetel (Neuroscience)
Hormones act throughout the body to coordinate basic biological functions such as development, differentiation and reproduction. This course will investigate how hormones act in the brain to regulate physiology and behavior. We will study how the major neuroendocrine axes regulate a variety of functions, including brain development, reproductive physiology and behavior, homeostasis and stress. The regulation of these functions by hormones will be investigated at the molecular, cellular and systems levels. Laboratory experiments will explore various approaches to neuroendocrine research, including the detection of hormone receptors in the brain and analysis of behavior. Students may register for either BISC 315 or NEUR 315 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: BISC 213/NEUR 213, or NEUR 200, or both BISC 110 and BISC 203, or permission of the instructor
Semester: Fall  Unit: 1.25

BISC 316 Molecular Biology with Laboratory
Peternain
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Molecular techniques, which allow us to isolate, analyze and manipulate genes, have revolutionized our understanding of living things as well as our ability to alter them genetically. This course focuses on the use of molecular methods to dissect and manipulate complex biological systems. A case-study approach will be used to analyze the application of molecular biology to genetic diseases (e.g., cystic fibrosis and muscular dystrophy), genetically modified organisms, cancer, stem cells, human cloning, aging and environmental protection. Student participation and critical analysis of the primary literature will be emphasized. In the laboratory students will pursue an original research project using current molecular techniques (e.g., molecular cloning, PCR, DNA sequencing, mutagenesis, protein expression, bioinformatics). Emphasis will be on experimental design and data analysis and interpretation.
Prerequisite: 219 or permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O  Unit: 1.25

BISC 319 Population Genetics and Systematics: Evolution on Islands with Laboratory
Seguró
In this course, we will focus on patterns of population differentiation and speciation in oceanic islands. Little is known about the ecological and historical forces responsible for speciation although these are key for the generation of biological diversity. By looking at relationships between organisms, populations and species, we can interpret how historical processes can leave evolutionary footprints on the geographic distribution of traits. After a series of introductory lectures, the course will involve student presentations and discussion of primary literature examining cases in archipelagos (Hawaii, Canaryes and Galapagos). In the laboratory, we will explore computational biology tools for analysis of DNA sequences, and apply methods of phylogeny, phylogeography reconstruction and population demographics. We will also explore the growing field of molecular dating of evolutionary events.
Prerequisite: 291 or 202 or 210 or 219 or 221 or by permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken [318].
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring  Unit: 1.25

BISC 320 Proteomics with Laboratory
Harris
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The sequencing of the genomes of many organisms has provided biologists with vast storehouses of information. However, it is important to remember that DNA sequences only provide a recipe for life. To a great extent the living condition arises from the complex interactions of thousands of cellular proteins. Research that focuses on the large-scale study of proteins is called proteomics. This course introduces students to the techniques utilized and the scientific questions being addressed in this newly emerging discipline. Student participation and the use of original literature will be emphasized. In the laboratory students will perform two-dimensional gel electrophoresis, peptide mass fingerprinting using MALDI-TOF mass spectrometry, and DNA microarrays.
Prerequisite: 219, 220 and CHEM 211, or by permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O  Unit: 1.25

BISC 322 Designs for Life: The Biomechanics of Animals and Plants with Laboratory
Ellerby
This course will focus on how organisms cope with a complex physical world. Their sophisticated designs withstand large environmental forces, caused by gravity, wind, and water flow. Animals, as well as confronting the problems of not falling over or apart, must overcome additional challenges associated with locomotion. Biomatirials, including spider silk that is stronger than steel and springy tendons that power prodigious jumps, help make this possible. Topics for discussion will include how biomaterials give organisms structure and strength, how muscle acts as a biological motor due to contraction, how animals swim and fly, and how they run, walk and jump effectively on land. Class discussion and student presentation of recent primary literature will be an integral part of the course. Labs will include the analysis of video images to calculate accelerations and power during movement, and the use of force plates to quantify contact forces during running and jumping.
Prerequisite: Two units in Biological Sciences at the 200 level or permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken 321.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring  Unit: 1.25

BISC 327/ES 327 Biodiversity Topics
Jones
Topic for 2009-10: Biological Diversity in Context. Biodiversity, like sustainability, is a much-used term with a broad range of meanings. This seminar will examine what biodiversity means at a range of scales, from genetic variation within a single species, to the microbial community surrounding a single plant's roots, through suburban backyards, cities and nature preserves, to whole continents and finally the planet. We will focus primarily on the biological implications of biodiversity loss for the relevant ecological community and ecosystem function, and how those implications affect humans. Students will interpret primary scientific literature and analyze data to test hypotheses generated by the class. Students may register for either BISC 327 or ES 327 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ES 211 or GEOG 211 or BISC 201 or BISC 207 or permission of instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Fall  Unit: 1.0

BISC 331 Seminar. Cancer Genomics
Weed
Cancer can be attributed to disruption of gene structure and function. Functional genomics has contributed more to the understanding and treatment of cancer in the last five years than the previous half century of oncology research. This course will provide a comprehensive study of the biological basis of malignancy from pathophysioloogy to the genetics of the transformed phenotype with a view to use of genomics in diagnosis, prognosis and treatment directed at specific molecular targets. Topics to be discussed include pharmacogenomics, immunotherapy, tumor stem cells, RNAi, biomarkers, oncolytic viruses, nanotechnology, transcriptional profiling of both coding and non-coding RNAs, and reprogramming of epigenomic as well as epithelial-mesenchyme transition profiles. Class discussion and student presentation of recent original literature will be an integral part of the course.
Prerequisites: 219 or 220 or by permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring  Unit: 1.0

BISC 334 The Biology of Stem Cells
O'Donnell
In this course, we will study stem cells in terms of molecular, cellular and developmental biology. We will focus on different types of stem cells, particularly embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells, cancer stem cells, and induced pluripotent stem cells. We will explore the latest research on the biology of stem cells, including their differentiation, self-renewal, and potential use in regenerative medicine.
stem cells. More specifically, we will explore how stem cells develop, the criteria by which stem cells are currently defined, and stem cell characterizations under investigation. Current research in the area of therapeutic cloning (somatic cell nuclear transfer) and potential stem cell therapies for the treatment of degenerative diseases will also be discussed. Bioethical issues related to stem cell biology will be described. Students will present and discuss original literature throughout the course.

Prerequisites: 216 or 219 or 220
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

BISC 336 Seminar
Laborate
Topic for 2009-10: Immunology. In this course, we will study the molecular, cellular and biochemical features of the immune system. We will also develop an appreciation for the interrelationship of immune components and their ability to function as an interactive system. When the immune system functions properly; infectious pathogens and potential cancer cells are destroyed. When our immune system malfunctions, normally harmless microorganisms can cause serious infections, autoimmune diseases or allergies can develop, and cancer cells can evade immune surveillance and grow unchecked. In this discussion- and presentation-based class, current research in immunology will be emphasized through the analysis of primary literature.

Prerequisite: 209 or 219 or 220 or permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

BISC 338 Seminar: The Biology of Social Insects
Matilda
Warfare, communication, agriculture, and caring for family are phenomena that are typically attributed to human societies, but social insects do these same things. In this course, we will explore the weird and wonderful world of social insects to discover their diverse strategies for success. We will learn about how conflict and selfishness have shaped the cooperative effort that characterizes these seemingly utopian communities. Topics will include the natural history of social insects, self organization in systems, models of division of labor, communication, and an examination of some of the biological oddities that have arisen as a result of kin selection. The format for the course will consist of demonstrations of basic principles, followed by discussion and presentation of classic literature and ground-breaking, current research.

Prerequisite: 201 or 202 or by permission of instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

BISC 339 Seminar. Biology of Parasites
Hughes
Parasites hold a fascination for biologists. The life styles of these ubiquitous and sometimes dangerous organisms, perhaps seeming bizarre to us, have proven very successful evolutionary adaptations to life on or within their hosts. Parasites belong to many different protozoan groups and animal phyla, and many families of plants. We will explore this great diversity of parasite forms and specializations, including parasite biogeography, life histories and evolution, behavioral alteration of hosts, and host defenses. An important emphasis in our course will be the human health impacts of parasites, methods of parasite control, and prospects for treatment and prevention of parasitic diseases. Participants will present primary literature for discussion, augmented with introductory material for each major topic.

Prerequisite: Two units in Biological Sciences at the 200-level or permission of the instructor
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

BISC 350 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open by permission of the instructor, ordinarily to students who have taken at least four units in biology
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

BISC 360 Senior Thesis Research
Prerequisite: By permission of the department. Occasional group meetings and one oral presentation will be required. See Academic Distinctions.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

BISC 370 Senior Thesis
Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department. Occasional group meetings and one oral presentation will be required.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

For students who enter the College in the fall of 2008 or later, a major in Biological Sciences includes: nine biological sciences courses, at least seven of which must be taken at Wellesley, plus two units of college chemistry (CHEM 105 or higher). BISC 110 and 111 or their equivalent are required for the major. Four 200-level courses are required, with at least one course from each of the following three groups: cell biology (206, 219, 220); systems biology (203, 207, 213, 216); and community biology (201, 202, 208, 209, 210, 214, 217/ES 217). A minimum of two 300-level courses are also required for the major. One of these courses, exclusive of 350, 360, or 370, must include laboratory and must be taken at Wellesley. Additional chemistry beyond the two required units is strongly recommended or required for certain 300-level courses. CHEM 221 and 328, and BISC 350, 360, and 370 do not count toward the minor major.

BISC 103, 104, 105, 107, 108, and 109, which do count toward the minor major in Biological Sciences, fulfill the College distribution requirements for nonmajors; 108 and 109 as laboratory sciences; 103, 104, 105 and 107 as nonlaboratory science courses. BISC 109, 111, 198 and 201 fulfill the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

For students who entered the College prior to the fall of 2008, a major in Biological Sciences includes: eight biological sciences courses, at least six of which must be taken at Wellesley, plus two units of college chemistry (CHEM 105 or higher). BISC 110 and 111 or their equivalent are required for the major. Four 200-level courses are required, with at least one course from each of the following three groups: cell biology (206, 216, 219, 220); systems biology (203, 207, 213); and community biology (201, 202, 208, 209, 210, 214, 217). A minimum of two 300-level courses are also required for the major. One of these courses, exclusive of 350, 360, or 370, must include laboratory and must be taken at Wellesley. Additional chemistry beyond the two required units is strongly recommended or required for certain 300-level courses. CHEM 211 and 328, and BISC 350, 360, and 370 do not count toward the minor major.

BISC 107, 108, and 109, which do not count toward the minor major in biological sciences, do fulfill the College distribution requirements; 108 and 109 as laboratory sciences 107 as a nonlaboratory science course. BISC 109, 111, 198, and 201 fulfill the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

Requirements for the Minor

A minor in Biological Sciences (five units) consists of: (A) BISC 110 and 111; (B) two 200-level units, each of which must be in a different group as described in the first paragraph above under major requirements; and (C) one 300-level unit, excluding 350, which must be taken at Wellesley. Four of the five courses for a minor must be taken at Wellesley. Chemistry is recommended. Students planning a minor should consult the chair.

Honors

Honors in Biological Sciences is earned by the demonstration of excellence in both coursework and a thesis research project. All junior majors are invited to apply for the honors program. Final acceptance into the program is contingent on a vote of the department faculty and, typically, a grade point of 3.5 or higher in courses in the major above the 100 level. The primary goal of the thesis project is the development of independent research capabilities, culminating in the writing of a research paper. Honors candidates present the results of their thesis research to an examination committee in the thesis oral discussion, which takes place during reading period. After the oral examination, the thesis committee evaluates the candidate’s performance and may recommend approval of the degree with honors. For more information, please see the bulletin “Guidelines for Research Students and Advisors” and the biological sciences department Web site for honors and theses: www.wellesley.edu/Biology/honors_theses.html.

Graduate Study

Students planning graduate work are advised to take calculus, statistics, organic chemistry, two units of physics, and to have a reading knowledge of a second language. They should consult the catalogs of the graduate schools of their choice for specific requirements. Premedical students are referred to the requirements given in the Academic Program section.

Advanced Placement Policy

AP credit does not replace any course offered in the Department of Biological Sciences and does not count toward a major or a minor in biological sciences, biological chemistry, or neuroscience. No exemption exams will be given for BISC 110 or 111. All biology courses require the fulfillment of the Quantitative Reasoning basic skills requirement as a prerequisite.

Transfer Credit

In order to obtain Wellesley credit for any biology course taken at another institution during the summer or the academic year, preliminary approval must be obtained from the chair of the department prior to enrolling in the course. After enrolling at Wellesley, courses from two-year colleges will not be accepted at any level. Transfer students wishing to obtain credit for biology courses taken prior to enrollment at Wellesley should consult the chair of the department.

Interdepartmental Majors

Students interested in the interdepartmental major in biological chemistry are referred to the section of the catalog where the program is described. They should consult with the director of the biological chemistry program.

Students interested in the interdepartmental major in neuroscience are referred to the section of the catalog where this program is described. They should consult with the director of the neuroscience program.

Students interested in the interdepartmental major in environmental studies are referred to the section of the catalog where this program is described. They should consult with the directors of the environmental science program. Students interested in concentrating in community biology may wish to supplement and enrich their work at Wellesley by taking extradepartmental courses offered through the Marine Studies Consortium or the Semester in Environmental Science (SES) offered each fall at the Ecosystems Center of the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Massachusetts. Students are referred to the sections of the catalog titled Extradepartmental and Special Academic Programs where these opportunities are described.

Professor: Kolody, Celenian, Hearn, Wolfson, Arumainayagam (Chair)
Associate Professor: Haines, Miwa, Flynn
Assistant Professor: Elnore, Varadar-Ulu, Carrico-Montz, Radhakrishnan, Virgo
Adjunct Assistant Professor: Reisberg, Verschoor
Senior Instructor in Chemistry Laboratory: Turnbull, Doe, Hall, McCarthy
Instructor in Chemistry Laboratory: Hart, Oakes, Trainer

Chemistry has often been referred to as “The Central Science.” Knowledge of the properties and behavior of atoms and molecules is crucial to our understanding of medicine, biological systems, neuroscience, nanotechnology, environmental science and a myriad of other areas. All of the traditional divisions of chemistry—analytical chemistry, biochemistry, inorganic chemistry, organic chemistry and physical chemistry—are represented on the faculty, in the course offerings and in opportunities for student-faculty collaborative research. Unless otherwise noted, all courses meet for three periods of lecture/discussion and one 3.5 hour laboratory appointment weekly. CHEM 306 and the selected topics courses will generally be taught without laboratory, but may include laboratory for some topics.

The chemistry department reviews elections of introductory chemistry students and places them in 105, or 120 according to their previous preparation, Advanced Placement (AP) scores, International Baccalaureate (IB) scores, and department placement exams. Students with a 5 on the Chemistry AP exam (or the equivalent on the higher level IB exam) typically elect CHEM 120. They may elect CHEM 211 if they demonstrate sufficient mastery of material from CHEM 105 and CHEM 205 on the department’s placement exam. Details of the AP/IB policy and the placement exam are on the department’s Web site, www.wellesley.edu/chemistry/chem.html. Students who have taken one year of high school chemistry should elect CHEM 105 followed by either CHEM 205 or 211.

Goals for the Major

• Be able to think about the world on a molecular level;
• Learn fundamental lab techniques and understand how concepts learned in lecture and laboratory can be implemented in the real world;
• Perform scientific research in the form of independent study or thesis program;
• Approach and model problems using concepts and skills grounded in chemistry and learn about how solving such problems benefits the broader society;
• Have a solid foundation in all of the core subfields of the discipline (analytical, organic, inorganic, biological, and physical) and integrate and apply all of these subdisciplines to new situations;
• Be able to present chemically-relevant material clearly and accurately to an expert or a non-expert audience;
CHEM 102 Contemporary Problems in Chemistry with Laboratory
Reisberg

Topic for 2009-10: Understanding Drugs. A study of a wide variety of drugs, both legal and illegal. The focus will be on how these molecules affect our minds and bodies based on an understanding of their biochemistry. Topics will include antibiotics, steroids, stimulants, intoxicants, narcotics, and hallucinogens. The history, discovery, development, testing, regulation and prohibition of these substances will also be considered. The laboratory will include synthesis and analysis of an analgesic and an intoxicant, plus the detection of drugs in our bodies and on currency.

Prerequisite: Open to all students except those who have taken any other chemistry course.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 105 Fundamentals of Chemistry with Laboratory
Staff

This course is designed for students majoring in the physical and biological sciences as well as those wishing an introduction to modern molecular science. Core principles and applications of chemistry are combined to provide students with a conceptual understanding of chemistry that will help them in both their professional and everyday lives. Topics include principles of nuclear chemistry, atomic and molecular structure, molecular energetics, chemical equilibrium, and chemical kinetics. The laboratory work introduces students to synthesis and structural determination by infrared and other spectroscopic techniques, periodic properties, computational chemistry, statistical analysis and various quantitative methods of analysis.

Prerequisite: One year of high school chemistry is strongly recommended. Chemistry 105 is designed for students who have completed high school chemistry and mathematics equivalent to two years of algebra. Students must have fulfilled the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Students who have questions about their chemistry preparation should consult the department chair. Students who have AP or IB credit in Chemistry, and who elect CHEM 105, forfeit the AP or IB credit.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 120 Intensive Introductory Chemistry with Laboratory
Kodrok

A one-semester course for students who have completed more than one year of high school chemistry, replacing CHEM 105 and 205 as a prerequisite for more advanced chemistry courses. It presents the topics of nuclear chemistry, atomic structure and bonding, periodicity, kinetics, thermodynamics, electrochemistry, equilibrium, acid/base chemistry, solubility and transition metal chemistry. All of these topics are presented in the context of both historical and contemporary applications. The laboratory includes experiments directly related to topics covered in lecture, an introduction of statistical analysis of data, molecular modeling and computational chemistry, instrumental and classical methods of analysis, thermochemistry and solution equilibria. The course meets for four periods of lecture/discussion and one 3.5 hour laboratory.

Prerequisite: Open to students who have a score of 5 on the Chemistry AP exam or an IB score of 5 or above; open also to students with two years of chemistry but without the requisite AP or IB score who perform sufficiently well on the Chemistry 120 Placement Exam. Students must have fulfilled the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have completed 105 and/or 205. Students who have AP or IB credit in Chemistry, and who elect CHEM 120, forfeit the AP or IB credit.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 205 Chemical Analysis and Equilibrium with Laboratory
Staff

This course builds on the principles introduced in CHEM 105, with an emphasis on chemical equilibrium and analysis, and their role in the chemistry of the environment. Topics include chemical reactions in aqueous solution with particular emphasis on acids and bases, solubility and complexation, electrochemistry, atmospheric chemistry, photochemistry and smog, global warming and acid deposition, sampling and separations, modeling of complex equilibria and kinetic systems, statistical analysis of data, and solid state chemistry of ceramics, zeolites and new novel materials. The laboratory work includes additional experience with instrumental and noninstrumental methods of analysis, sampling, computational chemistry and solution equilibria.

Prerequisites: 105 and fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have taken 120.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 211 Organic Chemistry I with Laboratory
Staff

Topics covered include: stereochemistry, synthesis and reactions of alkanes, alkenes, alkynes, alkyl halides, alcohols and ethers, nomenclature of organic functional groups, IR, and GC/MS.

Prerequisite: 105 or 120 or permission of the department.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 212 Organic Chemistry II with Laboratory
Staff

A continuation of CHEM 211. Includes NMR spectroscopy, synthesis, reactions of aromatic and carbonyl compounds, amines, and carbohydrates. In addition, students are expected to study the chemical literature and write a short chemistry review paper.

Prerequisite: 211
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 221 Biochemistry I with Laboratory
Elmore

A study of the chemistry of biomolecules and macromolecular assemblies with emphasis on the structure of proteins, nucleic acids, carbohydrates, and lipids, as well as methodologies for studying them. This course is the first half of a year-long course sequence in biochemistry that continues with CHEM 328. Students who only intend to take a single semester of biochemistry should enroll in CHEM 222.

Prerequisite: 205, 211 and BISC 220; or 120, 211 and BISC 220
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 222 Introduction to Biochemistry with Laboratory
Elmore

A study of the chemistry of biomolecules and macromolecular assemblies, with emphasis on structure-function relationships: an introduction to bioenergetics, enzyme kinetics, and metabolic pathways. This course is intended for students who plan to complete only one semester of biochemistry coursework at Wellesley. Students who plan to continue in Biochemistry II (CHEM 328) should enroll in CHEM 221.

Prerequisite: 205, 211 and 212; or 120, 211 and 212
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 232 Physical Chemistry for the Life Sciences with Laboratory
Radhakrishnan

An examination of several topics in physical chemistry, with an emphasis on their applications to the life sciences. Topics include quantum chemistry and spectroscopy, molecular mechanics, chemical thermodynamics, and kinetics.

Does not count toward the chemistry major, but counts toward the biological chemistry major and chemistry minor.

Prerequisite: 205 or 120, or permission of the department.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 233 Physical Chemistry I with Laboratory
Arumaynagam

Molecular basis of chemistry: intensive overview of thermodynamics, models, and techniques of physical chemistry; extensive coverage of quantum mechanics; applications of quantum mechanics to atomic and molecular structure, and spectroscopy; classical thermodynamics of gases and solutions; intermediate topics in chemical kinetics and introduction to reaction dynamics; basic statistical mechanics to calculate thermodynamic variables and equilibrium constants.

Prerequisite: 205 or 120, or permission of the department.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25
CHEM 250 Research or Individual Study
Research is supervised by a member of the Wellesley College chemistry department. Off-campus research requires active participation of a Wellesley faculty member throughout the research period. Course fulfills the research requirement for the major only upon completion of a paper of 8–10 pages on the research and a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 350.)
Prerequisite: Open by permission to students who have taken at least three units in chemistry above the introductory level.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 306 Seminar
Arunmaiyangam
Topic for 2009-10: Radiation Chemistry.
Radiation chemistry is the science of the chemical effects brought about by the absorption of ionizing radiation by matter. This course will examine radiation chemistry in the context of fundamental physicochemical processes, applications, and biological implications. The widespread belief that aging and genetic evolution are both influenced by ambient radiation will be analyzed. Applications of radiation chemistry such as chemical synthesis (e.g., radiation-induced polymerization), food irradiation, sterilization of medical equipment and disposables, waste treatment by irradiation, and semiconductor device manufacture will be discussed. The chemistry of ions, excited states, and radicals will be treated to afford a deeper understanding of matter and its interactions. The central role of low-energy electrons in radiation chemistry will be emphasized.
Prerequisites: 211
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 317 Advanced Organic Chemistry
Carra-Moniz
Strategies, including retrosynthetic analysis, for the synthesis of complex molecules. Considerable emphasis will be placed on construction of ring systems, acyclic stereocontrol, and asymmetric catalysis. Lecture topics will be accompanied by case studies drawn from the current chemical literature. Reaction mechanisms will be emphasized throughout the course.
Prerequisite: 212
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 328 Biochemistry II with Laboratory
Elmore
A further study of the function and regulation of biomolecules and macromolecular assemblies introduced in CHEM 221, with special emphasis on enzymes and metabolic pathways. Both the lecture and laboratory components of the course emphasize the development of independent research proposals to further students’ conceptual and experimental understanding of biochemistry.
Prerequisite: 221 (students with 222 should get permission of the instructor to enroll in 328)
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 334 Physical Chemistry II without Laboratory
Virgo
This advanced course emphasizes the mathematical basis of physical chemistry. Macroscopic thermodynamics is revisited from the perspective of atomic and molecular theory to give an in-depth treatment of statistical mechanics. The rigorous treatment of quantum mechanics includes matrix formalism, group theory, and computational chemistry. In addition to solid state and x-ray analysis, topics covered include laser-induced fluorescence spectroscopy and reaction dynamics (why chemical reactions happen). Modern applications are emphasized. This course can be counted toward the physical chemistry requirement of the chemistry major.
Prerequisite: 233, PHYS 106 or 108, and MATH 215. Not open to students who have taken 333 or 355; (233 by permission of the instructor).
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 335 Physical Chemistry II with Laboratory
Virgo
This advanced course emphasizes the mathematical basis of physical chemistry. Macroscopic thermodynamics is revisited from the perspective of atomic and molecular theory to give an in-depth treatment of statistical mechanics. The rigorous treatment of quantum mechanics includes matrix formalism, group theory, and computational chemistry. In addition to solid state and x-ray analysis, topics covered include laser-induced fluorescence spectroscopy and reaction dynamics (why chemical reactions happen). Modern applications are emphasized.
Prerequisite: 233, PHYS 106 or 108, and MATH 215. Not open to students who have taken 332, 333, or 354; (233 by permission of the instructor).
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 341 Inorganic Chemistry with Laboratory
Coleman
Review of atomic structure, multi-electron atoms, the periodic table and periodicity, chemical applications of group theory, molecular orbital theory, the chemistry of ionic compounds, generalized acid/base theories, transition metal complexes, organometallic chemistry, catalysis, and bioinorganic chemistry. The laboratory introduces a number of experimental and computational techniques used in inorganic chemistry.
Prerequisites: 205 or 120; prerequisite/corequisite: 212.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

CHEM 350 Research or Individual Study
Research is supervised by a member of the Wellesley College chemistry department. Off-campus research requires active participation of a Wellesley faculty member throughout the research period. Course fulfills the research requirement for the major only upon completion of a paper of 8–10 pages on the research and a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 350.)
Prerequisite: By permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 355 Chemistry Thesis Research
The first course in a two-semester investigation of a significant research problem, culminating in the preparation of a thesis and defense of that thesis before a committee of faculty from the chemistry department. Students will participate in a regular weekly seminar program, in which they will discuss their research progress informally with faculty and student colleagues and gain familiarity with contemporary research through presentations by outside seminar speakers. This route does not lead to departmental honors. If the first semester of thesis is used to fulfill the research requirement, the student must complete a paper of 8–10 pages on the research and give a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 355.)
Prerequisite: Open only to seniors by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 360 Senior Thesis Research
CHEM 360 is the first course in a two-semester investigation of a significant research problem, culminating in departmental honors upon the completion in the second semester of a thesis and defense of that thesis before a committee of faculty from the Chemistry Department. Students in 360 and 370 will be expected to attend the weekly departmental honors seminar, listed in the schedule of classes. The seminar provides a forum for students conducting independent research to present their work to fellow students and faculty. See Academic Distinctions. If the first semester of thesis is used to fulfill the research requirement, the student must complete a paper of 8–10 pages on the research and give a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 360.)
Prerequisite: By permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHEM 361 Analytical Chemistry with Laboratory
Flynn
Classical and instrumental methods of chemical analysis. Topics include statistical analysis, electronics and circuitry, electrochemistry, spectroscopy, and separations science with special attention to instrument design and function. The course work emphasizes the practical applications of chemical instrumentation and methods to address questions in areas ranging from art history to biochemistry to materials science. The laboratory work focuses on the design, construction, and use of chemical instrumentation along with the interfacing of instruments with computers. Prerequisites: 205 and 211 or 120 and 211. Distribution: Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.25

CHEM 365 Chemistry Thesis

The second course in a two-semester investigation of a significant research problem, culminating in the preparation of a thesis and defense of that thesis before a committee of faculty from the chemistry department. Students will participate in a regular weekly seminar program, in which they will discuss their research progress informally with faculty and student colleagues and gain familiarity with contemporary research through presentations by outside seminar speakers. This route does not lead to departmental honors. Course counts toward the research requirement if the student completes the thesis and the thesis presentation. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 365.) Prerequisite: 355. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

CHEM 370 Senior Thesis

CHEM 370 is the second course in a two-semester investigation of a significant research problem, culminating in departmental honors upon the completion of a thesis and defense of that thesis before a committee of faculty from the chemistry department. Students will participate in a regular weekly seminar program, in which they will discuss their research progress informally with faculty and student colleagues and gain familiarity with contemporary research through presentations by outside seminar speakers. Course counts toward the research requirement if the student completes the thesis and the thesis presentation. See Academic Distinctions. (Note: paid internships are not eligible for CHEM 370.) Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

Any student who plans to take chemistry beyond 205 or 120 should consult one or more members of the chemistry department faculty. The department Web site (http://www.wellesley.edu/Chemistry/chem.html) contains specific suggestions about programs and deals with a variety of topics including preparation in mathematics and physics, graduate programs, and careers of former majors. The chemistry major may follow either of two paths:

- Path 1 (Recommended option for students planning to go to graduate school)
  - 105 and 205, or 120;
  - 211 and 212;
  - [231] 233 and [333] 335;
  - two from among: 222 or 221; 341; 361;
  - one unit of research/independent study (CHEM 250, 350, 355, or 360) or completion of approved summer or off-campus research and required paper/presentation;
  - one additional non-research/thesis chemistry course at the 300 level;
  - MATH 215 and PHYS 108.

- Path 2
  - 105 and 205, or 120;
  - 211 and 212;
  - 233; 341; 361;
  - either 222 or 221;
  - one unit of research/independent study (CHEM 251, 350, [351], 355, or 360) or completion of approved summer or off-campus research and required paper/presentation;
  - one additional non-research/thesis chemistry course at the 300 level;
  - MATH 116 or MATH 120; and PHYS 106 or PHYS 108.

Students planning to study physical chemistry in graduate school should consider taking CHEM 335 in their junior year and PHYS 349 in their senior year.

Students interested in an independent major in chemical physics should consult the department chair. The required mathematics and physics courses (PHYS 108 but not PHYS 106) may also be counted toward a major or a minor in those departments. Early completion of the mathematics and physics requirements is strongly encouraged.

Normally no more than three units of chemistry taken at another institution may be counted towards the major.

Students interested in the interdepartmental major in biological chemistry are referred to the section of the catalog where that major is described. They should also consult with the director of the biological chemistry program. Independent Research

The chemistry major requires one semester or summer of research. The research requirement for the chemistry major can be fulfilled in the following ways:

- A. Independent Study in Chemistry (CHEM 250 or 350): Research is supervised by a member of the Wellesley College chemistry department. Off-campus research requires active participation of a Wellesley faculty member throughout the research period. In order to fulfill the research requirement for the major, the student must complete an 8–10 page paper on the research and give a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. The paper must contain substantial literature references, demonstrating a familiarity with searching the chemical literature. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. If the student completes the second semester (355 or 370), the thesis and the thesis defense fulfill the paper and presentation requirement.

- B. Thesis in Chemistry (355/365 or 360/370): If the first semester of thesis (355 or 360) is used to fulfill the research requirement, the student must complete a paper of 8–10 pages on the research and give a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. The paper must contain substantial literature references, demonstrating a familiarity with searching the chemical literature. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. If the student completes the second semester (365 or 370), the thesis and the thesis defense fulfill the paper and presentation requirement.

C. Other Research Experiences: A student may participate in an approved off-campus research program during the academic year (10 hours per week minimum for one semester) or an approved summer research program (eight weeks minimum length), write an 8–10 page paper on the research, and give a presentation to the chemistry department during one of the two research seminar presentation periods. The paper must contain substantial literature references, demonstrating a familiarity with searching the chemical literature. A copy of the paper must be submitted to the chair of the chemistry department. Students electing to use an off-campus research experience to fulfill the research requirement must have the research project approved by a faculty member in the chemistry department before starting the program.

Requirements for the Minor

A minor in chemistry includes: 105 and 205, or 120; 211; 233; [231] or 232; a choice of 221 or 222 or 341 or 361; one additional 200- or 300 level unit, excluding 350/351. The mathematics and physics prerequisites for 233 [231]/232 must also be satisfied. Normally no more than one unit in chemistry from another institution may be counted toward the minor.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination (CHEM 360 and 370). To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.2 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Chemist Accreditation

The American Chemical Society has established a set of requirements in various areas which it considers essential for the training of chemists. Students wishing to meet the standard of an accredited chemist as defined by the society should consult the chair of the chemistry department.

Teacher Certification

Students interested in obtaining certification to teach chemistry in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult the chair of the education department.
Transfer Credit
In order to obtain Wellesley credit for any chemistry course taken at another institution, during the summer or the academic year, approval must be obtained from the chair of the department prior to enrolling in the course. In general, courses from two-year colleges will not be accepted at any level. These restrictions normally apply only to courses taken after enrollment at Wellesley. Transfer students wishing to obtain credit for chemistry courses taken prior to enrollment at Wellesley should consult the chair of the department.

Advanced Placement and Exemption Examinations
If a student scores a 5 on the AP or IB examinations, she automatically qualifies for CHEM 120. The department offers two placement examinations at the beginning of the fall semester. If a student scores a 5 and does well on the CHEM 120 exemption exam, she can go directly into CHEM 211. If a student scores below a 5 on the Chemistry AP, but performs well on the CHEM 120 placement exam, she will be placed into CHEM 120. A student may take CHEM 105 without taking AP chemistry or a placement exam.

Withdrawal from Courses with Laboratory
Students who withdraw from a course which includes laboratory, and then elect that course in another semester, must complete both the lecture and laboratory portions of the course the second time.

Cinema and Media Studies
AN INTERDISCIPLINARY MAJOR Director: Mekuria (Art)
Professor: Viano
Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow: San Filippo
Advisory Committee: Bernard (Art), Ford (English), Prabhu (French), Wood (The Writing Program)
Participating Faculty: Cref (Women’s and Gender Studies), Gascon-Vera (Spanish), Mata (Women’s and Gender Studies), Nolden (German), Obeng (Africana Studies), Shelley (English), Song (East Asian Languages and Literatures), Zimmerman (East Asian Languages and Literatures)
The Cinema and Media Studies Program (CAMS) offers innovative, interdisciplinary major and minor focused on the dynamic media that both characterize and constitute modernity and those media that we can’t yet foresee. CAMS engages with all forms of moving-image and sound culture, from the dominant media forms of the last century (film, television, and still photography) through the emergent forms of the new century (new digital media, cell phone technology, etc.). While the major requires students to select one of three distinct tracks—in history and theory of media, video production, or media arts production—an innovative feature of the major is that students in all tracks are expected to be conversant in both theory and production. Students in the program come to understand theory through practice, and practice through theory.
Goals for the Major
Students in the CAMS major will learn that the various media used/interacted with are not only the products of human thought, imagination, and interaction, but have a defining impact on our understanding of ourselves as humans—as thinking, communicating, interacting members of ethnicities, genders, classes, societies, nations, and global communities.
Students who complete the CAMS major will:
• be familiar with a broad-based historical and international knowledge of film and audio-visual media.
• develop critical and analytical tools for the study of film and audio-visual media.
• have an active knowledge of the interplay between image, sound, story, and motion that constitute a media form.
• know the history and development of moving image media, including that of modes of production and distribution of media forms, of important works, artists, and movements.
• learn about film and other media as forms created for mass distribution
• know that media have both cultural and aesthetic impacts.
• learn about media as forms of collective and individual expression.
• produce media works in the form or forms of their choice.

CAMS 101 Introduction to Cinema and Media Studies

Ford (English), Prabhu (French)

CAMS 101 introduces students to the study of audio-visual media, including oral, print, photographic, cinematic, broadcast and digital media forms and practices. Using a case-study approach, we’ll explore the nature of audio-visual communication/representation in historical, cultural, disciplinary, and media-specific contexts, and examine different theoretical and critical perspectives on the role and power of media to influence our social values, political beliefs, identities, and behaviors. We will also consider how consumers of media representations can and do contest and unsettle their embedded messages. Our emphasis will be on developing the research and analytical tools, modes of reading, and forms of critical practice that can help us to negotiate the increasingly mediated world in which we live.

Prerequisite: None. 101 is required for all students majoring or minoring in Cinema and Media Studies, and should be taken before any other CAMS course. 101 and 115.

CAMS 115/WRIT 125 Hitchcock, Auteur

Wood (The Writing Program)

What is it that draws filmmakers, critics, writers, and scholars back to the films of Alfred Hitchcock, time and time again? What shots and frame compositions tempt filmmakers to imitation and homage? What narrative themes seduce critics? What paradoxes puzzle scholars and writers? To what extent is Hitchcock the master of his own films—in the words of film theorists, an auteur as much as a director? To what extent did he collaborate with others—screenwriters, composers, actors, cinematographers, and yes, his own wife and daughter—to produce enduring works of art? In reading, viewing, analyzing, and writing about films from all periods of Hitchcock’s working life, this course will use these questions to shape our understanding of film and film theory. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit towards the major in Cinema and Media Studies. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CAMS 135/ARTS 165 Introduction to Video Production

Mekuria (Art)

Introduction to the principles of video production with emphasis on developing basic skills of recording with a video camera, scripting, directing, and editing short videos. Students may register for either CAMS 135 or ARTS 165 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department Web site before preregistration.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CAMS 138/ARTS 108 Photography 1

C. Rogers (Art)

This introductory course explores photography as a means of visual communication by producing and analyzing photographic images. Emphasis is on acquiring basic black-and-white technical skills with 35mm cameras and traditional darkroom practices. Class discussions and studio projects address a range of technical, compositional, and aesthetic issues fundamental to image-making. Strong emphasis is on the development of both a technical grasp of the tools and a critical awareness of the medium through assignments and critiques. Students may register for either CAMS 138 or ARTS 108 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Permission of the instructor required. File application found on the department Web site before preregistration.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

CAMS 139/ARTS 109 Basic Two-Dimensional Design

Rivera (Art), Olsen (Art)

This studio course focuses on the issues of composition in two-dimensional imagery. It introduces the fundamental elements of design (e.g., line, shape, value, space, color) and their function in the process of composition. Studio projects emphasize formal problem-solving skills as a means of achieving more effective visual communication. Weekly assignments given in a variety of media. This course is not digitally based, but students will have the opportunity to use digital media to solve certain problems. Recommended for those interested in pursuing any type of two-dimensional work, including painting, photography or Web design. Students may register for either CAMS 139 or ARTS 109 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to seniors except by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

CAMS 201 Early Cinema

Wood (The Writing Program)

This course examines the energy, experimentation, and aesthetics of pre-sound and early sound cinema, from 1895 through the 1930s, when sound, censorship, and an emerging Hollywood studio system produced a shift from a “cinema of attraction” (Gunning) to a cinema of narration. The period provides a delicious paradox for the serious student of film: early films are at once strange (in the range of visual styles deployed) and familiar (establishing forms that become commonplace in later cinema—melodrama and expressionism, for example). The course covers major filmmakers (the Lumière, Méliès, Griffith, Vertov, Eisenstein, Murnau, Keaton and Chaplin, among others) in relation to aesthetic and social theories. Other topics include: early Bombay and Shanghai film; modes of production and distribution; the technological development of the cinematic form.

Prerequisite: CAMS majors: 101, and CAMS 135/ARTS 165, CAMS 138/ARTS 108 or CAMS 139/ARTS 109. Students who entered the College prior to the Fall of 2009 are exempted. For non-majors CAMS 101 is recommended.

CAMS 203/CHIN 243 Chinese Cinema

(in English)

Song (East Asian Languages and Literatures)

This course explores the cinematic conventions and experiments employed by Chinese filmmakers over the past 100 years. Unique Chinese film genres such as left-wing melodrama, martial arts films and model play adaptations, as well as the three "new waves" in China’s recent avant-garde cinema, will be examined and discussed. Individual filmic visions and techniques experimented with by important directors such as Fei Mu, Hou Hsiao-hsien, Zhang Yimou and Jia Zhangke will be closely analyzed. Class discussions will aim to help students understand the history, politics, and aesthetics of Chinese cinema. Theoretical aspects of film studies will also be incorporated into class readings and discussions. No prior knowledge of China or film studies is required. Students may register for either CAMS 203 or CHIN 243 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 204/GER 280 German Film 1919–2009

(English)

Nolden (German)

This course provides a survey of the history of films made by German directors. It introduces the student to the aesthetics and politics of the individual periods of German filmmaking, among them Expressionism, Film in the Third Reich, Postwar Beginnings, and New German Cinema. We will concentrate on films by Lang, Murnau, Riefenstahl, Stierck, Staudte, Akin, Fassbinder, Wenders, and Tykwer. Students may register for either CAMS 204 or GER 280 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 205/JPN 256 History of Japanese Cinema

(in English)

Zimmerman (East Asian Languages and Literatures)

From the long take and the pictorial composition to the swirling action of the sword fight, we explore how Japanese directors first adopted and then transformed the language of cinema. We move chronologically, from early silent film to recent independent cinema, and we view films that speak to the concerns of each subsequent generation. Because Japanese directors have created a visual style that counters certain Hollywood conventions, we also devote class time to learning how to read film. Readings from literature and history enhance study. Directors include: Mizoguchi, Ozu, Kurosawa, Oshima, Imamura, Koreeda, and Nishikawa. No previous knowledge of Japan, Japanese, or film studies is required. Students may register for either CAMS 205 or JPN 256 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 206 Cinema of the 1960s

Vatto

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Many film historians regard the 1960s as the most important decade in the growth of the so-called seventh art. While ubiquitous New Waves were transforming filmic conventions across the globe, cinematic Modernism peaked with the works of such filmmakers as Antonioni, Bergman, and Teshigahara.
At the same time, political and avant-garde films were pushing representation's boundaries and mirroring the turbulent creativity of the times. Through an exemplary selection of films from different countries, this course aims to expose students to the works, directors, and movements of "the decisive decade."

Prerequisite: CAMS majors: 101 and CAMS 135/ARTS 165, CAMS 138/ARTS 108 or CAMS 139/ARTS 109. Students who entered the College prior to the Fall of 2009 are exempted. For non-majors, CAMS 101 is recommended. Not open to students who have taken CAMS 210.

CAMS 207/ARTH 226 History of Photography: From Invention to Media Age

Berstein (Art)

Photography is so much a part of our private and public lives, and it plays such an influential role in our environment, that we often forget to examine its aesthetics, meanings, and histories. This course provides an introduction to these analyses by examining the history of photography from the 1830s to the present. Considering fine arts and mass media practices, the class will examine the works of individual practitioners as well as the emergence of technologies, aesthetic directions, markets, and meanings. Normally offered in alternate years Students may register for either CAMS 207 or ARTH 226 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None ARTH 100 and 101 strongly recommended. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video Spring Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

CAMS 221 Cinema: Art and Theory

Shelley (English)

What is the nature of cinema? Can a mechanical process ever produce art? Does film completely transform our notions of what artworks are, or should films be judged on the same criteria we apply to other media? What makes a film great? Given that filmmaking is collaborative, who is the creator of a film? These were among the urgent questions confronted by those who sought to understand cinema in the decades after its invention. In this course, we will read classic works of film theory and view a wide range of films in order to explore the nature of film and grasp the artistic possibilities of the cinematic medium.

CAMS 222 Nonfiction Film: Ethics, Aesthetics, Action

San Filippo

The ability of the cinema to convey ideas and to change minds reaches its pinnacle with the documentary, or “nonfiction film” that historically has worked both to draw together disparate cultural and political faction.

We will explore nonfiction film, which operates materially, as a social document; artistically, as a creative work; as well as rhetorically and/or functionally, as a sociopolitical act. We will consider several approaches that nonfiction filmmakers have taken in representing reality, and the ethics, aesthetics, and aftereffects of each: the observational, the engaged, and (what purports to be) the distanced, followed by a consideration of various alternative modes, authors, and subjects.

CAMS 224/ITAS 212 Italian Women Directors: The Female Authorial Voice in Italian Cinema (in English)

Laviou (Italian Studies)

This course examines the films of a number of major Italian women directors across two artistic generations: Cavani and Wertmüller from the 1960s to the 1990s; Archibugi, Comencini and others in the 1990s. Neither fascist cinema nor neorealism fostered female talents, so it was only with the emergence of feminism and the women's movement of the 1960s and 1970s that a space for female voices in Italian cinema was created. The course will explore how women directors give form to their directorial signatures in film, focusing on their films’ formal features and narrative themes in the light of their socio-historical context. Students may register for either CAMS 224 or ITAS 212 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 227 Television

San Filippo

Television today is omnipresent and, it sometimes seems, omnipotent: seen by millions worldwide, generating massive revenue, enormously influential in shaping conceptions of ourselves and our world. The course will begin with a study of the specific form of television, and of the development of television style (and, spectatorial perception) since the invention of the medium. We will consider how television sells not just consumer goods but cultural myths and self-images: of family, class, and national identity; gender roles, sexuality, and lifestyle; and race and ethnicity. We will explore the ways in which industrial and regulatory practices operate behind the scenes to shape and control what and who gets broadcast, and how. The course will conclude with a look ahead to television’s next frontiers.

CAMS 230/ARTS 260 Moving Image Studio

Olson (Art)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Creative exploration of the moving image as it relates to digital methods of animation, video, and motion graphics. Hands-on production of audio, image, text, and time-based media synthesis, with a conceptual emphasis on nonlinear narrative, communication design and visual expression. Screenings and lectures on historical and contemporary practices, coupled with readings and discussions of the theoretical, artistic, and cultural issues in the moving image. Normally offered in alternate years. Students may register for either CAMS 230 or ARTS 260 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 234/ENG 204 The Art of Screenwriting

Channer (English), Cezair-Thompson (English)

A creative writing course in a workshop setting for those interested in the theory and practice of writing for film. Ms. Cezair-Thompson's course focuses on the full-length feature film, both original screenplays and screen adaptations of literary work. Mr. Channer's course will explore the theory and practice of character development, story design, and screenplays of varying lengths created by established artists; discussion will center on short original screenplays generated by workshop members. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Mandatory credit/noncredit. Students who have taken this course once may register for it one additional time. Students may register for either CAMS 234 or ENG 204 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 235/ARTS 265 Intermediate Video Production/The Documentary Form

Mekuria (Art)

An exploration of the techniques and styles of producing documentary videos. We will survey current issues surrounding objectivity and representation as it concerns the documentary form. Strong emphasis on storytelling. Special focus on lighting, sound recording, and editing. We will screen and analyze various styles of documentary films. Final projects will be short documentaries. Students may register for either CAMS 235 or ARTS 265 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: CAMS 135/ARTS 165 or permission of the instructor required.

CAMS 238/ARTS 208 Photography II

C. Rogers (Art)

Building on the foundation of CAMS 138/ARTS 108, initial digital camera and scanning techniques are introduced to provide a background in color image production through use of the inkjet printer. Using the traditional wet darkroom, students will explore the medium format camera and advanced developing and printing processes. Other techniques include lighting equipment and metering. Strong emphasis is on the development of a personal photographic vision and a critical awareness of the medium and its history through research and critiques. Students may register for either CAMS 238 or ARTS 208 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: CAMS 138/ARTS 108 or permission of the instructor required.

CAMS 240/WGST 223 Gendering the Bronze Screen: Representations of Chicanas/Latinas in Film

Mata (Women's and Gender Studies)
The history of Chicanas and Latinas on the big screen is a long and complicated one. To understand the changes that have occurred in the representation of Chicanas/Latinas, this course proposes an analysis of films that trace various stereotypes and looks at how those images have been perpetuated, altered, and ultimately resisted. From the Americanizing of names to the erasure of racial backgrounds, the ways in which Chicanas and Latinas are represented has been contingent on ideologies of race, gender, class and sexuality. We will be examining how films have typified Chicanas/Latinas as criminals or as exotic based on their status as women of color, and how Chicanas/Latinas filmmakers continue the practice of casting Chicanas/Latinas only as support characters to the male protagonists. Students may register for either CAMS 240 or WGST 223 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 241/WGST 249 Asian-American Women in Film

Creel (Women's and Gender Studies)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will serve as an introduction to Asian-American film, and begin with the premise that there is a distinct American style of Asian "Orientalist" representation by tracing its development in classic Hollywood film over the last 75 years. We examine the politics of interracial romance, the phenomenon of the "yellow face" masquerade, and the different constructions of Asian-American femininity, masculinity, and sexuality. In the second half of the course, we look at the production of what has been named "Asian-American cinema" where our focus will be on contemporary works, drawing upon critical materials from film theory, feminist studies, Asian-American studies, history, and cultural studies. Students may register for either CAMS 241 or WGST 249 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One course in film/aesthetics or women's and gender studies or Asian American topics or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken WGST 249.

CAMS 328/ARTH 364 Women Filmmakers: History and Theory of Subversion

Mekuria (Art)
A survey of the history of women making films and an exploration of issues of representation using films directed by women from around the world. We will review the history and emergence of women/feminist filmmakers and examine the impact of feminism and feminist film theory on women filmmakers in particular, and the film industry in general. Required activities include weekly screenings of films, written analytical reports, and classroom presentations. Students may register for either CAMS 328 or ARTH 364 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One of the following courses: ARTH 224, ARTH 225, ARTH 226, CAMS 207, or WGST 210 or 222, or permission of the instructor.

CAMS 341/ARTH 391 Persuasive Images

Berman (Art)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Visual images have always been enlisted to influence individual and collective decision-making, action, and identity. However, the rise of the mass media in the nineteenth century, and the multiplication of visual technologies in the twentieth century have created unprecedented opportunities for the diffusion of persuasive images. This seminar enlists case studies to examine the uses and functions of visual images in advertising and propaganda, and considers, in particular, graphic arts, photography, film, and other reproductive media. It also considers the interplay between elite and popular arts. The goal of the course is to refine our critical understanding and reception of the visual world. Students may register for either CAMS 341 or ARTH 391 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 343/ARTH 333 Seminar. Visual Analysis of Film

Carroll (Art)
Topic for 2009-10: The Melodramatic Tradition from D.W. Griffith to Wong Kar-Wai. The focus of this course will be a series of films that take as their theme the disruptive tensions—between the sexes and between generations—that emerge with shattering force in seemingly ordinary domestic settings. After briefly considering the pictorial roots of this tradition in seventeenth- and eighteenth-century painting, the class will turn to films directed by D.W. Griffith, G.W. Pabst, Marcel Ophuls, Douglas Sirk, Todd Haynes, and Wong Kar-Wai. The class will explore the extensive critical and theoretical literature that is devoted to these films; at the same time we will pay scrupulous attention to their visual qualities through the close analysis of mise-en-scène, lighting, camera-work, and editing. Students may register for either CAMS 343 or ARTH 333 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 345/ENG 363/AMST 317 Film Noir

Shelley (English)
A journey through the dark side of the American imagination. Where classic Hollywood filmmaking trades in uplift and happy endings, film noir inhabits a pessimistic, morally ambiguous universe. This course will explore the development of this alternative vision of the American experience, from its origins around the time of World War II, through the revival of the genre in the early 1970's, to its ongoing influence in contemporary cinema. We'll pay particular attention to noir's redefinition of American cinematic style, and to its representations of masculinity and femininity. Films that may be studied include Howard Hawk's The Big Sleep, Billy Wilder's Double Indemnity, Robert Altman's The Long Goodbye, Roman Polanski's Chinatown, and David Lynch's Mulholland Drive. Students may register for CAMS 345, ENG 363, or AMST 317 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CAMS 353–354 Advanced Seminar II: Advanced Theory and Advanced Production

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This two-semester sequence explores the relationship between the historical, theoretical, and production of nonfiction films and offers students a chance to study intensively the various approaches to documentary filmmaking as well as produce a documentary. As we read and consider the approaches of theorists such as Michael Renov and Bill Nichols, testing them against a range of documentary film forms throughout all periods of film history, we'll ask: What are the ethics of making films about human subjects? What is the difference between first-person narration and an objective viewpoint? Is a direct-cinema approach relevant today? How does the intervention of new media, the internet and especially the emergence of YouTube impact on the nature of non-fiction film and filmmaking? What is the relationship between rhetoric and aesthetics in nonfiction film? Simultaneously, students will develop and experiment with their own approaches to nonfiction film in the advanced production class. Students are required to take both semesters. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Requirements for the Major

For students who enter the College in the fall of 2009 or later: The 12-course major begins with 101, and CAMS 135/ARTS 165; CAMS 130/ARTS 108 or CAMS 139/ARTS 109, introductory production courses in Video, Photo and Two-Dimensional Design. When students declare the CAMS major, they should also be ready to declare the track they are following. If they declare the history and theory track, students will then select at least four 200-level CAMS courses in the following categories: history (courses numbered 200–219); theory (courses numbered 220–229); analysis (courses numbered 240–259); and a 200-level production course (numbered 230–239). The 200-level production course may be a course in screenwriting, studio art, or theatre production. If they declare the production track they are required to take at least one 200-level history, theory or analysis course and one 200-level production course in addition to production courses in other forms.

CAMS majors are required to take two 300-level CAMS courses: history/theory track should choose two seminars; the production track may choose one seminar, and must choose a 300-level production course. In addition, all majors are required to choose one of the following three capstone options: the senior thesis (360/370), the CAMS capstone seminar (355), or one of the special two-unit course sequences that merge production and theory.

All majors are required to take 101 before any course above 135 in the curriculum. All students should take 101 and 135, 138 or 139 before any 200-level CAMS course. All students should take CAMS 230/ARTS 260, CAMS 235/ARTS 265, or CAMS 238/ARTS 208 before any 300-level CAMS courses.

A recommended sequence of required courses would be:
Year I: 101; 115, 135, 138 or 139
Year II: 201; 211; 235, 230, 234 or 238
Year III: 241; 321; 341; 335, 338 or 350
Year IV: One of the following three capstone options: the capstone seminar (355) or one of the special two-unit course sequences (351–352), (353–354), or an honor's thesis, (360, 370), 350; or additional 300-level courses.

The remaining units can be electives chosen in consultation with the Director.

For students who entered the College prior to the fall of 2009: The major in Cinema and Media studies consists of a minimum of nine units. Starting in the fall of 2009, the required courses for the major: CAMS 175, 231 and/or 233 will no longer be offered. Students who have not taken these courses can substitute 201, 221 and 222 or 227 to fulfill the requirements of CAMS [175], [231] or [233]. Students who have taken CAMS [175] may also take CAMS 101, but only one of these may be counted toward the major. Students who have taken CAMS [231] may also take CAMS 221, but only one of these may be counted toward the major. The unit required in one of the creative disciplines associated with moving image media can be met by a course in video production (CAMS 135/ARTS 165), photography (CAMS 138/ARTS 108), or screenwriting (CAMS 234/ENG 204). Other courses may fulfill this requirement by permission of the program director. Two units must be at the 300-level, a requirement that neither a 350 (independent study) nor a 360/370 can fulfill. Students primarily interested in the computing aspects of arts and multimedia should consider the interdepartmental Media Arts and Science program.
Requirements for the Minor

For students who enter the College in the fall of 2009 or later: The CAMS minor will be made up of six courses in the following areas:

- CAMS 101 Introduction to Cinema and Media Studies
- One introductory production course
- Four additional courses at the 200-level and above, with at least one at the 300-level.

For students who entered the College prior to the fall of 2009: The CAMS minor consists of a minimum of five units. Starting in the fall of 2009, the required courses for the minor CAMS 175, 231 and/or 233 will no longer be offered. Students who have not taken these courses can substitute 101, 201, 221, 222 or 227 to fulfill the requirements of CAMS 175, 231 or 233. The unit required in one of the creative disciplines associated with moving image media can be met by a course in video production (CAMS 135/ARTS 165), photography (CAMS 138/ARTS 180), or screenwriting (CAMS 234/ENG 204). Other courses may fulfill this requirement by permission of the program director. One unit must be at the 300 level, and cannot be a 350.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level, the program may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Department of Classical Studies

Professor: Marvin, Stare (Chair-Spring), Dougherty (Chair-Fall)
Associate Professor: Gilhuly
Assistant Professor: Burns, Young Visiting Lecturer: Prince

Classical Studies explores ancient Greek and Roman culture across the Mediterranean basin, from the second millennium B.C.E. to the fall of the Roman Empire in the West. The organizing idea of the field is not a single method or a discipline, but the study of Greco-Roman antiquity (and its influence up to the present day) in all its richness and diversity, its familiarity and its strangeness. Classical Studies encompasses languages and literatures, archaeology, epigraphy, history, art history, politics, law, science, philosophy, religion, and mythology. In this respect, it is the original and most wide-ranging of inter-disciplinary fields. It can thus stand alone as a dynamic and challenging field of study or can complement almost any other major in the liberal arts program.

The Department of Classical Studies offers three closely related major programs: Greek, Latin, and Classical Civilization. Majors in Greek and Latin are based entirely on courses in the original languages while the Classical Civilization major combines work in the original languages with courses taught in English on the history, literature, society, and material culture of the ancient world. Students interested in Classical Archaeology are able to pursue that focus within the Classical Civilization major, together with course work in other departments. Courses in Greek and Latin are conducted in English and encourage close analysis of the ancient texts, with emphasis on their literary and historical values.

The department reserves the right to place a new student in the language course for which she seems best prepared regardless of the number of units she has offered for admission. The department requires its own placement test for students interested in enrolling in Latin courses other than LAT 101/102.

Classical Civilization

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

The major in Classical Civilization offers the opportunity to explore the ancient world through an integrated, cohesive program of courses worked out by the student and her advisor (a faculty member of her choice or the department chair). Individual programs are tailored to meet students’ specific interests, such as classical literature, ancient theater, ancient philosophy, political theory, ancient religion, material culture, and the classical tradition.

CLCV 102 Uncovering the Ancient World: An Introduction to the Worlds of Greece and Rome

Burns

This course will introduce students to the worlds of Greece and Rome through the lens of archaeology to learn what the physical environments of the ancient world can tell us about how the Greek and Romans lived as well as about people living in the communities transformed by the spread of Greek and Roman cultures across the Mediterranean. We will compare artistic representations and literary texts with the material excavated from cities, sanctuaries, and tombs in our attempt to reconstruct the lives of citizens, slaves, and rulers alike.

CLCV 104 Classical Mythology

Gilhuly

Achilles’ heel, the Trojan Horse, Pandora’s Box, an Oedipal complex, a Herculean task—themes and figures from classical mythology continue to play an important role in our everyday life. We will read the original tales of classical heroes and heroines together with more modern treatments in film and literature. Why do these stories continue to engage, entertain, and even shock us? What is the nature and power of myth? Readings from ancient sources in English translation.

CLCV 125/WRIT 125 Dining in Ancient Greece and Rome

Gilhuly

Plato’s Symposium provides one window into the culture of dining in antiquity, revealing how people gathered in ancient Greece to entertain and be entertained, to perform music and exchange ideas, to form political ties, and to share food and drink as well as to enjoy themselves. Written texts have provided primary source of evidence for scholars investigating the social and cultural symbols of ancient Greece and Rome. In this course, we will consider literary materials together with visual and archeological materials to understand these cultures. Writing assignments will ask students to assess and make arguments, based on the cultural records, about how these cultures expressed themselves through the distribution of food at the symposium in ancient Greece and the cena in Rome. This course satisfies the Writing 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the Classical Studies major. Includes a third session each week.

CLCV 200/300 Athens and Rome: A Tale of Two Cities

Burns

The Periclean Parthenon with its polished white and perfectly arranged marble columns is the perfect symbol of ancient Athens’ identity as a city of democracy and philosophy, while the Roman Colosseum reverberating still with the distant echoes of gladiatorial combat embodies the military greatness with which we associate classical Rome. These iconic monuments have come to define the way we think about ancient Athens and Rome, and this course will explore how a city's built environment reflects and even articulates its place in the world. Students will study these primary centers of the classical Mediterranean as they developed from humble beginnings to imperial capitals by contrast with other ancient cities studied through group research projects. This course may be taken as either 210 or, with additional assignments, 310.

Preqquisite: 210 open to all students; 310 by permission of instructor.

CLCV 205/305 Ancient Spectacle

Burns
The games of the Roman amphitheater were more than entertainment for the masses, just as the Athenian productions of tragedy and comedy commingled theater with religion and politics. This course examines the spectacle of competitive performances and rituals of power that helped shape ancient Greek and Roman society. Students will investigate ancient writings alongside art-historical and archaeologically evidence to consider how social values and identities were constructed through these shared experiences. We will also consider how the modern performances of ancient texts, the Olympic Games, and cinematic representations have emphasized the splendor, drama, and gore of antiquity. This course may be taken as either 200 or, with additional assignments, 300.

CLCV 208 Classical Literatures & Beyond: Sappho in the Western Literary Imagination

Prince
Who was Sappho? Woman, Poet, “The original lesbian.” And what is the connection among these three identities? The fragments of her poetry reveal a captivating, personal voice. Is Sappho a window onto ancient Greece, or literary deceit? This course addresses such questions as we read the fragmentary remains of Sappho’s poetry and discover what these poems, this woman, meant to later writers. We will study the phenomena of allusion, intertextuality and influence as we explore the reception of Sappho in the literary imagination of poets and artists over two millennia.

CLCV 210/310 Greek Tragedy: Plays, Politics, Performance

Dougherty
The fifth-century Athenian playwrights, Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, produced brilliant tragedies that continue to haunt us today and to define our notion of drama. At the same time, the Athenian people forged the democratic principles that form the basis for our own political institutions. The element of performance, common to both drama and democracy, provides an important key to understanding this interesting confluence of theater and politics, and this course will combine the close reading (in English) of ancient Greek tragedies with the viewing of a selection of contemporary dramatic performances such as modern Italian cinema. Black Gospel traditions, and contemporary productions of Greek drama. This course may be taken as either 210 or, with additional assignments, 310.

CLCV 211/311 Epic and Empire

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.

Alexander the Great is said to have slept with two things under his pillow: a dagger and a copy of Homer’s Iliad. Julius Caesar and Augustus traced their lineage back to Aeneas, the hero of Vergil’s Aeneid. Epic poetry and empire: coincidence or collision? This course will investigate the relationship of epic poetry and empire, focusing especially on Vergil’s Aeneid and Lucan’s Civil War within their historical contexts. How is poetry imbued with political meaning? Is epic a prop of imperial ideology or is it a site of resistance? Consideration of the post-classical adaptation of classical paradigms in works such as Milton’s Paradise Lost, Barlow’s The Columbiad, and Whitman’s Leaves of Grass. All works read in translation. This course may be taken as either 211 or, with additional assignments, 311.

Preqquisite: 211 open to all students; 311 by permission of the instructor.

CLCV 212/CLPT 212 Reading Travel: The Theme of Travel in Classical and Contemporary Fiction

Dougherty
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.

Every story is a travel story, and this class explores the theme of travel as it appears both literally and figuratively in works of fiction. How is narrative a spatial practice? What is the relationship between travel and fiction, between travel and literary genre? How does travel articulate issues of (personal and cultural) identity? How do gender and place intervene together with travel to structure relationships between home and away, men and women? We will begin with Homer’s Odyssey, which sets the stage for many of the themes and issues to be interrogated in a broad range of texts, classical and contemporary. Additional readings will include Euripides’ Helen, Heliodorus’ Ethiopian Romance, Twain’s The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Conrad’s Heart of Darkness, Kincaid’s Lucy, Robinson’s Housekeeping, and Ondaatje’s The English Patient. Students may register for either CLCV 212 or CLPT 212 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CLCV 220/CLPT 220 Introduction to Comparative Literature

Young
Topic for 2009-10: Afterlives of Antiquity. Taking up one of the major concerns of Comparative Literature as a field, this course looks at how texts move, tracing several works of Greek and Roman literature as they travel through centuries and across continents. We will begin with the troubled notion of a classic and explore questions of canonicity. Case studies will include texts Sophocles’ Antigone and the poems of Catullus and Sappho. With the help of readings in reception and translation theory, we will look at these works as they change over time, asking how they have contributed to modern discourses and practices including colonialism, post-colonialism, psychoanalysis, feminism, contemporary pop-culture, and modernist avant-gardes. Students may register for either CLCV 220 or CLPT 220 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CLCV 236/336 Greek and Roman Religion

Rogers (History)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The founders of Western civilization were not monotheists. Rather, from 1750 B.C.E. until 300 C.E., the ancient Greeks and Romans sacrificed daily to a pantheon of immortal gods and goddesses who were expected to help mortals to achieve their earthly goals. How did this system of belief develop? Why did it capture the imaginations of so many millions for over 2,000 years? What impact did the religion of the Greeks and Romans have upon the other religions of the Mediterranean, including Judaism and Christianity? Why did the religion of the Greeks and Romans ultimately disappear? This course may be taken as either 236 or, with additional assignments, 336.
Prerequisite: 236 open to all students; 236 by permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken REL 236.
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy

CLCV 240/REL 240 Romans, Jews, and Christians In the Roman Empire

Rogers (Religion), Geller (Religion)

At the birth of the Roman Empire virtually all of its inhabitants were practicing polytheists. Three centuries later, the Roman Emperor Constantine was baptized as a Christian and his successors eventually banned public sacrifices to the gods and goddesses who had been traditionally worshipped around the Mediterranean. This course will examine Roman-era Judaism, Graeco-Roman polytheism, and the growth of the Jesus movement into the dominant religion of the late antique world. Students may register for either CLCV 240 or REL 240 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Unit: 1.0

LAT 200 Intermediate Latin I: Introduction to Roman Literature and Culture
Prince, Young
After reviewing Latin grammar in as much detail as necessary, we’ll start to make the transition from Latin grammar to Latin literature and Roman culture. Selections in Latin from such authors as Catullus (poetry), the emperor Augustus (The Deeds of the Divine Augustus), and Perpetua (one of the earliest known women Latin authors). Topical concepts might include: social status and identity (What defined you? Might your status/identity change, whether for better or worse?); Rome’s relation to Greece, which Rome conquered, but which long dominated Roman culture; or the nature and function of literature in Roman life.
Prerequisite: 102 or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

LAT 201 Intermediate Latin II: Vergil and Augustus
Prince
Vergil’s Aeneid, Georgics, and Eclogues in their literary context of both Greek poetry (Homer, Apollonius of Rhodes, Euripides) and Latin poetry (Ennius, Lucretius, Catallus, Horace) and in their historical context in the reign of Augustus, the first Roman emperor. Readings in Latin from Vergil and in translation from other ancient works. Use of Internet resources on Vergil and Rome.

LAT 305 Roman Comedy
Starr
Roman comedy stands behind the Western comic tradition, all the way through Shakespeare and modern situation comedies. We’ll explore selected plays, in Latin and in translation, by Plautus and Terence in their literary and cultural contexts. Possible topics: the development of Roman comedy from Greek New Comedy, stock characters (e.g., the dumb young man in love, the obstructive father, the clever slave), the 应该字archaeology of the Roman theater, comedy as festival and reversal, performance, and Plautus’ influence on later plays and playwrights, including Ralph Roister Doister (the earliest surviving English comedy), Shakespeare’s The Comedy of Errors, Molière, Oscar Wilde’s The Importance of Being Earnest, and movies and musicals, such as A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum and The Boys from Syracuse.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

LAT 307 Catullus
Young
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Tormented lover, urbane jester, obscene abuser, political subversive, poetic revolutionary—the persona of Catullus is as varied as the poems that produce them. This course is a topical investigation of Catullus’ poetry and its Roman contexts. Topics will include: poetry and biography; allusion, aesthetics and the “New Poetry”; social performance and self-representation; Roman masculinity and femininity; obscenity and invective, sex, poetry and power. Readings will draw on a variety of theoretical orientations that inform Catullan criticism: biography, psychoanalysis, intertextuality, feminism, New Historicism.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

LAT 309 Roman Elegy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Indebted to their Greek predecessors in so many genres, the Romans nevertheless claimed the erotic elegy as their own innovation. Catullus, Gallus, Tibullus, Propertius, and Ovid developed the form which became the predecessor of the love language and literature of Europe.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

LAT 310 Roman Historical Myths
Starr
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Romans based their history in myth and made their history into myths. This course includes reading from major authors such as Livy, Vergil, Horace, Ovid, Propertius, and Tacitus, focusing on historical myths such as "Romulus and Remus," the "Rape of the Sabine Women," "Tarquinius Superbus," and "Hercules and Cacus." We will then examine how later Romans reworked those myths to serve current political purposes, and how they transformed historical events into powerful myths.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

LAT 311 Satire
Starr
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The Romans claimed satire as the only uniquely Roman literary genre. Its subjects varied widely from philosophy and morality to dinner parties, love affairs with gladiators, and the details of everyday life; its tone ranged from Horace’s smiling critiques to Juvenal’s outrage. Focusing in Latin on Horace’s and Juvenal’s Satires, we’ll also read extensively in other satirists in translation and in modern scholarship as we examine how satirical writing developed in Rome and what it reveals about the Romans.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor. Not open to students who took this course as LAT [319] in spring 2005.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

LAT 314 Pliny’s Letters
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course treats the concepts and practices that structured Romans’ lives: including personal relationships (e.g., friends, children, and parents); attitudes toward work, leisure, and recreation (e.g., literature, popular entertainment, banquets); and citizenship. Readings from selected Latin authors of the Republican and imperial period, including especially Pliny the Younger.
Prerequisite: 201 or a 300-level Latin course or Wellesley’s placement exam and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

LAT 315 Ovid
Young
Many of our favorite mythological tales come down to us from Ovid’s Metamorphoses, an iconoclastic compendium of Greco-Roman myth that defies categorization. We will read our way through key portions of this kaleidoscopic poem, paying close attention to Ovid’s luxuri- ant Latin while probing his delightful, but often discomfiting, tales from a number of angles. Domination and desire, political and personal sovereignty, order versus entropy, and the seductive powers of narrative are just some of the issues probed by this irrepressible poem. We will use our close engagement with Ovid’s text as an opportunity to examine these and other literary and philosophical questions.

WRIT 125/ARTH 100 Introduction to the History of Art Part I: Ancient and Medieval Art (CLCV)

Requirements for the Major

Greek and Latin: Students majoring in Greek must complete four units of 300-level work in the Greek language. Students majoring in Latin are normally required to complete four units of 300-level work in the Latin language. Study of Vergil, either in 201 or at the 300 level, is strongly recommended. Eight units are required for each major.

Students majoring in Greek or Latin are advised to elect some work in the other language. They are also strongly encouraged to take classes in Classical Civilization, including Greek and Roman history courses offered in the History Department. Students interested in pursuing graduate work in Classics should plan to take coursework in both Greek and Latin at the 300 level and to begin the study of German, French, or Italian.

Classical Civilization: A student who wishes to major in Classical Civilization should plan with her major advisor an appropriate sequence of courses, which should include one unit each in at least two of the following three areas: literature; history, society, religion and philosophy; and art and archaeology. The major program requires nine units. Those nine units ordinarily include either CLCV 102 or CLCV 104; two units at the 300 level, one of which must be in Classical Civilization or Greek or Latin; and four units (or two 300-level units, whichever comes first) in either Greek or Latin. Programs proposed for the major must be approved by the student’s major advisor and the department chair. Courses in ancient history, ancient art, ancient philosophy, and classical civilization are recommended as valuable related work.

Honors

The Department of Classical Studies offers honors programs in Greek, Latin, Classical Civilization. The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Teacher Certification

Students interested in obtaining certification to teach Latin and classical humanities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult the department chair and the chair of the Department of Education.

Advanced Placement Policies and Language Requirement

A student entering Wellesley must have an Advanced Placement score of 5 to satisfy the foreign language requirement. All students who wish to elect a 200-level or higher Latin course must take Wellesley’s Latin placement examination. AP courses will not be counted toward any major offered by the Classical Studies department.

Study Abroad

Qualified students are encouraged to spend a semester, usually in the junior year, on study abroad. Limited departmental funds are available for foreign study. Excellent programs are available in Rome and Athens.
Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: Lucas (Fall); Levitt (Spring)
Assistant Professor: Carpenter

Advisory Committee: Lucas (Psychology), Levitt (Linguistics and French), McIntyre (Philosophy), Hildreth (Computer Science)

A major in cognitive and linguistic sciences is the interdisciplinary study of language and mind.

Goals for the Major

The major is designed with two goals in mind:

• Provide students with a broad intellectual grounding in an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the mind. This goal is met by a group of required core courses which introduce students to techniques for studying language and cognition as well as background in the philosophical underpinnings of cognitive and linguistic sciences.

• Supply substantive training in one of the component disciplines (psychology, linguistics, computer science, or philosophy) through coursework within a concentration area chosen by the student. The concentration will enable the student to strengthen and deepen her understanding of the mind within a single domain.

Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CLSC 300/PSYC 300 Seminar. Topics in Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences
Lucas (Psychology)
Topic for 2009-10: Cooperation and Competition. According to traditional models of rationality, rational agents should act in ways that will maximize their self-interest. And the study of evolution teaches us that individuals are in competition for survival. Nonetheless, we have all experienced acts of apparent selflessness and societies could not function without cooperation among their members. How, then, can cooperative and selfless behaviors be explained? In this course, an interdisciplinary approach to the problem will be taken. Evidence and theories from psychological, economic, and neurobiological literatures will be examined. Cross-cultural, developmental, and cross-species differences will be explored as will the evolutionary origins of cooperation and competition and the role of cooperation in language. Students may register for either CLSC 300 or PSYC 300 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken one of PSYC 214-219, LING 114, FHIL 215, CS 111 or permission of the instructor.

LING 114 Introduction to Linguistics
Carpenter

Designed to familiarize students with some of the essential concepts of linguistic analysis. Suitable problem sets in English and in other languages will provide opportunities to study the basic systems of language organization—phonology, morphology, syntax, and semantics. Additional topics include introductions to language organization in the brain, child language acquisition, language change, and writing systems.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

LING 238 Sociolinguistics
Levitt

The application of linguistics to the analysis of sociocultural variation in language. We will examine the way information about age, gender, social class, region, and ethnicity is conveyed by variations in the structural and semantic organization of language. We will also examine language attitude and language planning in multilingual societies.
Prerequisite: LING 114, PSYC 216, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

LING 240 The Sounds of Language
Carpenter

What are all the possible linguistically-relevant sounds of the human vocal tract? How does each language organize a subset of those sounds into a coherent system? Examination of the sounds of language from the perspective of phonetics and of phonology. Each student will choose a foreign language for intensive study of its phonetic, phonologic, and prosodic characteristics. Includes extensive use of speech analysis and phonetics software.
Prerequisite: LING 114, PSYC 216, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

LING 244 Language: Form and Meaning
Thain (East Asian Languages and Literatures)

This course will consider some basic questions about language: What do we actually know when we know a language? How is the structure of language best described? Are there properties which all languages share, and what do those properties tell us about language itself? We will look at a number of specific problems in morphology, syntax, and semantics, and the strengths and weaknesses of a number of different linguistic theories will be considered. While many of the problems considered in this class will involve English, we will also be looking at a number of other languages, both European and non-European.
Prerequisite: LING 114
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

LING 312 Bilingualism: An Exploration of Language, Mind, and Culture
Levitt

Exploration of the relationship of language to mind and culture through the study of bilingualism. The bilingual individual will be the focus for questions concerning language and mind: The detection of "foreign" accent, the relationship of words to concepts, the organization of the mental lexicon, language specialization of the brain, and the effects of early bilingualism on cognitive functioning. The bilingual nation will be the focus for questions dealing with language and culture: societal conventions governing use of one language over another, effects of extended bilingualism on language development and change, and political and educational impact of a government's establishing official bilingualism.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken a related 200-level course in linguistics, psychology, anthropology, philosophy, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

LING 319 The Spoken and Written Word: Effects on Cognition and Culture

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. For thousands of years, humans communicated via the ephemeral spoken word, and then writing was invented. How has the advent of writing affected us, both as individuals and members of cultural groups? To answer this question, we will explore the cognitive, linguistic, and cultural implications of spoken and written forms of communication. We start with an overview of the field of orality and literacy studies, followed by an examination of theories of the origin of human language and the history of the development of writing. We then move to an analysis of how the brain processes the spoken and written word and how these modes of communication affect memory and reasoning. From a cultural perspective, we examine the ways in which certain ancient and current societies differ as a function of their use of oral versus written forms of communication.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken a related 200-level course in linguistics, psychology, anthropology, philosophy, or permission of the instructor. Not open to students who took this course as a topic of CLSC 300 in spring 2006-07.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis or Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: N.O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

LING 350 Research or Individual Study

Comparative Literature

A STRUCTURED INDIVIDUAL MAJOR

Director: Holden (German)
Advisory Board: TBA (ex officio: Chair of Language Chairs), Dougherty (Classical Studies), Peterson (French), Respaut (French), Rosenwald (English), Weiner (Russian), Zimmerman (East Asian Languages and Literatures)

Using literary texts as its base of inquiry, "Comparative Literature" promotes the study of intercultural relations that cross national boundaries, multicultural relations within a particular society, and the interactions between literature and other forms of human activity, including the arts, the sciences, philosophy, and cultural artifacts of all kinds.

Goals for the Major

• Acquaint students with the wide range of writing across national and linguistic borders and prepare them to read texts of different cultural traditions in their own languages.
• Familiarize students with the ways in which literature can interact with various other forms of human activity and how literary texts can be read in interdisciplinary contexts.
• Teach students to write well and to develop and use the skills of close reading.

CPLT 113/ENG 113 Studies in Fiction
Sides (English)

Topic for 2009-10: Fantastic Fictions. When fiction blurs or crosses the line between our "real" world and "other worlds," the reader (as well as the narrator or main character) has entered the realm of "the fantastic," a genre that (broadly interpreted) contains "the uncanny," "the supernatural or ghost story," and "science fiction." We will read "fantastic" novels and short fiction by nineteenth-century, twentieth-century, and twenty-first century masters from Europe, Japan, North and South America. Taught primarily in lecture, this course will not be writing-intensive. Students may register for either ENG 113 or CPLT 113 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CPLT 212/CLCV 212 Reading Travel:
The Theme of Travel in Classical and Contemporary Fiction
Dougherty (Classical Studies)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Every story is a travel story, and this class explores the theme of travel as it appears both literally and figuratively in works of fiction. How is narrative a spatial practice? What is the relationship between travel and fiction, between travel and literary genre? How does travel articulate issues of (personal and cultural) identity? How do gender and family operate together with travel to structure relationships between home and away, men and women? We will begin with Homer's Odyssey, which sets the stage for many of the themes and issues to be interrogated in a broad range of texts, classical and contemporary. Additional readings will include Euripides' Helen, Heliodorus' Ethiopian Romance, Twain's The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, Conrad's Heart of Darkness, Kincaid's Lucy, Robinson's
CPLT 220/CLCV 220 Introduction to Comparative Literature

Topic for 2009-10: Afterlives of Antiquity. Taking up one of the major concerns of Comparative Literature as a field, this course looks at how texts move, tracing several works of Greek and Roman literature as they travel through centuries and across continents. We will begin with the troubled notion of a classic and explore questions of canonicity. Case studies will include texts Sophocles’ Antigone and the poems of Catullus and Sappho. With the help of readings in reception and translation theory, we will look at these works as they change over time, asking how they have contributed to modern discourses and practices including colonialism, post-colonialism, psychoanalysis, feminism, contemporary pop-culture, and modernist avant-gardes. Students may register for either CPLT 220 or CLCV 220 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 228 Narratives of the Self

Nolden (German)

Focusing on memoirs which represent the extremes of the human condition, the course will address generic problems and narrative patterns of autobiographical writing and discuss the tension between fact and fiction, the (un-)reliability of memory, the problems of representing history, and the complicated relationship between text and reader. Texts by Augustine, J.-J. Rousseau, W. Benjamin, G. Perci, P. Levi, C. Yung, and others.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 284 Magical Realism

Weiner (Russian)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines fictions whose basic reality would be familiar if not for the introduction of a magical element that undermines commonplace notions about what constitutes reality in the first place. The magical element can be a demon, talisman, physical transformation, miraculous transition in space or time, appearance of a second plane of existence, revelation of the unreality of the primary plane of existence, etc. Students will read Kafka’s Metamorphosis, Queneau’s The Blue Flowers, Bulgakov’s The Master and Margarita, Marquez’s One Hundred Years of Solitude, Calvino’s If on a Winter Night a Traveler, Pynchon’s The Crying of Lot 49, Murakami’s Hard-Boiled Wonderland and the End of the World and Sokolov’s School for Foobs, and short stories by Borges, Cortazar, and Nabokov.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 330/MES 330 Seminar. Comparative Literature

Aadnani (Middle Eastern Studies), Nolden (German)

Topic for 2009-10: Cairo, Paris, Weimar: Encounters between Middle Eastern and European Literatures. This seminar explores patterns of influence and modes of (mis)readings that have shaped the encounter between the literatures of the Middle East and Western Europe. From the crusades to Napoleon’s campaign in Egypt and colonialism, the interaction between “East” and “West” has left indelible impressions on literature and has heightened the challenges of representation. Topics include: the construction of the East in Enlightenment and Romantic literature and thought; the trajectory of Orientalism; the postcolonial critique of Eurocentrism; contemporary rewritings of the legacy of the nineteenth century in texts and films. Readings include Montesquieu, Goethe, Omar al-Khayyam’s quatrains, Richard Burton’s translations of the Thousand and One Nights, Sally Potter, Jacques Dillou, Naguib Mahfouz, Tayeb Salih, Helene Cixous, Hanan al-Shaykh, Katie Rubinstein. Students may register for either CPLT 330 or MES 330 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: One 200-level course in literature or by permission of the instructor
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 334 Literature and Medicine

Respaq (French)

Drawing on texts from different countries, this course investigates literature’s obsession with medicine. Literary representations of doctors and patients, disability, insanity, AIDS, birth, death and grief, the search for healing and the redemptive power of art. Attention will be given to the links between the treatment of medical issues in fiction, in autobiography and in visual representations (film, and photography). This course should be of interest to everyone drawn to health-related fields as well as students in social sciences and the humanities.

Prerequisite: One 200-level course in literature or by permission of the instructor. Not open to first-year students.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: By permission of the Director. See Academic Distinctions
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CPLT 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: By permission of the Director. See Academic Distinctions

Requirements for the Major

The comparative literature major is a structured individual major for students seeking to study literature across departmental, national, and linguistic boundaries. Students in comparative literature devise their own programs in careful consultation with two advisors, one in each of two departments, and with the director of the program.

Students who major in comparative literature should, in designing their major, be aware of the many and diverse courses that pertain to the study of literature.

These include, but are not limited to:
1) courses in literary history;
2) courses in particular literary genres;
3) courses in the theory of literature;
4) courses in linguistics;
5) courses on the theory and practice of translation.

Many courses combine or fall between these categories. Students should also consult the Courses in Literature or Film (from Language Departments) taught in English section at the back of the catalog.

1. Majors in comparative literature shall complete a minimum of 10 units. All courses must count towards the major in the departments in which they are offered.
2. Introduction to Comparative Literature (CPLT 220). This course is strongly recommended and should be taken early on.
3. Comparative Literature Seminar. All majors shall take CPLT 330, the comparative literature seminar.
4. Advanced literature courses. In addition to CPLT 330, majors shall take at least two more literature courses at the 300 level. These two advanced literature courses shall be in at least two languages, of which English may be one, and in at least two departments, and majors shall meet departmental prerequisites for these courses.
5. Premodern literature. Majors shall take at least one course outside of the modern period in at least one of the literatures they are studying; what “the modern period” means for a particular literature will depend on the literature, and will be determined by the major’s advisors.
6. Theory of literature. Majors shall take at least one course offering a theoretical perspective helpful to their particular course of study. Sometimes this will be CPLT 220 or ENG 382 (Criticism), but other courses, too, can meet this requirement.
7. Independent research. Majors shall do a substantial piece of independent work in comparative literature. They may supplement CPLT 330 or a course in a pertinent department with extra independent work or enroll in CPLT 350, CPLT 360 and/or CPLT 370. They may also enroll in a 350 in a pertinent department chosen by the student in consultation with her advisors.

In general, programs will be worked out in relation to the major’s particular languages and interests. Examples of possible interests would include poetry, the novel, women’s writing, and the relations between politics and literature.
Department of Computer Science

Professor: Hildreth, Shall (Chair)
Associate Professor: Metaxas, Tjaden, Turbak
Assistant Professor: Shaer
Hess Fellow: Gold
Lecturer: Anderson
Instructor in Computer Science Laboratory: Herbst, Kakavouli, Lee

Computer Science encompasses the systematic study of computing systems and computation. It is continually evolving and expanding, making it an exciting field of study. All of the traditional areas in computer science as well as newer directions are represented in our faculty's expertise (including algorithms, programming languages, data structures, artificial intelligence, human-computer interaction, databases, computer architecture, networks, security, vision, graphics, parallel computing, robotics, bioinformatics, Web information retrieval, multimedia), allowing us to offer a large variety of courses and substantial research opportunities for students.

The computer science department offers four introductory computer science courses: CS 110, 111, 112, and 114. For advice in making a choice consult "Choosing an Introductory CS Course" online at http://cs.wellesley.edu/~cs/Curriculum/intro.html.

Goals for the Major
We expect every computer science major upon graduation to possess the following knowledge and competencies:
• A firm foundation in fundamental areas of computer science including an understanding of the connections between computer science and other disciplines;
• A solid preparation for either graduate work or direct entry into the computing profession;
• A commitment to problem-solving, principles, theory, and analysis, in keeping with the tenets of a liberal arts setting;
• Strong written and oral communication skills, including the ability to work on a team-based project and to solve problems in a team-based setting;
• The ability to read a paper from a general computer science journal and to be able to understand parts of more technical papers in specialized journals and conferences.

CS 110 Computer Science and the Internet
Anderson, Gold, Turbak
This course explains the basics of how the Internet works and how to build a Web site. Topics include client-server architecture, structuring Web pages with HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, the representation of colors, images, and sound on the computer, encryption, cookies, and CGI forms. We also discuss accessibility, copyright, intellectual property, and critical thinking in the context of the Internet. The required project models most phases of the standard software lifecycle. Students are introduced to programming by building an interactive Web site using JavaScript. Students are required to attend an additional 70-minute discussion section each week. Students considering additional

CS 111 Computer Programming and Problem Solving
Shaer, Tjaden
An introduction to problem solving through computer programming. Using the Java programming language, students learn how to read, modify, design, debug, and test algorithms that solve problems. Programming concepts include control structures, data structures, abstraction, recursion, modularity, and object-oriented design. Students explore these concepts in the context of interactive programs involving graphics and user interfaces. Students are required to attend an additional two-hour laboratory section each week. Required for students who wish to major or minor in computer science or elect more advanced courses in the field. Students can receive Mathematical Modeling distribution credit for only one of 111 and 112.

Prerequisite: None. No prior background with computers is expected.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

CS 112 Computation for the Sciences
Hildreth
An introduction to computer programming that provides the tools necessary for students to use computers effectively in scientific work, including physical sciences, biological sciences, medicine, mathematics, psychology and economics. Students learn to write software to solve problems, visualize and analyze data, perform computer simulations, and implement and test computational models that arise in a wide range of scientific disciplines. The course introduces MATLAB, an extensive and widely used technical computing environment with advanced graphics, visualization, and analysis tools, and a rich high-level programming language. Students are required to attend an additional two-hour laboratory section each week. Students can receive Mathematical Modeling distribution credit for only one of 111 and 112.

Prerequisite: None. No prior background with computers is expected.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

CS 114 The Socio-Technological Web
Metaxas
As more and more people use the technologies and services made available from computer science, online environments like Facebook, Second Life, MySpace, Wikipedia, blogs, and open source development communities, have been flourishing. It is becoming clear that problems existing in our real world transfer and become amplified in the virtual world created by our interconnectivity. This course will start by studying the structure of the traditional Web and its recent successor, the Social Web, and will focus on issues of virtual identity, personal and group privacy, trust evaluation and propagation, online security, critical thinking, online propaganda,

75 Computer Science
CS 230 Data Structures
Metaxas, Tjaden
An introduction to techniques and building blocks for organizing large programs. Topics include: modules, abstract data types, recursion, algorithmic efficiency, and the use and implementation of standard data structures and algorithms, such as lists, trees, graphs, stacks, queues, priority queues, tables, sorting, and searching. Students become familiar with these concepts through weekly programming assignments using the Java programming language. Students are required to attend an additional two-hour laboratory section each week.
Prerequisite: 111 or permission of the instructor. Students who received a grade of C- or lower in 111 must contact the instructor before enrolling.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 231 Fundamental Algorithms
Shull
An introduction to the design and analysis of fundamental algorithms. General techniques covered: divide-and-conquer algorithms, dynamic programming, greediness, probabilistic algorithms. Topics include: sorting, searching, graph algorithms, compression, cryptography, computational geometry, and NP-completeness.
Prerequisite: 230 and either MATH 225 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 232 Artificial Intelligence
Hildreth
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11.
An introduction to artificial intelligence (AI), the design of computer systems that possess and acquire knowledge and can reason with that knowledge. Topics include knowledge representation, problem solving and search, planning, vision, language comprehension and production, learning, common sense reasoning, and expert systems. To attain a realistic and concrete understanding of these problems, CommonLisp, an AI programming language, will be taught and used to implement the algorithms of the course. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 230 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CS 235 Languages and Automata
Turbak
An introduction to the languages and automata. Topics include: languages, regular expressions, finite automata, grammars, pushdown automata, and Turing machines. The first half of the semester covers the Chomsky hierarchy of languages and their associated computational models. The second half of the semester focuses on decidability issues and unsolvable problems and the course closes with a brief introduction to complexity theory. The course includes a programming component investigating the application of automata theory to the scanning and parsing of programming languages.
Prerequisite: 230 and either MATH 225 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CS 240 Introduction to Machine Organization with Laboratory
Shull
This course is intended to demystify the computer (open up the "black box") and teach how information at the highest level is processed and ultimately executed by the underlying circuitry. To this end, the course provides an introduction to machine organization and assembly language programming. Specific topics include the fundamentals of computer organization (introduction to numeric representation, Boolean logic, digital logic and all associated technology), a basic data path implementation, assembly language programming, how to assess and understand the performance of a computer, and brief overviews of assemblers, compilers and operating systems.
Students are required to attend one three-hour laboratory weekly.
Prerequisite: 111
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling. This course satisfies the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

CS 242 Computer Networks
Turbak
A systems-oriented approach to data networks, including a theoretical discussion of common networking problems and an examination of modern networks and protocols. Topics include point-to-point links, packet switching, internet protocols, end-to-end protocols, congestion control, and security. Projects may include client-server applications and network measurement tools. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 230 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CS 249 Topics in Computer Science
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: 110 or 111.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CS 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 230 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 230 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

CS 251 Theory of Programming Languages
Shull
An introduction to the dimensions of modern programming languages. Covers major programming paradigms: function-oriented, imperative, object-oriented, and logic-oriented. Dimensions include syntax, naming, state, data, control, concurrency, nondeterminism, and types. These dimensions are explored via mini-language interpreters written in OCaml, Scheme, and Haskell that students experiment with and extend.
Prerequisite: 230 and either 235 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 255 Human-Computer Interaction
Slater
Human-Computer Interaction is one of the areas that have transformed the way we use computers in the last 30 years. Topics include meth- odology for designing and testing user interfaces, interaction styles (command line, menus, graph- ical user interfaces, virtual reality, tangible user interfaces), interaction techniques (including use of voice, gesture, eye movements), design guidelines, and user interface software tools. Students will design a user interface, program a prototype, and test the result for usability.
Prerequisite: 110 or 111
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0
CS 303/BISC 303 Bioinformatics
Tjaden
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A multidisciplinary course exploring the origins, present and future applications, and challenges of the intersection of biological and computer sciences. The field of bioinformatics, generated in response to the era of genomics, encompasses all aspects of biological data acquisition, storage, processing, analysis and interpretation with a view to generating in silico models of cellular function. Students may register for either CS 303 or BISC 303 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisites: 231, BISC 219 or BSC 220. Not open to students who have taken CS 313.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CS 304 Databases with Web Interfaces
Anderson
A study of the three-layer architecture commonly used for Web-based applications such as e-commerce. We will also learn to model and design databases using entity-relationship diagrams, and the Standard Query Language (SQL) for managing databases. We will learn PHP, CGI/Perl, and Java Servlets, which are three important technologies for Web-based architectures. We will also discuss performance, reliability and security issues. Finally, we will create dynamic Web sites driven by database entries.
Prerequisite: 230
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 307 Computer Graphics
Anderson
A survey of topics in computer graphics with an emphasis on fundamental techniques. Topics include: graphics hardware, fundamentals of three-dimensional graphics including modeling, projection, coordinate transformation, synthetic camera specification, color, lighting, shading, hidden surface removal, animation, and texture-mapping. We also cover the mathematical representation and programming specification of lines, planes, curves, and surfaces.
Prerequisite: 230
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CS 310 Theoretical Foundations of Cryptography
Skull
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. When is a cryptographic system secure and how will we know? This course introduces the computational models and theory computer scientists use to address these issues. Topics include one-way functions, trapdoor functions, probabilistic complexity classes, pseudorandom generators, interactive proof systems, zero-knowledge proofs, and the application of these theories to modern cryptography.
Prerequisite: 231 or 235 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

CS 313 Computational Biology
Tjaden
Many elegant computational problems arise naturally in the modern study of molecular biology. This course is an introduction to the design, implementation, and analysis of algorithms with applications in genomics. Topics include bioinformatic algorithms for dynamic programming, tree-building, clustering, hidden Markov models, expectation maximization, Gibbs sampling, and stochastic context-free grammars. Topics will be studied in the context of analyzing DNA sequences and other sources of biological data. Applications include sequence alignment, gene-finding, structure prediction, motif and pattern searches, and phylogenetic inference. Course projects will involve significant computer programming in Java. No biology background is expected. Not open to students who have taken 303. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 230
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CS 315 Web Search and Mining
Metaxas
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. In the last decade we have experienced an explosive growth of information through the web. Locating information seems to be very easy, while determining the quality of information can be tricky. This course is for students who want to know why search engines can answer your queries fast and (most of the time) accurately, why other times seem to be missing the point and provide untrustworthy information, and how one can design a Web site that acquires high visibility on the Web. We will cover traditional information retrieval methods and web search algorithms such as crawlers and spiders, with a focus on probabilistic and graph-theoretic methods that can detect Web spam. We will also cover some basic understanding of text mining and data clustering. Time permitting, we will examine other relevant issues of the information explosion era, such as the shape and structure of the Web, epistemology of information and properties of large random networks. Not open to students who have taken this topic as CS 349. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 230
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

CS 332 Visual Processing by Computer and Biological Vision Systems
Hildreth
An introduction to algorithms for deriving symbolic information from the three-dimensional environment from visual images. Aspects of models for computer vision systems will be related to perceptual and physiological observations on biological vision systems. Computer vision software written in MATLAB will be used to implement and test models. Topics include: edge detection, stereopsis, motion analysis, shape from shading, color, visual reasoning, object recognition. Students are required to attend on additional 70-minute discussion section each week. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 112 or 230 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

CS 342 Computer Security
Turbak
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. An introduction to computer security. Topics include ethics, privacy, authentication, access control, information flow, operating system security, cryptography, security protocols, intrusion prevention and detection, firewalls, viruses, network security, Web security, programming language security. Assignments include hands-on exercises with security exploits and tools in a Linux environment.
Prerequisite: 234 or permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken this topic as CS 349.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

CS 343 Advanced Computer Organization and Design with Laboratory
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. This course explores advanced computer organization and design. The interaction of hardware and software at a variety of levels is studied to provide a framework for how to design and build a computer. These ideas are also applied to understand how a computer system works and why it performs as it does. Examples and measurements based on commercial systems are used to create realistic design experiences. In addition, RISC architectures for desktop computer, server, and embedded computers will also be surveyed. Integral to the course is a three-hour required weekly laboratory. In the laboratory, students will be working on behavioral models of computer components using VHDL, a commercial computer design language. Most significantly, students will be required to design and build a 16-bit RISC-style microprocessor. This includes the design of an instruction interpreter, a register file, a single-cycle, and a multi-cycle CPU. The lectures complement the labs. Alternate year course.
Prerequisite: 240. Not open to students who have taken this course as a topic of CS 349.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling. This course satisfies the laboratory requirement.
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.25

CS 349 Advanced Topics in Computer Science

Topic A: Tangible User Interfaces
Shahr
Tangible user interfaces emerge as a novel human-computer interaction style that interlinks the physical and digital worlds. Extending beyond the limitations of the computer mouse, keyboard and monitor, tangible user interfaces allow users to take advantage of their natural spatial skills while supporting collaborative work. Students will be introduced to conceptual frameworks, the latest research, and a variety of techniques for designing and building these interfaces. Developing tangible interfaces requires creativity as well as an interdisciplinary perspective. Hence, students will work in teams to design, prototype and physically build tangible user interfaces.
Prerequisite: CS 249 HCI or CS 215 or CS 230, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

Topic B: Games
Gold
This course will give an overview of how to design a game, tools for analyzing game design and game strategies, and the programming tools necessary to bring your game to life on a computer. Genres discussed will include puzzle, board, card, role-playing, simulation, music, real-time strategy, first-person, adventure, interactive fiction, economic, and indie "concept" games. Topics will include probability, game theory, networking, introductory animation and artificial intelligence, sound, and readings from famous game designers.

Requirements for the Major

Students majoring in computer science must complete CS 111, 230, 231, 235, 240, 251, two 300-level courses other than 350, 360 or 370, and at least one additional computer science course at the 200 or 300 level. Students who do not take CS 111 must replace this requirement with an additional one-unit computer science course.

Computer science courses at other institutions used to meet the nine-course requirement must be approved in advance by the department chair on an individual basis. In addition, all majors in computer science are expected to complete (1) MATH 225 (Combinatorics and Graph Theory) and (2) at least one additional course in mathematics at the 200 or 300 level. Particularly relevant mathematics courses are MATH 206 (Linear Algebra), MATH 220 (Probability and Elementary Statistics), MATH 223 (Number Theory), MATH 305 (Abstract Algebra), MATH 309 (Foundations of Mathematics), and MATH 349 (when the topic is Graph Theory). Students should consult a computer science faculty member for advice in choosing mathematics courses best suited to their interests. Students are encouraged to consult the current computer science student handbook (linked from the department's Web site http://cs.wellesley.edu) for suggestions of possible course schedules for completing the major. Students considering a junior year abroad should consult a faculty member in the department as soon as possible in their sophomore year to plan a schedule of courses to complete the major.

All computer science majors are required to participate in computer science student seminars held throughout the academic year. In these seminars, students have the opportunity to explore topics of interest through reading and discussion, field trips, invited speakers, independent research projects, or software development projects.

Requirements for the Minor

The computer science five-course minimum minor is recommended for students whose primary interests lie elsewhere, but who wish to obtain a fundamental understanding of computer science. The minor consists of CS 111, 230, one of 231, 235, or 240, at least one computer science course above 100-level, and at least one 300-level computer science course other than 350. Students who do not take CS 111 must replace this requirement with one additional one-unit computer science course except 110.

Honors

Students can earn honors in computer science by successfully completing an honors-quality senior thesis. A detailed description of the senior thesis project in computer science can be found in the document Independent Studies in Computer Science (http://cs.wellesley.edu/~cs/Research/thesis.html). Majors who are interested in undertaking a senior thesis project are urged to discuss their plans with either their advisor or the department chair as early as possible in their junior year.

Graduate Study

Students who plan to pursue graduate work in computer science are strongly encouraged to develop their background in mathematics, particularly in the areas of linear algebra, probability and statistics, and graph theory. Such students should elect one or more of 310, 349 or MATH 305. In addition, students who are planning either graduate work or advanced technical research or development work are strongly encouraged to (1) obtain laboratory experience by electing one or more of 303, 307, 332, 342, 343, or appropriate courses at MIT and (2) pursue at least one independent study or research project before graduating in the form of a Wellesley course (250/350/360), an MIT UROP, or a summer internship. Consult http://cs.wellesley.edu/~cs/Research for more details.

Advanced Placement Policy

Students may receive a maximum of one unit of college credit for a score of 5 on the Computer Science A or AB Advanced Placement exam. This unit does not count towards the computer science major or minor. Students receiving AP credit for computer science should consult with the department regarding enrollment in 230 or 240. Computer science majors and minors should consult with a computer science faculty advisor before electing to take a computer science course as credit/noncredit.

Interdepartmental Majors

Students interested in an interdepartmental major (or minor, if applicable) in cognitive and linguistic sciences, media arts and sciences, or neuroscience are referred to these listings in the catalog.

Students interested in engineering should consult the course listings in Extradepartmental.

Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures

Professor: Lam*, Widmer (Chm)
Associate Professor: Zimmerman
Assistant Professor: Allen, Lee*, Song, Thom,
Visiting Lecturer: Hatano-Cohen, Hu
Senior Lecturer: Maeno, Torii-Williams
Lecturer in Chinese Language: Chen, Tang, Zhao, Lecturer in Japanese Language: Ozawa

The Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures offers two distinct majors: Chinese language and literature and Japanese language and literature. The goal of each major is to provide students with a solid foundation in the disciplines of language and literature through intensive language training and broad exposure to the literary and cultural traditions of the culture under study.

The department also offers Korean language and culture courses.

The department reserves the right to place a new student in the language course for which she seems best prepared regardless of the number of units she has offered for admission.

Goals for the Major

- In all language classes the goal is for students to build toward conversing on sophisticated subjects; reading modern fiction, newspapers, journals, and classical language texts; and writing short essays.
- In literature and culture courses the goal is for students to develop basic familiarity with their country’s history and its foundation texts and to deepen their understanding of one or more periods or genres. Students should demonstrate the ability to research, analyze and critique East Asian literary and cultural texts both in the original and in English translation and should be able to translate original texts into English.

Goals for all students taking East Asian Languages and Literature courses

- The Chinese, Japanese and Korean Programs share the goal of increasing students’ grasp of the languages and cultures of East Asia.
- The goal for all students is to develop increased fluency in reading, writing, speaking and listening at the lower levels, and in Chinese and Japanese, to build up analytical skills in the literature and culture classes.
- All three programs also offer courses taught in English on topics in East Asian cultures and opportunities for study abroad and other forms of cultural enrichment on campus.

EALL 225/325 Traditional Romances of East Asia (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The course begins with a brief introduction to an eleventh-century novel from Japan, Murasaki Shikibu’s The Tale of Genji. This work shows considerable awareness of Chinese culture, but the design is entirely original and the aesthetics typically Japanese. There is no influence at all between Genji and our next subject, Cao Xueqin’s eighteenth-century masterpiece, The Dream of the Red Chamber, also known as The Story of the Stone. However, the similarities point to shared East Asian traditions, and the contrasts can be traced to major differences in the aesthetics of China and Japan. At the end of the semester, we will take up two other pieces, one each from Korea and Vietnam. These two, as well, fit into a larger East Asian syndrome, but exhibit national characteristics at the same time. This course may be taken as either 225 or, with additional assignments, 325.

Prerequisites: Open to all students; 325 one 200-level course in either Chinese or Japanese Language and Literature required.

KOR 256 Gender and Language in Modern Korean Culture (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Postwar modernization and industrialization have brought dramatic changes in Korean society. In spite of remarkable economic growth and rapid social progress, Korean women still struggle with gender inequality. This course explores the relationship between language use and cultural views of womanhood in modern Korea, using phonetics, semantics, discourse analysis, and sociolinguistics. By examining actual language use in myths, movies, ads, and popular culture, we explore how sociolinguistic factors shape gender dichotomies, notions of individual identity, and ethnicity. Substantial evidence of linguistic data will be used to clarify the connection between language and gender as we address the challenges faced by women of East Asia, Taught in English.

Prerequisite: None

Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition

Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

KOR 309 Advanced Korean Through Contemporary Texts and Multimedia

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course aims at achieving advanced level fluency in reading and writing Korean through the study of various texts and multimedia. Course "texts" include contemporary works of Korean literature, current newspaper articles, broadcast news, and clips of television shows and films. The course will develop sophisticated interpretive and presentational skills in formal contexts while enhancing the student’s level of literary appreciation and intellectual analysis. Focus on mastery of a wide range of vocabulary and idiomatic expressions, individual writing projects, classroom discussion, and presentations on assigned topics.

Prerequisite: KOR 202 or permission by the instructor

CHIN 105/WRIT 125 Self and Society in Chinese Literature (in English)
Allen
How do individual voices establish their identities within and against the demands of the community? How does the drive to assert the individuality of the self balance the comfort and security of being part of a group? We will examine these questions through the lens of Chinese literature, from its beginnings in songs and kings' proclamations in the first millennium B.C.E., through modern writers' reaction against their literary inheritance in the early twentieth century. Our scope will be broad, from lyric poems and essays on political philosophy, to love songs and bawdy plays. The works we will read continue to be read by much of the educated populace and constitute a heritage that writers today emulate, play off of, and rebel against.

No prior knowledge of Chinese literature or language is required. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Chinese. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring

CHIN 208 Writing Modern China (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Over the course of the twentieth century, China underwent enormous changes in the sweep of modernization, which opened the door to a wealth of experimentation, especially in literature and culture. The primary focus of this course is to explore how literary forms adapted to the dominant political and cultural movements of modern China. At the same time, individual Chinese writers crafted unique visions from their experiences "on the ground." In works that date from the late Qing to the present, we will explore the varied representations of Chinese modernity, including topics such as the individual and society, revolution and tradition, the countryside and the city, gender and sexuality. No prior knowledge of Chinese literature or Chinese language is required.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Language and Literature Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CHIN 210 The Tang Dynasty (in English)
Allen
The Tang dynasty has long been considered a high point of Chinese civilization. Travelers from lands as distant as India and Rome brought everything from exotic objects to new dances and new religious ideas, making foreign influence stronger than in any period until the modern era. The dynasty was also a period of transition in which modes of literature, thought, and government that would dominate for the next thousand years first emerged. In this class, we will examine the literary and intellectual culture of Tang dynasty China, exploring such topics as the capital city as an urban space and a nexus of Chinese and foreign cultures; intellectual trends inspired by Buddhism and a reevaluation of Confucian ideas; and representations of the dynasty in later periods.

Prerequisite: None

CHIN 211/311 The Dream of the Red Chamber in Chinese Literature and Culture (in English)
Widner
Variously known in English as The Dream of the Red Chamber, A Dream of Red Mansions, and The Story of the Stone, Honglou meng is the most widely discussed Chinese novel of all time. Written in the mid-eighteenth century, the novel offers telling insight into Chinese culture as it once was and as it remains today. The novel is still wildly popular due to its tragic love story, its sensitive depiction of the plight of the talented woman in late imperial culture, and its narrative intricacies. The goal of the course is to understand the novel both as a literary text and as a cultural phenomenon. Optional extra sessions will accommodate those who wish to read and discuss the novel in Chinese. This course may be taken as 211 or, with additional assignments, 311.

Prerequisite: None for 211. For 311, one previous course on Chinese history or culture.
Distribution: Language and Literature Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

CHIN 212/312 Speaking What's on My Mind: Classical Chinese Poetry and Song (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. To understand China and its culture it is imperative to understand its poetry. Poetry played complex and varied roles in Chinese society: emperors used poems to justify their rule; ordinary men and women used poems to comment on the times and to give voice to their innermost feelings. The poetry they wrote is still read and treasured as one of the highlights of Chinese civilization, and Chinese poems have influenced concepts of poetry around the world. What is the enduring appeal of these poems? How did poetry come to hold such an important place in Chinese culture? We will trace the development of the lyric voice in China, examining poems, the men and women who wrote them, and the historical contexts that produced them. This course may be taken as 212 or, with additional readings in Chinese and additional meetings, 312. 212 is not open to students who have previously taken 312.

Prerequisite: None for 212; for 312, two or more years of modern Chinese or the equivalent.
Distribution: Language and Literature Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CHIN 225 Representations of the Other in Traditional Chinese Literature (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Examining what an individual, or a culture, defines as "other" often reveals much about how that individual or culture views itself. In this course, we will explore ways in which traditional Chinese literature constructed notions of the other. Our scope will be broad: from poems on the Zhou dynasty's conquest of enemy tribes around 1000 B.C.E., to accounts of China's encounters with the West in the eighteenth century; from spirit journeys through the terrors of the underworld, to romanticized visions of rural life in the poems of aristocrats. We will approach these texts both as works of art in their own right and as windows onto the changing paradigms Chinese writers used to understand themselves and their world.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CHIN 230/330 Writing Women in Traditional China (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Who were the major women writers in traditional China? How did they represent themselves and how were they represented in literary, historical, religious, and philosophical texts? This course will serve as an introduction to women's writings over the last two thousand years in China. We will examine the construction of gender, voice, and identity through close readings of poetry, fiction, essays, letters and biographical texts. We will also discuss the historical and social contexts so that we may better understand the conditions under which female authors lived and wrote. This course may be taken as either 230 or, with additional assignments, 330.

Prerequisite: 230 open to all students; for 330, one of the following: [110], [206], [207], or 208, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Historical Studies or Language and Literature Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

CHIN 231/331 Chinese and the Languages of China (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. What is "Chinese"? How are "Mandarin" and "Cantonese" related to "Chinese"? Is Taiwanese a Chinese language? Is it a Chinese dialect? How did Mandarin become the "common language" (Putonghua)? This course introduces the various language families in China, and examines the linguistic, historical, cultural and sociopolitical factors that have played into our understanding of terms such as "Chinese," "Mandarin," "language," and "dialect." Topics to be discussed include: the differences in the sound systems of Mandarin and other Chinese languages, how Mandarin became the national language, the traditional importance of a national language in China, the writing system and the simplified/traditional divide, minority languages in China. In English with some readings in Chinese. This course may be taken as either 231 or, with additional assignments, 331.

Prerequisite: 231 open to students who have taken one 200-level course in Chinese language (courses in English do not count as the equivalent; first-year students may enroll only with permission of the instructor). For 331, one or more of the following: 302, 306, 307, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature Semester: N/O
CHIN 232/332 Writing Women in Modern China (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the major works by modern Chinese female writers from the late Qing to the beginning of the twenty-first century, with a view toward appreciating their contributions to the Chinese modernization. Who were China's "new women"? How did they strive to change Chinese culture and society as well as themselves? How did they construct their identity and voice in fiction, poetry, and other literary forms? And how did their writings negotiate tradition and modernity? Such important issues as gender, identity, diversity, difference and modernity, together with their historical and cultural contexts, will be extensively discussed through close analyses of the chosen texts. This course may be taken as either 232 or, with additional assignments, 332.

Prerequisite: 232 open to all students; for 332, one course at the 200 or 300-level in East Asian languages and literatures, East Asian arts, history, philosophy, or religion. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 243/CAMS 203 Chinese Cinema (in English)

Song
This course explores the cinematic conventions and experiments employed by Chinese filmmakers over the past hundred years. Unique Chinese film genres such as left-wing melodrama, martial arts films and model plays adaptations, as well as the three "new waves" in China's recent avant-garde cinema, will be examined and discussed. Individual filmic visions and techniques experimented with by important directors such as Fei Mu, Hou Hsiao-hsien, Zhang Yimou and Jia Zhangke will be closely analyzed. Class discussions will aim to help students understand the history, politics, and aesthetics of Chinese cinema. Theoretical aspects of film studies will also be incorporated into class readings and discussions. No prior knowledge of China or film studies is required. Students may register for either CHIN 243 or CAMS 203 and credit will be granted accordingly.

CHIN 244 Classical Chinese Theatre (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course covers three basic categories of classical theater in China. It begins with the short form known as zaju of the Yuan Dynasty (thirteenth to the fourteenth centuries), when dramatic works began to be written by identifiable authors. Next come the long and elaborate chuanqi or kunju of the Ming and Qing, including the recently resurrected Peony Pavilion by Tang Xianzu. The last category is Peking opera, a form that originated during the second half of the Qing dynasty, around 1790, and is regularly performed today. Most of our dramas were written by men, but a few by women will also be considered. The interrelation between forms will be discussed, as will their role in film. The impact of Chinese drama on such Westerners as Stanislavsky and Brecht will be introduced as the course concludes.

Prerequisite: None. Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video or Language and Literature. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open by permission of the instructor. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 250H Research or Individual Study

CHIN 301 Advanced Chinese I

This course is designed to further expand students' comprehension, speaking, reading, and writing skills. Reading materials will be selected from newspapers, short stories, essays, and films. Three 70-minute classes conducted in Chinese.

Prerequisite: 201-302 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 302 Advanced Chinese II

Song
Advanced language skills are further developed through reading, writing and discussion. Reading materials will be selected from a variety of authentic Chinese texts. Audio and video tapes will be used as study aids. Three 70-minute classes conducted in Chinese.

Prerequisite: 301 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 306 Advanced Reading in Twentieth-Century Literature and Culture

This course is designed to further expand and refine students' language skills through intensive reading of authentic Chinese materials, such as novels, short stories, essays, plays and through viewing of contemporary Chinese films. Particular attention will be paid to increasing levels of literary appreciation and to enriching understanding of the socio-cultural contexts from which our readings have emerged.

Prerequisite: 203-304 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 307 Advanced Readings in Contemporary Issues

Tham
A variety of authentic materials including films and literary works, will be selected to cover the period from 1949 to the beginning of the twenty-first century.

Prerequisite: 306 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: Spring. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 310 Introduction to Classical Chinese Allen

Classical Chinese was the primary written language used in China from antiquity through the early twentieth century. This course introduces the basic grammar and vocabulary of Classical Chinese through readings selected from canonical sources in literature, philosophy, and history. We will pay special attention to grammatical differences between classical and modern Chinese.

Students with an interest in art history, history, philosophy, and/or literature are encouraged to take this course to improve their reading skills.

Prerequisite: 301 and 302 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 326 The City in Modern Chinese Literature and Film (in English)

Song
This seminar will focus on one of the most important topics of modern Chinese culture: the urban imagination. Analyzing how metropolis and urban life are represented and imagined is central to an understanding of the differently articulated forms Chinese modernity has taken throughout the twentieth century. We will examine the literary and visual representations of the city in modern China through close analyses of the novels, short stories, films, photographs, and paintings that illuminate Chinese urbanism. Cultural manifestations of such Chinese metropolises as Beijing, Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Taipei will be extensively discussed.

Prerequisites: One course at the 200 or 300 level in East Asian languages and literatures, East Asian Arts, History, Philosophy, or Religion. Distribution: Language and Literature or Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: Fall. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 338 Reading in Modern Chinese Literature

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course guides students to explore Chinese literary modernity through authentic literary texts written by major Chinese writers of the past hundred years. It aims to give students the opportunity to deepen their understanding of modern China in both its historical and cultural practice. Instead of language training, literary and cultural analyses will be emphasized. Class discussions will be conducted in Chinese, and students are expected to offer their critical responses to readings through oral presentations and papers written in Chinese.

Prerequisites: 306, 307 or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

CHIN 339 Popular Culture in Modern China (in English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course provides a comprehensive examination of modern Chinese popular culture in mainland China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and other transnational Chinese communities in the past century. We discuss important issues in the field of popular culture across a variety of Chinese media, including film, literature, opera, theater, music, vintage photographs, and comic books. In doing so, this course will probe popular culture as it has manifested itself in the dynamic dialogue between high art and mass culture and trace its sociopolitical, cultural, and aesthetic impact on modern China.

Prerequisites: One course on China (e.g., CHIN 208, CHIN 243/CAMS 243, CHIN 244/CAMS 244, CHIN 251, or permission of the instructor. Distribution: Language and Literature or Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video. Semester: N/O. Unit: 1.0

JPN 111 Gender and Popular Culture of Japan (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Our study of Japanese popular culture focuses on gender issues, particularly on how girls are represented in Japanese comic books, magazines, fiction, television, animation, and film. We ask why the girl sparks such intense interest in Japan and how such challenges and reafirms existing gender norms. A lightening rod for social change in Japan, even for modernity itself, representations of the girl illuminate the status of women, the changing role of the family, issues of ethnic and national identity, sexual orientation, and even Japan's relation to the outside world. No previous knowledge of Japan or Japanese language required.
Prerequisite: None

JPN 251 Japanese Writers and Their Worlds (in English)
Morley (Theatre Studies)
A study of the emerging voice of the writer in Japan from the tenth through the eighteenth centuries. Texts will include the early poetic diaries of the Heian Court ladies, The Tale of Genji, the Noh plays, puppet plays and the haiku poetry of Matsuo Basho. Emphasis is on the changing world of the Japanese writer, the influence of Buddhism and Confucianism, and the role of the text in shaping Japanese aesthetic principles. Selected films shown throughout course.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

JPN 252 Supernatural Japan (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In 1776, the Japanese writer Ueda Akinari set down a famous collection of ghost stories entitled Tales of Moonlight and Rain. Beginning with this collection, we will explore how representations of the supernatural were both embodied in and transformed by discourses of modernity. Throughout the twentieth century, writers such as Tanizaki Jun'ichiro, Akutagawa Ryunosuke, Izumi Kyoka, and Enchi Fumiko kept the supernatural steadfast. In tales of the fantastic and the strange, they also made trenchant commentary on the state of their society. We read (and contrast) literary and visual texts to explore alternative visions of Japan's rush to modernize.
Prerequisite: None

Unit: 1.0

JPN 256/CAMS 205 History of Japanese Cinema (in English)
Zimmerman
From the long take and the pictorial composition to the swirling action of the sword fight, we explore how Japanese directors first adopted and then transformed the language of cinema. We move chronologically, from early silent film to recent independent cinema, and we view films that speak to the concerns of each subsequent generation. Because Japanese directors have created a visual style that counters certain Hollywood conventions, we also devote class time to learning how to read film. Readings from literature and history enhance study. Directors include: Mizoguchi, Ozu, Kurosawa, Oshima, Imamura, Koreeda, and Nishikawa. No previous knowledge of Japan, Japanese, or film studies is required. Students may register for either JPN 256 or CAMS 205 and credit will be granted accordingly.

JPN 314 Contemporary Japanese Narrative Literature
Zimmerman
We read and discuss Japanese fiction in the original, focusing on a generation of contemporary female writers who are currently transforming the literary landscape of Japan. Through fresh use of language and challenging themes, writers such as Ogawa Yoko, Wataya Risa and Kaneharu Hitomi draw sharp portraits of urban life in Japan. Weekly translation exercises develop literary reading skills and improve comprehension. For the final project, students will translate a contemporary short story in collaboration with the instructor. Two class meetings with individual meetings.

JPN 351 Seminar. Theaters of Japan (in English)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course provides an in-depth study of Japanese traditional theater forms and performance theories. Students will be reading plays from the Noh, Kyogen comedies, Kabuki, and Bunraku (puppet theater) traditions. Videos of the plays for study will be viewed by the class. Comparisons will be made with Western and other Eastern theater forms where appropriate. The influence of classical theater on contemporary Japanese drama will also be examined.
Prerequisite: One unit on Japan or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video

Unit: 1.0

JPN 352 Seminar. Postwar Japanese Fiction (in English)
Zimmerman
With the lifting of state censorship in the postwar period, Japanese writers began to write again about sex, politics and decadence. They also wrestled with questions of war responsibility and the role of the writer in a changing world. In recent years, Japanese writers have courted a global audience, moving towards fantasy and magic realism while depicting the proliferation of isolated subcultures in Japan. We embed literary texts in their social and historical contexts as we listen for the "hum of the times." We also practice close reading of individual texts as we assess the literary accomplishments of nine Japanese writers from 1945-2007.

JPN 353 Lady Murasaki and The Tale of Genji (in English)
Morley (Theatre Studies)
Shortly after 1000 C.E., in the imperial court of Japan, Murasaki Shikibu, a court lady of middle rank, completed what is arguably the first novel in the history of world literature, The Tale of Genji. Who was she? How did she come to write a novel of such surprising psychological subtlety? Why is she still appealing a millennium later? Focusing on The Genji and Murasaki's diary, we examine the culture of the Heian court, Buddhist beliefs, the aesthetic of mono no aware (a beauty evocative of longing), and the literature (poetry, prose, and ladies' diaries) of the court salons. Films, plays, animation, and modern novels modeled on The Genji will also be discussed in class. No Japanese language required.

Requirements for the Major

Chinese Language and Literature
The goal of this major is to provide students with a solid foundation in the disciplines of Chinese language and literature through intensive language training and broad exposure to Chinese literary and cultural traditions through literature/culture courses taught in both English and Chinese. Students are strongly encouraged to begin their Chinese language study during their first year at Wellesley. Students with a Chinese language background must take a placement test to determine their proper courses. In addition, the EALI department strongly recommends that all majors spend a summer and/or a semester of their junior year studying Mandarin at an approved program in China, Taiwan, or Hong Kong. The Chinese language and literature major consists of a minimum of 10 courses. The following three sets of guidelines for the Chinese language and literature major have been devised to meet the needs of students who come to Wellesley with differing Chinese language backgrounds.
A. Students beginning their Chinese language study at Wellesley in CHIN 101-102, 103-104 or 201-202 shall complete the 10-course Chinese major as follows: Five language courses from among CHIN 101-102* or 103-104*; 201-202* or 203-204*; 301, 302, 306, 307 or 310; two literature courses taught in Chinese or English, at least one of which is at the 300-level; and another three courses in Chinese literature, linguistics, language, comparative East Asian literature, or East Asian Studies. Each student should work out the details of her major with her advisor.
B. Students beginning their Chinese language study at Wellesley in CHIN 203-204 shall complete the Chinese major as follows: Three language courses consisting of CHIN 203-204*, 301, 302, 306, 307; or 310; two literature courses taught in Chinese or English, at least one of which is at the 300-level; and another three courses in Chinese literature, linguistics, language, comparative East Asian literature, or East Asian Studies. Each student should work out the details of her major with her advisor.
C. Students beginning their Chinese language study at Wellesley in third year shall complete the Chinese major as follows: Two language courses from among CHIN 301, 302, 306, 307 or 310; two literature courses taught in Chinese or English, at least one of which is at the 300-level; and another three courses in Chinese literature, linguistics, language, comparative East Asian literature, or East Asian Studies. Each student should work out the details of her major with her advisor.
* Both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Japanese Language and Literature
The Japanese program trains students to achieve fluency in the Japanese language and to think critically about Japanese language and culture. Japanese majors follow a parallel track, taking language courses and literature/culture courses in translation that culminate in advanced work on literature in Japanese at the 300-level. This year, students are strongly encouraged to begin their study of the language in the first year. A junior year, a semester, or a summer of intensive language study in Japan is encouraged. The major consists of a minimum of eight units and normally includes JPN 202, 231, 232, and five additional units. At least two must be nonlanguage units, and at least two must come from the 300 level (to be taken within the department).
Students entering with advanced language preparation may substitute alternate language units as necessary with departmental permission. JPN 101-102 and 201 may be counted toward the degree, but not toward the major. Students who have completed [310], 314, or the equivalent may request to do an independent study using the Japanese language (350). Those who wish to do an independent study that does not require the Japanese language should register for 250. An advisor should be chosen from within the department.

All EALL Students
Honors
The only route to honors in the Chinese language and literature and Japanese language and literature major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.
Teacher Certification
Students interested in seeking certification in teaching Chinese or Japanese should speak with the chairs of the EALL department and education department early in their college career.

Transfer Credits
The transfer of credit (either from another American institution or from a language program abroad) is not automatic. A maximum of three units may be transferred toward the major in Chinese language and literature and a maximum of four toward the major in Japanese language and literature. Work at the 300-level must be taken within the department for credit towards the majors in Chinese and Japanese.

Students wishing to transfer credit should be advised that a minimum of six units of course work must be completed in the EALL department at Wellesley. Transfer students from other institutions are required to take a placement test administered by the EALL department. It is essential that proof of course content and performance in the form of syllabi, written work, examinations, and grades be presented to the EALL department chair.

Advanced Placement Policies and Language Requirement
A student entering Wellesley must pass the Chinese exemption examination or the Japanese exemption examination to satisfy the foreign language requirement.

Study Abroad
A maximum of three courses taken abroad may be counted toward the Chinese language and literature major; and a maximum of four courses toward the Japanese language and literature major. Students should note that more credit may be counted toward the Wellesley degree. In order to obtain credit for study abroad, students must obtain prior consent from the International Study Office and the EALL department chair and must pass a placement test administered by the EALL department upon return to Wellesley. In addition, it is essential that proof of course content and performance in the form of syllabi, written work, examinations, and grades be presented to the EALL department chair.

East Asian Studies
AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Director:
Affiliated Faculty: Allen (EALL-Chinese), Chen (EALL-Chinese), Cheng (Women's and Gender Studies), Giersch (History), Kodera (Religion), Lum (EALL-Chinese), Lee (EALL-Korean), Liu (Art History), Maeno (EALL-Japanese), Matsusaka (History), Meng (Studio Art), Moon (Political Science), Morley (Theatre Studies), Ozawa (EALL-Japanese), Song (EALL-Chinese), Tang (EALL-Chinese), Tham (EALL-Chinese), Toki Williams (EALL-Japanese), Widmer (EALL-Chinese), Zhao (EALL-Chinese), Zimmerman (EALL-Japanese).

Advisory Committee: Giersch (History), Lee (EALL-Korean), Moon (Political Science), Widmer (EALL-Chinese), Kodera (Religion)

East Asian Studies is an interdisciplinary major offered jointly by the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures (EALL) and faculty from other departments at the College whose research and teaching interests focus on East Asia. The major is designed for students with a broad interest in East Asia. It encourages students to familiarize themselves with one or more areas of East Asia and also requires that students have an area of concentration, which may be geographic or disciplinary. Through this combination of breadth and depth, students learn about the historic links between East Asian societies and how flows of culture and thought across Asia continue to shape life in Asia today.

Goals for the Major
- To familiarize students generally with the languages, history, art, religions, literature, and the political social and cultural systems of East Asia.
- To develop fuller expertise in a specific area of study, whether geographic or disciplinary.
- To ensure a firm foundation in one of three East Asian languages: Chinese, Japanese, or Korean.

Requirements for the Major

Prospective East Asian Studies majors should begin study of an East Asian language soon after they arrive at Wellesley. The program also recommends that students take one or more courses (such as HIST 274, REL 108, or EALL 225) to attain familiarity with East Asia. While the program encourages students to familiarize themselves with several East Asian cultures, all students must have an area of concentration. This area of concentration may be geographic or disciplinary.

Prospective majors should consult with a member of East Asian Studies faculty as early as possible to discuss their academic plans. Majors devise their own programs of study in consultation with an advisor from the student’s area of concentration. Both the major advisor and the program director must approve proposals for the major. Transfer credits to be counted towards the major must be approved by the program director.

Ten units are required for the major, consisting of the following:

Language courses: four units. Students must complete at least four language courses above the 100-level in the language most appropriate to their area of concentration. No credit towards the major is given for the first year of language study. Those who begin their language study at Wellesley in a 300-level language class must still complete four language courses. Students with native or near-native fluency in an East Asian language must also complete at least 10 units for the major.

Language study beyond that required for the major is strongly recommended. All majors are also encouraged to spend at least a summer or a semester studying abroad in China, Taiwan, Japan, or Korea. The East Asian Languages and Literatures department must approve plans for language study taken away from Wellesley and to be applied towards the major.

Non-language courses: six units. Of the six non-language units required for the major, a minimum of three must constitute the concentration (see below) and two must be at the 300 level. A minimum of three of the non-language courses must be taken at Wellesley, including both of the 300-level courses. Only one of the two required 300-level courses may be fulfilled by a 350, 360, or 370.

In order to gain a comparative perspective, majors must take at least one non-language course that deals primarily with an East Asian culture or society other than the one where the language she is using to fulfill the major is spoken.

All majors must also take at least one non-language course on East Asia in each of the following two categories: (1) humanities, including art history, literature, cinema, music, philosophy, religion; and (2) social sciences, including anthropology, history, economics, political science, sociology, and women’s and gender studies. MTT has strong offerings in East Asian studies, and Wellesley students should consider taking at least one course there.

One course in Asian-American studies may be counted towards the major, provided that the course addresses a significant aspect of East Asian traditions, culture, or society in its global, cross-cultural contexts.

Concentrations. At least three of the non-language courses to be counted towards the major must constitute either a geographic or a disciplinary concentration in East Asian studies. Majors will normally declare their concentration no later than the spring semester of the junior year when preparing to undertake advanced work in East Asian studies.

Geographic concentrations may focus on China, Japan, or Korea. Disciplinary concentrations include: arts and visual studies; culture and society; gender studies; historical studies; international relations; literary studies; political economy; and religion. Under unusual circumstances, and with the approval of her advisor and a program director, a student may design her own disciplinary concentration.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.
ECON 101 Principles of Microeconomics

Staff
This first course in economics introduces students to the market system. Microeconomics considers the decisions of households and firms about what to consume and what to produce, and the efficiency and equity of market outcomes. Supply and demand analysis is developed and applied. Policy issues include price floors and ceilings, competition and monopoly, income distribution, and the role of government in a market economy.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 104/WRIT 125 Contemporary Economic Issues and Policies
Velechtk
This course is intended for students entering Wellesley with a background in economics at the level of AP or IB courses. We will use the basic principles of economics to analyze, and write about, current economic events and sticky questions. Topics will include how moral hazard and asymmetric information contributed to the financial crisis of 2008, an evaluation of President Obama’s economic stimulus program, and the case for and against a substantial increase in federal gas taxes. We will leave ample time to discuss what is happening in economic news during the semester. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Economics. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisite: International Baccalaureate credit in Economics (a score of 5, 6, or 7) or Advanced Placement Credit (a score of 5) in Microeconomics and/or Macroeconomics, and by permission of the instructor
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 201 Intermediate Microeconomic Analysis
Skeath, McKnight, LeBrun
Intermediate microeconomic theory: analysis of the individual household, firm, industry, and market, and the social implications of resource allocation choices. Emphasis on application of theoretical methodology.

Prerequisite: 101, 102, and one math course at the level of MATH 115 or higher. The math course must be taken at Wellesley.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 202 Intermediate Macroeconomic Analysis
Joyce, Shureck, Johnson

Prerequisite: 101, 102, and one math course at the level of MATH 115 or higher. The math course must be taken at Wellesley.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 203 Econometrics
Butcher, Cole, Shastrey
Application of statistical methods to economic problems. Emphasis will be placed on regression analysis that can be used to examine the relationship between two or more variables. Issues involved in estimation, including goodness-of-fit, statistical inference, dummy variables, heteroskedasticity, serial correlation, and others will be considered. Emphasis will be placed on real-world applications. The credit/noncredit grading option is not available for this course.

Prerequisite: 101, 102, and one math course at the level of MATH 115 or higher. The math course must be taken at Wellesley. One course in statistics (ECON 100, MATH 220, or PSYC 205) is also required.

ECON 210 Financial Markets

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Overview of financial markets and institutions, including stock and bond markets, money markets, derivatives, financial intermediaries, monetary policy, and international currency markets.

Prerequisite: 101, 102, and 103
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ECON 213 International Finance and Macroeconomic Policy
Weerapana
This course introduces the study of macroeconomics in an open economy. Topics include basic features of foreign exchange markets, the structure of the balance of payments accounts, and the effectiveness of macroeconomic policy under fixed and flexible exchange rates and varying degrees of capital mobility. The course also examines the evolution of the international financial system, the role of the IMF, the creation of the European Monetary Union and the recent financial crises in East Asia, Russia, and Brazil.

Prerequisite: 101 and 102
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 214 Trade and Immigration
Lindauer
An introduction to international trade in theory and practice. Emphasis on the application of microeconomic principles in international economics. Topics to be covered include the debate over free versus fair trade, trade and the welfare of workers in developed and developing nations; the use of tariffs, quotas, and other instruments of protection; trade deficits; and the costs and benefits of international migration.

Prerequisite: 101 and 102
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 215 Tax Policy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course considers the role of taxation in the economy, focusing primarily on the United States federal tax system. The course studies how taxation affects economic efficiency, income distribution, capital formation, and microeconomic incentives. Major topics include the effects of the individual income tax, the corporate income tax, social security taxes, green taxes, and sales tax. The course will also examine possible tax reforms as well as the role of international tax incentives in a global economy.

Prerequisite: 101
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ECON 220 Development Economics
Johnson
Survey and analysis of problems and circumstances of less developed nations. Examination of theories of economic growth for poor nations. Review of policy options and prospects for low and middle income economies. Specific topics include: population growth, poverty and income distribution, foreign aid, and human resource strategies.

Prerequisite: 101, 102, 103 recommended.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall

ECON 222 Games of Strategy
Skethch
Should you sell your house at an auction where the highest bidder gets the house, but only pays the second-highest bid? Should the U.S. government institute a policy of never negotiating with terrorists? The effects of decisions in such situations often depend on how others react to them. This course introduces some basic concepts and insights from the theory of games that can be used to understand any situation in which strategic decisions are made. The course will emphasize applications rather than formal theory. Extensive use is made of in-class experiments, examples, and cases drawn from business, economics, politics, movies, and current events.

Prerequisite: 101. Permission of the instructor required.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 223 Personal Finance
Witte
What should you study? How should you invest? These questions require knowledge of both the law and economics of personal finance. The course offers a hands-on approach that uses real world prototypes. The earning, spending, investing and insuring decisions of the prototypes over the course of their lives provides the framework for class discussions. The course incorporates many of the latest developments in finance. It provides a way of thinking about personal finance that will be relevant even as the law and financial markets change.

Prerequisite: 101 and 103
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 225 Urban Economics
Case
Analysis of the location decisions of households and firms. Topics include real estate development and finance, housing markets and housing finance, real estate cycles, regional economics, problems of the inner city, discrimination in housing and credit markets, homelessness, and alternative public policy responses to urban problems. The course requires several projects involving fieldwork.

Prerequisite: 101
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 228 Environmental and Resource Economics
Scherber
This course considers the economic aspects of resource and environmental issues. After examining the concepts of externalities, public goods, and common property resources, we will discuss how to measure the cost and benefits of environmental policy, in order to estimate the socially optimal level of the environmental good. Applications of these tools will be made to air and water pollution, renewable and nonrenewable resources, and global climate. In addressing each of these problems we will compare various public policy responses such as regulation, marketable permits and tax incentives.

Prerequisite: 101
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 232 Health Economics
Dils
An economic analysis of the health care system and its players: government, insurers, health care providers, patients. Issues to be studied include demand for medical care, health insurance markets, cost controlling insurance plans (HMOs, POS, IPAs), government health care programs (Medicare and Medicaid), variations in medical practice, medical malpractice, competition versus regulation, and national health care reform.

Prerequisite: 101
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 238 Economics and Politics
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will cover the economic issues that will be discussed in the upcoming U.S. presidential election. We will cover the economic forces and the stylized facts at work behind the major economic issues facing the electorate: health care, income security (welfare), job security, taxes, income distribution, Social Security, trade, and global warming. This course is about the economic analysis of the issues and not the politics of the issues. We will compare and contrast the two candidates' proposals on each of the most pressing economic issues, both in the short run and in the long run, and attempt, where possible, to put them in their proper historical perspective. Free trade or fair trade? Flat tax, fair tax, death tax? Cap and trade or carbon tax? Private accounts for Social Security or changes in the retirement age? Single payer health care with a mandate?

Prerequisite: 101 and 102
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 241 Poverty and Inequality in Latin America
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Survey of economic development in the Latin American region, focusing upon poverty and inequality and the data used to measure them. Topics to be covered include theoretical and recent regional and national trends in poverty and inequality and the formulation and evaluation of social policies, especially in the areas of education and health. Work in the course will emphasize the interpretation and use of data.

Prerequisite: 101 and 103
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ECON 243 The Political Economy of Gender, Race, and Class
Matthiae
An introduction to radical economic analysis of contemporary, globalizing capitalism. Analysis of race, class, and gender, and of their interconnections. Radical economic critiques of current neoliberal economic policies. Study and critique of contemporary radical economic movements, including the environmental movement; the movements for socially responsible consumption, investment, business, and work; and the subalternization or globalization from below movement.

Prerequisite: 101 or 102 or permission of the instructor

ECON 300 Mathematics for Economics
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In this course, students will apply mathematical techniques in economic analysis. Students are expected to have a good knowledge of calculus and will be introduced to topics in linear algebra, differential equations, and static and dynamic optimization. Emphasis will be placed on economic applications including maximization decisions of consumers and producers, comparative statics, phase diagram analysis of dynamic systems, and basic features of dynamic optimization.

87 Economics
Prerequisites: 201 and 202, MATH 205. MATH 206 recommended.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

ECON 301 Advanced Microeconomic Analysis

Skayth
Further development and application of the tools of analysis developed in 201 (Intermediate Micro). Students will study advanced topics in consumer and producer theory, particularly addressing the existence of risk, uncertainty, asymmetric information and noncompetitive market structures. Other areas to be covered include general-equilibrium analysis, game theory, and prospect theory.
Prerequisite: 201, MATH 205 recommended.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ECON 311 Economics of Immigration

Butcher
This course examines the economic causes and consequences of international migration, both historically and in the present, with a focus on the U.S. experience. We explore changes in immigration law over time and the political debates surrounding immigration in the past and present. Topics include: the effect of immigrants on the wages of the native born, immigrants’ use of welfare and other social services and immigrants’ involvement in crime and their treatment in the criminal justice system. In each case, students will discuss the popular perception, the theory, and the empirical evidence, with a focus on the public policy alternatives for dealing with each issue.
Prerequisite: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

ECON 312 Economics of Globalization

Joyce
The process of globalization has aroused great controversy. This course examines the reasons for the integration across borders of the markets in goods and the factors of production, and the consequences of these trends. In the first part of the course we discuss the meanings, measurement and history of globalization. We then investigate the rationale and record of international trade, the migration of labor and global financial flows. We examine issues related to international public goods, and the need for collective solutions to such global problems as pandemics and pollution. We also investigate the records of international governmental organizations.
Prerequisite: 201
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

ECON 313 Seminar, International Macroeconomics

Joyce
Theory and policy of macroeconomic adjustment in the open economy. Topics to be covered include models of exchange-rate determination, the choice between fixed and flexible exchange rates, monetary union, policy effectiveness in open economies under different exchange rate regimes, and adjustment to balance-of-payments disequilibria.
Prerequisite: 202 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ECON 314 Advanced International Trade

LeBrun
This course analyzes the causes and consequences of international trade: The theory of international trade and the effects of trade policy tools are developed in both perfect and imperfect competition, with reference to the empirical evidence. This framework serves as context for the consideration of several important issues: the effect of trade on income inequality, the relationship between trade and the environment, the importance the World Trade Organization, strategic trade policy, the role of trade in developing countries, and the effects of free trade agreements.
Prerequisite: 201
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ECON 318 Economic Analysis of Social Policy

Levine
This course uses economic analysis to evaluate important social policy issues in the U.S., focusing on the role of government in shaping social policy and its impact on individuals. Does welfare make people work less or have more children? Why is the teenage birthrate so high, and how might it be lowered? How do fertility patterns respond to changes in abortion policy? Theoretical models and econometric evidence will be used to investigate these and other issues.
Prerequisite: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ECON 320 Economic Development

Shastry
This course examines what factors help to explain why some countries are rich and others poor and whether economic policies can affect these outcomes. We will study key aspects of life for poor households in the developing world, such as inequality, gender, and the intra-household division of resources, education, child labor, health, savings and credit, institutions and globalization. Students will study recent research in the field and examine empirical evidence on these topics.
Prerequisite: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

ECON 321 Money and Banking

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. From the subprime mortgage crisis in the U.S. to the hyperinflation in Zimbabwe, financial markets play a pivotal role in every economy. This course examines the role of money and banking in determining economic outcomes. What is money, and what role do central banks (the Federal Reserve in the U.S.) play in its creation? How can monetary policy stimulate or retard economic growth, and what role might regulation play in preventing crises in financial markets? The course will employ the tools learned in intermediate theory courses to understand the complex interactions of market forces and financial institutions in the U.S. and global economy.
Prerequisite: 201 and 202
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

ECON 323 Finance Theory and Applications

Hilt
This course provides a rigorous treatment of financing and capital budgeting decisions within firms. Topics include: financial statement analysis; strategies and analytical methods for the evaluation of investment projects; capital structure and dividend policy decisions; risk, return, and the valuation of financial instruments; and management incentive structures. Risk management and the use of derivatives will also be considered.
Prerequisite: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0
ECON 324 Behavioral and Experimental Economics
Stasvsky
Why do people give to charity? What can be done to convince more people to save in retirement plans? This course explores these and other questions by introducing psychological phenomena into standard models of economics. Evidence from in-class experiments, real-world examples, and field and laboratory data is used to illustrate the ways in which actual behavior deviates from the classical assumptions of perfect rationality and narrow self-interest.
Prerequisites: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 325 Law and Economics
Witte
Economic analysis of legal rules and institutions. Application of economic theory and empirical methods to the central institutions of the legal system, including the common law doctrines of negligence, contract, and property as well as civil, criminal, administrative procedure and family law. The course will contrast economic and noneconomic theories of law and will address the strengths and limitations of the economic approach to law.
Prerequisites: 201 and 203

Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 326 Seminar. Methods of Education Policy Analysis
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course applies modern econometric methods and evaluation design to the analysis of contemporary issues in education policy. Methods include randomized experiments, regression-discontinuity analysis, and the use of panel data. Issues include school accountability, private-school vouchers, and policies toward teacher labor markets. Students will conduct extensive empirical analysis of education data.
Prerequisite: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/0
Unit: 1.0

ECON 331 Seminar. Monetary Theory and Policy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The formulation of monetary policy and its theoretical foundations. This includes discussion of the latest developments in monetary theory, the money supply process, monetary autonomy in an open economy, and current procedures in the U.S. and other nations.
Prerequisites: 202 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

ECON 332 Advanced Health Economics
McKnight
This course applies microeconomics to issues in health, medical care, and health insurance. Emphasis is placed on policy-relevant empirical research. Topics include the impact of health insurance on health care, the economics of medical provider reimbursement, and the effects of health care policy.
Prerequisites: 201 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 333 Economic Growth
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course studies differences in living standards and economic growth across countries. It focuses on both the historical experience of countries that are currently rich and the process of catch-up among poor countries. Topics include the accumulation of physical and human capital, population growth, technological change, trade, geography, institutions, and inequality. Theoretical models and econometric evidence will be used to study these issues.
Prerequisites: 202 and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/0
Unit: 1.0

ECON 335 Seminar. Economic Journalism
Matthaei
An exploration of the diverse field of feminist economics that critically analyzes both economic theory and economic life through the lens of gender and advocates various forms of feminist economic transformation. Areas of focus include: economic analysis of gender differences and inequality in the family and in the labor market; feminist critiques of current economic institutions and policies, and suggested alternatives; and feminist critiques of economic theory and methodology.
Prerequisite: 201, 202, and 203
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/0
Unit: 1.0

ECON 350 Research or Individual Study
Open by permission to juniors and seniors who have taken 201 and 202; strongly recommended: one 300-level elective recommended. 350 students will be expected to attend a weekly research seminar.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ECON 360 Senior Thesis Research
Students writing a senior honors thesis will be expected to attend a weekly research seminar.
Prerequisite: One 300-level course strongly recommended. By permission of department. See Academic Distinctions.

ECON 380 Economics Research Seminar
Bustler
A seminar for senior economics majors engaged in independent research. Students will learn about the use of empirical techniques in economics, including the opportunity to engage with the research of prominent economists, who present their work at the Calderwood and Goldman seminars hosted by the department. Students will also present and discuss their own research at weekly meetings. Students may not accumulate more than 0.5 credit for this course. Mandatory credit/one-credit.
Prerequisite: Limited to senior economics majors doing independent research.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

MATH 115 Calculus I
MATH 203 Mathematical Tools for Economics and Finance (Summer School only)

Requirements for the Major
The economics major consists of a minimum of nine units. The major must include core coursework in microeconomics (ECON 101 and 201), macroeconomics (102 and 202), and statistics (103 and 203), as well as at least two 300-level units (ordinarily not counting 350, 360 or 370). A minimum of two 300-level courses must be taken at Wellesley unless a student has completed 300-level work in economics at MIT; in such a case, only one 300-level course needs to be taken at Wellesley.
Students who have completed MATH 220 or PSYC 205 need not complete ECON 103, but must take an additional economics elective to complete the major.
Choosing courses to complete the major requires careful thought. All majors should choose an advisor and consult him/her regularly. Students are also advised to consult the department handbook, which deals with a variety of topics including preparation in mathematics, desirable courses for those interested in graduate study in economics, and complementary courses outside economics. Calculus, along with several other mathematical tools, is central to the discipline. Beginning with students entering Wellesley in fall of 2007, one semester of mathematics at Wellesley at the level of 115 or above is required for all ECON 201, 202 and 203 sections. Students who entered the College in 2006 or before may fulfill the mathematics requirement with MATH 115 or its equivalent. We encourage students to consult a departmental advisor about whether additional mathematics courses might be desirable. Students interested in economics and its applications in international relations might want to consider the international minor in International Relations-Economics listed under International Relations in this bulletin.
Requirements for the Minor

The economics minor is recommended for students wishing to develop competence in economics in preparation for work or graduate study in area studies, business, international relations, law, public administration, public health, or other such professions. The minor consists of 101, 102, and 103, plus two additional 200-level units, ordinarily excluding 201, 202 and 203. A student wishing to add the economics minor to the major in another field should consult a faculty advisor in economics. Students who have completed MATH 220 or PSYC 205 need not complete ECON 103 but must take an additional economics elective to complete the minor.

Students are urged to supplement their major or minor program in economics with related courses from other disciplines in the liberal arts, such as history, mathematics, philosophy, political science, and sociology.

Honors

The department offers majors two programs for pursuing departmental honors. Under program I, students complete two semesters of independent research (360 and 370) culminating in an honors thesis. Under program II, a student completes one semester of independent research (350) related to previous 300-level coursework, and then submits an examination in economics that includes the topic covered in her research project. Ordinarily, a student is expected to complete all of the core coursework and one 300-level course before enrolling in the honors program. Admission to the honors program requires students to have a GPA of 3.5 or higher in their economics courses above the 100 level. All honors candidates are expected to participate in the economics research seminar.

Transfer Credit

In order to obtain credit for any economics course taken at another institution during the summer or academic year, approval must be obtained in advance from the department's transfer credit advisor. In general, courses from two-year colleges will not be accepted at any level. Courses taken elsewhere normally will not be transferred at the 300 level. ECON 201, 202, and 203 ordinarily should be taken at Wellesley. Transfer students wishing to obtain transfer credit for economics courses taken prior to enrollment at Wellesley should contact the department's transfer credit advisor.

Advanced Placement Policy

Students who enter with Advanced Placement credit in microeconomics or macroeconomics may choose to repeat the courses covered by the AP credit (in which case the credit is forfeited) or proceed to the remaining half of the introductory sequence (for those with one unit of AP credit) or to a 200-level elective (for those with two units of AP credit). Students who have AP or IB credit in statistics should consult the department chair regarding enrollment in 103. We recommend seeking advice from the department on how to proceed, particularly for students contemplating a 200-level course in their first semester. AP credits do not count toward the minimum major or minor in economics.

Department of Education

Professor: Beatty (Chair)
Assistance Professor: Hong
Senior Lecturer: Hawes, Speiser
Lecturer: Tutin
Administrative Teaching Staff: Miller

Associate in Education: Denis Cleary (History Teacher, Concord Carlisle High School); Jennifer Friedman (Library Teacher, Boston Public Schools); Reen Gibb (Science Teacher, Westwood High School); David Gorthel (Newton Public Schools); Heather Haskell, (Elementary Teacher, Hunnewell School, Wellesley); Wendy Huang (MIT Teacher Education Program Manager); Inna Kantor London, (English Teacher, Framingham High School); Jeff Samuels (Elementary Teacher, Heath School, Brookline)

Education is at the center of social and personal life. Its study is necessarily interdisciplinary. We offer a variety of courses, each one with its own distinct intellectual challenge, but all seeking to connect different points of view, whether the course is focused on urban education, school reform, diversity, policy, history, research, child welfare, or learning to teach. We invite students to try a single course (many different first courses are possible) and to consider one of the two minors we offer, the Teacher Education and Education Studies minor.

Goals for the Minor

• Teacher Education minors will acquire the knowledge and skills needed to be teachers of their subject(s) with students in elementary, middle, or high schools. They will become able to collaborate, to reflect on and discuss critically their teaching and the situation of their students, and to learn from further experience and study.

• Education Studies minors will acquire a multifaceted, critical perspective on education in a variety of settings, including urban ones, and on policy issues and methods of educational research. They will be ready to continue learning through further study, discussion, and reflection.

EDUC 102/WRT 125 Education in Philosophical Perspective

Hawes

This course is guided by questions such as: What is a good education? What is its dependence on culture, context, and aims? What perspectives on teaching and learning are most helpful? How can we get reliable knowledge of good education? We will use the works of earlier writers (e.g., Confucius, Plato, and Dewey) and contemporary writers in our investigations. This course satisfies the Writing 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the Teacher Education or Education Studies minor. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 117 Diversity in Education

Darek (Spanish)

An introduction to issues in diversity and multicultural education. We will examine rationales for diversity and multicultural education and some of the effects of these policies. We will analyze implications of diversity for teaching and learning, and study the influences of race, ethnicity, gender, language, socioeconomic status, and religion on schools and school curricula, with a focus on tensions surrounding increasing diversity in American education.

Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 212 Seminar, History of American Education

Beatty

An intensive study of the role that education has played in American society and of the evolution of support and expectations for public schools. We will examine how schools have served the needs of immigrants, and students from different gender, racial, ethnic, social class, and religious backgrounds. We will focus on the education of teachers, the organization of urban school systems, the growth of high schools and preschools, and attempts to reform schools and the curriculum.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 215 Understanding and Improving Schools

Hawes

Study of what goes into the making of good schools in a variety of settings, including urban public schools. Examination of what we mean by "a good school," in terms of both aims and practices, of how a school and its curriculum are experienced by its students, and of how a school's culture and social relationships are created. We will use case studies of different kinds of people working to improve schools, including teachers, principals, education advocates, and researchers. Fieldwork will be an integral part of the course.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 216 Education and Social Policy

Hong

An examination of education policy and of how it is formulated, implemented, and evaluated. We will study the development and interaction of policies at the federal, state, and local level, and trace the trend from law-driven to accountability-based school reforms. We will discuss major topics of debate in American education, including equal educational opportunity, school desegregation, bilingual education, special education, and education standards and testing.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 221 Museum Education and the Art Encounter

Miller

Study of the theory and practices of museum education, with a special focus on the museum-school relationship. Students will participate in the Davis Museum's education programs for schools, to examine the distinct learning environment of the museum and its role in society. How can the visual arts be engaged as a tool for teaching? What can children's responses to works of art tell us about the way they learn? Working directly with students in regional public schools and objects in the collections of the Davis Museum and Cultural Center, we will explore means of activating the educational role and mission of museums in society. Recommended for students who may wish to become involved in volunteer opportunities in museum education programs as well as student teachers hoping to make effective use of museum resources in their future classrooms.

EDUC 300 Teaching and Curriculum in Middle School and High School
Hawes
An intensive study of the knowledge and skills required in classroom teaching, including curriculum development, planning, instruction, testing, and assessment. We will focus especially on classrooms as learning environments and on teacher understanding of student academic development. Additional laboratory periods for teaching presentations and an accompanying field placement are required. Note: Open to all students, mandatory for these seeking middle-school or high-school certification; students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement.

Prequsite: One of 102, 117, 212, 215, 216, 218, PSYC 215, or MIT 11.124 or other approved course or by permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

EDUC 302 Seminar. Methods and Materials of Teaching
Speiser, Hawes
Study and observation of teaching techniques, the role of the teacher, classroom interaction, and individual and group learning. Examination of curriculum materials and classroom practice in specific teaching fields. Students interested in working with middle- or high-school students should enroll in section 302-01; students interested in working with elementary or preschool students should enroll in section 302-02. Note: Open to students seeking teacher certification or substantial observation and student teaching experience in a school, mandatory for students seeking teacher certification; students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement.

Prequsite: 300 or 304 or by permission of instructor.
Corequisite: 303 and 305 for students interested in working with elementary or preschool students.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 303 Practicum. Curriculum and Supervised Teaching
Speiser, Hawes
Observation, supervised teaching, and curriculum development in students' teaching fields throughout the semester. Attendance at an appropriate school placement required. Note: Open to students seeking substantial observation and student teaching experience in a school, mandatory for students seeking teacher certification; students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement.

Mandatory credit/noncredit.

Prequsite: Students seeking teacher certification must apply to the department for admission to this course in the semester before it is taken; other students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement. Corequisite: 302, and 305 for students interested in working in elementary or preschool classrooms.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 304 Curriculum and Instruction in Elementary Education
Speiser, Friedman, Haskell, Tutwin
A seminar taught by a group of experienced teachers. This course focuses on curriculum development, planning, instruction, testing, and assessment in elementary school classrooms. Additional laboratory periods for teaching presentations and an accompanying field placement are required. Note: Open to all students, mandatory for those seeking elementary education certification; students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement.

Prequsite: 310 or 314 or by permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 305 Curriculum, Instruction, Assessment, and Special Needs in Elementary Education
Speiser, Friedman, Haskell, Tutwin
A seminar taught by a team of experienced teachers. A continuation of EDUC 304, this course focuses on curriculum materials and instructional methods used in elementary school classrooms, and on various means for assessing elementary school students' performance and achievement. Strategies for behavior management for dealing with students with disabilities and special needs, and for working with parents and the community will also be addressed, along with other classroom issues. Accompanying field placement is required. Note: Open to all students, mandatory for those seeking elementary education certification; students should contact the instructor either before or soon after registration to plan their field placement.

Prequsite: 304 or by permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 308 Seminar. World Languages Methodology
Replphen-Barger (Spanish)
A course in the pedagogical methods of foreign languages intended to apply to any foreign language and to teaching English as a Second Language; emphasizes the interdependence of the four language skills—listening, speaking, reading, writing; introduces students to a theoretical study of linguistic and psychological issues necessary to evaluate new ways of presenting language material. This seminar will focus on selected texts and readings on the methodology of world-language teaching.

Prequsite: Open to sophomores, juniors and seniors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 310 Seminar. Child Literacy and the Teaching of Reading
Tutwin, Speiser
An examination of how children learn to read, acquire reading, writing, and oral language skills, and how this relates to cognition. We will focus on current research and practice in literacy development for elementary-age children. Oral language, reading processes, assessment using a variety of techniques, phonemic awareness, phonics, and comprehension strategies will be addressed through lectures, readings, study of literacy materials, and a weekly field placement experience. We will study reading instruction across content areas and the transition from learning to read to reading to learn. Emphasis will be placed on understanding the application of this information for developing teaching strategies that address the needs of a diverse population of learners, including students at-risk, second-language learners, and students with special needs. This course is structured to support students pursuing elementary student teaching licensure, but is open to other students.

Prequsite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 312 Seminar. History of Childhood and Child Welfare
Beaty
An examination of the construction of childhood as a social concept and of changes in concepts of childhood in America. We will examine the emerging role of the state in assuming responsibilities for child rearing, education, and child welfare. We will study the history of how institutions and social policies have attempted to shape the lives of children of differing genders, economic, racial, cultural, and ethnic backgrounds; the impact of media; and the development of children's material culture.

Prequsite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 313 Seminar. Social, Emotional, and Civic Learning in Schools
NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. This seminar will examine how social, emotional, and academic learning are intertwined; how social-emotional learning is correlated with civic participation and responsibility; and how educators have a critical role in the promotion of such competencies in K–12 schools. We will study the connection between social-emotional skills and school climate and explore distinguishing developmental features of social, emotional, and civic learning at the elementary, middle, and high school level. We will look at evidence-based, social-emotional practices and programs in a range of urban and suburban schools.

EDUC 335 Seminar. Urban Education

Hong
An intensive examination of urban education reform and urban schools, with emphasis on how the context of cities affects education and on some of the challenges faced by urban teachers, students, and parents, such as poverty, race, and class-based segregation, linguistic barriers, immigration, and inequities in school quality. Using a case-study approach, we will focus on economic, political, social, and cultural aspects of urban education, including the reproduction of inequality, school governance, parent involvement, the relationship between schools and communities, and urban teacher education. Fieldwork in an urban setting is required.

EDUC 339/POLI 339S Seminar. The Politics of Urban Public Schools

Rich (Political Science)
This seminar examines recurrent issues in public school management and governance. Critical questions include the changing demographics of inner-city schools, the evolving role of school boards, big city mayors, urban superintendents, teachers unions, and school finance. We will discuss alternatives to public schools (parochial, private, and charter schools), high-stakes testing, and district-state relations. The seminar will also analyze the increasing intervention of state and federal governments in local school administration and the role of the courts in curriculum controversies, student life, and security. Students may register for either EDUC 339 or POLI 339S and credit will be granted accordingly.

Requirements for the Minor

The education department offers two minors (but no major), one in Teacher Education and one in Education Studies. The minors offer opportunities to explore teaching and education, from the perspective of a classroom teacher or as a field of study. Students may choose to focus on urban education within either minor.

Teacher Education

We prepare teachers to teach in a variety of urban and suburban schools with diverse students. Grounded in the liberal arts, each Wellesley or MIT student in our program receives careful individual attention in the process of discovering how her/his own special gifts can be used in the challenging work of teaching. Our students take introductory courses in educational philosophy, history, or policy, and then do course work in curriculum, instruction, and assessment, and specific methods for teaching reading and elementary school subjects or middle and high school subjects, along with doing fieldwork which may be done in urban and suburban settings, including tutoring and other types of educational programs, and student teaching, which may be done in urban and suburban schools.

Students who wish to be licensed to teach high school (grades 8-12), middle school (grades 5-8), or elementary school (grades 1-6) should obtain the department’s description of the requirements. Generally, the program requires students to take specific subject-matter courses within their teaching fields along with four to seven education and psychology courses, two of which are the student teaching practicum (303) and accompanying seminar (302). If students are not able to register for required introductory courses, they should consult with the department about alternatives.

In addition, teacher certification requires fieldwork prior to student teaching. Students enrolled in EDUC 303 (Practicum) may register for EDUC 320, but are not required to do so.

We encourage you to talk with us to learn about program options. Early planning is preferable, but we will also be glad to discuss teaching program possibilities with you at any point. Students may register for a minor beginning in the spring of the sophomore year, but a minor is not required for teacher licensure. With the exception of 302, 303, and 320 the department’s courses are designed for all students, not simply for those planning a career in public or private school teaching. Students seeking preparation in teaching but not certification should discuss special arrangements with Ken Hawes (high school or middle school) or Bernice Speiser (elementary school or preschool).

The Teacher Education minor consists of:
(A) One of 102 or 115 or 117 or 212 or 215 or 216 or 313 or 325 or 334 or 335, or MIT 11.124 or other approved course; (B) One of PSYC 207 or 208, and (C) 300, 302, and 303. For students seeking elementary certification, 304, 305, 310, and 314 are required instead of 300.

Education Studies

We also offer courses that extend students’ knowledge of education as a field of study. Students in Education Studies may wish to examine the origins of education and child welfare practices, the role of schools in society, school reform, questions of educational theory or research, and the relation of education to social problems more generally. Students may structure the minor to include one or two courses in other fields, including American Studies or the economics, history, politics, sociology, or psychology of education as listed below.

Students interested in urban education should take courses in education policy, improving schools, or history of education, all of which deal to some extent with urban issues; courses on the politics of urban public schools and urban education; and, if possible, courses on diversity and multicultural education. Courses on child literacy and teaching mathematics may be helpful for students considering going into urban education. Students interested in education policy should take some of these same courses and may want to take courses in the economics and political science departments and Quantitative Reasoning Program which deal with policy more broadly. For both urban education and education policy, fieldwork in a school or tutoring program is highly recommended.

The Education Studies minor consists of five courses chosen from:
For students who entered prior to the fall of 2008: EDUC 102, [115], 117, 212, 215, 216, 221, 300, [301], 307, 312, 313, 314 [EDUC 315/AFR
315], 325, 334, 335 and EDUC 339/POLI 339S. However, AMST 101, ECON 326, or QR 180 may be substituted for two of these courses. At least one 300-level education course must be included.

For students entering in the fall of 2008 and later: (A) two of 212 or 215 or 216; and (B) three of EDUC 102, 117, 221, 307, 308, 310, 312, 313, 314, 325, 334, 335, or EDUC 339/POLI 339S, with possible substitution of two of AMST 101, ECON 326, QR 180, POLI 212 or 315, or PSYC 207, 208, 326, or 333. Note: Not all of these courses are offered every year; some may be limited to majors in these fields. At least one 300-level education course must be included.

Title II Information
As required by Title II of the Higher Education Act of the United States, we provide the following information. The number of students enrolled in our state-approved teacher education programs during academic year 2007-08 was 18. The number of these students who continued into student teaching was 18. The number who completed all requirements of the program was 15. The student/faculty ratio for supervised student teaching was 4.5:1. The average number of required hours of student teaching is 360 (12 weeks of at least 30 hours per week). The minimum required is 360.

The pass rates for our students on the Massachusetts Tests for Education Licensure are:
1.) Basic skills: a.) Reading 100%; b.) Writing 100%; Basic skills aggregate (a & b combined)
100%; 2.) Academic content areas: Aggregate 100%. Summary (1 & 2 Combined) pass rate 100%.

Honors Coordinator: Brogan
English, as a discipline, stresses the intensive study of writers and their works in literary, cultural, and historical contexts. It is keyed to the appreciation and analysis of literary language, through which writers compose and organize their poems, stories, novels, plays and essays.
We offer a wide range of courses: introductory courses in literary skills; more advanced courses in influential writers, historical periods, and themes in English, American, and world literatures in English; and numerous courses in creative writing, including screenwriting and creative nonfiction.

Our course offerings strike a balance between great authors of past centuries and emerging fields of study. We teach courses on writers such as Shakespeare, Milton, Jane Austen, and James Joyce, and on Asian-American literature, writers from the Indian subcontinent, and film. We stress analysis and argument in paper-writing, critical thinking, and literary research, and we foster and develop a deep, complex, passionate response to literature.

Goals for the Major
In short, the Wellesley English department seeks to acquaint all its majors with the following bodies of knowledge and to develop in them the following abilities:
• A knowledge of English literary history, including both the canonical works of the past and works from emerging traditions;
• Familiarity with critical methodologies general-
ally employed in the discipline of literary studies;
• An ability to write with clarity, originality, and
• An ability to recognize and construct a lucid and persuasive argument;
• An ability to read imaginative literature with close attention to language and form.

Those who major in English and Creative Writing should fulfill all the goals above and in addition should develop a distinctive literary voice and knowledge of the history and cross-cultural diversity of the genres, traditions, and styles in which they are working.

ENG 112 Introduction to Shakespeare
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Shakespeare wrote for a popular audience and was immensely suc-sessful. Shakespeare is also universally regarded as the greatest playwright in English. In this introduction to his works, we will try to understand both Shakespeare's popularity and greatness. To help us reach this understanding, we will focus especially on the theatrical nature of Shakespeare's writing. The syllabus will likely be as follows: Romeo and Juliet, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Twelfth Night, Othello, King Lear, and The Winter's Tale.

Prerequisite: None. Especially designed for the non-major and thus not writing-intensive. It does not fulfill the Shakespeare requirement for English majors.

Distribution: Arts/Music, Theatre, Film, Video or

Unit: 1.0

ENG 113/CPLT 113 Studies in Fiction
Sides
Topic for 2009-10: Fantastic Fictions. When fiction blurs or crosses the line between our "real" world and "other worlds," the reader (as well as the narrator or main character) has entered the realm of "the fantastic," a genre that (broadly interpreted) contains "the uncanny," "the supernatural or ghost story," and "science fiction."
We will read "fantastic" novels and short fiction by nineteenth-century, twentieth-century, and twenty-first century masters from Europe, Japan, North and South America. Taught primarily in lecture, this course will not be writing-intensive.

Students may register for either ENG 113 or CPLT
113 and credit will be granted accordingly.

ENG 114 Great Works of American Literature
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. American literature contains an astonishing myriad of voices and forms. This course introduces students to highlights and countercurrents of the American tradition. Featuring guest lectures from faculty members in the English department, the course will span the colonial period to the present.
We will read fiction, essays, drama, poetry, and autobiography, devoting time to the "greats" whom students may have already encountered,
and to lesser known and more recent authors.
The reading list likely will include: Rowlandson,
Native American stories and myths, Emerson,
Melville, Douglass, Whitman, Dickinson, Twain,
Fitzgerald, Hughes, Hurston, Walt Whitman,
Williams, Ginsberg and the Beats, Plath, contemporary Asian-American and Hispanic poets, and Morrison—and creative writers on Wellesley's own faculty: Films, music, and visual arts will also figure prominently in the course.

Prerequisite: None. Especially recommended to non-majors.

ENG 115 Great Works of Poetry
Chiasson
A study of the major poems and poets of the English language, from Anglo-Saxon riddles to the works of our contemporaries. How have poets found forms and language adequate to their desires to praise, to curse, to mourn, to seducé? How, on shifting historical and cultural grounds, have poems, over time, remained useful and necessary to human life? Approximately 1,400 years of poetry will be studied, but special attention will be brought in four cases:
Shakespeare's Sonnets; John Milton's "Lycidas";
the odes of John Keats; the poems of Emily Dickinson. The course will conclude with a unit on contemporary poets (Sylvia Plath, Elizabeth Bishop, Philip Larkin, John Ashbery and others).
Prerequisite: None. Especially recommended to non-majors.

Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ENG 122/WRIT 125 Narrative Theory
Lee
How are stories put together? How do they create the sense that they are told from a distinct perspective? How do they create anticipation and retrospection? How do we distinguish the telling from the tale? This course offers an introduction to narrative theory, or theories that explain the devices and structures that stories use in order to make meaning. We will read excerpts from major works of narrative theory (Bal, Genette, Barthes), and we will explore how their concepts yield a better understanding and appreciation of short stories (as well as novels).
Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.

ENG 123/WRIT 125 Storytelling in the Middle Ages
Lee
As modern readers, we are accustomed to reading privately (whether on screens or in books), but in the Middle Ages stories were often delivered orally, at court and in wealthy households. This course explores the cultural significance of telling stories in the Middle Ages through an examination of both popular stories and narratives that dramatize acts of storytelling. We will investigate the ways storytelling could entertain, edify, bring a community closer together, or serve as a means of social control. Readings will likely include selections from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and Boccaccio's Decameron, saints' lives, and a medieval romance. This course satisfies both the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in English. Includes a third session each week.
Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.

Unit: 1.0

ENG 204/COMS 234 The Art of Screenwriting
Channer, Cezair-Thompson
A creative writing course in a workshop setting for those interested in the theory and practice of writing for film. Ms. Cezair-Thompson's course focuses on the full-length feature film, both original screenplays and screen adaptations of literary work. Mr. Channer's course will explore the theory and practice of character development, story design, and screenplays of varying lengths created by established artists; discussion will center on short original screenplays generated by workshop members. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Mandatory credit/one-credit.
Prerequisite: None.

Unit: 1.0

ENG 205 Writing for Children
Meyer
What makes for excellence in writing for children? When Margaret Wise Brown repeats the word “moon” in two subsequent pages—“Goodnight moon. Goodnight cow jumping over the moon”—is this effective or clunky? What makes rhyme and repetition funny and compelling in one picture book (such as Rosemary Wells’s Noisy Nora) but vapid in another? How does E.B. White establish Fern’s character in the opening chapter of Charlotte’s Web? What makes Cynthia Kadohata’s Kira-Kira a novel for children rather than adults—or is it one? In this course, students will study many examples of children’s literature from the point of view of writers and will write their own short children’s fiction (picture book texts, middle-reader or young adult short stories) and share them in workshops. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Mandatory credit/one-credit.

Topic A for 2009-10: Creative Nonfiction
Schwartz (The Writing Program)
... all memoirs are false... The correct detail is rarely, exactly, what happened; the most truthful detail is what could have happened, or what should have... —John Irving
Creative nonfiction is a protean genre of writing, including narrative, dramatic, meditative, and lyrical elements of novels, plays, poetry and memoirs. In this course on writing creative nonfiction, we'll look at a range of forms so we can use the techniques in many different writing situations. We'll pay especially close attention to how writers of creative nonfiction can use fictional techniques to better express the truth about their lives. We'll also consider the ethical and artistic limits of transforming and embellishing personal experience in memoir. How does the implied contract between writer and reader differ between fiction and creative nonfiction?
Prerequisite: None.

Topic B for 2009-10: Writing the Travel Essay
Sides
If you have taken a trip lately—junior year abroad, summer vacation, spring break—or look back fondly or in horror at a family road trip, come write about your travels! We will be studying the genre of the literary travel essay (as distinguished from the more journalistic travel writing in newspaper travel sections) and writing our own travel narratives. The course will focus on the essentials of travel writing: evocation of place, a sophisticated appreciation of cultural differences, a considered use of the first person (remember, travel narratives are closely related to the genre of memoir), and basic strong writing skills.
ENG 213 Chaucer
Lynch
Feminist, misogynist, heretic, moralist, progressive, reactionary—these are some of the conflicting labels that have been applied to Geoffrey Chaucer, enigmatic father of English poetry. This course will study Chaucer in his many incarnations, as courtly love poet, religious homilist, and bawdy prankster in the Canterbury Tales and selected supplementary texts by Chaucer and his contemporaries.

ENG 222 Renaissance Literature
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The sixteenth century in England (1500–1600) was a time of spectacular literary experimentation, in which poets and playwrights strove in every kind of writing to put English on the map as a great literary language. In this course, we will read widely in mid- to late-sixteenth-century literature, including More's Utopia, the courtly lyrics of Surrey, Wyatt, Raleigh, and Queen Elizabeth herself, tragedies by Marlowe and Kyd, Lyly's erotic pastoral comedy Gallathea, and a portion of Spenser's Elizabethan epic The Faerie Queene. We'll also read some nonfiction such as Sidney's theory of the purpose of literature. Throughout, we will ask questions about genre, gender, language, selfhood, faith, and skepticism, questions with which sixteenth-century writers engaged in both distinctively Renaissance and startlingly "modern" ways.
Prerequisite: None

Unit: 1.0

ENG 223 Shakespeare Part I: The Elizabethan Period
Cain, Shetley
The formative period of Shakespeare's genius: comedies such as A Midsummer Night's Dream and The Merchant of Venice; histories such as Richard II and Henry IV (Part 1); and tragedies, such as Julius Caesar and Hamlet. We will undertake detailed study of Shakespeare's poetic language and will examine the dramatic form of the plays and the performance practices of Shakespeare's time. We will also explore important themes, ranging from gender relations and identities to national self-consciousness. The viewing and analysis of contemporary performances and films will be integrated into the work of the course.
Prerequisite: 20 or permission of the instructor
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video or Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ENG 224 Shakespeare Part II: The Jacobean Period
Cain, Ko
The great tragedies and the redemptive romances from the end of Shakespeare's career, chosen from among Troilus and Cressida, Measure for Measure, Othello, King Lear, Coriolanus, Antony and Cleopatra, Cymbeline, The Winter's Tale, and The Tempest. While encompassing thematic concerns ranging from gender relations to the meaning of heroism, particular focus will fall on tragic form and its transformation in the romances. Extensive attention will be paid to theatrical practices, Shakespearean and contemporary, aided by the viewing of stage performances and film adaptations.
Prerequisite: 220 or permission of the instructor

ENG 225 Seventeenth-Century Literature
Wall-Randell
Seventeenth-century literature is nothing if not passionate; its poems, plays, and prose brim with rapturous eroticism, ecstatic religious devotion (often both at once), murderous rage, dizzying intellectual fireworks. This period was also a radically experimental one in British history, in which the nation tried out a new form of government and philosophers offered new ways of investigating the world. Among other texts, we'll read the intricate "metaphysical" poetry of Donne, Herbert, Marvell, and Vaughan; the satric, gender-bending urban comedies of Jonson; the tragedies of Webster, whose female characters are the greatest in Renaissance drama after Shakespeare's; the meditations of Bacon and Burton; and the fiction of Wroth, Behn, and Cavendish, women writers who paved the way for the novel.

ENG 227 Milton
Noggle
Milton helped set the standard of literary power for generations of writers after him. His epic Paradise Lost exemplifies poetic inspiration, sublimity, creativity, originality, and unconventional, offering a richness of meaning and emotion that seems to provoke violently incompatible interpretations, even radical uncertainty about whether his work is good or bad. This course will focus on how Milton's poem challenges and expands our views of God, evil, heroism, Hell, good, Heaven, pain, bliss, sex, sin, and failure in startling ways. We will consider Milton as the prototype of a new kind of poet who pushed meaning to its limit, from his early writings, to Paradise Lost, to Paradise Regained at his career's end, and sample the range of critical responses his poetry has elicited.

ENG 234 Restoration and Eighteenth-Century British Literature
Noggle
Eighteenth-century literature is a great source of British humor. This course will survey major writers, including Pope, Swift, Fielding, Sterne, and Johnson, all (in different ways) screamingly and often disturbingly funny. Their texts exemplify the contradictory qualities British humor typically comprises—its wild exaggerations and dry wit, silly excessure and cutting social criticism, eccentricity and cool detachment. We will also consider humor in a larger sense: the notion of character and personality these writers developed, and connections between it and evolving gender, economic, political, and cultural relations in the period. Beyond merely amusing, the personalities unfolded in this literature are introspective and unsettled, skeptical and devout, sociable and sensitive, ambitious and curious, and help give the eighteenth century its distinctive flavor.

ENG 241 Romantic Poetry
Hickey
Emphasis on the great poems of six fascinating and influential poets: Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley, Byron, and Keats. As time allows, we'll read women poets of the period: Anna Barbauld, Mary Robinson, Dorothy Wordsworth, and Felicia Hemans. We'll consider such Romantic ideas and themes as imagination, free verse, originality, the processes of cognition and creativity, the correspondence between self and nature, the dark passages of the psyche, encounters with otherness, altered states of being, mortality and immortality, poetry and revolution, Romanicism as revolt, the exiled hero, love, sexuality, gender, the meaning of art, and the bearing of history. Open to students at all levels of familiarity with poetry.

ENG 245 Dead or Alive: The Object of Desire in Victorian Poetry
Hickey
Victorian poems stand among the most memorable and best-loved in all of English verse: they're evocative, emotionally powerful, idiosyncratic, psychologically loaded, intellectually engaged, daring, inspiring, and bizarre. We'll study Tennyson, the Brownings, Emily Brontë, the Bossietts, Arnold, Hopkins, and Hardy, with attention to their technique and place in literary history. Themes will include the power and limits of language, tradition and originality, love and sexuality, gender roles, the literary expression of personal crisis, religious faith and doubt, evolution, industrialism, and the role of art. Supplementary prose readings and forays into art history will illuminate literary, aesthetic, and social contexts, particularly those surrounding the Victorian poet, female authorship, and representations of female figures. Pre-Raphælites, Special Collections visit, viewing of Wilde's The Importance of Being Earnest.
Prerequisite: None

ENG 253 Contemporary American Poetry
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Six or eight out of the following poets will be discussed in light of poetry's evolving place in American culture: Elizabeth Bishop, Robert Lowell, Sylvia Plath, Frank O'Hara, John Ashbery, James Schuyler, James Merrill, A.R. Ammons, Rita Dove, Frank Bidart, Louise Glück, Jorie Graham, Susan Howe, James McMichael, Carl Phillips, Henri Cole.
ENG 262 American Literature to 1865
Rosenwald
A study of the first great period of American literature, from the 1830s through the Civil War. Prominent themes: freedom and slavery, nature and society, literature and politics, the development of distinctively American modes of writing. Principal authors: Frederick Douglass, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry David Thoreau, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Emily Dickinson, Walt Whitman, and Herman Melville (including all of Moby Dick). Opportunities for both critical and creative work.
Prerequisite: None

ENG 260/AMST 240 American Literature from the Civil War to the 1930s
Fisher (American Studies)
Special Topic for 2009-10: The Rise of an American Empire: Wealth and Conflict in the Gilded Age. An interdisciplinary exploration of the so-called Gilded Age and the Progressive era in the United States between the Civil War and World War I, emphasizing both the conflicts and achievements of the period. Topics will include Reconstruction and African-American experience in the South; technological development and industrial expansion; the exploitation of the West and resistance by Native Americans and Latinx; feminism, "New Women" and divorce; tycoons, workers, and the rich-poor divide; immigration from Europe, Asia, and new American overseas possessions; as well as a vibrant period of American art, architecture, literature, music, and material culture, to be studied by means of the rich cultural resources of the Boston area. Students may register for either ENG 260 or AMST 240 and credit will be granted accordingly.

ENG 267 American Literature from the 1940s to the Present
Ford
American literature from World War II to the present. Consideration of fiction, poetry, memoirs, essays, and films that reflect and inspire the cultural upheavals of the period. Possible writers to be studied include: Mailer, Morrison, Pynchon, Lowell, Bishop, Ginsberg, Burroughs, Nabokov, Ellison, Carver, Kingston, Roth, O'Connor, DeLillo, Salinger, Morrison, Schwartz, DeRosa, Smiley, Keller, McDermott, Lahiri, and Sparks.

ENG 269 Asian-American Literature
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. We will be reading novels and short stories by Asian-American writers, including Maxine Hong Kingston, Joy Kogawa, Ha Jin, Susan Choi, Wang Ping, Fae Ng, and Jhumpa Lahiri. Looking at works from the 1930s to the present moment, we will focus on themes of travel, mobility, arrivals and departures. What defines homelessness? What constitutes a home? When and where does a feeling of ordinariness or the everyday arise? And how do the experiences of male and female immigrants compare with each other? These are only some of the questions that we will consider as we explore this rich and exciting body of literature.

ENG 270 Experiencing London Then and Now
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This Winter session course examines how people self-consciously experienced the city of London in the eighteenth century, and how we experience it today. Walking, watching, getting lost in crowds and experimenting with identity were crucial then, as we see in writers ranging from James Boswell to Frances Burney, and remain important today, despite obvious changes in London's scale and organization. We will read works by Addison, Boswell, Gay, Burney, and others, and then spend around 12 days in London, visiting some of the same sites (theaters, parks, churches) and following some of the same itineraries. What continuities and discontinuities are there between eighteenth-century and postmodern urban experiences? Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.
Prerequisite: None, Application required.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 0.5

ENG 271 The Rise of the Novel
Lee
A study of how the genre of the novel begins in forgeries, poses as real documents and letters, and eventually reveals itself as a kind of literature uniquely suited to modern society. There will be a particular emphasis on the novel's enduring fascination with women and criminals, the choices they make and the rewards and punishments they receive. Authors include Behn, Defoe, Richardson, Fielding, Edgeworth, and Austen.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ENG 272 The Victorian Novel
Meyer
An exploration of the changing relationships of persons to social worlds in some of the great novels of the Victorian period. The impact on the novel of industrialization, the debate about women's roles, the enfranchisement of the middle and the working classes, the effect on ordinary persons of life in the great cities, the commodification of culture—these and other themes will be traced in the works of some of the following: Charlotte Bronte, Emily Bronte, Charles Dickens, George Eliot, Elizabeth Gaskell, George Gissing, Thomas Hardy.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ENG 273 The Modern British Novel
Redden
A consideration of the ways in which modernist writers reimagine the interests of the novel as they experiment with and reshape its traditional subjects and forms. From the frank exploration of sexuality in Lawrence, to the radical subversion of plot in Woolf, modernist writers reconfigure their notion of the writer, of story, of the very content of what can be said. A selection of works by T.S. Eliot, E.M. Forster, D.H. Lawrence, James Joyce, Virginia Woolf, Jean Rhys, and Joseph Conrad.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ENG 277 Modern Indian Literature
Sabin
Focus on novels, memoirs, and nonfiction—mostly contemporary, with some earlier examples of what now begins to make up a tradition of modern Indian literature in English. Controversial questions to be addressed include: what is “authentically” Indian? What is the writer’s responsibility to solve social and political problems? What role do women play in this literature? Introduction to important religious and political contexts will be provided, but primary attention will go to the literature itself, with some attention to films. Authors will likely include Gandhi, R.K. Narayan, Raia Rao, Anita Desai, Salman Rushdie, Bapsi Sidhwa, Rohinton Mistry, Jhumpa Lahiri, plus films directed by Satyajit Ray and Deepa Mehta.
Prerequisite: None

Unit: 1.0

ENG 281 American Drama and Musical Theater
Rosenwald
Study of some distinguished twentieth-century American plays, theater pieces, and musicals. Possible musicals: The Cradle Will Rock, Shareboat, West Side Story, Chorus Line, Into the Woods, Chicago. Possible playwrights and ensembles: Eugene O'Neill, Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams, Lorraine Hansberry, the Bread and Puppet Theater, the Teatro Campesino, Maria Irene Fornes, August Wilson, David Henry Hwang, Tony Kushner, Anna Deveare Smith. Focus on close reading, on historical and social context, on realism and the alternatives to realism, on the relations between text and performance. Opportunities both for performance and for critical writing.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theater, Film, Video or Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ENG 282 Topics in Literary Criticism
Lee
An introduction to critical theory through the reading of selected literary texts and the application of pertinent theoretical models.

Topic for 2009-10: Realism

How has the notion of realism been understood in relation to literature? Does it refer to an underlying attitude toward what is represented? Does it consist in a way of describing the surface details of the world around us? Or, rather, should realism be understood as a way of thinking about the larger movements of history and what drives it forward? Examining these questions will lead us to think about the social, cultural, and political functions of literature. We will read both fiction and theory; theorists will include Erich Auerbach, Roland Barthes, and Georg Lukács.
ENG 283 Southern Literature
A study of the literature of the American South, with special focus on the region's unique cultural traditions, the development of a distinctive body of stylistic and thematic characteristics, and the complex intersections of region, gender, ethnicity, and sexuality in Southern literary expression.

Topic for 2009-10: Gospel, Body, and Soul: Lyric Traditions in Black and White
A study of black and white artists whose careers are defined by agencies of conversion. One white artist will be John Donne, a legendary "convert" from profane to sacred art; another will be John Newton, whose own conversion (from slave trader to abolitionist) led him to write "Amazing Grace," a favorite hymn of both black and white congregations. Later in America, the true African-American equivalents of Donne differed from him by rejecting any "progressive" evolution of words away from music—they were singers and songwriters, not poets. Accordingly, the course will introduce African-American (1) gospel songs of the 1930s-60s; (2) sermons with their own refusals to exile words from melody; (3) and finally, the secular soul music which emerged from, or against, sacred music; here the artists will include Sam Cooke, Aretha Franklin, Marvin Gaye, Al Green—artists who, like Donne, struggled to "convert" to proper uses their God-given talents.

ENG 286/AMST 286 New Literatures
Fisher (American Studies)
Topic for 2009-10: Lesbian and Gay Writing from Sappho to Stonewall. This course will explore significant lesbian and gay literature from classical times to the present, including contemporary transformations of society, politics, and consciousness. The course will introduce elements of "queer theory" and gender theory; it will address issues of sexual orientation and sexual identification in works of poetry, autobiography, and fiction. Readings will include such writers as Sappho, Plato, William Shakespeare, Thomas Mann, Virginia Woolf, James Baldwin, Audre Lorde, Adrienne Rich, David Leavitt, Leslie Feinberg, Shyam Selvadurai, and Jeanette Winterson. Students may register for either ENG 286 or AMST 286 and credit will be granted accordingly.

ENG 301 Advanced Writing/Fiction
Channer
A workshop in the techniques of fiction writing together with practice in critical evaluation of student work. Students who have taken this course once may register for it one additional time. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

ENG 302 Advanced Writing/Poetry
Bodart
A workshop in intensive practice in the writing of poetry. Students who have taken this course once may register for it one additional time. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

ENG 315 Advanced Studies in Medieval Literature
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two literature courses in the department, at least one of which must be 200 level, or by permission of the instructor to other qualified students.

ENG 320 Literary Cross Currents
Rosenthal
Topic for 2009-10: Literature, Nonviolence, Violence. A study of how writers represent and experience the relations between nonviolence and violence, in epics, sacred texts, fiction, plays, poems, films, and essays. Possible works and authors: the Bhagavad-Gita, John Woolman's Journal, the Book of Mormon, Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin, Tolstoy's Resurrection and some study of Tolstoy's life, Shaw's Major Barbara, John Buchan's Mr. Standfast, Erich Maria Remarque's All Quiet on the Western Front, Brecht's Mother Courage, Camus' The Just Executioners, William Wyler's Friendly Persuasion, Norman Mailer's Armies of the Night, Daniel Berrigan's The Trial of the Catonsville Nine, Patricia Barker's Ghost Road Trilogy: a broad range of war and antiwar poems; texts in political theory by Gandhi, Walt Whitman, Franz Fanon, Barbara Deming, William Vollman. Opportunity for both creative and critical work.

ENG 324 Advanced Studies in Shakespeare
Cain
Topic for 2009-10: Hamlet Versus King Lear: Which Is Shakespeare's Greatest Play? From the seventeenth century to the present, scholars, critics, directors, filmmakers, audiences, and readers, as well as countless teachers and students, have discussed and debated, often in heated terms, the question, Which is Shakespeare's greatest play, Hamlet or King Lear? In this course, we will confront and seek to answer this question, examining both texts in depth, and in relation to important films, stage productions, and scholarly books and articles. We will also attend an on-campus production of King Lear, presented in late September by the Shakespearean touring company, Actors From The London Stage.

ENG 325 Advanced Studies in Sixteenth- and Seventeenth-Century Literature
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two literature courses in the department, at least one of which must be 200 level, or by permission of the instructor to other qualified students.

ENG 335 Advanced Studies in Restoration and Eighteenth-Century Literature
Lee
Topic for 2009-10: London. The crowded, dangerous, seductive, ever-growing city of London figured prominently in the literature and drama of the eighteenth century. How did new forms of urban experience and new forms of literature emerge together? In what ways did the city itself come to take on new types of meaning? We'll explore an unusually wide range of genres: journals, novels, dramas, poetry. Topics will range from the art of walking in the city to the sport of competitive conversation, from the plague to social posers. We will pay particular attention to the nexus of crime, theatricality, and spectatorship from which a self-consciously modern urban self emerges. Authors will include Defoe, Johnson, Boswell, Burney, Blake, Wordsworth and De Quincey.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two literature courses in the department, at least one of which must be 200 level, or by permission of the instructor to other qualified students.

ENG 345 Advanced Studies in Nineteenth-Century Literature
Hickey
Topic for 2009-10: Love, Sex, and Imagination in Romantic Poetry. Study of Romantic poets (and some prose), focusing on the role of eros in Romantic conceptions of imagination. Passion, sympathy, sensibility; the lover as Romantic subject; gendering the sublime and the beautiful; sexual/textual ambiguity; gender and genius; the sublime potential of unutterable or unspakable love; the beloved as muse; enchantresses and demon lovers as figures of imagination; the attractions, dangers, excesses, and failures of idealizing erotic imagination (sentimentalism, narcissism, solipsism, disenchantment); desire as Romantic quest; sexual politics; love (and its discontents); non-normative or transgressive sex (free love, homosexuality, incest, hypersexuality, adultery); (homo)erotics of Romantic literary friendship, rivalry, and collaboration. <td>ENG 355 Advanced Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature Sabin</td>
<td>Topic for 2009-10: Irish Literature: The Terror and the Wit. Modern Irish literature is often at once shocking in its violence and funny, in subversive, sly, and macabre ways. Examples from drama, fiction, poetry, and film will allow us to explore the power of wit and humor to enliven political, domestic, and existential struggles without diminishing their underlying terror. The course will address literary responses to anti-colonial and sectarian strife in the twentieth century, and will consider how political violence and economic poverty play out in representations of sexual and family relationships. Freud's theories of the psychological dynamics of wit and humor, along with readings in contemporary cultural criticism will provide additional perspectives to the primary reading by such authors as Oscar Wilde, J.M. Synge, W.B. Yeats, James Joyce, Samuel Beckett, Roddy Doyle, Martin McDonagh. A few recent and contemporary Irish films will also be included.</td>

<td>A journey through the dark side of the American imagination. Where classic Hollywood filmmaking trades in uplift and happy endings, film noir inhabits a pessimistic, morally ambiguous universe. This course will explore the development of this alternative vision of the American experience, from its origins around the time of World War II, through the revival of the genre in the early 1970s, to its ongoing influence in contemporary cinema. We'll pay particular attention to noir's redefinition of American cinematic style, and to its representations of masculinity and femininity. Films that may be studied include Howard Hawks's The Big Sleep, Billy Wilder's Double Indemnity, Robert Altman's The Long Goodbye, Roman Polanski's Chinatown, and David Lynch's Mulholland Drive. Students may register for ENG 363, AMST 317, or CAMS 345 and credit will be granted accordingly.</td>

<td>ENG 353 Race and Ethnicity in Literature Ford</td>
<td>Topic for 2009-10: The American Novel in Black and White. This course examines the American novel from the Civil War period onwards by pairing works by black and white writers, each pair concerning the same theme or historical moment. We will use these oppositions to examine the ways in which the American literary imagination has always depended on an (often invisible) Other to crystallize its ideas about national identity. By focusing on subjects, such as slavery and miscegenation, that have been bitterly divisive in American history, we will also try to think through the role that literature takes on in defining contentious historical developments both at the time of their unfolding and after the fact. Authors to be read may include Herman Melville, Harriet Beecher Stowe, William Faulkner, Charley Chesnutt, Octavia Butler, and Charles Johnson.</td>

<td>ENG 365/365 Images of the American City Brogan and Cuba Sociology</td>
<td>This course considers how literary representations and sociological studies of urban life variously respond to the astonishing growth of cities in the twentieth century, helping to shape newly emergent and highly contested cultural meanings of the city. In considering the interplay between mind and urban forms, we'll explore the relationship between the individual and the urban environment, how life in cities is socially organized, patterns of immigration and tensions between ethnic groups, the creation of the slum and ghetto and efforts to gentrify them, cognitive mapping, and the legibility of the cityscape. We'll also discuss how literary and sociological perspectives on the city meet and diverge. Authors may include: Stephen Crane, Georg Simmel, Robert Park, Ann Petry, James Baldwin, Anselm Strauss, Paule Marshall, Kevin Lynch, Anna Deavere Smith, and Elijah Anderson. <td>Topic for 2009-10: Nineteenth-Century Novels of Romantic Mistake. &quot;Reader, I married him.&quot; Jane Eyre tells us as her novel draws to a close. Many nineteenth-century novels end with a marriage. So despite suggestions within the body of the novel that women's traditional role is not a satisfying one, the heroine seems contented in that role by the novel’s end. But what if the heroine chooses wrongly? In this course, we will consider novels that look at a heroine's life after a marriage that she comes to regret, as well as some novels in which the bad romantic choices do not result in marriage. What do these novels of romantic mistake have to say about women's lives? Probable authors: Anne Brontë, Charlotte Brontë, James, Austen, Eliot. Special attention will be given to the process of researching and writing a long seminar paper.</td>

Topic for 2009-10: Contemporary Poetry and the Individual Talent. Our era in poetry is one of self-conscious movements—Confessional poets, New York School poets, Language poets. Beat poets, poets of so-called “identity politics.” This course will examine four poets whose work has defied others’ attempts to classify it and in some cases deliberately defies classification: John Berryman, Louise Glück, A.R. Ammons, and Anne Carson. How do poets devise, in self-imposed isolation, forms of beauty, wit, sadness, alarm, elation? How do poems written from behind the curtain of extreme idiosyncrasy reach, and move, readers? How have these poets imagined social life, the lives of families, friendship, disappointment (or pride) in one’s country?

Topic A for 2009-10: Charlotte Brontë and Virginia Woolf: Victorian and Modern Feminisms

Rodentsy

In a well-known sequence from A Room of One’s Own, Virginia Woolf takes Charlotte Brontë to task for what she names as an “awkward break” in Jane Eyre. Woolf’s critique not only reveals her own complicated attitudes toward anger, but also figures the break between the Victorian and the Modern and suggests the central place that Brontë occupies in Woolf’s arguments about the history of women’s writing. In this course, we will consider the different and not-so-different narrative practices of these two authors who have each played so central a role in the development of feminist theory and criticism. Assigned texts will include Brontë’s Jane Eyre, Shirley, Villette and Woolf’s The Voyage Out, Mrs. Dalloway, To the Lighthouse, and A Room of One’s Own.

Department Information

Courses at the 100 level are open to all students and assume no previous college experience in writing study. They provide good introductions to such study because of their subject matter or their focus on the skills of critical reading.

ENG 120 (Critical Interpretation) is open to all students, but is primarily designed for prospective English majors. The course trains students in the skills of critical reading and writing. 200-level literature courses, with the exception of Shakespeare (223 and 224), are open to all students without prerequisite. They treat major writers and historical periods, and provide training in making comparisons and connections among different works, writers, and ideas. 300-level literature courses encourage both students and instructors to pursue their special interests. They presume a greater overall competence, together with some previous experience in the study of major writers, periods, and ideas in English or American literature. They are open to juniors and seniors who have taken two literature courses in the department, at least one of which must be 200 level, and by permission of the instructor or chair of other qualified students. For independent work (350), students with at least a 3.33 GPA in courses in the department will have first consideration. Students are encouraged to confer with the instructors of courses in which they are interested. Students should consult the more complete descriptions of all courses, composed by their instructors and available from the department administrative assistants.

Creative Writing. The English department offers beginning and advanced courses in poetry (ENG 202 and 302), in fiction (ENG 203 and 301), in children’s literature (ENG 205), and in screenwriting (ENG 204/CAMS 204). A literary non-fiction writing course (ENG 206/WRIT 225) that covers different genres (for example, reviewing the arts, travel writing, personal essay, and memoir) is offered in collaboration with The Writing Program. The Theatre Studies Department offers an introductory playwriting course (THST 221). These courses are open to all Wellesley College students. Creative writing courses are taught mandatory credit/uncredit.

Requirements for the Major

The English major consists of a minimum of 10 units, at least eight of which must be in areas other than creative writing. At least seven units must be above 100 level, and of these at least two units must be earned in 300-level literature, film, or literary theory courses. At least eight of the units for the major must be taken in the department, including the two required units in 300-level courses dealing with literature, film, or literary theory; with the approval of a student’s major advisor, two courses taught within language and literature departments and related interdisciplinary programs and departments at Wellesley and other approved schools may be offered for major credit; these may include literature courses taught in translation or language courses at the third-year level or higher. (Students graduating in the classes of 2011 or earlier are required to take six of the units for the major in the department; for these students, up to four courses may be taken from courses outside the department as approved by the chair.) Students planning to study for a full academic year in a program abroad in the United Kingdom should seek the counsel of their advisors or the department chair to avoid running up against the college’s rule that 18 courses must be taken outside any one department; universities in the U.K. commonly require all courses to be taken within their English departments.

WRIT 125 does not count toward the major. Courses designated 125/126 satisfy both the ENG 120 requirement and the WRIT 125 requirement, and count as a unit toward the fulfillment of the major. Other combined sections, such as WRIT 125/ENG 122, count toward the major as well. Independent work (350, 360, or 370) does not count toward the minimum requirement of two 300-level courses for the major or toward the 10 courses required for the major. 300-level courses in creative writing also do not count toward the minimum requirement of two 300-level courses.

All students majoring in English must take ENG 120 (Critical Interpretation), at least one course in Shakespeare (200 level), and two courses focused on literature written before 1800, of which at least one must focus on literature before 1800.

Courses taken in other departments at Wellesley College may not be used to satisfy any of the above distribution requirements, with the exception of ME/R 246, which satisfies the pre-1800 distribution requirement. With the chair’s permission, courses taken abroad during junior year or during the twelve college exchange may satisfy certain distribution requirements. ENG 112, 223, and 224 do not satisfy the pre-1800 distribution requirement. Transfer students or Davis Scholars who have had work equivalent to 120 at another institution may apply to the chair for exemption from the critical interpretation requirement.

The creative writing concentration in the English major. The creative writing concentration within the English major is designed for majors with a strong commitment to developing their own creative work. Students electing the creative writing concentration take a series of workshops in one or more creative genres (fiction, poetry, children’s literature, playwriting, screenwriting, and creative nonfiction) and select, in consultation with their advisor, courses in literary study that provide the background in and knowledge of literary tradition necessary to make a contribution to that tradition.

Students interested in the creative writing concentration are urged to begin planning their programs early in their careers at Wellesley. It is expected that they will have taken at least one writing workshop by the time of election of the English major (spring semester sophomore year or fall semester sophomore year, for students going abroad), and have been in touch with a member of the creative writing faculty to plan the major. English majors electing the creative writing concentration must choose a member of the creative writing faculty as their advisor. Students who are interested in the creative writing concentration, but who do not feel confident that they have had sufficient experience in writing to choose the concentration at the time of the election of the major should elect the English major; they may add the creative writing concentration later.

Students electing the creative writing concentration must fulfill all the requirements of the English major, including ENG 120, a course on Shakespeare, the period distribution requirements, and two 300-level literature courses. It is expected that creative writing students will take a focused program of critical study in the genre or genres in which they specialize.

In addition to eight courses in the critical study of literature, majors in the creative writing concentration take a minimum of four units of creative writing work. Creative writing courses may be repeated once for additional credit. A student who is extremely motivated and capable of independent work and who has the permission of a faculty advisor may take an independent study (ENG 350); however, it is recommended that students take full advantage of the workshop experience provided by the creative writing courses. A student qualifying for honors in English and whose proposal has been approved by the Creative Writing Committee may pursue a creative writing thesis; the thesis option, although it includes two course units (ENG 360 and ENG 370), can only count as one of the four creative writing courses required by the concentration. Creative writing faculty generally direct creative theses; however, other English department faculty may direct creative theses.

Requirements for the Minor

The English minor consists of five units:
(A) 120 and (B) at least one unit on literature written before 1900 and (C) at least one 300-level unit, excluding 350 and (D) at least four units, including the 300-level course, taken in the department. One course taught within language and literature departments and related interdepartmental programs at Wellesley and other approved schools may be offered for minor credit; these may include literature courses taught in translation or language courses at the third-year level or higher. A maximum of two creative writing units may be included. A course on Shakespeare can count toward the minor, but it does not fulfill the pre-1900 requirement.

Honors

The department offers a single path toward honors. The honors candidate does two units of independent research culminating in a thesis or a project in creative writing. Applicants for honors should have a minimum 3.5 GPA in the major (in courses above 100 level) and must apply to the chair for admission to the program. Except in special circumstances, it is expected that students applying for honors will have completed five courses in the major, at least four of which must be taken in the English department at Wellesley. A more detailed description of the department's application procedure is available from the department's administrative assistants.

Graduate Study

Students expecting to do graduate work in English should ordinarily plan to acquire a reading knowledge of one and, if possible, two foreign languages. They should take ENG 382 (Criticism) or an equivalent course in literary theory. They should also consult with the department's graduate school advisor, and with their major advisor, about courses that are appropriate for those considering graduate work in English.

Teacher Certification

Students interested in obtaining certification to teach English in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult with the chair of the education department and the English department liaison to the education department.

Advanced Placement Policy

Students may receive credits toward their Wellesley degree for their performance on AP or IB examinations. Because no high school course is considered the equivalent of a course in the English department, the English department does not grant credit toward the major for AP or IB courses. First-year students and other undeclared majors contemplating further study in English are encouraged to consult the department chair or the department pre-major advisor in relation to their course selection. Students majoring in English should discuss their programs with the chair or their major advisor, and should consult with them about any changes they wish to make during their junior and senior years.

Environmental Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
AND MINOR

Professor: DeSombre (Director)
Assistant Professor: Turner
Advisory Faculty: Argow (Geosciences), Besancon (Geosciences), Brabander (Geosciences), Coleman (Chemistry), Jones (Biological Sciences), Mattison (Geosciences), Pardelberg (Political Science), Rodenhouse (Biological Sciences), Sequeira (Biological Sciences), Sneeuw (Economics), Thomas (Biological Sciences), Turner
Affiliated Faculty: Karakasidou (Anthropology), Moore (Biological Sciences), Stark (Physics), Steady (African Studies)

Environmental Studies is a particular way of thinking, conducting research, and posing questions. We recognize that knowledge of societies, the environment, and the complex and multifaceted relationship they share, emerges from a wide range of disciplines, including the sciences, social sciences, and humanities. An environmental studies major or minor aims to provide students with critical skills that will allow them to engage current environmental issues and prepare to recognize future ones. Central to this goal is helping students develop independent critical thinking, problem framing, and problem solving skills across disciplines and cultures with which they can diagnose and prioritize a wide range of environmental issues, from the local to the international, from the most pressing to the most long-term. Because of the interdisciplinary nature of environmental issues, the program draws upon courses from multiple departments. Each student will choose electives in consultation with her advisor to help focus her studies on an issue or approach that interests her.

Goals for the Major/Minor

The Environmental Studies program seeks to educate students to:
• Identify and analyze significant current and past environmental issues using skills that bridge multiple academic disciplines
• Recognize emerging environmental trends and evaluate emerging issues
• Evaluate multiple political and cultural perspectives on the relationship between human activities and environmental effects
• Consider environmental issues politically, economically, scientifically, culturally, and ethically
• Conduct laboratory and field work using current analytical techniques
• Be confident in oral and written presentation of information to audiences with differing levels of knowledge
• Research and devise potential solutions for environmental problems.

ES 101 Introduction to Environmental Studies with Laboratory: Methods and Analysis
Rodenhouse, Thomas (Biological Sciences)
Explore the campus and beyond in an interdisciplinary manner. Topics include the movement of materials through the environment, ecosystem analysis, principles of resource management, and pollution control. Investigate timely environmental problems and work toward solutions

100 Environmental Studies
using skills such as computer modeling, X-ray fluorescence spectroscopy, and spatial data analysis using GIS. A combination of field and laboratory work will be integrated with discussion and reading assignments. Either 101 or 102 may be taken first. (ES 101 replaces ES 100 for students fulfilling the old version of the major)

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Open to first years and sophomores; juniors and seniors may only enroll with permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken ES 100.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay requirement.
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.25

ES 102 Introduction to Environmental Studies: Issues and Concepts

Turner

This course offers an interdisciplinary introduction to Environmental Studies, with a focus on climate change. Major concepts that will be examined include: the state of scientific research, the role of science, politics, and economics in environmental decisionmaking, and the importance of history, ethics and justice in approaching climate change. The central aim of the course is to help students develop the interdisciplinary research skills necessary to pose questions, investigate problems, and develop strategies that will help answer our relationship to the environment. Either 101 or 102 may be taken first.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring

ES 111/GEOS 111 The Yucca Mountain Problem: Where Should We Put Nuclear Waste?

Besancon (Geosciences)

Choices about disposal of radioactive materials will affect countless future generations. Focusing on the proposed storage facility at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, we will examine the important scientific questions that must be answered for long-term safety of a nuclear repository. Students will learn the scientific principles governing risk assessment, groundwater movement, volcanicism, earthquakes, and the groundwater properties of the repository rocks, and how each affects the safety of the proposed containment facility. We will also examine the evidence and methods used to predict how the waste and the containers designed to hold it will behave for long periods. Students will identify key issues and produce small group projects examining some of the scientific issues raised by this controversial proposal. Students may register for either ES 111 or GEO 111 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Open only to first year students.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

ES 201/GEOS 201 Methods and Problems in Environmental Science with Laboratory

Brabander (Geosciences)

Problems in environmental science are inherently multidisciplinary and often require a diverse set of skills to analyze and solve. This course will focus on developing a toolbox of skills including field methods, geochemical analysis (natural waters, soils and other environmental materials), and modeling with a goal of being able to frame and solve environmental problems. Students will conduct semester-long research projects and will present their results in a final poster session. Students may register for either ES 201 or GEOS 201 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: One of the following: [100], 101, GEOS 101, 102 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.25

ES 203 Cultures of Environmentalism

Turner

What is environmentalism? This course explores how different communities of people have answered that question in the United States and abroad. It focuses on the mainstream environmental movement and other formulations of environmentalism, such as environmental justice, deep ecology, animal rights, and indigenous peoples' concerns for the environment. This course takes an interdisciplinary approach to examining the role of culture in shaping how people have valued the environment and organized to protect it. What role do the arts, popular culture, and literature play in environmental activism? What are the ethical and philosophical foundations of modern environmental movements? How is environmental activism historically specific and shaped by particular constructions of race, gender, religion, and nature? The goal of this course is to consider how environmental activism and decisionmaking can and must be sensitive to cultural context.

ES 210/GEOS 210 Hydrogeology—Water and Pollutants with Laboratory

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Investigation of water supply and use. Principles of surface and groundwater movement and water chemistry are applied to the hydrologic cycle to understand sources of water for human use. Mathematical groundwater models are used to understand groundwater movement and pollutant plumes. Quantity and quality of water and the limitations they impose are considered. Not fully offered this semester. Students may register for either ES 210 or GEOS 210 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: GEO 101 or GEO 112 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O, Offered 2010-11.

ES 212/RAST 212 Lake Baikal: The Soul of Siberia

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. The ecological and cultural values of Lake Baikal—the oldest, deepest, and most biotically rich lake on the planet—are examined. Lectures and discussion in spring prepare students for the three-week field laboratory taught at Lake Baikal in eastern Siberia in August. Lectures address the fundamentals of aquatic ecology and the role of Lake Baikal in Russian literature, history, art, music, and the country’s environmental movement. Laboratory work is conducted primarily out-of-doors and includes introductions to the flora and fauna, field tests of student-generated hypotheses, meetings with the lake’s stakeholders, and tours of ecological and cultural sites surrounding the lake. Students may register for either ES 212 or RAST 212 and credit will be granted accordingly. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean’s Office approval.

Prerequisite: ES 101 or BISC 111, RUSS 101, and permission of the instructor. Preference will be given to students who have also taken HIST 211. Application required.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O, Offered in 2010-11.

ES 214/POL 214 Social Causes and Consequences of Environmental Problems

DeSimone

This course focuses on the social science explanations for why environmental problems are created, the impacts they have, the difficulties of addressing them, and the regulatory and other actions that succeed in mitigating them. Topics include: externalities and the politics of unpriced costs and benefits, collective action problems and interest group theory, time horizons in decision-making, the politics of science, risk and uncertainty, comparative political structures, and cooperation theory. Also addressed are different strategies for changing environmental behavior, including command and control measures, taxes, fees, and other market instruments, and voluntary approaches. These will all be examined across multiple countries and levels of governance. Students may register for either ES 214 or POL 214 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: ES 101, or one course in political science, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall

ES 217/BISC 217 Field Botany with Laboratory

Griffith (Botany Fellow)

Field Botany is a combination of "What's that wildflower?" and "Why does it grow over there and not here?" The course covers aspects of plant systematics and identification (with an emphasis on the local flora and important plant families) and plant ecology (with an emphasis on ecological interactions and phenomena unique to plants). Laboratories will primarily be taught in the field and greenhouses and will include using dichotomous and Web-based keys to identify plants, observational and experimental studies, and long-term study of forest patches on the Wellesley campus. Laboratories will also include experimental design and data analysis. Field Botany is not only to train students of botany and plant ecology, but to engage them in botany every time they step outside. Students may register for either ES 217 or BISC 217 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: ES 101 or BISC 108 or BISC 111
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.25

ES 222 Dynamic Modeling of Environmental Issues

Coleman (Chemistry)

A hands-on introduction to the application of systems dynamics to developing computer-based models for complex problems, with an emphasis on the environment. Starting with simple closed systems, students will develop models of increasing sophistication and complexity for issues such as population dynamics, air and water pollution, energy production and usage, waste management and sustainable development. Emphasis will be placed on the principles of problem solving and systems dynamics and on developing models that reflect, as closely as possible, real-world situations and the interconnectedness of various environmental concerns.

ES 381/POI 381 United States Environmental Politics

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. This course explores the politics of environmental issues in the United States. The course has two primary goals: First, to introduce students to the institutions, stakeholders, and political processes important to debates over environmental policy at the federal level. Second, to develop and practice skills of analyzing and making decisions relevant to environmental politics and policy. Drawing on the literature of environmental politics and policy, this course will consider how environmental issues are framed in political discourse, various approaches to environmental advocacy and reform, and the contested role of science in environmental politics. The course will be organized around environmental case studies, including endangered species conservation, public lands management, air and water pollution, and toxic regulation.

Students may register for either ES 381 or POI 381 and credit will be granted accordingly:
Prerequisites: 102, 214, POI 208, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.0

Individual Study
ES 250 or 350 (Research or Individual Study) can be advised by any member of the advisory faculty in environmental studies. They may count towards the area of concentration. A half-unit course may only count as credit towards the major when combined with another half-unit course. Only two units of independent study may be counted towards the major. ES 350 courses may not be used to fulfill the minimum requirement that two electives be at the 300 level.

ES 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor, ordinarily limited to students who have completed at least three units toward their major.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ES 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor, ordinarily limited to students who have completed at least three units toward their major.

Related Courses
The following courses may be used as electives. No more than one 100-level course may be used as an elective for the major and 100-level electives may not be used for the minor. Courses not listed may be accepted by petition. (Note that some 200- and 300-level courses have prerequisites outside of required Environmental Studies courses.)
AFR 226 Environmental Justice, “Race,” and Sustainable Development
BISC 108 Environmental Horticulture with Laboratory
BISC 201 Evolution with Laboratory
BISC 202 Evolution with Laboratory
BISC 308 Marine Biology with Laboratory
BISC 308 Tropical Ecology with Winter session Laboratory
BISC 319 Population Genetics and Systematics: Evolution on Islands with Laboratory
ECON 228 Environmental and Resource Economics
GEOS 101 Earth Processes and the Environment with Laboratory
GEOS 102 The Dynamic Earth with Laboratory
GEOS 110 The Coastal Zone: Intersection of Land, Sea, and Humanity with Laboratory
GEOS 208 Oceanography
GEOS 304 Sedimentology with Laboratory
GEOS 308 Wetlands Science with Laboratory
GEOS 320 Isotope Geochemistry
PHIL 233 Environmental Philosophy
POLI 332S Seminar: People, Agriculture, and the Environment

Requirements for the Major
There are three components to the 10-course major:
1. Three core courses (ES 101, ES 102, and ES 300).
   (Students who took ES 100 in 2006 or earlier may count that version of the course and may choose either to take ES 102 or to replace it with an elective; for students fulfilling the old version of the major, ES 101 can replace ES 100 in the requirements.)
2. One course in each of these categories provides breadth:
   a. Science: ES 201 or BISC 201
   b. Social Science: ES 214 or ECON 228 (which requires ECON 101 as a prerequisite)
   c. Humanities: ES 203 or ES 299 or PHIL 233
3. Four electives from Environmental Studies courses and the list of Related Courses, at least two of which must be at the 300 level.
   Note that ES 201, ES 203, ES 214, ES 299, BISC 201, ECON 228, and PHIL 233 can be taken as electives (but no single course can fulfill two requirements for the major). These courses should be approved by the student's advisor prior to enrollment. Two half-credit courses may be combined to count towards a single elective.

Students who entered Wellesley before the fall of 2007 have the option to complete the current major requirements or the requirements in effect at the time of their declaration. For students who choose this option, the previous major requirements are as follows:
There are three components to the 11-course major:
1. Two core courses (ES 100 and ES 300). Note, ES 100 is no longer offered. ES 101 may be taken as a substitute.
2. Five courses in an area of concentration (at least one of which must be at the 300 level). The three areas of concentration are:
   1) Environmental Justice and Philosophy
   2) Environmental Policy and Economics
   3) Environmental Science.
3. Four complementary elective courses from outside the area of concentration.

Students may count no more than three courses taken away from Wellesley towards the environmental studies major. These courses should be approved by the director prior to enrollment.

Requirements for the Minor
There are three components to the 5-course minor:
2. Breadth: one course in each of these categories:
   a. Science: ES 201 or BISC 201
   b. Social Science: ES 214 or ECON 228 (which requires ECON 101 as a prerequisite)
   c. Humanities: ES 203 or ES 299 or PHIL 233
3. One elective from ES courses or Related Courses. (ES 300 may be chosen as the elective.)

Students may count no more than three courses taken away from Wellesley towards the environmental studies major and no more than one course taken away from Wellesley towards the environmental studies minor. These courses should be approved by the director prior to enrollment. AP credit in Environmental Science cannot be used to replace any Environmental Studies requirements.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. A student whose GPA in courses in her environmental studies major is 3.5 or higher may apply to write an honors thesis. The proposal should be submitted in April of the student's junior year. Students should have identified a topic, an advisor, and a committee of two additional faculty members (one of whom must have expertise in areas outside the topic or approach of the proposed thesis) before applying. The applications are evaluated by the advisory faculty. Students planning to study abroad should discuss their interest in honors with potential advisors during their sophomore year, and plan to submit their application in April of their junior year abroad.
Off-Campus Programs

By special arrangement with the Ecosystems Center of the Marine Biological Laboratory and the Marine Studies Consortium, Wellesley College students in good standing may apply for courses in these off-campus programs. The number of participants in each program is limited (see Special Academic Programs). Students should also consider courses at MIT and Olin College. Courses at MIT and Olin, as well as EXTD courses count as Wellesley courses, rather than as courses taken off campus, for the purposes of the environmental studies major, but specific courses must be approved by the student's advisor to count towards the major. For courses offered during the Semester in Environmental Studies, Ecosystems Center of the Marine Biological Laboratory, Woods Hole, Massachusetts, see www.mbl.edu/SES.

Experimental

According to College legislation, the student-faculty Committee on Educational Research and Development has the authority to recommend experimental courses and programs to Academic Council. Faculty members and students are invited to submit their ideas to the committee. In 2009-10 the following experimental courses will be offered:

ASTR 104/PHIL 104 Stars and the Sages: Philosophy and the Cosmos

de Warren (Philosophy), French (Astronomy)

This first-year seminar explores the changing views of the universe from the ancient Greeks, through the emergence of the scientific revolution to the startling advances in cosmology during the twentieth century, and includes visits to Wellesley College Library's Special Collections and observations from the Whitin Observatory; no particular competence in mathematics is required. We begin with readings from Plato, Aristotle and ancient Greek astronomers and their concern to understand the inherent rationality of the universe. We next turn to the discoveries of Copernicus, Kepler, Galileo, and Newton. Our exploration of philosophy and astronomy will then address Einstein's theories of special and general relativity, evidence for the Big Bang, and contemporary perplexity regarding the presence of dark matter and dark energy. Students may register for either ASTR 104 or PHIL 104 and credit will be granted accordingly

Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.

Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition

Semester: Spring

CS 114 The Socio-Technological Web

Metaxas

As more and more people use the technologies and services made available from computer science, online environments like Facebook, Second Life, MySpace, Wikipedia, blogs, and open source development communities, have been flourishing. It is becoming clear that problems existing in our real world transfer and become amplified in the virtual world created by our interconnectivity. This course will start by studying the structure of the traditional Web and its recent successor, the Social Web, and will focus on issues of virtual identity, personal and group privacy, trust evaluation and propagation, online security, critical thinking, online propaganda, googlearchy, fraud and manipulation, restricted resources, class differences, self-perception, and decision-making. Students are required to attend an additional 70-minute discussion section each week. Students can receive Mathematical Modeling distribution credit for only one of 110 and 114.

Prerequisite: None.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall

EXP 105 The Nuclear Challenge

Koldysh (Chemistry)

Since the discovery of nuclear fission in the 1930s, the potential of nuclear energy both for war and for peace has presented an ongoing challenge to humanity. Daily newspaper accounts of developments in Iran and North Korea, and of the need for sources of energy other than fossil fuels highlight the importance of understanding the potential of the nucleus. This course will examine the development of nuclear weapons and the treaties limiting them, as well as the ongoing danger of nuclear terrorism. It will also examine peaceful uses of nuclear energy for the generation of electricity and for medical diagnosis and treatment, as well as the waste disposal problems that result from these uses. Course materials will include primary and secondary historical documents, literature and films. No scientific background required.

Extradepartmental

The following section includes courses of interest to students in various disciplines.

EXTD 102 Humanity 101: Origins; Ethics; Destinations
Rogers (History)

How did human life come about? Did a god or gods create us? Are we an evolutionary adaptation? What are the potential ethical implications of humanity was created by some divine force or by accident? How might the origins of human life affect our understanding of death or any possible afterlife? This course invites first-year students to read, discuss, and compare influential works of literature, art, and music from antiquity to the present that raise similar questions about humanity’s origins, the ethical implications of those origins, and death. The objective of this course is to provide first-year students with a broader framework of profound reflection upon humanity’s existential questions before they have embarked upon their disciplinary paths.

Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 106 Women in Science: Their Lives and Work
Wolfson (Chemistry)

This course will explore the pursuit of science by women in twentieth and twenty-first centuries. We will focus on women’s participation in specific areas of science and their day-to-day experiences. Among the issues to be addressed—through biographies, oral histories, statistics, and scientific papers—are the nature of scientific work and differences among fields, women’s accomplishments and recognition in the sciences, and barriers to success. We will consider theories concerning women’s involvement in the scientific enterprise and how these theories have changed over time.

Prerequisite: None. Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 115 Introduction to Botanical Art
Roche (Friends of Horticulture) and Govan (Friends of Horticulture)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. "If you can paint a leaf, you can paint the world" (Ruskin). This course will focus on the roles of botanical art in fine art and science, both historically and in the present day. Students will study the exacting skills demanded of the artist, through study of examples in Wellesley College Library’s Special Collections and in practical applications, in the Wellesley College’s Ferguson Greenhouses, students will obtain grounding in botanical knowledge, basic instruction in representational drawing and color study, as well as an appreciation of the knowledge of the botanical illustrator, as scientist and artist. Mandatory credit/ noncredit. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean’s Office approval.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: None
Semester: N/0
Unit: 0.5

EXTD 160 Introduction to Engineering Science
Turbak (Computer Science; Olin course taught on Wellesley campus)

Introduction to Engineering Science is offered to students who are intrigued by engineering as a philosophy or a career. It is meant to help students gain a taste of engineering. The course is project-based and hands-on and will also have a design-and-prototyping component. Students will explore four concepts central to engineering: effort and flow—how power flows between interacting objects regardless of their domain; transduction—the bidirectional transformation of effort and flow from one domain to another, state—how systems remember the past; and the powerful idea of feedback—used in almost all engineered devices to bring about desired behavior despite undesired disturbances.

Prerequisite: PHYS 107 or the equivalent or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 215 W.E.B. Du Bois: Public Intellectual Rollins (African Studies)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will explore Du Bois’s life, times, and contributions, as a scholar, an advocate and activist. Special attention will be given to his work for women’s rights, decolonization, racial justice, and economic reform. Du Bois’s thinking on these and other issues will be revealed in selections from the Atlanta University studies, The Philadelphia Negro, The Souls of Black Folk, Duskwater, The World and Africa, as well as editorials in The Crisis and other articles. Du Bois’s autobiography and Lerner Lewis’s biography will provide the foundation for understanding Du Bois’s life and times. While most of the readings will be nonfiction, some of Du Bois’s creative writing will also be included. The documentary, W.E.B. Du Bois: A Biography in Four Voices, will complement the readings.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: N/0
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 310 Ethics and Difference
Prabhu (French)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A course on the idea of difference in historical perspective; focuses on ethical aspects of claiming/identifying difference. Study of difference in texts by the philosophers of the Enlightenment, journals or personal papers of voyagers and colonial administrators, fiction, reflections on method by anthropologists, twentieth-century critical/philosophical work, and medical ethics. Emphasizes critical thought and expression. Focuses on methods for close reading/study to generate and develop research questions. Individual assignments based on students’ interests/disciplines. Possible themes of difference include gender, race, ethnicity, nationality, class, disability, and differential power in individual or group relationships.

Prerequisite: Open to seniors; juniors by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/0
Unit: 1.0

Marine Studies Consortium Courses

The Marine Studies Consortium offers courses focusing on a variety of aquatic topics. These courses are taught at neighboring institutions and are open to a limited number of Wellesley students by permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.

EXTD 123 Water Resources Planning and Management

A comprehensive introduction to the economics and ecology of water supply and water pollution control. Topics include watershed management, groundwater and wetlands protection, and wastewater treatment. The inherent difficulty in applying static laws and regulations to a dynamic natural resource such as water is a recurring theme. Offered by the Marine Studies Consortium.

Prerequisite: None. Open to permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 126 Maritime History

This course is an introduction to New England’s maritime history, with secondary emphasis on its relationship to the coastal ecosystem. The course will survey the sea’s legacy from the earliest eighteenth-century fishing settlements to the shipbuilding and commerce of today. Course themes will include historical, political, and economic developments. Field trips will explore the rich resources of the Peabody Essex Museum, Salem, Massachusetts; the USS Constitution, Boston, Massachusetts; and Mystic Seaport, Connecticut. Offered by the Marine Studies Consortium.

Prerequisite: None. Open to permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.
Distribution: None
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 128 Coastal Zone Management

This course presents a survey of the coastal environment, its physical characteristics, natural systems, economic uses, and development pressures. Lectures examine strategies formulated in the U.S. for land and water-resource management in the coastal zone. The roles of federal, state, and local government, environmental groups, and resource users are also explored. Finally, by comparing coastal-zone management problems in the U.S. to those elsewhere in the world, students gain a global perspective. Offered by the Marine Studies Consortium.

Prerequisite: None. Open to permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.
Distribution: None
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 225 Biology of Fishes

This upper-level survey course covers the evolution, systematics, anatomy, physiology, and behavior of freshwater, marine, and anadromous fishes from temperate to tropical environments. The course also examines the diversity of fish interactions in aquatic communities: predator/prey relationships, host/symbiont interactions, and the various roles of fishes as herbivores. Study of inter- and intra-specific predator-prey relationships among fish populations in aquatic communities integrates principles of ecology. Offered by the Marine Studies Consortium.

Prerequisites: One year of general biology and two upper-level biology courses. Open to students by permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.

Distribution: None
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

EXTD 226 Biology of Whales

This upper-level course examines the biology and conservation of cetaceans: whales, dolphins, and porpoises. Topics include physiology, population biology, life history analysis, molecular genetics, morphology, distributional ecology, and social behavior. Lectures focus on the biology of cetaceans and how they are adapted to the marine environment. Subsequent lectures use case studies to review how ecological principles can be applied to the conservation of a wide range of cetacean species. Offered by the Marine Studies Consortium.

Prerequisites: One year of general biology and two upper-level biology courses. Open to students by permission of the consortium representative, Marianne Moore, Department of Biological Sciences.

Distribution: None
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ASTR 104/PHIL 104 Stars and the Sages: Philosophy and the Cosmos

French (Astronomy), de Warren (Philosophy)

ASTR 108 Discovering Our Universe with Laboratory

McLeod (Astronomy)

This course leads first-year students through hands-on exploration of the structure of the universe and our place within it. We will measure the size, shape, and spin of the earth by using simple homemade instruments to observe the sky. We will learn to use Wellesley’s own telescopes to explore the arrangement and contents of our own Solar System. Finally, we will determine our place within the Milky Way galaxy and the universe using data obtained from the National Virtual Observatory. No prior experience in astronomy is required, but algebra and trigonometry will be used. Evening laboratory at the observatory. Mandatory credit/no credit.

Prerequisites: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Open only to first-year students. Students who take ASTR 108 may not take ASTR 109.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ECON 101F Principles of Microeconomics

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.

This first course in economics introduces students to the market system. Microeconomics considers the decisions of households and firms about what to consume and what to produce, and the efficiency and equity of market outcomes. Supply and demand analysis is developed and applied. Policy issues include price floors and ceilings, competition and monopoly, income distribution, and the role of government in a market economy.

Prerequisites: Open to first-year students only. Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

EDUC 117 Diversity in Education

Doré (Spanish)

An introduction to issues in diversity and multicultural education. We will examine rationales for diversity--and multicultural education and some of the effects of these policies. We will analyze implications of diversity for teaching and learning, and study the influences of race, ethnicity, gender, language, socioeconomic status, and religion on schools and school curricula, with a focus on tensions surrounding increasing diversity in American education.

Prerequisites: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ES 111/GEOS 111 The Yucca Mountain Problem: Where Should We Put Nuclear Waste?

Besancon (Geosciences)

Choices about disposal of radioactive materials will affect countless future generations. Focusing on the proposed storage facility at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, we will examine the important scientific questions that must be answered for long-term safety of a nuclear repository. Students will learn the scientific principles governing risk assessment, groundwater movement, volcanism, earthquakes, and the groundwater properties of the repository rocks, and how each affects the safety of the proposed containment facility. We will also examine the evidence and methods used to predict how the waste and the containers designed to hold it will behave for long periods. Students will identify key issues and produce small group projects examining some of the scientific issues raised by this controversial proposal. Students may register for either ES 111 or GEOS 111 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisites: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Sciences
Semester: Spring

GEOS 110 The Coastal Zone: Intersection of Land, Sea, and Humanity with Laboratory ARGow (Geosciences)
This first-year course focuses on physical processes that frame ecological and human interactions within the dynamic coastal environment. At local field sites, students will observe, sample, and measure coastal processes in action to answer such questions as: Why do some beaches lose sand, where does it go, and what should we do about it? What are coastal wetlands, and how do they form and function? Field trips will be supplemented by information drawn from popular and scientific literature and media. Students will participate in ongoing research to learn how scientific data is generated, analyzed, and applied. Final projects involve field and laboratory research on a local coastal issue, including management implications. Weekend field trip required.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only. Preference will be given to students considering science majors. By permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall

POL 108 State and Society in Contemporary China
NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. This course will use the case of contemporary China to introduce students to the discipline and major subfields of political science. To illustrate the subfield of comparative politics, our analysis of modern China’s political development and government will be placed in the context of the experiences of other developing nations and (former) communist party-states. Political theory will be a through-the-course as we explore ideas from Confucianism to Communism that have shaped political life in China. For international relations, we will look at China’s recent rise as one of the world’s great powers. As an example of American politics in action, we will study the various influences that go into the making of U.S. China policy.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/A
Unit: 1.0

SOC 105 Doing Sociology—Applying Sociological Concepts to the Real World Levitt (Sociology)
The goal of this course is to learn to analyze real-life situations using sociological tools. The course is organized around a series of exercises that will teach students different analytical techniques and explore sociological theories and concepts. Projects may include reading novels, analyzing films, working with census data, interviewing, conducting surveys, participant observation, debating, and a small independent research project. Each project will focus on a subject in the discipline and will serve as a platform from which students can explore basic theories, analytic categories, and methods. Students will work individually, in pairs, and in small groups.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

THST 101 Can We Have an Argument? Understanding, Employing, and Delivering Sound Rhetoric
Arciniegas (Theatre Studies)
This course will apply theatrical performance training to the art of public speaking or rhetoric. One of the three original Liberal Arts, the art of discourse has been recognized as fundamental to the creation of knowledge, and the development of thought. Employing dramatic and non-dramatic texts, original student-written work, and an occasional Saturday Night Live sketch, students will discover the power of words to change hearts and minds, as well as their ability to understand the speaker who does not know how to use them properly. The course is intended to develop communicative and expressive skills in students, who might not be drawn to the fine arts, but who might benefit from theatrical training to become more effective thinkers, listeners, and speakers.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only, or by permission of the instructor.

WGST 121 Reading Elvis Presley and 1950s America
Creed (Women’s and Gender Studies)
Some have argued that Elvis Presley was the greatest cultural force in twentieth-century America. This course will consider the early career of Elvis Presley as a unique window for the study of race, class, gender, and heteronormative sexuality in postwar popular American culture. Specifically, we will look at the blending of African-American and other forms of musical styles in Presley’s music, the representation of masculinity and sexuality across a sampling of his films and television performances, at key cultural film texts from the 1950s, and end with evaluating Presley’s lasting impact as a unique icon in American cultural history.
Prerequisite: Open only to first-year students.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film and Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

All WRIT 125 classes, including those that satisfy requirements within majors, are intended for First-Year students. Please refer to the section of the catalog for the Writing Program’s offerings.

Many departments and programs recommend specific courses as entryways into their majors. Some are limited to first-years and sophomores; others reserve seats for first-year students. Please consult the first-year program Web site at http://www.wellesley.edu/FirstYear/ or the relevant department for more information.
Department of French

Professor: Mistacco, Lydgate, Renspau, Levitt (Chair), Masson, Datta
Associate Professor: Petterson, Prabhhu
Senior Lecturer: Egres-Sparrow, Tranmouez

The French department's courses develop skills in the language of France and French-speaking countries and offer access to cultures that are rich in tradition and have important roles to play in a rapidly diversifying Europe and a rapidly contracting world. All but one of our courses, from elementary to advanced, are taught in French. Their topics, in literature and culture, span 10 centuries, from the Middle Ages to the present. In addition to opening cultural doors, the department's courses help students develop a number of critical skills and habits—linguistic, analytical, interpretive, expressive.

Early in the language cycle students encounter material from different parts of the world, from historical periods that range from the medieval to the contemporary, and in a variety of genres and media. They encounter as well a number of different approaches to reading and analyzing texts: historical, sociological, psychological, and literary—including the perspectives of race and gender and women's studies. Students who graduate from our program have gone on to further study in (among other areas) the law, medicine, international relations, museum science, art and art history, English, French, and Middle Eastern Studies, as well as to careers in publishing and on Wall Street and Madison Avenue. Graduates routinely report that their skills in French are a significant asset in pursuing careers with international organizations and companies.

Goals for the Major

• The French department expects linguistic competence of its majors at graduation; students should be able to express themselves with a considerable degree of sophistication and near-native accuracy both orally and in writing.

• All majors are expected to develop their knowledge of the literature and culture of France and are encouraged to learn about the literature and culture of other Francophone countries as well. Students should also be able to conduct rigorous in-depth research using primary as well as secondary sources on both literary and cultural topics.

Please see Requirements for the Major below for information about the major.

FREN 207 Perspectives on French Culture and Society: French Identity in the Age of Globalization
Datta
In this introduction to French society and culture, we will examine France's identity crisis at the beginning of the twenty-first century. From its historical position of political, economic, and intellectual leadership in Europe and the world, France is searching to maintain its defense as a defender of quality over mass appeal and the proud values of its national tradition in the face of increasing globalization. Topics covered include Franco-American relations, the European Union, immigration, the family, and the role of women in French society. Readings are drawn from a variety of sources: historical, sociological, and ethnographic. Magazine and newspaper articles, along with television programs and films will provide supplementary information.
Prerequisite: 202, 203, or 205, an SAT II score of 650-680, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP examination score of 4.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

FREN 208 Women and Literary Tradition
Mistacco
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to women's writing from Marie de France to Marguerite Duras, from the Middle Ages to the twentieth century. The course is designed to develop an appreciation of the evolution of women's writing across the centuries and of women's place in French literary history. Special attention is given to the continuities among women writers and to the impact of their minority status upon their writing. Well-known writers, such as Christine de Pizan, Louise Labé, Beauvoir, Colette and Duras, and lesser-known figures, such as Hélène de Crecy and the fairy tale contesuses, Authoy, Villeneuve and Le Prince de Beaumont, are studied.

Prerequisite: 202, 203, or 205, an SAT II score of 650–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 4.

Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

FREN 215 Baudelaire, Verlaine, Rimbaud
Regnault

This course emphasizes close study of a body of poetry which ranks among the most influential in Western literature, and which initiates modern poetics. Baudelaire will be treated in relation to romanticism and conceptions of the modern. In Verlaine, we will study the development of free verse and the liberation of poetic form. The course will conclude by confronting Rimbaud's effort to "changer la vie" through his visionary and surreal writing.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

FREN 216 Mothers and Daughters
Mistaco

This course will examine the mother/daughter relationship in French literature, in autobiographical writing including personal correspondence, and in art from the late-seventeenth to the present in the context of evolving concepts of motherhood and the education of girls in French culture. Recent feminist criticism will be brought to bear on the conflicts and complexities of the mother/daughter dynamic, highlighting both its enabling and engulfing aspects and its role as a vehicle for transmitting societal values as well as challenging them. Authors and artists include: Ségvèn, Lambert, Genlis, Rousseau, Charrière, Vigée-Lebrun, Sand, Desbordes-Valmore, Colette, Irigaray and Chawaf.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

FREN 217 Books of the Self
Lydgate

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course focuses on texts that seek to reveal the reality of the self in the space of a book, including readings of confessional and autobiographical works by the twentieth-century writers Camus, Annie Ernaux, Roland Barthes, and Maryse Condé, and by their literary ancestors Augustine, Abelard, Montaigne, and Rousseau. Themes examined include: the compulsion to confess; secret sharing versus public self-disclosure; love, desire, and language; the search for authenticity; dominant and minority voices; the role of the reader as accomplice, witness, judge, confessor.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Religion, Ethics and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

FREN 218 Négritude, Independences, Women's Issues: Francophone Literature in Context
Prabhu

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course seeks to understand key concerns of writers from the colonized world. We will study writing in different genres by the young African writers and poets who met in Paris in the early-twentieth century. We will discuss issues concerning women in independence movements and later in the newly independent nations. The impact of colonialism and independence on different indigenous societal institutions, polygamy in particular, will be central to the later readings.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature

Unit: 1.0

FREN 219 Love/Death
Regnault

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course investigates the connection between fiction and film and our fundamental preoccupation with the issues of love and death. Texts ranging from the Middle Ages to the twentieth century are studied, with an eye toward understanding how the themes of love and death are related to story structure, narration, and the dynamics of reading.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature

Unit: 1.0

FREN 222 French Cinema

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of French cinema with a focus on three key periods: the 30s, the 60s and the 90s. Starting with classics by Jean Renoir, Marcel Carne, and Julien Duvivier, the course will study the stylistic revolution brought about by the New Wave and the mark it has left on recent French cinema. The films will be analyzed from a variety of perspectives: political and socioeconomic contexts, gender representations, narrative patterns, and visual metaphors of subjectivity.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above; an SAT II score of 690–800, an equivalent departmental placement score, or an AP score of 5.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video

FREN 224 Versailles and the Age of Louis XIV

Bills

Louis XIV sought to present his royal court at Versailles as the ultimate in monarchical splendor and power. Yet writers who frequented the court focus on its dangerous intrigues, moral corruption and petty rivalries. The course will explore this discrepancy through close study of official and unofficial productions of the court. Royal paintings, medallions, architecture, ceremonies and official historiography all foreground the Sun King's glory; novels, memoirs, letters and moral treatises seem to undo the very notions of courtly magnificence put forward by the monarchy. Both elements are crucial to understanding the social, political, religious and artistic practices that defined the court. Recent films and historical works on Versailles will help us evaluate its legacy for contemporary French culture.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above, an SAT II score of 690-800, an AP score of 5, or an equivalent departmental placement score.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies
Semester: Winter
Unit: 1.0

FREN 225 The French Press

Gauthier

This course is designed for students who want to become more familiar with the French media, to keep up with current events and to know more about the differences between the perspectives of French and American news sources with regard to current issues. The course is also intended to improve students' reading, writing, and speaking skills in French.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above, an SAT II score of 690-800, an AP score of 5, or an equivalent departmental placement score.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Social and Behavioral Analysis

FREN 228 Wintersession in Paris:

Datta

Topic for 2009-10: Pleasures of Paris: Paris in the Age of Mass Culture, 1860–1930. In the second half of the nineteenth century, Paris was transformed through the process of hausmannisation from a medieval city to a modern capital known for its entertainments and pleasures.

The construction of the new boulevards and monuments, along with the emergence of mass democracy and the popular press, gave rise to a culture of spectacle and display. This interdisciplinary course explores life on the boulevards, Montmartre as a revolutionary space and a place of popular entertainment, the grands magazines, and the café culture enjoyed by American writers and artists during the interwar years. Sites to be visited include the Musée d'Orsay, the Opéra Garnier, the grands magazines, Montmartre, Père Lachaise cemetery, as well as tours of the grands boulevards and of Left Bank cafés. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above, an SAT II score of 690-800, an AP score of 5, or an equivalent departmental placement score. Application required.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies
Semester: Wintersession
Unit: 1.0

FREN 229 America through French Eyes: Perceptions and Realities

Datta

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The French have long been fascinated by the United States, especially since the end of the Second World War. At times, the U.S. has been seen as a model to be emulated in France; more often, it has stood out as the antithesis of French culture and values. This course explores French representations of the United States and Americans through an examination of key historical and literary texts—essays, autobiographies, and fiction—as well as films. Topics to be explored include: representations of African Americans in French films (Josephine Baker), French views of Taylorization, the Coca-Cola wars of the 1950s, French-American tensions during the Cold War, especially under de Gaulle, as well as more recent debates about Euro Disney, McDonald's, Hollywood, globalization, and multiculturalism.

Prerequisite: At least one unit of 206, 207, 208, 209 or above, an SAT II score of 690-800, an AP score of 5, or an equivalent departmental placement score.

FREN 232 Occupation and Resistance: The French Memory and Experience of World War II (in English)

Datta

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Few experiences in recent French history have marked collective memory as profoundly as World War II. During these years, the French dealt not only with the trauma of defeat and the German Occupation, but also with the divisive legacy of the collaborationist Vichy regime, headed by Marshal Philippe Pétain, a revered World War I hero. Memories of the war have continued to mark the public imagination to the present day, manifesting themselves in the various arenas of French national life. This course examines the history and memory of the French experience of World War II through historical documents, memoirs, films, literature, and songs. Does not count toward the minimum major in French.

FREN 301 Books and Voices in Renaissance France

Lydgate

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Innovative writers in sixteenth-century France and the ideas and forms of expression they explored in the early decades of printing. The persistence of oral culture and the search for a voice in print; the triumph of French over Latin as a literary language of sublime and satirical discourses; the collisions of propaganda and censorship in a century torn by religious strife; the emergence of new audiences and new strategies of narration and reading. Readings in prose works by Rabelais, Montaigne, Calvin, Marguerite de Navarre; poetry by du Bellay, Ronsard, and Louise Labé. Periodic references to resources of the Rare Books Collection in the College library.

Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.

FREN 304 Male and Female Perspectives in the Eighteenth-Century Novel

Mistretto

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Drawing from feminist inquiries into the politics of exclusion and inclusion in literary history, the course examines, in dialogue with masterpieces authored by men, novels by major women writers of the period. Though much admired in their time, these novels were subsequently erased from the pages of literary history and rediscovered only in the late-twentieth century. In this course, we will reconsider this particular literature of female dissent along with key novels by men as part of a crisis in legitimacy that led to the French Revolution. Works by Prévert, Claudine-Alexandrine de Tencin, Françoise de Graffigny, Marie-Jeanne Riccoboni, Rousseau, Diderot, Laclos, and Isabelle de Charrière.

Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.

FREN 313 George Sand and the Romantic Theater
Mason
George Sand, multifaceted woman and influential writer, allows us to explore the romantic theater as well as the overall theater production of the nineteenth century. The fact that Sand’s theater was overlooked in her time and subsequently forgotten raises important questions of public recognition and literary postherty that we will examine.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.

FREN 317 Commitment and the Contemporary French Poet
Peterson
An examination of twentieth and twenty-first century French poetry through the reception of Jean-Paul Sartre’s mid-century Qu’est-ce que la littérature? (1948) and through poetry’s elaboration of a pragmatic response to the charge that it is politically uncommitted. Readings ranging from Tzara’s Dadaism, to the surrealism of Breton and Valéry on poetry and anarchy, to Césaire, Senghor and the wartime poetry of Eluard, Char and Ponge, to Jacques Dupin and André du Bouchet in the wake of 1968, to the contemporary writings of Deguy, Fourcade, Cadiot, Hocquard, Reda, Noél and Alferi, who pursue equally subtle challenges to the political and philosophical connotations of poetry.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.

FREN 319 Women, Language, and Literary Expression
Mistaco
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores the notion of difference in fiction by twentieth-century women writers in France. It examines challenges to literary conventions, patriarchal thinking and the dominant discourse in major works by Beauvoir, Colette, Chavel, Wittig, Duras, and Djebbar. Attention is focused on gender as a site of discourse and on the creative possibilities as well as the risks involved in equating femininity with difference. Perspectives on women, writing, and difference in colonial and postcolonial contexts. Selected readings from foundational and recent works by feminist theoreticians including Cixous, Kristeva, and Irigaray.

Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

FREN 327 A Fascination with Bodies: The Doctor’s Malady
Repaat
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The addictive interplay between doctors and patients as reflected in a variety of nineteenth- and twentieth-century writings, and in photography and film. The course will investigate the effect of sickness on family structure and the struggle with illness as a desperate “dancing with the beast,” touching on mental and physical suffering of various kinds—hysteria and alcoholism, childbirth and abortion, tuberculosis, cancer, AIDS—represented in novels and short stories from Barbey d’Aurevilly to Gide, in the reflections of historians and psychologists (Michel de Chateaubriand, and in biographies, personal accounts and autobiographies by Guibert and Ernaux.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

FREN 329 Colette/Duras: A Pleasure unto Death
Repaat
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Two prolific authors whose works embrace the span of women’s writing in the twentieth century and who correspondingly illustrate the essential features of modern expression by women. Attention to the phases of a woman’s life, sexuality, the figure of the mother, eroticism and race, and the relation between fiction and autobiography.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

FREN 330 French and Francophone Studies
Prabhu
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The course examines various texts from the post-independent Francophone world to understand pressing concerns in different postcolonial regions. Close attention will be paid to narrative techniques while studying questions concerning the relationship with the metropolis and the functioning of language(s). Includes a brief introduction to the history of Francophone literature. Texts by Driss Chaib, Maryse Condé, Axel Gauvin, Assia Djebar.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

FREN 331 Desire, Sexuality, and Love in African Francophone Cinema
Prabhu
An exploration of interpersonal relationships within traditional or transgressive couples in African Francophone cinema. Consideration of various cultural and social backgrounds will frame our discussion of such controversial issues as chiterdectomy, polygamy, and homosexuality.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring

FREN 332 Myth and Memory in Modern France: From the French Revolution to May 1968
Datta
This course explores the way in which the French view their past as well as the myths they have created to inscribe that past into national memory. Through an approach simultaneously thematic and chronological, modern French history and culture will be examined from the perspective of “les lieux de mémoire,” that is, symbolic events (Bastille Day), institutions (the Napoleonic Code), people (Joan of Arc), and places (Sacre-Coeur) that have shaped French national identity. The course begins by analyzing such concepts as the nation and the hexagon, and proceeds to the legacy of key moments in French history, among them the French Revolution and the Napoleonic era, the estabishment of the Third Republic, the two World Wars, the Algerian conflict, and the events of May 1968.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

FREN 333 French Classical Tragedy: Corneille Versus Racine: Rethinking the Parallel Bilis

Ever since La Bruyère’s famous comment on Corneille and Racine respectively, “The first depicts men as they should be, the second as they are,” they are usually opposed as the two French tragedians. In this course, we will take a critical approach to the notion of “Auteurs Classiques” and the seventeenth century’s status as the “Grand Siècle” by questioning the archetypal Corneille and Racine parallel in light of important but marginalized playwrights such as Jean Rotrou, Tristan l’Hermite and Catherine Bernard who defy standard definitions of Classicism and tragedy. We will explore the many variations on the Corneille and Racine parallel, asking if there is a “Grand Corneille” and a “Tender Racine,” and considering why certain historical periods deemed one playwright to encapsulate “French values” and patriotism more than the other. Students will become familiar with an array of seventeenth-century tragedies and reflect on the process and politics of literary canonization.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.

FREN 349 Studies in Culture and Criticism

Topic A: La Belle Époque: Politics, Society, and Culture in France: 1880-1914
Datta

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In the aftermath of World War I, French men and women viewed the preceding years as a tranquil and stable period in French history. Yet, during the era, subsequently known as la belle époque, the French experienced changes of enormous magnitude: the emergence of both consumer culture and a working class, the development of a national press, and the expansion of an overseas colonial empire. Such ebullience was reflected in the emergence of Paris as the capital of the European avant-garde. Drawing on literary texts and historical documents, as well as on films, posters, and songs, this interdisciplinary course examines French society, politics, and culture during the era that ushered France into the modern age.
Prerequisite: 211 (or for classes of 2010-2011 only, 210 may be substituted) and one additional unit, 212 or above.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

Topic B: France and Europe: Ambiguities, Obstacles, and Triumphs
Gunther

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. After an introduction to various social, cultural and political aspects of contemporary France and the French, we will turn our attention to issues surrounding France’s role in the project to unify Europe. We will examine how France’s anxieties and hopes for the European Union are shared by other European nations, and how France is experienc-
Study Abroad

All our students, majors and non-majors alike, are encouraged to spend a year or semester abroad in France or a Francophone country as a way of deepening their academic learning with real-time experience. A student who has mastered enough French to enter sympathetically into the language’s many cultures is likely to be more complexly understanding, more subtly perceptive, more keenly articulate and more expansively communicative than her neighbor who has not. To move within more than one frame of cultural reference and to have French sounds and songs and bilingual jokes in one’s head are deep intellectual pleasures. They are also highly useful tools in the real world because they foster the ability to see reality from the standpoint of others as well as from one’s own. In an age of globalization, this is a valuable skill—in diplomacy, business, politics, and of course in human relations. The department also has funds to support a limited number of summer internships in France or Francophone countries. The department encourages those students who cannot spend a semester abroad to participate in the department’s Wintersession course in Paris.

Maison Française

Qualified students are highly encouraged to live at the Maison Française. The Maison Française is a French-speaking residence and a cultural center for the Wellesley College community. It houses 14 students and two French assistants from the University of Provence It is a place where majors and non-majors who have demonstrated a significant competence in French live and can exchange ideas. During the academic year, the Maison Française organizes seminars, talks and colloquia, and students are encouraged to attend.

French Cultural Studies

The French Department also offers an interdepartmental major in French Cultural Studies. This major is intended for students whose interests in the French and Francophone world are primarily cultural and historical. Students are directed to the description of the major and its directions for election, which appear at the end of the French curriculum.

French Cultural Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: Datta (French)

The French Cultural Studies major is intended for students whose interests in the French and Francophone world are primarily cultural and historical. This interdepartmental major combines courses from the department of French with those in Africana studies, art, history, music, political science, or any other department offering courses on France or Francophone countries. The French department’s courses in history and sociology are the core of the program. These courses examine institutions, political and social movements, along with the mass media, using methodologies grounded in the social sciences, primarily history and sociology. Other French department offerings in the field include courses that place literature and film in a social context. French Cultural Studies majors ordinarily work closely with two advisors, one from the French department and one from their other area of concentration.

Goals for the Major

- Students should develop an in-depth understanding of French history, culture, society and politics.
- Students should also be able to conduct rigorous in-depth research using primary as well as secondary sources on cultural and historical topics.
- Because they take courses in one or more departments outside the French department, students grow in their understanding of the scope and methods of other disciplines and gain new analytical frameworks for thinking about the cultures and histories of France and the Francophone world.

AFR 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

AFR 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: By permission of Director. See Academic Distinctions. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

AFR 370 Senior Thesis

Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department. Distribution: None. Semester: Fall, Spring. Unit: 1.0

For courses not exclusively on France or a Francophone topic, students are expected to write their main paper(s) on a French theme. In addition, and in consultation with the director, research and individual study (350) may be approved. The procedure to be followed for honors is identical to that for the French major.

Department Information

One hundred and two-hundred level courses. FREN 101-102, 103 and 201 (starting with the class of 2011) count toward the degree but not toward the major. First-year students who begin with FREN 101-102 in college and who plan to study abroad should consult the chair of the department during the second semester of their first year.

113 French Cultural Studies
Requirements for the Major

The major in French Cultural Studies consists of a minimum of eight units. At least four units in the French department above the 201 level are required including FREN 211 (for students in the classes 2010 and 2011 only, FREN 210 may be substituted) and FREN 207. In special cases, an upper-level culture course in French approved by the program director may be substituted for FREN 207. At least one unit in French at the 300 (advanced) level is required. All majors must take two 300-level courses at Wellesley College. FRST 350, 360 and 370 do not normally count towards the minimum requirement of two 300-level courses for the major. In exceptional cases, this requirement may be waived by the French Cultural Studies director and/or the chair of the French department. No more than two courses taken credit/noncredit at Wellesley College may be applied to the French Cultural Studies major.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. Students must complete a 300-level course or its equivalent before the fall of senior year. In addition, a 300-level course is to be taken concurrently with 360-370. See Academic Distinctions.

Teacher Certification

Students interested in obtaining certification to teach French in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult the chair of the education department.

Department of Geosciences

Chair: French (Astronomy)
Associate Professor: Besancon, Brabander, Hawkins
Assistant Professor: Argow
Lecturer: Mathson

Instructor in Geosciences Laboratory: Gilbert, Weller

Geoscience is the study of the Earth and all its systems. Interactions between the solid earth, the hydrosphere, atmosphere and biosphere continually reshape the Earth. Geoscientists investigate these interactions using interdisciplinary approaches to address questions related to how the Earth formed, how it evolved over geologic time, and how its continued evolution affects the environment in which we live. Understanding the Earth's many linked systems is increasingly important if we are to make informed decisions about the many critical environmental issues facing humanity, including global climate change, sea-level rise, shortages of drinking water, health hazards posed by materials in our urban environment, and mitigation of threats from earthquakes, landslides, volcanic eruptions, tsunamis, floods and other natural hazards. The Department of Geosciences offers courses on the nature and history of the Earth, the processes that shape the Earth, the impacts those processes have on human populations, and our ability to live sustainably. Student research opportunities complement the program of study.

Goals for the Major

Geoscience majors will acquire fundamental knowledge and understanding of the Earth, past and present, its internal structure and composition, the internal and surficial processes that shape its evolution, and how earth systems interact to produce the environment in which we live; develop their cognitive and analytical reasoning skills by completing core coursework with field- and lab-centered learning experiences; develop their ability to frame and solve interdisciplinary geoscientific problems; and become more effective communicators of science through repeated opportunities to refine their written, oral, and visual/spatial communication skills.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have taken 101.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.

Unit: 1.25

GEOS 102 The Dynamic Earth with Laboratory Staff

Introduction to geologic processes ranging from microscopic growth of mineral crystals to regional erosion and deposition by water, wind, and ice to volcanism and earthquakes associated with global plate motions. A particular focus of the course will be to better understand the interactions between human activities and the geologic environment. Laboratory and field trips.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have taken 101.

Distribution: Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.25

GEOS 110 The Coastal Zone: Intersection of Land, Sea, and Humanity with Laboratory Argow

This first year course focuses on physical processes that frame ecological and human interactions within the dynamic coastal environment. At local field sites, students will observe, sample, and measure coastal processes in action to answer such questions as: Why do some beaches lose sand, where does it go, and what should we do about it? What are coastal wetlands, and how do they form and function? Field trips will be supplemented by information drawn from popular and scientific literature and media. Students will participate in on-going research to learn how scientific data is generated, analyzed, and applied. Final project involves field and laboratory research on a local coastal issue, including management implications. Weekend field trip required.

Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only. Preference will be given to students considering science majors. By permission of the instructor.

GEOS 111/ES 111 The Yucca Mountain Problem: Where Should We Put Nuclear Waste? Besancon (Geosciences)

Choices about disposal of radioactive materials will affect countless future generations. Focusing on the proposed storage facility at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, we will examine the important scientific questions that must be answered for long-term safety of a nuclear repository. Students will learn the scientific principles governing risk assessment, groundwater movement, volcanism, earthquakes, and the groundwater properties of the repository rocks, and how each affects the safety of the proposed containment facility. We will also examine the evidence and methods used to predict how the waste and the containers designed to hold it will behave for long periods. Students will identify key issues and produce small group projects examining some of the scientific issues raised by this controversial proposal. Students may register for either GEOS 111 or ES 111 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only.

Unit: 1.0

GEOS 101 Earth Processes and the Environment with Laboratory

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11.

The Earth is home to more than six billion people and millions of kinds of animals and plants. Geologic processes both rapid (earthquakes and landslides) and slow (mountain building and sea level rise) are intimately linked with sustaining this diversity of life. This course will examine these and other processes in which the atmosphere, geosphere, and biosphere are linked via the flow of energy and mass. Laboratory and field trips will introduce skills needed to observe and document processes shaping our environment. Problem solving in small group during class time will foster critical thinking, and classroom debates between larger teams will focus research and communications skills on current issues in geosciences such as building and removing dams, and the science surrounding global climate change.

Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only. Preference will be given to students considering science majors. By permission of the instructor.

Unit: 1.0
GEOS 200 The Earth and Life Through Time with Laboratory
Mattison
How have the Earth and life changed throughout their 4.6-billion-year histories? How do subtle interactions among tectonics, climate, and life alter the world you see? We will examine past events, including sea-level change, mountain building, climate change, and evolution/extinction as recorded in the rock record. Using Wellesley's extensive fossil and rock collections, we will explore changing landscapes and environments through geologic time. Field trips and laboratory exercises provide the students with the opportunity to reconstruct the past.
Prerequisite: 101 or 102
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 201/ES 201 Methods and Problems in Environmental Science with Laboratory
Brabander
Problems in environmental science are inherently multidisciplinary and often require a diverse skill set to analyze and solve. This course will focus on developing a toolbox of skills including field methods, geochemical analysis (natural waters, soils, and other environmental materials), and modeling with a goal of being able to frame and solve environmental problems. Students will conduct semester-long research projects and will present their results in a final poster session. Students may register for either GEOS 201 or ES 201 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One of the following: 101, 102, ES 101 and permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 203 Earth Materials with Laboratory
Hawkins
An introduction to the materials—minerals, rocks, magmas, sediments, soils—that make up the Earth, and how those materials influence the processes that operate within and on the surface of the Earth. Emphasis is placed on the geological, chemical and physical basis for understanding the physical properties and chemical composition of minerals, magmas, rocks and soils, and the processes by which these materials form. Lecture and laboratory sessions are integrated to create a studio-style, project-based learning experience.
Prerequisite: 101 or 102
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 205 Vertebrate Paleontology: Revolutions in Evolution
Mattison
From fish to amphibian, "reptile" to mammal, dinosaur to bird, organisms on Earth have adapted to moving continents, climate variations and fluctuating sea levels. Students will piece together the history of vertebrate life using the paleontologist's tools; the fossil record, functional morphology, phylogeny and paleoecology. Two weekend field trips will be required. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: 101, 102, BSC 111 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

GEOS 206 Structural Geology with Laboratory
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10, OFFERED IN 2010-11. This course will consist of weekly outings to nearby field areas where sedimentary stratification, lava flows and other igneous features, metamorphic foliations, unconformities, folds and faults can be seen in outcrop. Indoor sessions will introduce maps, cross sections and stereographic projection as methods for representing such structures, and establish the physical and tectonic conditions under which they form. Course will conclude with a student-led field trip and written field guide. Rain gear will be necessary. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: 201 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 208 Oceanography
Argew
Covering 71 percent of the Earth's surface and encompassing 98 percent of Earth's water, the oceans are perhaps the most distinctive feature of our planet. Why does Earth have abundant water? Why are the oceans salty? And what should every Congresswoman know about the largest habitat on Earth? Oceans impact humanity in countless ways, by controlling climate, navigation, and food and mineral resources. Topics include tides, waves, ocean currents, submarine volcanism, tsunamis, the physical and chemical composition of sediments, submarine geology, El Niño events, coral reefs, shoreline processes, coastal engineering, and more.
Prerequisite: One of the following: 101, 102, ES 101, CHEM 105, CHEM 120, PHYS 103, PHYS 104, PHYS 107, ASTR 100 or permission of the instructor.

GEOS 210/ES 210 Hydrogeology—Water and Pollutants with Laboratory
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10, OFFERED IN 2010-11. Investigation of water supply and use. Principles of surface and groundwater movement and water chemistry are applied to the hydrologic cycle to understand sources of water for human use. Mathematical groundwater models are used to understand groundwater movement and pollutant plumes. Quantity and quality of water and the limitations they impose are considered. Normally offered in alternate years. Students may register for either GEOS 210 or ES 210 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: 101 or 102 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling

GEOS 213/ASTR 203 Planetary Geology
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10, OFFERED IN 2010-11. Spacecraft observations have revealed a breathtaking diversity of geologic features in the solar system, from ancient river valleys on Mars and volcanic eruptions on Io to ice fountains on Enceladus and the complex surfaces of comets. From a comparative point of view, this course examines the formation and evolution of the planets and small bodies in the solar system. Topics will include: volcanism, tectonic activity, impacts, and tides. Students may register for either GEOS 213 or ASTR 203 and credit will be granted accordingly. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement and any 100-level GEOS or ASTR course.

GEOS 220 Volcanoes: Agents of Global and Regional Change with Wintersession Laboratory
Besancon, Hawkins
From Mount Saint Helens to Vesuvius to Krakatau, volcanoes affect global climate, change landscape evolution, and are sometimes the cause of tremendous disasters. Understanding the wide variety of phenomena associated with volcanoes provides a broad perspective on how science can be used to protect lives and further human needs and interests. Using geologic literature, internet search, and a general text, we will study case histories of volcanoes on earth and in the solar system. Written papers and oral presentations will be important parts of the course. The laboratory is a three-week long Wintersession trip to New Zealand that requires payment of additional fees. Normally offered in alternate years. Subject to Dean’s Office Approval.
Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor and 101, 102, or ES 101.

GEOS 304 Sedimentology with Laboratory
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10, OFFERED IN 2010-11. Sedimentary rocks cover most of the Earth's present surface. Sedimentology encompasses the study of the origin, transport, deposition and lithification of sedimentary rocks, and is critical to accurate interpretation of the geologic rock record. Observations of modern sedimentary processes illuminate past environments; sedimentary strata record evidence of sea level change, glacial advances and paleoclimatic cycles, and preserve the fossil record. Natural resources including groundwater, coal and petroleum are found in sedimentary rocks. Society is impacted by sedimentary processes in popular human habitats including coastlines and flood plains. Discussions, readings and projects build students' familiarity with topics including sediment transport, stratigraphy, and modern and ancient depositional environments. Laboratory exercises and field trips emphasize field methods, rock identification, and data collection, analysis and interpretation. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: 200, 203, 206 or permission of the instructor.

GEOS 308 Wetlands Science with Laboratory

Argow

Wetlands are among the most important environments on Earth, yet are widely undervalued and misunderstood. Wetland science is an exciting, growing field, critical to addressing issues ranging from modern shoreline stabilization to fossil fuel extraction. This course will focus on sediment-water interactions that create and maintain saltwater and freshwater wetland environments, and on the roles played by organisms within the geologic framework. Field trips to nearby wetlands will provide opportunities to make observations, collect samples and develop research questions in consultation with scientists studying and managing wetlands. This will be complemented by laboratory sessions introducing techniques for sample analysis and by relevant readings. Final reports will be submitted to organizations like the National Park Service or National Estuarine Research Reserve System. Two weekend field trips required. Normally offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: 201, 203, 208, or permission of the instructor.

Semester: Fall
Unit: 3.0

GEOS 309 Petrology with Laboratory

Hawkins

This course is an introduction to igneous and metamorphic rocks, processes and environments. Emphasis is placed on the application of geological, chemical and physical principles to the study of rocks in a search for clues to their origin and to the origin and evolution of the Earth (and other planets). A field trip over Patriot's Day weekend is an essential component of the course. Lecture and laboratory sessions are integrated to create a studio-style, project-based learning experience. Normally offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: 203 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 315/ES 315 Environmental Geochemistry with Laboratory

Brabant

Accurately predicting the fate and transport of naturally occurring toxic elements and anthropogenic compounds in the environment requires a broad set of multidisciplinary skills. This course introduces geochemical approaches, including mass balance, residence time, isotope fractionation, and thermodynamic and kinetic modeling necessary to fingerprint sources of pollutants and track them in water, soil, and plants. These fundamentals will be explored in several classic case studies and in semester-long geochemical research projects conducted by small groups. Normally offered in alternate years. Students may register for either GEOS 315 or ES 315 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: One course above the 100-level in two of the following disciplines: Geosciences, Chemistry, Biological Sciences or Environmental Studies; or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science or Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

GEOS 320 Isotope Geochemistry

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. This seminar-style course will use the primary literature to study state-of-the-art techniques in isotope geochemistry. Radiogenic, cosmogenic, and stable isotope systematics will be explored with applications ranging from geochronology, tectonics, fate and transport of pollutants, and the use of isotopes to trace biogeochemical processes. Field trips to Boston area isotopic labs and opportunities for collaborative research projects will complement the seminar. Normally offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: 201 and CHEM 205; or GEOS/ES 315 or permission of the instructor.

Requirements for the Major

A major in geosciences includes eight geosciences courses (a minimum of eight units of course work), at least six of which must be taken at Wellesley. Entry into the major may be through GEOS 101 or GEOS 102. Four 200-level courses are required, normally to include GEOS 200, GEOS 203 and GEOS 206. Three 300-level courses are required, one of which must be GEOS 304 and one of which may be GEOS 350, GEOS 360 or GEOS 370. Four complementary courses from mathematics, biological sciences, chemistry, physics, astronomy, or computer science are also required, and two of these must come from the same discipline. The department also recommends that students majoring in geosciences take a geology field course, either the MIT 12.114-12.115 sequence offered in alternate years by MIT or a summer geology field course offered by another institution.

Requirements for the Minor

A minor in geosciences consists of five courses, including GEOS 101 or GEOS 102 and at least one course at the 300 level.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Graduate Study

Students considering graduate school are urged to take two semesters of mathematics, two of chemistry and two of physics. Students will choose an appropriate set of complementary courses with the guidance of a departmental advisor.

Department of German

Professor: Hansen (Chair), Kruse*, Nolden, Ward
Assistant Professor: Hans
Director of Study Abroad Program: Nolden
Resident Director of Wellesley-in-Vienna: Millner

The Department of German offers a varied curriculum that introduces students to a wide range of texts and contexts in order to introduce the cultural heritage and contemporary life of Germany, Austria, and German-speaking Switzerland. Language courses emphasize rapid acquisition of communication skills. Because almost all upper-level classes are conducted in German, the advanced student can achieve a high level of fluency.

Goals for the Major

The goals of the new, integrated major in German Studies are, broadly stated, to equip students with the cultural and linguistic skills to participate in German-speaking cultures. Specifically:

• Students acquire in our courses the linguistic skills to engage in high-level conversation in German.
• Students learn to understand and appreciate a wide variety of complex texts (literary, historical, journalistic, musical, cinematic, scholarly, etc.)
• Students acquire the skills to write sophisticated German.
• Students receive a broad introduction to the cultures (comprising the art, history, music, philosophy, or politics) of German-speaking countries.
• Students are prepared to follow a course of studies at a German or Austrian university, to succeed in internships in German-speaking firms, to enter graduate school in related fields, and to pursue diverse careers both in the U.S. and abroad.

GER 101-102 Beginning German
Hans, Kruse, Ward

An introduction to contemporary German with emphasis on communicative fluency. Extensive practice in all four skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Videos and Web-based activities introduce the student to topics from contemporary culture in German-speaking countries. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

GER 122/WRIT 125 Hitler: The Man in History, Literature, and Film
Hansen

The figure of Adolf Hitler continues to horrify and fascinate those who have inherited the world he changed forever. This writing course explores the historical figure of Hitler and subsequent responses to him by contemporaries, historians, writers, and filmmakers. After reading Hitler's own words and biographers' accounts, we shall focus on representations of the man from Germany (Brecht, Thomas Mann) and elsewhere (Charlie Chaplin, Mel Brooks). This course is built around a series of writing projects that focus on the historical subject, Hitler, and his legacy. Assignments will prepare you to write a formal, analytical paper typical of many disciplines at Wellesley: a paper that uses research tools to make a clearly articulated argument and uses evidence to express original thought.

Includes a third session each week. Students enrolled in German courses are encouraged to fulfill the Writing 125 requirement with this class. This course counts as a unit toward the German Studies major.

Prequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.

GER 233 Berlin in the Twenties

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Berlin, the capital of Germany during the Weimar Republic, was at the center of both the political turmoil and the cultural fervor of the “golden” 1920s. The urban milieu provided the backdrop for avant-garde and popular culture. Issues will include political and social changes resulting from the economic dislocation caused by World War I and the rise of National Socialism. Texts will be drawn from journalism, autobiography, short fiction, poetry, theater, cabaret music, art, architecture, and fine art, including von Drogenschneider and the film, Comedian Harmonists. We will be featured. Emphasis on the development of communicative skills in order to negotiate complex meaning in reading, speaking and writing. Review of selected topics in grammar. Designed for students with four semesters of language training or equivalent.

Prequisite: 202 or permission of the instructor.

GER 235 The Fantastic in German Literature

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course surveys the rich tradition of German literature of the fantastic and the uncanny. These works, which employ allegories of escapist fantasy, horror, supernatural terror, delusion, and abnormal psychic states, are chosen for their literary treatment of fears that prey on the human imagination. We shall begin with a couple of less well-known examples from the Grimm’s folktales, and explore works of major writers for images of the Doppelgänger, talking animals, and magical helpers. Emphasis on the development of communicative skills in order to negotiate complex meaning in reading, speaking, and writing. Review of selected topics in grammar and style. Designed for students with four semesters of language training or equivalent. This course is offered in alternating years.

Prequisite: 202 or permission of the instructor.

GER 237 Love in German Literature

Hansen

The course will explore some of the best-known literary expressions of romantic relationships written in German. We will begin with medieval poetry of courtly love and move to examples from Goethe, the Romantics, Heinrich Heine, and then to the modern period. The topic encompasses problems like falling in love, forbidden love, tragic love, fulfillment, separation, and the erotic. The course has two goals. The first is to enhance your appreciation of literature and culture through close reading and contextualization of works by period and genre. The second is to develop your communicative skills in order to negotiate complex meaning in speaking and writing. Emphasis on vocabulary building, review of selected grammar topics, and extensive writing practice. Designed for students with four semesters of language training or equivalent.

GER 241 Themes of Childhood, Youth, and Adolescence in German Literature

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will explore images of children and adolescents in adult literature. The texts are unified thematically by such issues as youthful rebellion, inter-generational struggles, social isolation, and the crisis of adolescence. We shall analyze the portraits of youth as idealized heroes, as innocent victims, and as critical witnesses of the adult world. Authors include Goethe, Stifter, Hesse, and Aichinger. We will also read Grimms’ folktales, Wilhelm Busch’s proto-comic book, Max und Moritz, and Heinrich Hoffmann’s cautionary verses, Der Struwwelpeter.

Prequisite: One unit, taught in German above 202, or permission of the instructor.

GER 244 Deutschlandreisen: Fantastic Journeys Through Germany

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In this course we will read travel narratives in which important authors, painters, and film makers of the last two centuries have captured their journeys through Germany. We will ask what it is that these travelers have perceived and experienced, how they have mapped out their journeys and how they have artistically represented their experiences.

Texts, paintings, and films by Heinrich Heine, Joseph von Eichendorff, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, Wim Wenders, Christian Kracht, Sven Nadolny, Konstantin Fagle, Wolfgang Büscher, Andre Kaminiski, and others.

GER 246 German Autobiography

Nolden

In this course, we will read German autobiographies from several centuries to familiarize ourselves with patterns of autobiographical writing as well as with important moments in German and Austrian history. Texts will be drawn from the canon of literary memoirs, but will also include the writings from scientists, politicians, and other persons of general interest. Our course will commence with passages from the memoirs of the Jewish merchant Glückl von Hameln, an example of early women’s autobiographical writing. The emphasis of the course will be on the twentieth century.

GER 256 Culture and Politics in East Germany 1949–1989

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. We will trace the 40-year trajectory of the German Democratic Republic from the Cold-War context of its founding in 1949 to its demise in 1989. Our focus will be the constant interplay between culture and politics. Major events like the uprising of 17 June 1953, the building of the wall in August 1961 and its fall in 1989 will form the background for a consideration of a broad range of literary and film texts, including autobiographical writings and poetry. We will conclude with several recent German films that look back after nearly two decades to consider what daily life was like in East Germany. Topics include dealing with the Nazi past, youthful rebellion, women and family policies, and the role of the church in the "Wende."

GER 275 World War II and Its Aftermath in German Literature

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Sixty years after the end of World War II, Germans have begun the problematic task of remembering their recent history not only as perpetrators of the war and the Holocaust but also as the war's eventual victims. This course will examine representative examples of the literature memorializing World War II and its aftermath in their historical and cultural context. Texts will include novels and novellas, essays, historical accounts, and memoirs. Authors represented will include Böll, Grass, Sebald, Nossack, Treitel, Timm and others.
Prerequisite: One unit, taught in German above 202, or permission of the instructor.

GER 389 Seminar

Ward
Topic for 2009-10: Latin America and the Caribbean in the German Imagination. From the travel accounts of the German conquistador Nicolas Federman in the sixteenth century and those of the scientist Alexander von Humboldt in the eighteenth century to the novels of Heinrich von Kleist in the nineteenth century and the films of Werner Herzog in the twentieth century, the Caribbean basin and Latin America have been a source of fascination for many representatives of German culture. We will consider a wide range of authors and genres, exploring the impact of Latin America and the Caribbean on the German imagination, with special emphasis on the travel literature of explorers, the fiction and poetry of writers in exile during the Third Reich, and dramas of the 1970s and 1980s concerning Latin American revolutions.

Requirements for the Minor in German Studies

For students entering Wellesley in fall 2009 and later, the minor in German Studies replaces the previous choice between a major in German Studies and German Language and Literature. Students who entered Wellesley before fall 2009 have the option to complete the current major requirements or the requirements in effect at the time they declared the major. With the approval of the department, courses taken abroad may count toward the major at the 200 level. Each student should consult with her departmental advisor about the best sequence of courses in her case. The major in German Studies requires a minimum of nine units. The following courses constitute the minimum major:
• 201, 202
• Two 200-level courses above 202, at least one taught in German, numbered 231-285.
• One course in English from the list of "Related Courses" or one taught in English in the German department.
• 325 or 329
• 389
• Two electives in German, one preferably at the 300 level.

Requirements for the Major in German Studies

The language of instruction above the 100 level is almost exclusively German unless otherwise noted. Students thus have constant practice in hearing, reading, speaking, and writing the language.

The department reserves the right to place a new student in the course for which she seems best prepared, regardless of background and number of units she offers for admission.

Beginning in fall 2009 the department will offer a unified major called German Studies as well as a minor in German Studies. GER 101-102 is counted toward the degree but not toward the major or minor. Students who begin German at Wellesley and wish to major will be encouraged to advance as quickly as possible to upper-level work by doing intermediate language training during the summer or accelerating in our January-In-Vienna program during Wintersession.

Students interested in an interdepartmental major in German Studies are referred to the listing for this interdepartmental program.
German Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Director: Hansen (German)

The following text describes the interdepartmental major that is being replaced for students entering Wellesley in the fall of 2009 or later by the restructured major (see the description in the German Department). This older option is still available for current students who entered Wellesley before 2009.

This interdisciplinary and interdepartmental major is designed to provide the student with a broader understanding of the cultures of Germany, Austria, and Switzerland by achieving an advanced level of language proficiency and by studying the art, history, literature, philosophy, and politics of these countries in depth.

Professor: Auerbach, Kapteijns, Malina, Rogers, Sherman, Timarkin (Chair)
Associate Professor: Giersch, Matsusaka, Osorio, Rausseyer
Adjunct Associate Professor: Rollman
Assistant Professor: Frace, Grandjean, Rao, Slobodian

History is the study of the cumulative human experience. As a study of change in human society over time, it lies at the foundations of knowledge in both the humanities and the social sciences, offering its own approaches to questions explored in both branches of learning. The study of history prepares students for a wide range of careers that require broad knowledge of the human experience as well as critical thinking, research, and writing skills. Most of the major geographical fields in history as well as the subdisciplines of social, cultural, political, and economic history are represented in our course offerings and in the research interests of our faculty.

Goals for the Major
Students who successfully complete a major in history will have acquired:

- A broad and deep understanding of the process of change over time, the relationship between past and present, and historical causality.
- A humanistic awareness of the individual as part of a larger temporal stream, a civic sense of historical responsibility, and a social-scientific consciousness of societies and cultures as evolving systems.
- Solid grounding in a body of specialized historical and historiographical knowledge about selected countries and regions or comparative problems that span various cultures and times.
- Diversified knowledge of the histories and historiographies of a range of cultures and chronological periods.
- A critical understanding of the methods that historians employ in reconstructing the past, including various approaches to historical research, the interpretation of primary sources and other evidence, and the use of theory in historical analysis.
- Extensive training and experience in reading monographs and scholarly articles critically, in writing concise analytical essays and longer research papers, and in oral communication skills.

HIST 200 Roots of the Western Tradition
Rogers
In this introductory survey, we will examine how the religious, political, and scientific traditions of western civilization originated in Mesopotamia and Egypt from 3500 B.C.E. and were developed by Greeks and Romans until the Islamic invasions of the seventh century C.E. The course will help students to understand the emergence of polytheism and the great monotheistic religions, the development of democracy and republican-ism, and the birth of western science and the scientific method.

HIST 201 The Rise of the West:
Europe 1789–2003
Slobodian
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course traces the history of Modern Europe and the idea of “the West” from the French Revolution to the Second Gulf War. We will explore the successes of empire, industry, and technology that underwrote European global domination until World War I and Europe’s subsequent financial dependence on the United States. We will reexamine conventional narratives of the rise of Europe and the West, and explore how people experienced “progress” differently according to geography, class, gender, nationality, and ethnicity. We will also follow the emergence of mass consumption, urbanization, total war, genocide, and decolonization, as well as the development of political idioms of national self-determination, feminism, and human rights, and the scientific idioms of eugenics, psychology, and anthropology.

HIST 203 Out of Many: American History to 1877
Grandjean
An introduction to American life, politics and culture, from the colonial period through the aftermath of the Civil War. Surveys the perspectives of the many peoples converging on North America, during this era, and explores the shifting fault lines of “liberty” among them. Because Early America was not inevitably bound toward the creation of the “United States of America,” we will ask how such an unlikely thing, in fact, happened. How did a nation emerge from such a diverse array of communities? And how did various peoples come to claim citizenship in this new nation? Emphasis, too, on the issues that convulsed the American colonies and early republic: African slavery, revolutionary politics, immigration, westward expansion, and the coming of the Civil War.

HIST 205 The Making of the Modern World Order
Frace, Matsusaka (Fall), Kapteijns, Slobodian (Spring)
This foundational course in international history explores the evolution of trade, competition, and cultural interaction among the world's diverse communities, from the Mongol conquests of the late-thirteenth century through the end of the twentieth century. Themes include: the growing divergence in trajectories of the Western and non-Western worlds evident by the fifteenth century; the rise of European wealth and power in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries; imperialism and its impact, the evolution of the nation-state; scientific and industrial revolutions; and "modernization" and the non-Western world in the twentieth century. Attention to agents of global integration, including trade, technology, migration, dissemination of ideas, conquest, war, and disease.

HIST 206 From Conquest to Revolution: A History of Colonial Latin America

The "discovery" by Christopher Columbus in 1492 of the "New World" unleashed a process of dramatic changes in what we now call Latin America. Spanning roughly from the fifteenth through the mid-eighteenth centuries, this course examines the ideological underpinnings of the Spanish Conquest, the place of the Americas in a universal Spanish empire, and the role of urban centers in the consolidation of Spanish rule. Emphasis is placed on indigenous societies and the transformation and interactions with Africans and Europeans under colonial rule; the role of Indian labor and African slavery in the colonial economy; the creation, consolidation, and decline of colonial political institutions; and, finally, the role of religion and baroque ritual in the creation of new hybrid colonial cultures and identities.

HIST 207 Contemporary Problems in Latin American History

Osorio
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In this problem-centered survey of the contemporary history of Latin America we will critique and go beyond the many stereotypes which have inhibited understanding between Anglo and Latin America, cultivating instead a healthy respect for complexity and contradiction. Over the course of the semester we will examine key themes in Latin American history, including the dilemmas of uneven national development in independent economies; the emergence of anti-imperialism and various forms of political and cultural nationalism; the richness and variety of revolution; ethnic, religious, feminist, literary, artistic, and social movements; the imposing social problems of the sprawling Latin American megalopolis; the political heterodoxies of leftist, populism, authoritarianism, and neoliberalism; the patterns of peace, violence, and the drug trade; the considerable U.S. influence in the region, and finally, transnational migration and globalization.

HIST 208 Society and Culture in Medieval Europe

Ramseyer
This course examines life in medieval Europe c. 750-1250 in all its manifestations: political, religious, social, cultural, and economic. Topics to be studied include the papacy, the political structures of France, Germany, and Italy, monks and monastic culture, religion and spirituality, feudalism, chivalry, courtly love and literature, the crusading movement, intellectual life and theological debates, economic structures and their transformations, and the varied roles of women in medieval life. Students will learn to analyze and interpret primary sources from the period, as well as to evaluate critically historiographical debates related to medieval history.

HIST 209 The British Isles: From Roses to Revolution

Prace
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. By the late seventeenth century, the British Isles were poised to compete for European (and soon global) dominance, yet their unsteady road to power and stability was precarious at every turn. This course will thus explore a period that is often as renowned as it is misunderstood, and whose defining events and personalities have long captured the historical imagination: the Wars of the Roses; King Henry VIII; Queen "Bloody" Mary and Elizabeth; the British Civil War/Puritan Revolution; and the Royal Restoration. While moving across time, we will also focus on the broader socioeconomic, religious, and intellectual changes that defined each monarch's reign. The course centers on England, but integrates Scotland's and Ireland's particular histories of conquest and resistance.

HIST 210 The British Isles: From Glorious Revolution to Global Empire

Prace
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Between the seventeenth century and Queen Victoria's reign, Britain transformed itself from a relatively minor European kingdom into the wealthiest and most powerful nation in the world, ruling over a quarter of the earth's population. This course will explore Britain's often tumultuous history while addressing several major themes, such as: the creation of a modern consumer society; secularization; the radical mobilization of the working class; abolitionism; questions of social and sexual hierarchies raised at home by an expanding empire abroad; and the birth of liberal, conservative, and socialist ideologies. This course will center on England, but will also look at Scotland and Ireland's particular histories of resistance, conquest, and integration.

HIST 211 Bread and Salt: Introduction to Russian Civilization

Tuinarkin
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. For centuries Russians have welcomed visitors with offerings of bread and salt. This introductory course is an earthy immersion in Russian life and culture from the age of Tolstoy to Putin's dissonant new Russia. Black bread, dense and pungent, is central to our exploration of food, fasting, and famine in the Russian experience. We will weave in both related and contrapuntal themes, such as: religious practice, folk beliefs and peasant life; surviving Stalinism in the age of terror; making do in the surreal "era of stagnation" under Brezhnev; and the splendor and agony of Russian high culture. Guest lectures by Russianists in disciplines other than history.

HIST 213 Conquest and Crusade in the Medieval Mediterranean

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the Mediterranean from the disintegration of the Roman Empire in the fourth and fifth centuries through the Latin Crusades of the Holy Land in the eleventh and twelfth centuries. Readings will focus on the various wars and conflicts in the region as well as the political, religious, and social structures of the great Christian and Muslim kingdoms, including the Byzantine Empire, the Islamic caliphates of the eighth and ninth centuries, the Turkish emirates of Egypt and the Near East, and the Latin Crusader States. Attention will also be paid to the cultural and religious diversity of the medieval Mediterranean and the intellectual, literary, and artistic achievements of Christian, Muslim, and Jewish communities.

HIST 214 Medieval Italy

Ramseyer
This course provides an overview of Italian history from the disintegration of the Roman Empire in the fifth century through the rise of urban communes in the thirteenth century. Topics of discussion include the birth and development of the Catholic Church and the volatile relationship between popes and emperors, the history of monasticism and various other forms of monastic life, the history of the papacy, the Counter-Reformation and dissent, the diverging histories of the north and the south and the emergence of a multi-cultural society in southern Italy, and the development and transformation of cities and commerce that made Italy one of the most economically advanced states in Europe in the later medieval period.

HIST 215 Gender and Nation in Latin America

Osorio
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Since their invention in the early nineteenth century, nations and states in Latin America have been conceived of in gendered terms. This has played a key role in producing and reproducing masculine and feminine identities in society. This course examines the powerful relationship between gender and nation in modern Latin America. Topics include patriarchal discourses of state and feminized representations of nation; the national project to define the family as a male-centered nuclear institution; the idealization of motherhood as a national and Christian virtue; the role of military regimes in promoting masculine ideologies; state regulations of sexuality and prostitution; changing definitions of the feminine and masculine in relation to the emergence of "public" and "private" spheres, and struggles over the definition of citizenship and nationality.
HIST 216 Revolution in Latin America

Osorio

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In Latin America, the twentieth century was indelibly marked by revolution and counterrevolution. Any analysis of the recent history of the peoples and states of Latin America must focus on the conditions, desires, and perils that have shaped the revolutionary experience. We will examine the main historical currents of armed revolution in Latin America, including instances of successful armed revolution, post-revolutionary state-making and nation-building, and the many guerrilla movements. Revolution in the Americas was not only about seizing state power, but about making “the new man” and reinventing society. We will consider the past, present, and possible future of revolution in the Americas.

HIST 222 The Barbarian Kingdoms of Early Medieval Europe

Ramey

This course examines the Barbarian successor states established in the fifth and sixth centuries after the disintegration of the Roman Empire in the west. It will focus primarily on the Frankish kingdom of Gaul, but will also make forays into Lombard Italy, Visigothic Spain, and Vandal North Africa. In particular, the course will look in-depth at the Carolingian empire established c. 800 by Charlemagne, who is often seen as the founder of Europe, and whose empire is often regarded as the precursor of today’s European Union. Political, cultural, religious, and economic developments will be given equal time.

HIST 227 The Renaissance in Italy and Northern Europe

France

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The legendary rebirth of classical learning coincided with an era of global expansion, the religious Inquisition, and civil unrest. While placing Renaissance Europe into its wider historical context, this course will emphasize cultural developments and intellectual innovations. While ranging between London, Oxford, Rotterdam, Paris, Florence, and Venice, we will interrogate the minds of distinguished scholars and the world of the common crowd. How did they redefine what it meant to be human? What were the heated debates over the roles of women or sexuality, or over the nature of God and religious heresy? How did the accumulation of wealth and the exploration of “new worlds” change society?

Prerequisite: None: Not open to students who have taken [228].

HIST 229/329 Alexander the Great: Psychopath or Philosopher King

Rogers

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Alexander the Great murdered his best friend, married a Bactrian princess, and dressed like Dionysus. He also conquered the known world by the age of 33, fused the eastern and western populations of his empire, and became a god. This course will examine the personality, career, and achievements of the greatest conqueror in Western history against the background of the Hellenistic World. This course may be taken as either 229 or, with additional assignments, as 329.

Prerequisite: 229: None; 329: Permission of the instructor.

HIST 230 Greek History from the Bronze Age to the Death of Philip II of Macedon

Rogers

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The origins, development, and geographical spread of Greek culture from the Bronze Age to the death of Philip II of Macedon. Greek colonization, the Persian Wars, the Athenian democracy, and the rise of Macedon will be examined in relation to the social, economic, and religious history of the Greek polis.

Unit: 1.0

HIST 231 History of Rome

Rogers

Rome’s cultural development from its origins as a small city state in the eighth century B.C.E. to its rule over a vast empire extending from Scotland to Iraq. Topics include the Etruscan influence on the formation of early Rome, the causes of Roman expansion throughout the Mediterranean during the Republic, the Hellenization of Roman society, the urbanization and Romanization of Western Europe, the spread of “mystery” religions, the persecution and expansion of Christianity, and the economy and society of the Empire.

HIST 232 The Transformation of the Western World: Europe from 1300–1815

France

This course will provide a dynamic overview of the intellectual, sociopolitical, and cultural movements and events that defined Europe during its turbulent shift into modernity. From the Black Plague to the French Revolution, we will focus on: the secular humanism of the Renaissance; the Reformation and the resulting Wars of Religion; the emergence of absolutist autocracies and modern liberal states; the radical Enlightenment; feminism; and the dueling ideologies of embryonic capitalism and socialism. By including documents ranging from private diaries and letters to political treatises and popular publications, this course will bring to vivid life a world that is at once foreign and familiar.

HIST 236 The European Enlightenment: A Revolution in Thought, Culture, and Action

France

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The Enlightenment has been alternately demonized and revered for its prominent role in forging Western modernity. Was it the harbinger of modern democracy, secularism, and feminism? Or of ethnocentric racism, sexism, and the terror? This course will examine the works of the most innovative and controversial writers in the canon, including Mary Wollstonecraft, Kant, Montesquieu, Voltaire, Rousseau, Locke, and Diderot. We will also address the forgotten legions of men and women who comprised the international republic of letters, and who frequented the (sometimes respectable, often scandalous) coffeehouses, salons, and secret societies of the eighteenth century. Our discursive focus will be on political hegemony, civil liberties, religious toleration, gender, social development, sexuality, and race.

HIST 240 Cities in Modern Europe

Slobodan

This lecture course explores the uses and visions of the city in Europe since the mid-nineteenth century. The course covers both the history of modern urban planning and the responses to it—the way the city was designed and the way it was lived. We will begin by looking at differing theories of the city: Was it a place of freedom or increased control, especially for socially marginalized groups like women, colonized populations and the poor? Was it an artifact of dominant social forces or a space for individual self-creation? Themes we will cover include colonial urbanism, modernism, fascist city planning, suburbanization, tourism, migration and rec- lamation of urban space by social movements, squatters and youth subcultures.

HIST 242 Postwar Europe and the Three Germanies
Stobolian
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In 1945, Germany's war had left much of Europe in ruins. Yet postwar planners recognized that the continent's strongest economic power and most populous country would have to remain the center of a reconstructed Europe. This course explores the challenges confronting a divided continent after 1945 through the histories of East and West Germany, which faced similar problems, but developed solutions that reflected the differing ideologies of state socialism and capitalism. It compares the relative influence of the U.S. and Soviet "partners," strategies for dealing with the Nazi past and histories of collaboration, and efforts to build consumer culture and domestic consent. It also compares youth revolts, gender politics, immigration, and explores the role of a third, reunited Germany in Europe and the world after 1989.

HIST 243 Gender and Sexuality in Twentieth-Century Europe
Stobolian
Issues of gender and sexuality were central to projects of social and political transformation in twentieth-century Europe. Regimes of nationalism, socialism, fascism, and capitalism each provided prescriptive models of "good" and "healthy" gender relationships, making sexuality the frequent and ongoing site for state and scientific intervention. At the same time, the ruptures of two world wars and the effects of modernization created spaces for unprecedented challenges to sexual mores from below. This course explores the fraught, and occasionally deadly, debates over sexual normality in twentieth-century Europe through the topics of eugenics, psychoanalysis, first and second wave feminism, the sexual politics of fascism, and the rise of the permissive society.

HIST 246 Vikings, Icons, Mongols, and Tsars
Tumarkin
A multicultural journey through the turbulent waters of medieval and early modern Russia from the Viking incursions of the ninth century and the entrance of the East Slavs into the splendid and mighty Byzantine world, to the Mongol overlordship of Russia, the rise of Moscow, and the legendary reign of Ivan the Terrible. We move eastward as the Muscovite state conquers the immense reaches of Siberia by the end of the turbulent seventeenth century, when the young and restless Tsar Peter the Great travels to Western Europe to change Russia forever. We will focus on khans, princes, tsars, nobles, peasants and monks; social norms and gender roles; icons and church architecture; and a host of Russian saints and sinners.

HIST 247 Splendor and Sordidness: Russia Under the Romanovs
Tumarkin
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An exploration of Imperial Russia over the course of two tumultuous centuries, from the astonishing reign of Peter the Great at the start of the eighteenth century, to the implosion of the Russian monarchy under the unfortunate Nicholas II early in the twentieth, as Russia plunged toward revolution. St. Petersburg—the stunning and ghostly birthplace of Russia's modern history and the symbol of Russia's attempt to impose order on a vast, multiethnic empire—is a focus of this course. We will also examine the everyday lives of peasants and nobles; the vision and ideology of autocracy; Russia's brilliant intelligentsia; and the glory of her literary canon.
Prerequisite: None

Unit: 1.0

HIST 248 The Soviet Union: A Tragic Colossus
Tumarkin
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The Soviet Union, the most immense empire in the world, huddled through the twentieth century, shaping major world events. This course will follow the grand, extravagant, and often brutal socialist experiment from its fragile inception in 1917 through the rule of Lenin, Stalin, Khruhachev, Brezhnev, and Gorbatchev, after which the vast Soviet empire broke apart with astonishing speed. We will contrast utopian constructivist visions of the glorious communist future with Soviet reality. Special emphasis on Soviet political culture, the trauma of the Stalin years and World War II, and the travels of everyday life.

HIST 253 Native America
Grandjean
An introduction to the history of Native American peoples, from precontact to the present. Through a survey of scholarly works, primary documents, objects, films and Indian autobiographies, students will grapple with enduring questions concerning the Native past. How should we define "Native America"? How interconnected were Native peoples, and when? Can we pinpoint the emergence of "Indian" identity and understand how it developed? This course confronts those questions and other issues in Native American history, through such topics as: the "discovery" of Europe and its effects; cultural and commercial exchange with Europeans, removal, the struggle for the West, the "Indian New Deal," and the Red Power movement of the 1970s. Special attention to the Native northeast.
Prerequisite: None

Unit: 1.0

HIST 256 Colonial America
Grandjean
This course considers America's colonial past. It is a bloody but fascinating history, with plenty of twists and turns. We will investigate colonial American culture and ordinary life (including gender, family life, ecology, the material world, religion and magical belief), as well as the struggles experienced by the earliest colonists and the imperial competition that characterized the colonial period. Between 1607 and 1763, a florid variety of cultures bloomed on the North American continent. We will explore how, with an eye toward understanding how the English colonies emerged from very uncertain beginnings to become—by the mid-eighteenth century—the prevailing power on the continent.

HIST 257 Women, Gender, and the Family in American History
Auerbach
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course surveys the interplay between the histories of women and the family in American history from the colonial period through the Progressive Era (seventeenth through early twentieth centuries). Through a focus on the changing history of the family, the course will address gender roles, women's work inside and outside the household, and their changing relation to state authority. It will also consider how the regulation of the family serves to reproduce social differences of race and class.

HIST 258 Freedom and Dissent in American History
Auerbach
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Freedom of speech since the founding of the nation, with special attention to the judicial boundaries of permissible dissent and the enduring tension between individual rights and state power in American society. Among the issues considered are radical political and gender movements; forms of symbolic expression; obscenity and pornography; campus hate speech; political and sexual correctness.

HIST 263 South Africa in Historical Perspective
Kaptein
An analysis of the historical background and lasting consequences of apartheid, focusing on the transformation of the African communities in the period of commercial capitalist expansion (1652-1885) and in the industrial era (1885 to the present). Important themes are: the struggle for land and labor; the fate of African peasants, labor migrants, miners and domestic servants; the undermining of the African family; the diverse expressions of African resistance; and the processes which are creating a new, post-apartheid South Africa. The enormous challenges of reversing inequality and resolving conflicts will receive special attention.

HIST 264 The History of Pre-colonial Africa
Kapteyn
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Pre-colonial Africa encompasses ancient agrarian kingdoms (such as Egypt and Mesopotamia), city-states on the shores of the Mediterranean, and the "Cinderellas," in which colonial economic intervention was minimal and the struggle for independence less bloody. For the post-independence period, we will focus on the historical roots of such major themes as neo-colonialism, economic underdevelopment, ethno-conflict and genocide, HIV/AIDS, and the problems of the African state. However, Africa's enormous natural and human resources, its resilient and youthful population, and its vibrant popular culture—a strong antidote against Afro-pessimism—will help us reflect on the future of this vast continent.

HIST 265 History of Modern Africa
Kapteyn
Many of Africa's current characteristics are the legacy of colonial domination. We will therefore first study different kinds of colonies, from those settled by White planters to the "Cinderellas," in which colonial economic intervention was minimal and the struggle for independence less bloody. For the post-independence period, we will focus on the historical roots of such major themes as neo-colonialism, economic underdevelopment, ethno-conflict and genocide, HIV/AIDS, and the problems of the African state. HIST 266 The Struggle Over North Africa, 1800 to the Present
Rollmann
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Themes in the social, economic, political and cultural history of North Africa (the Maghreb and Maghrebian, Libya, Egypt and Sudan) from 1800 to the present: major features of pre-colonial society and history in three regions: the transformations brought about by French, British and Italian colonial rule: North African resistance and wars for independence; and the contradictions of the era of formal political independence, including the emergence of Islamist movements and the literary and political debate about postcolonial identities in the area. Students will draw on analyses by historians and social scientists, on novels, short stories, autobiographies, poetry by North Africans, and on music and film from and about North Africa.

HIST 269 Japan, the Great Powers and East Asia, 1853-1993
Matsusaka
The history of Japan's international relations from the age of empire through the end of the Cold War. Topics include imperialism and nationalism in East Asia, diplomacy and military strategy, international economic competition, cultural and "civilizational" conflicts, World War II in East Asia, the U.S.-Japan alliance, and the politics of war memory. Special emphasis on Japan's relations with the United States, China, Russia, and Korea.

HIST 272 Political Economy of Development in Colonial and Postcolonial South Asia
Rao
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In 1947, India was partitioned into India and Pakistan. Since then, these countries have wrestled with issues of governance and development, but colonial rule casts a long shadow over their efforts. This course introduces students to the complex political-economic landscape of the subcontinent by examining how the idea of development changes in modern South Asian history. How are developmental efforts embedded in contexts of politics, society, and culture? How do political systems affect decisions? This course considers these questions by examining themes such as: the colonial state's construction of railway and irrigation networks; Gandhi's critique of industrialization; Nehru's vision of an industrial economy; the challenges posed by Partition and militarization of Pakistan; the Green Revolution; the onset of economic deregulation.

HIST 274 China, Japan, and Korea in Comparative and Global Perspectives
Matsusaka
Overview of each political/cultural community and their interactions from ancient times to 1912. Topics from earlier periods include ancient mytho-histories and archaeological records, the rise of China's Han and Tang empires, selective adaptations of Chinese patterns by indigenous polities and societies in Korea and Japan, commercial and technological revolution in China and its international impact, Mongol "globalization," Japan in the age of the samurai and Korea in the heyday of the yongjin. Topics from later periods include the growth of international trade in East Asia and early modern developments in Ming-Qing China, Tokugawa Japan, and Late Choson Korea. Coverage extends through first decade of twentieth century to examine Europe's expansion and the divergent trajectories of modern transformation in each society.

HIST 275 The Emergence of Ethnic Identities in Modern South Asia
Rao
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. South Asian societies of the modern period have been represented by rigid systems of hierarchy. Caste, most famously, has been represented as an inexorable determinant of social possibility. Yet, what are the ways in which people actually identify themselves, and to what extent is hierarchical identification a product of South Asia's modern history? This course explores the problems of social and cultural differentiation in South Asia. How do modern institutions such as the census and electoral politics shape the way in which these problems are perceived today? What are the effects of the introduction of English education? Caste will be the primary form of identity that we explore, but we also consider class, religion and gender in seeking to unravel the complex notion of ethnicity.

HIST 276 The City in South Asia
Rao
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. South Asian cities are currently undergoing massive demographic and spatial transformations. These cannot be understood without a consideration of both the specific history of South Asia and a broader account of urban change. This course examines these changes in historical perspective and situates urban South Asia within a global context. How did colonial rule transform old cities such as Delhi and Lahore? How were the differing ideologies of India and Pakistan mapped onto new capitals such as Chandigarh and Islamabad? How are ethnic pasts and techno futures reconceived in booming cities such as Bangalore and Mumbai? What are the connections between the urban environment and political mobilization? We consider a range of sources, including scholarly literature, films and short stories.

HIST 277 China and America: Evolution of a Troubled Relationship
Giersch
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of China's economic, cultural, and political interactions with the United States from 1784 to present with a focus on developments since 1940. Principal themes include: post-imperial China's pursuit of wealth and power, changing international conditions, military strategy, the influence of domestic politics and ideology, and the legacy of misunderstandings and prejudices that have long plagued this critical relationship. Topics include: trade throughout the centuries; American treatment of Chinese immigrants; World War II and the Chinese Revolution; the Cold War; Taiwan, and the ongoing instability of relations since 1979. Sources include the ever-increasing number of declassified U.S. documents as well as critical materials translated from the Chinese.

HIST 278 Reform and Revolution in China, 1800–Present

Giersch

From shattering nineteenth-century rebellions that fragmented the old empire to its emergence as a twenty-first-century superpower, few places have experienced tumult and triumph in the same massive measures as modern China. To understand China today, one must come to terms with this turbulent history. This course surveys China’s major cultural, political, social, and economic transformations, including failed reforms under the last dynasty; the revolutions of 1911 and 1949; the rise of the Communist Party and Mao’s transformation of society and politics; the remarkable market reforms of recent decades; the contentious issue of Taiwan’s democratic transition; and China’s ongoing effort to define its position within East Asia and the world.

HIST 279/379 Heresy and Popular Religion in the Middle Ages

Ramsayer

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course looks at popular religious beliefs and practices in medieval Europe, including miracles, martyrdom, and asceticism, saints and their shrines, pilgrimages, relics, curses, witchcraft, and images of heaven and hell. It seeks to understand popular religion both on its own terms, as well as in relationship to the Church hierarchy. It also examines the basis for religious dissent in the form of both intellectual and social heresies that led to religious repression and the establishment of the Inquisition in the later Middle Ages. This course may be taken as 279 or, with additional assignments, as 379.

HIST 284 The Middle East in Modern History

Kaptein

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Themes in the history of the Modern Middle East from 1914 to the present. After World War I, European powers dominated the area and carved it up into the modern nation states that we know today. We will study the political history of these states up to the present, but will focus especially on the historical roots and causes of crucial social developments and conflicts. Thus we will study the impact of the oil boom, labor migration, urbanization, the changing roles of women, and the emergence of politicized fundamentalist Islam, as well as aspects of the Palestinian-Israeli conflict, the Egyptian Revolution, the Lebanese Civil War, and the Gulf War. Our emphasis will be on the Arab Middle East.

HIST 285 Social Protest and Political Opposition in the Islamic Middle East and North Africa in the Twentieth Century

Rollman

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Using primary sources in translation and related readings, the course will critically analyze the programs, leadership, and strategies of protest and reform movements in the modern Middle East and North Africa. Through a selection of case studies, (e.g., Algeria, Afghanistan, Egypt) students will develop an understanding of the historical roots, theoretical bases, and social dynamics of these movements and the salience of Islamic ideology and practice in contemporary political and cultural discourses in the region.

HIST 287 History of Everyday Life in the Modern Middle East and North Africa

Kaptein

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Using sources such as legal documents, memoirs, chronicles, literature, and monographs from several disciplines, the course will explore in depth the quality and rhythms of life in a variety of urban and rural settings through an investigation of specific institutions, patterns of behavior, modes of work and residence, popular entertainment and popular culture. Students will study specific cases to develop an appreciation of how people of all classes experienced and responded to critical issues in modern history such as the growing power of the centralizing state, urbanization, economic scarcity and opportunity, changing patterns of religious practice, gender, relations, identity, the challenge of Western secular values, the impact of national and regional politics, and the uneven, but inexorable integration of the region into the global economy.

HIST 295 Strategy and Diplomacy of the Great Powers

Matsusaka

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the history of international politics since the late eighteenth century. Rather than treating one country in depth, it considers many countries in relation to each other over time. It examines how major states of the world have, over the past two centuries, interacted with each other in war and peace. It explores past attempts to create international systems that allow each major power to achieve its objectives without recourse to war. It also looks at relations between the great powers and smaller states, conflicts between colonial powers and anti-colonial movements, and post-colonial developments.

HIST 299/ES 299 U.S. Environmental History

Turner (Environmental Studies)

This course examines the relationships between nature and society in American history. The course will consider topics such as the decimation of the bison, the rise of Chicago, the history of natural disasters, and the environmental consequences of war. There are three goals for this course: First, we will examine how humans have interacted with nature over time and how nature, in turn, has shaped human society. Second, we will examine how attitudes toward nature have differed among peoples, places, and times and we will consider how the meanings people give to nature inform their cultural and political activities. Third, we will study how these historical forces have combined to shape the American landscape and the human and natural communities to which it is home. While this course focuses on the past, an important goal is to understand the ways in which history shapes how we understand and value the environment as we do today. Students may register for either HIST 299 or ES 299 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisites: ES 101, 102, or an American history course, or permission of the instructor.

HIST 301 Seminar. Women of Russia: A Portrait Gallery

Tumarkin

An exploration of the tragic, complex, inspiring fate of Russian women in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, a period that spans the Russian Empire at its height, the Russian Revolution of 1917, and the Soviet experiment. We will read about Russian peasants, nuns, princesses, feminists, workers, revolutionaries, poets, pilots and prostitutes, among others in our stellar cast of characters. Sources include memoirs, biographies, works of Russian literature, and film.

Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

HIST 307 Seminar. Religious Change and the Emergence of Modernity in Early Modern Europe, 1600–1800

Frace

During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, important religious, social, and intellectual transformations in Western Europe created two distinctly new and competing visions of modernity: an empirically-based rational religion and a faith-based evangelicalism. The legacy of their creation and conflict, both between one another and with the established traditionalists and insurgent atheists, reverberate to this day. In this seminar, we will explore: the relationship between science and religion; the effects of rising pluralism at home and global exploration overseas; witchcraft; the secularization and commercialization of daily life; the separation of church and state; and the formation of the first supranational identities that transcended traditional religious boundaries. These issues raise broad questions about the origins of cultural change, as well as the nature of modernity itself.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

HIST 317 Seminar. The Historical Construction of American Manhood, 1600–1900

Staff

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. From Nat Turner to Frederick Douglass, Thomas Jefferson to Teddy Roosevelt, the history of American men is well known. But does manhood itself have a history? Drawing on autobiography, fiction, personal correspondence and visual evidence, we will explore the diverse and changing meanings attached to masculinity in America from the seventeenth through the nineteenth centuries. What forces have shaped male identities in colonial America and the United States and what impact have those identities had on men's lives and actions? Topics include: fatherhood and family life, violence and war, male sexuality, religious belief, work, and the myth of the self-made man. Special attention will be paid to race, class, and region as sources of variation and conflict in the historical construction of American manhood.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

HIST 319 Seminar. Fear and Violence in Early America

Grandjean

This seminar explores the threats that stalked the inhabitants of colonial and early national America. How did early Americans describe their fears? What did they find frightening? And what roles did fear and violence play in shaping American society? In this seminar, we will first explore the language and psychology of fear, and then study the many ways that terror intruded on early American lives. Topics include: the role of terror in early American warfare; fear of the supernatural; domestic violence and murder; the specter of slave rebellion; and fear and violence as entertainment, in public executions and in early American literature.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

HIST 326 Seminar. American Jewish History

Auerbach

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The development of American Jewish life and institutions, from European immigration to the present. Particular attention to the pressures, pleasures, and perils of acculturation. Historical and literary evidence will guide explorations into the social and political implications of Jewish minority status in the United States, the impact of Israel on the consciousness of American Jews, and the tension between traditional Judaism and modern feminism.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

HIST 328 Seminar. Anti-Semitism in Historical Perspective

Mallon

Historians often refer to anti-Semitism as the "Longest Hatred." What accounts for this obsession? Is the anti-Semitism of medieval Europe that of Nazi Germany? These questions will inform our examination of pre-Christian anti-Semitism, the evolving attitudes of Christianity and Islam, the ambiguous legacy of the Enlightenment and the impact of revolution, modernization and nationalism. Sources include Church documents, medieval accounts, nineteenth- and twentieth-century memoirs and contemporary films.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

HIST 330 Seminar. Revolution and Rebellion in Twelfth-Century European Society

Ramsayer

This course will examine the revolutionary changes that occurred in all facets of life in twelfth-century Europe. The twelfth century represents one of the most important eras of European history, characterized by many historical and intellectual trends that gave birth to Europe as both idea and place. It was a time of economic growth, religious reformation, political and legal reorganization, cultural flowering, intellectual innovation, and outward expansion. Yet the twelfth century had a dark side, too. Crusades and colonization, heresy and religious disputes, town uprisings and mob violence also marked the century. Students will study the internal changes to European society as well as the expansion of Europe into the Mediterranean and beyond, paying close attention to the key people behind the transformations.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

HIST 334 Seminar. World Economics Orders, 1918–2008

Slobodan

The idea of the "world economy" as a single, interconnected entity only entered widespread discussion in Europe and North America after World War I. This course explores the diverse ways of imagining and ordering the world economy since then and what Europe's place has been within it, from imperial economies to national economies to a supposedly "globalized" economy to recent tilts of the European Union away from the United States and toward China and Russia. We will see how ideas such as development, modernization and globalization have dictated falsely universal models, but have also served as emancipatory idioms for previously marginalized individuals and populations. We will demystify economic arguments and learn to study economic texts for their content, but also as political and cultural documents.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

HIST 336 Seminar. The Middle East and World War I, 1914–1923

Rollman

Gallipoli and "Lawrence of Arabia" figure most prominently in Hollywood films and published accounts of World War I in the Middle East. The region's involvement in the "Great War" was, however, much more complicated than such popular accounts suggest. Turkey, Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Iraq, Iran, and North Africa were theaters of military operations. The entire region was the object of intense diplomatic efforts too, as European powers, especially Great Britain and France, confronted the demands of war, their competing interests, and the challenge of emergent nationalism among Kurds, Jews, Arabs, Iranians, Armenians, and Turks living there. Using primary and secondary sources, students will explore and analyze the pivotal transformations initiated and shaped by the war and the creation of new nation-states in its aftermath.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

HIST 343 Seminar. History of Israel

Auerbach

This course explores the historical development of Jewish national identity, from biblical promise through Zionist advocacy to contemporary political reality in the State of Israel. We will consider the continuing debate within Israel, ever since its founding, over national identity: traditional or modern; Jewish or democratic; religious or secular. Close attention will be paid to such formative national experiences as the Holocaust; the struggle for independence; the social and political consequences of mass immigration; the 1967, 1973, and Lebanon wars;

HIST 364 Seminar, Women in Islamic Society: Historical Perspectives
Kapteijns
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In the last decade, Muslim scholars and writers have become major contributors to the study (and history) of women in Islamic societies. They have undertaken a critique of older (including Western feminist) scholarship and proposed new theoretical approaches and methods. This seminar will focus on this new historiography and the insights it provides into the history of women and gender issues from the time of the Prophet to the present. Student research papers will focus on concrete case studies of women in specific Islamic societies and time periods, from North Africa and Western Europe to South Africa, Afghanistan, and China.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies

HIST 365 Seminar, Research in African History
Kapteijns
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar is organized around four broad and overlapping themes of recent African historiography relevant to the period 1960 to the present. In this period, African societies tried to overcome the legacies of colonial rule, and to fashion national identities and establish nation-states. However, due to external and internal causes, the successes of the 1960s and 1970s began to falter in the 1980s and 1990s—in many cases leading to violence in the form of civil and other wars. This seminar focuses on African expressions—the fancy word is "mediations"—of these historical changes, with a particular emphasis on popular culture broadly construed, i.e., including a wide range of media from the writing of history and journalism, to literary representations of history, and the popular arts such as popular song and television programs. The four central themes of the seminar are: colonialism, nationalism, and modernity; women and gender; the historical roots of modern conflicts; and popular culture broadly construed. Students will be encouraged to work with primary sources.

HIST 367 Seminar, Jewish Identities in the Modern World
Malino
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Modern Jewish identity is as varied as the countries in which Jews lived and the cultures to which they belong. Through contemporary literature, memoirs, and film, we shall explore the construction and dynamics of Jewish identity in Europe, America, Africa, the Middle East and South Asia. Topics include: the struggle for political equality, nationalism, feminism, colonialism and political anti-Semitism. We shall also examine the ways in which modern and modernizing nations, when constructing their own national identities, re-imagined the presence of "their Jews." Comparisons to other ethnic and religious groups.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.
Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

HIST 369 Seminar, History, Identity, and Civil War in the Sudan
Kapteijns
The deeper causes of the recent civil wars in the Sudan lie in the complex processes of state-formation that have placed different groups of Sudanes in a differential relationship to power and have produced divisive class, ethnic, and racial identities. Themes will include the history of slavery, the rise of an "Arab" middle class in the northern Nile valley, colonial policies, the first civil war between North and South that erupted at independence in 1956, the missed opportunities of the first decades of independence, and the rise of an Islamist oil state in the 1980s, which led to renewed civil war with the South and, since 2003, to war and humanitarian disaster in Darfur.

HIST 371 Seminar, Chinese Frontier Experience, 1600 to the Present
Giersch
Since the early twentieth century, Chinese leaders have wrestled with the task of integrating large, ethnically diverse populations into a unified, multilingual nation state. This task's difficulty is periodically revealed when places such as Tibet erupt into violence, as in March 2008. This course provides historical and theoretical approaches to understand the origins and implications of China's diversity. Recent pioneering research allows our class to investigate seventeenth and eighteenth-century histories of conquest that brought the Northeast (Manchuria), Taiwan, Mongolia, Xinjiang, and Tibet under Beijing's authority. These histories provide the foundation for exploring vexing modern issues, including the development of ethnic identities in China, efforts at nation-building and economic development in the forefronts, the internationalization of the Tibet problem, and the place of Islam in China.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

Unit: 1.0

HIST 372 Seminar, Chinese Nationalism and Identity in the Modern World
Giersch
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. China's emergence as a great power is a vital contemporary issue. Disputes over Taiwan and tensions over China's strategic agenda raise questions about how Chinese envision their nation and its global role. This course places these questions in historical context by examining the evolution of modern China's national identity. Topics include: the emergence of modern nationalism in the 1890s; the growth of revolutionary nationalism under the Communists; struggles over women's place in the nation; schooling and propaganda in teaching nationalism; the relationship between popular culture and nationalism; and the challenge of alternative visions, including Taiwanese identity. We conclude with current debates: is China's rise peaceful or is there currently a "China Threat" to global stability? Materials include position pieces, documentaries, and translated fiction and essays.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

HIST 377 Seminar, The City in Latin America
Osorio
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Urbanity has long been central to Latin American cultures. This seminar examines the historical development of Latin American cities from the Roman principles governing the grid pattern imposed by the Spanish in the sixteenth century through the development of the twentieth-century, post-modern megalopolis. The seminar's three main objectives are: to develop a theoretical framework within which to analyze and interpret the history and, historically studied in Latin American cities; to provide a basic overview of the historical development of cities in the context of Latin American law, society, and culture; and to subject to critical analysis some of the theoretical "models" (i.e., Baroque, Classical, Dependency, Modernism, and so on) developed to interpret the evolution and workings of Latin American cities.
Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in History and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

Unit: 1.0

HIST 378 Seminar, Women and Social Movements in Latin America
Osorio
This seminar examines the historical development of women's movements in Latin America from the nineteenth century through the twentieth century. We will examine the local political and ideological events that shaped women's movements and feminism(s) in the region. Topics include: women's early claims to equal education and the development of the ideologies of "women's rights" and social motherhood around 1900; women in democracy and the search for social justice from the 1930s—1950s: women's role in revolutions and counterrevolutions from the late-1950s through the 1970s; the advent of international feminism in the context of national liberation and re-democratization after 1974, and neoliberalism and globalization.

Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

HIST 395 International History Seminar
Matsusaka
Topic for 2009-10: The History of Modern Imperialism, 1800-2000. The term "imperialism" has been used loosely to refer to the domination, direct or indirect, by one country over other countries and peoples. Using comparative case studies as well as readings in the theory of imperialism, this seminar explores asymmetric patterns of global interactions emerging during the nineteenth and twentieth century commonly, although not without contest, placed under this rubric. Themes will include imperialism and its relationships to war, development, technology, globalization, human rights, and culture. We will also consider patterns of resistance and collaboration as well as "anti-imperialism" as a countervailing category of movements and ideologies.

Prerequisite: Normally open to juniors and seniors who have taken a grade II unit in history and/or a grade II unit in a relevant area/subject.

Distribution: Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

Related Courses
A student nearing the completion of her major requirements may, with approval of her advisor, petition the chair of the history department to receive credit toward the major for one related course outside the department's offerings taken at Wellesley.

Department Information
Most 200-level courses in the department are open to first-year students. Seminars are ordinarily limited to 15 students, non-majors as well as majors, who meet the prerequisite.

Requirements for the Major
The minimum major requires nine units of coursework, including two 300-level units (2.0). We recommend that majors include at least one seminar in their program of two 300-level units. Normally, seven of the nine units and all 300-level work must be taken at Wellesley. No AP or IB credits. In special circumstances and only with the permission of major advisor and department chair, at most one related course (1.0 unit) in another department may be counted toward the major. One cross-listed course may be counted toward the major, but a student may not count both a cross-listed and a related course toward the major.

Majors in history are allowed great latitude in designing a program of study, but it is important for a program to have breadth, depth, and historical perspective. To ensure breadth, the program must include: (1) at least one course (1.0 unit) in the history of Africa, China, Japan, Latin America, the Middle East, or South Asia; and (2) at least one course (1.0 unit) in the history of Europe, the United States, or Russia. To encourage depth of historical understanding, we urge majors to focus eventually upon a special field of study, such as (1) a particular geographical area, country, or culture; (2) a specific time period; (3) a particular historical approach, e.g., intellectual and cultural history, social and economic history; (4) a specific historical theme, e.g., the history of women, revolutions, colonialism. To ensure that students have a broad historical perspective, history majors must take at least one course (1.0 unit) in pre-modern history (e.g., Medieval Italy, Colonial Latin America, and so forth).

Requirements for the Minor
The history minor consists of a minimum of five units of coursework, of which at least four courses (4.0 units) must be above the 100 level and at least one course (1.0 unit) at the 300 level (excluding 350). Of these five courses, at least three courses (3.0 units) shall represent a coherent and integrated field of interest, such as, for example, American history, Medieval and Renaissance history, or social history. Of the other courses, at least one course (1.0 unit) shall be in a different field. Normally at least four courses (4.0 units) must be taken at Wellesley, and related courses in other departments will not count toward the minor.

Honors
The only path to honors is the senior thesis. Students must have a grade point average of 3.5 or higher in courses applied to the major and must complete six of the nine major units of coursework before the end of their junior year. For additional information, please consult the departmental Web site or ask at the history office. See Academic Distinctions.

Teacher Certification
Students interested in obtaining certification to teach history in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult Mr. Auerbach in the history department and the chair of the education department.

Interdepartmental Majors
Students interested in a major combining history and international relations should consider the interdepartmental major in International Relations: History, listed under International Relations.
International Relations

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

International relations is an interdisciplinary field concerned with understanding global interactions, both in the historical past and in the present. The major is designed to expose students to a wide range of viewpoints and analytical methodologies in their study of such fields as diplomacy and foreign policy, peace, war, security, international economic policy, and human rights.

The International Relations major is an interdepartmental major organized into three tracks: International Relations/Economics; International Relations/History; and International Relations/Political Science. All three tracks of the major share a set of five common "core" courses. The majors are administered by their "home" departments, and interested students should contact the relevant department chair or contact person for guidance on choosing an advisor and completing the major. For 2009-10, these contact people are:

Economics: Akila Wernpana
History: Yoshikura Matsuoka
Political Science: Robert Purlberg

Students who elect one of these International Relations majors may not combine it with a second major in their track department—e.g., students may not double major in International Relations-Economics and Economics. Other double majors are permitted, but generally unavoidable.

Goals for the Major

• A student who completes a major in international relations will acquire the depth of knowledge and intellectual skills equivalent to completing a major in one of the three component disciplines (economics, history, political science).
• The student will also acquire the breadth of knowledge about the other two component disciplines necessary for an interdisciplinary approach to the study of international relations.
• The student will demonstrate advanced competence in the reading, writing, and speaking of a language other than English.
• International Relations-Economics majors will acquire a more in-depth understanding of international trade, development or finance, as well as a familiarity with empirical research done in one of these three areas.
• International Relations-History majors will acquire specific knowledge about the history of modern international relations, an appreciation of the importance of culturally and geographically localized historical knowledge in the analysis of global change and an understanding, through case studies, of the relevance of history to contemporary international issues.
• International Relations-Political Science majors will be familiar with the historical study of international relations, across both world regions and centuries, complete at least five courses in the International Relations subfield, and engage in intensive research, writing, and interaction with a faculty member.

Requirements for the Major

International Relations majors consist of 14 units of course work—five core courses plus nine courses in one of the three tracks. In addition to this course work, all International Relations students are required to demonstrate advanced proficiency in a modern language, normally defined as two units of language study beyond the minimum required by the College. Language courses do not count towards the minimum 14 courses.

Five core courses: All students majoring in International Relations must take the following courses:

- ECON 101, ECON 102, ECON 213, 214, or 220, HIST 205, and POL3 221.

It is strongly recommended that students complete all core courses by the end of the sophomore year.

Nine courses in one of the following majors:

Economics

• Students who elect the International Relations-Economics major take the following courses in addition to the International Relations core:
  - ECON 103/SOC 190, ECON 201, ECON 202, and ECON 203.
  - At least two of the following electives: ECON 311, ECON 312, ECON 313, ECON 314, ECON 320, or ECON 333.

• One intermediate or advanced history course dealing with a country or region outside the United States or with international or diplomatic history
• One 300-level political science course in an area related to economic issues or policies
• One additional course in Africana Studies, anthropology, history, political science, sociology or women's and gender studies, dealing with a particular country or region, or with relations among nations, or with transnational institutions or phenomena

History

Students who elect the International Relations-history major take the following courses in addition to the International Relations core:

• Two history courses dealing with the period before 1800

• Three history courses dealing with the modern history of countries or regions

• Two courses dealing with modern international history to be selected in consultation with advisor

• One international history seminar

(Three of these eight history courses, including one pre-1800 course, must focus on one region of the world; at least three courses must deal with the non-Western world; and at least two must be at the 300 level.)

• One additional 200- or 300-level course in Africana Studies, Anthropology, Economics, Political Science, Sociology or Women's and Gender Studies

Political Science

Students who elect the International Relations-political science major take the following courses in addition to the International Relations core:

• Five political science courses in international relations (i.e., POL3 courses or POL2 courses that the director approves may count as POL3), at least two of which must be at the 300 level and one of which must be a seminar

• Two political science courses in comparative politics

• Either POL2 202 or POL2 204

• One of the following area studies courses: POL2 205, 206, 207, 208, [209], or 211

• One political science course in American politics or in political theory or statistics and data analysis

• One additional 200- or 300-level course in Africana Studies, Anthropology, Economics, History, Sociology, or Women's and Gender Studies
With the approval of the International Relations director and the chair of the department in which she is majoring, a student may count up to two Wellesley courses taken outside the departments of Economics, history, or political science towards the nine courses in her major. Attention is particularly drawn to International Relations-related courses offered in the departments of Africana Studies, Anthropology, Sociology, and Women’s and Gender Studies.

Honors
The policies governing eligibility for honors work in International Relations-Economics, International Relations-History, or International Relations-Political Science are set by the individual departments. Students interested in pursuing honors should consult the relevant departmental entry in the Bulletin.

Advanced Placement Policy
The International Relations program's policy about AP/IB credits follows that established by the relevant department. Please consult directions for election in the Departments of Economics, History, and Political Science. In no case do AP credits count towards the minimum major in International Relations.

Study Abroad
International Relations majors are strongly encouraged to spend at least one semester in a study-abroad program. Transfer credits from study-abroad programs must be approved by the appropriate department chair. Students are strongly encouraged to seek the relevant approval before studying abroad. At least two 300-level units must be completed at Wellesley.

Department of Italian Studies

Professor: Jacoff, Ward
Associate Professor: Parussa (Chair)
Senior Lecturer: Laviosa
Lecturer: Parussi

Italian Studies is a vast field, covering at least ten centuries and featuring master works in every artistic and literary genre. Whether in the Middle Ages, Renaissance or in the modern world, Italian culture has been always been in the forefront of innovation and excellence. Many of the great names of world culture in the fields of art, literature, political science, philosophy and cinema are Italian. However, many of Italian culture’s lesser-known names and works are equally rich and worthwhile studying. Our courses expose students to the wealth of Italian culture allowing them access to and familiarity with the nation’s cultural heritage and its contemporary life. As all our upper-level courses and most of our intermediate level ones are conducted in Italian, students have ample opportunity to hone their language skills.

Goals for the Major
Through the courses it offers, the department aims:
• To bring those students who take only language courses to a high level of competence in the language;
• To bring those who take their studies further to a level of proficiency so that they can enjoy a full intellectual life in the language;
• To expose students to the names and works from a variety of genres that form (but also contest) the nation’s literary tradition and cultural heritage;
• To introduce students to the crucial moments and events of Italian history and political life, starting in the Middle Ages and going on to the present;
• To give students a methodological grounding that will serve them well should they opt to pursue their interest in Italian Studies at graduate school.

All courses, unless otherwise listed, are conducted in Italian. In all courses given in Italian, except seminars, some work may be required in the language laboratory.

Qualified students are encouraged to spend their junior year in Italy on the Wellesley-Bologna program. See Special Academic Programs, Study Abroad.

The Department of Italian Studies offers both a major and a minor. See Requirements for the Major.

ITAS 101-102 Elementary Italian
Laviosa, Parussi, Ward
These courses focus on the development of basic language skills. Viewing of language video programs, television programs and films, listening to traditional and modern songs, and reading of passages and short stories offer an introduction to Italy and its culture. Three periods. Each semester earns one unit of credit. However, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Prerequisite: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ITAS 201-202 Intermediate Italian
Laviosa, Parussi, Ward
The aim of these courses is to develop students' fluency in spoken and written Italian. The reading of short stories, articles from Italian newspapers, and selected texts on Italian culture as well as the writing of compositions are used to promote critical and analytical skills. Listening is practiced through the viewing of Italian films, cultural videos, or television programs. Both reading and listening activities are followed by in-class discussions. Three periods. Each semester earns one unit of credit. However, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Prerequisite: 101-102 (201 for 202) or permission of the instructor.
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

ITAS 202W Intermediate Italian in Rome
Laviosa
This intensive three-week program is a rigorous linguistic and a valuable culture full-immersion experience in Italy. Like 202 on campus, the course consists of a fast-paced grammar review with practice of all language skills through readings of literary texts and newspaper articles, oral discussions, and presentations on Italian current events, and compositions on cultural topics examined in class. The course includes a rich program of guest speakers, both Italian university professors and artists, guided visits to sites of historical significance, and attendance at film screenings and theatre performances. Students must have received credit for ITAS 201 in order to receive credit for ITAS 202. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean’s Office approval.

Prerequisite: 201, or permission of the instructor.
Application required.
Semester: Wintersession
Unit: 1.0

ITAS 203 Intensive Intermediate Italian
Parussi
This course is for students who have taken 103 or both 101 and 102. The course covers the same material as 201 and 202 over five class periods per week. The aim of the course is to improve and strengthen the skills acquired in Elementary Italian through reading authentic literary and journalistic texts, viewing of contemporary films, writing compositions, and grammar review. This is an intensive course developed especially for students with a strong interest in Italian Studies and who intend to spend a semester or year abroad.
ITAL 209 Italian-Jewish Identity (in English)

Parussa

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In the light of events like the high-profile trial of a Nazi war criminal and Pope John Paul II's encyclical letter on the responsibilities of Christians in the Holocaust, this course aims to discuss the question of Jewish identity in contemporary Italian culture. Students will read prose and poetry, essays and articles, as well as watch films that address issues such as religious and national identity in a culturally, racially, and linguistically homogeneous country like Italy. The course will also give students an overview of the formations and transformation of the Jewish community in Italian society. In addition to well-known Jewish Italian writers like Primo Levi and Bassani, students will read pertinent works by non-Jewish writers like Loy.

ITAL 212/CAMS 224 Italian Women Directors: The Female Authorial Voice in Italian Cinema (in English)

Laviosa

This course examines the films of a number of major Italian women directors across two artistic generations: Cavani and Wertmüller from the 1960s to the 1990s; Archibugi, Comencini and others in the 1990s. Neither fascist cinema nor neorealism fostered female talents, so it was only with the emergence of feminism and the women's movement of the 1960s and 1970s that a space for female voices in Italian cinema was created. The course will explore how women directors give form to their directorial signatures in film, focusing on their films' formal features and narrative themes in the light of their socio-historical context. Students may register for either ITAS 212 or CAMS 224 and credit will be granted accordingly.

ITAL 261 Italian Cinema (in English)

Ward

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A survey of the directors and film styles that paved the way for the golden age of Italian cinema, this course examines, first, the early Italian cinema of the first two decades of the twentieth century; going on to focus on cinema before embarking on an in-depth journey into the genre that made Italian cinema famous, namely, neorealism. We will analyze major films by Rossellini, Visconti, De Sica, and Antonioni (among others) with a view to understanding the ethical, social, political and philosophical foundations of the neorealist aesthetic.

ITAL 246 Dante (in English)

Jacoff

The course offers students an introduction to Dante and his culture. The centrality and encyclopedic nature of Dante's Divine Comedy make it a paradigmatic work for students of the Middle Ages. Since Dante has profoundly influenced several writers of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, knowledge of the Comedy illuminates modern literature as well. This course presumes no special background and attempts to create a context in which Dante's poetry can be carefully explored.

ITAL 271 The Construction of Italy as a Nation

Ward

The course aims, first, to give students who wish to continue their study of Italian the chance to practice and refine their skills, and second, to introduce students to one of the major themes of Italian culture, namely, the role played by Italian intellectuals in the construction of Italy as a nation. We will read how Dante, Petrarch, and Machiavelli imagined Italy as a nation before it came into existence in 1860; how the nation came to be unified; and how the experience of unification has come to represent a controversial point of reference for twentieth-century Italy. Other figures to be studied will include Bembo, Castiglione, Foscolo, Gramsci, Tomasi di Lampedusa, D’Annunzio, Visconti, Levi, Blasetti, and Rossellini.

Prerequisite: 202 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

ITAL 277 Small Books, Big Ideas: A Journey Through Italian Identities

Parussa

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Unlike other European literatures, contemporary Italian literature lacks a major work of fiction representing the nation's cultural identity. Rather, Italian literature boasts the small book, brief unclassifiable narratives that express the variety and complexity of Italian culture. Realistic novels or philosophical short stories, memoirs or literary essays, these works are a fine balance between a number of literary genres and, as such, are a good entrée into the multifaceted and contradictory identity of Italy as a nation. The course will combine a survey of contemporary Italian literature with a theoretical analysis of how Italian identity has been represented in works by Moravia, Calvino, Ortese, and others.

Prerequisite: 201 as a prerequisite and 202 or 203 as a corequisite or permission of the instructor.

ITAL 278 Women in Love: Portraits of Desire in Italian Culture

Parussa

This course is dedicated to the representation of female desire in Italian culture. From Dante’s Francesca da Rimini to Pasolini’s Medea, passing through renowned literary characters such as Goldoni’s Mirandolina, Manzoni’s Gertrude, and Verdi’s Violetta, the course will explore different and contrasting voices of female desire: unrequited and fulfilled, passionate and spiritual, maternal and destructive, domestic and transgressive. In particular, the varied and beautiful voices of women in love will become privileged viewpoints to understand the changes that occur in Italian culture in the conception of desire and other intimate emotions, as well as in the notion of gender and sexuality. Students will read texts by men and women from a wide variety of literary genres and artistic forms including not only prose and poetry, but also theater, opera, and cinema. They will also read important theoretical essays on the conception of love in Western cultures by Barthes, de Rougement, Gidden, and Nussbaum.

ITAS 310 Fascism and Resistance in Italy

This course examines the two fundamental political and cultural experiences of twentieth-century Italy: the 20-year fascist regime and the resistance to it. We will study the origins of fascism in Italy's participation in World War I and its colonial ambitions, and then follow the development of fascism over the two decades of its existence and ask to what extent it received the consensus of the Italian people. We will go on to examine the various ways in which Italians resisted fascism and the role the ideals that animated fascist thinking had in the postwar period. Authors to be studied include: Marinetti, D'Annunzio, Pascoli, Croce, Gobetti, Rosselli, Bassani, Ginzburg, Carlo and Primo Levi, and Silone.

Prerequisite: 211, 271, 272, or 273, or permission of the instructor.

ITAS 311 Theatre, Politics, and the Arts in Renaissance Italy

Pratessa

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The flourishing Italian theatre in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries is an extraordinary and unmatched phenomenon in the history of Italian culture. In Italian courts and city squares, theatre became the center of a dynamic relationship between power and culture. Under the aegis of princes and popes, artists of all kinds worked for the stage to celebrate and criticize the same power that both fostered and limited their intellectual freedom. The stage became a mirror in which Renaissance Italy, while attempting to adorn its beauty, came face to face with its distorted image. The course will include readings of major plays by Bionia, Machiavelli, and Ariosto. Attention will also be given to the paintings, drawings, and sketches used in the staging of these plays.

Prerequisite: 211, 271, 272, 273, or 274, or permission of the instructor.

Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ITAS 312 Rinascimento e Rinascimento: Cultural Identities in Fifteenth- and Sixteenth-Century Italy

Paratessa

The Renaissance witnessed deep cultural transformations that have influenced contemporary ways of thinking. Cultural notions of class, gender, and religion find their roots in the cultural debate that animated Italian courts during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Exploring how these notions have been both shaped and challenged, the course will suggest that it is more appropriate to think of the Renaissance as a plural rather than a single entity. In particular, attention will be given to themes such as the donna or la donna angiolietta and the poet, the cortigiano and the peasant, the principe and the artist. The course will give students a solid introduction to the literature of the period and provide them with a theoretical framework for a thorough discussion of the materials available at hand.

Prerequisite: 211, 271, 272, 273, or 274, or permission of the instructor.

Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ITAS 314 The Other Half: History and Culture of the Italian South

Ward

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course aims to introduce advanced level students to the rich and varied cultural and historical landscape of the Italian South, the mezzogiorno. Taking as its starting point the medieval court of Frederick II and the deep-seated repercussions its influence had on Italian cultural life, the course goes on to examine the works of southern thinkers and writers like Bruno, Campanella, and Vico, as well as the Neapolitan Enlightenment and the Southern question. In addition, we will examine twentieth-century writers like Carlo Levi, Tornati di Lampedusa, Verga, Sciascia and Consolo, who were both born in南部 Italy and have written about it.

Prerequisite: 211, 271, 272, or [273], or permission of the instructor.

ITAS 320 The Landscape of Italian Poetry

Paratessa

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The course is dedicated to the representation and exploration of landscape in the Italian poetic tradition. By studying how the varied and beautiful Italian landscape found expression in the literary works of major poets, students will be exposed to a rich body of work and the tradition it both follows and renews. In particular, the course will focus on a series of specific themes, giving special attention to language and style. These will include: the opposition between rural and urban landscapes; the tension between dialects and the national language; the complex dynamics of tradition and innovation. Through initial exposure to selected classical poets, including Dante and Petrarch, students will gain in-depth knowledge of the main formal structures of Italian poetry, from the classical sonnet, going on to free verse. In addition, we will read poems by the Italian greats of the twentieth century, namely Ungaretti, Saba and Montale, as well as works by contemporary poets, such as Caproni, Sereni and Valduga.

Prerequisite: 211, 271, 272, [273], or 274, or permission of the instructor.

Unit: 1.0

ITAS 349 The Function of Narrative

Ward

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Beginning with Boccaccio and going on to Manzoni and Verga, the course introduces students to the major figures of the Italian narrative tradition. We then go on to study twentieth-century narrative texts, all the time seeking answers to the question of why narrative is such a fundamental human need. Why, for example, do we narrate our experience of life and the sense we have of ourselves, even in the form of diaries? Do the stories we tell faithfully reflect reality or do they create it? The course concludes with a reflection on narrative technique in cinema illustrated by the films of Antonioni. Other authors to be studied may include Fos Gonzaga, Calvino, Ceresi, Rasy, Pasolini, Celati, and Benni.

Requirements for the Major

The major in Italian Studies offers students the opportunity to acquire fluency in the language and knowledge of the culture of Italy in a historical perspective. Students are strongly urged to begin Italian in their first year. ITAS 101-102 count toward the degree, but not the major. Students majoring in Italian are required to take nine units above the 100 level. One of such courses must be 211, 271, 272, [273], or 274. Two of the nine courses must be at the 300 level and be taken in the department. The requirement to take two courses at the 300 level may not be met by taking 350 (Research or Individual Study), 360 (Senior Thesis Research) or 370 (Senior Thesis). Students are encouraged to consult with the chair about the sequence of courses they will take. Courses given in translation count toward the major. Qualified students are encouraged to spend their junior year abroad in Italy on the Eastern College Consortium program in Bologna (of which the Department of Italian Studies is a participant) or on another approved program.

Requirements for the Minor

The minor in Italian Studies requires five units above the 100 level. Courses offered in translation count towards the minor.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.
Jewish Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR AND MINOR

Director: Malino (History)
Advisory Board: Geller (Religion), Malino (History), Rosenwald (English)

The major in Jewish Studies is designed to acquaint students with the many facets of Jewish civilization through an interdisciplinary study of Jewish religion, history, philosophy, art, literature, social and political institutions, and cultural patterns.

Goals for the Major

Developing an understanding of the breadth and diversity of Jewish civilization through interdisciplinary learning in the arts, humanities, and social sciences

- Learning to contextualize Jewish civilization within its broader milieu
- Understanding the foundation texts and central ideas and institutions of Judaism
- Building specialized knowledge in one area: e.g., among others, Biblical studies; ancient, medieval, early modern or modern Jewish history; European or Eastern Jewry; Hebrew language and literature, Israel studies
- Establishing proficiency (equivalent to two years of undergraduate instruction) in Hebrew, either Biblical or modern, or if relevant Yiddish, Arabic or Spanish.
- Interpreting primary texts critically, developing writing skills, and learning to identify essential links among disciplines and cultures

HEBR 101-102 Elementary Hebrew
Geller (Religion)
Introduction to Hebrew with emphasis on its contemporary spoken and written form. Practice in the skills of listening and speaking as well as reading and writing, together with systematic study of Hebrew grammar. Students will master a basic vocabulary of approximately 1,000 words, and become comfortable in the use of the present, past and future tenses, as well as basic verb patterns. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring

HEBR 201-202 Intermediate Hebrew

Staff
Building on the foundations of 101-102, the third semester will continue to develop skills in modern Hebrew. Students will broaden their knowledge of verb patterns, compound sentence structures and mixed tenses. Special emphasis will be placed on composition and oral reports. The fourth semester will focus on literature through reading and discussion of selected short pieces of prose and poetry. Some examples of classical, rabbinic, and liturgical Hebrew will also be analyzed. Students will be required to write short compositions inspired by their readings. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies

JWST 210 Jewish Fiction Around the Globe: Homeland and the Diaspora (in English)

Staff
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An exploration of contemporary Jewish fiction from diverse Jewish communities around the world including Israel, the U.S., Latin America, Germany, Eastern Europe, and South Africa. An examination of ideas of Homeland and the Diaspora, immigration and exile. Focus on the challenges of representing post-Holocaust Jewish identity in a global context. The authors to be read include Philip Roth, Shai Agnon, Aharon Appelfeld, Eva Hoffman, Ronit Matalon. The course is designed to provide students with an opportunity to develop a deeper understanding of global Jewish fiction today and its foundation in Hebraic literary tradition. All texts are in English translation.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken this course as HEBR 210.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Religion, Ethics and Moral Philosophy

JWST 229 Eastern European Jewish Civilization: Yiddishkeit and Yiddishland

Staff
This course introduces students to one of the most important Jewish centers in the Diaspora from 1772 to the present by examining important Jewish cultural, religious, and national movements. Making generous use of poetry and fiction as well as memoir, biography and newly available archival materials, the course explores the politics of imperial Russia, the impact of the Jewish Enlightenment in the Pale of Settlement and the role of Hasidism, Zionism and Socialism in shaping the world of Eastern European Jews. It also confronts the Shoah and the fate of the Eastern European Jewry trapped between a murderous fascism and a totalitarian communist system. The course ends with a consideration of postwar Jewish life, the disintegration of the Soviet Union and immigration to Israel and the Diaspora.

Prerequisite: None.
Distribution: Language and Literature or Historical Studies

JWST 230 Contemporary Israeli Culture through Literature, Music, and Film (in English)

Staff
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will use the lens of cultural studies through selected examples from film, music and literature by various authors to discuss an array of issues defining contemporary Israeli culture. It will examine how Israeli popular culture, secular and religious identity, the legacy of state-building and the Holocaust as well as the encounter with the Other (new immigrants, non-Israelis and non-Jews) are reflected in the text and on the screen. We will look at the changing images and self-representations of Israelis in diverse social and cultural contexts. The course will focus on primary and secondary readings, discussion, music, and films and music videos (with English subtitles).

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Directors: Renjilian-Burgy (Spanish), Wasserspring (Political Science)

Advisory Committee: Agosín (Spanish), Elkins (Religion), Guzaitkyte (Spanish), Levitt (Sociology), McEwan (Economics), Oles (Art), Osorio (History), Renjilian-Burgy (Spanish), Vega (Spanish), Wasserspring (Political Science)

The Latin American Studies major is designed to provide students with a broad understanding of the Latin American experience through an interdisciplinary program of study.

The Latin American Studies major at Wellesley offers a flexible, multidisciplinary concentration that promotes an understanding of the diverse cultural and historical development of Latin America over time. A central goal of this major is to allow students to acquire an in-depth multidisciplinary knowledge of the political, economic, historical, and cultural development of the major regions of Latin America: Mexico, Central and South America, and the Caribbean Basin. In order to achieve these goals, courses in Latin American Studies are designed to familiarize students with classic works on Latin America, the ways in which various disciplines have contributed to understandings of its culture, politics and history, as well as with newer and challenging perspectives on the region. The Latin American Studies major emphasizes the acquisition of critical analytical skills for understanding and evaluating the diversity of realities in both past and present Latin America.

Courses may be taken in the Program for Mexican Culture and Society in Puebla, Mexico and in approved programs in other Latin American sites. Courses focusing Latin America in the PRESCHC program in Spain or in other study-abroad programs can be counted with permission of the directors.

Upon enrollment, the student must notify the instructor that the course is to be counted for Latin American Studies and that, as such, the student will be required to do a research paper which focuses on Latin America.

Requirements for the Major

The Latin American Studies major consists of 11 courses: two language courses and nine courses from the detailed list above. The language requirement normally consists of two Spanish courses at the 241 level or above. In exceptional circumstances when a student can demonstrate oral and written mastery of Spanish, she may be exempted from this requirement by taking an oral and written examination.

For the nine courses beyond the language requirement, students need to choose a concentration consisting of four courses taken in one of the following disciplines: art history, history, political science, sociology, or Spanish. (In special circumstances, students may petition the directors for an alternative field of concentration.) Overall, students must complete courses in at least three different disciplines. Out of the nine required units, at least two must be taken at the 300 level. At least one 300-level course must be in the student’s field of concentration. It is also recommended that one 300-level course be a seminar.

Upon declaring the major, students must submit to the directors a plan of study for approval. In cases where the student’s chosen concentration is in a discipline other than those of the directors, a second advisor in the student’s field of concentration must also be arranged.

Students should note that those courses listed with an asterisk (*) above require that the student upon enrollment inform the instructor that the course is to be counted towards her Latin American Studies major. Students enrolled in these courses must complete a research paper on a Latin American theme.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. Students who are interested in writing an honors thesis in Latin American Studies should submit a proposal to the faculty committee by the end of their junior year. The proposal should include a description of the thesis project, a sample bibliography and a copy of the student's transcript.
It is required that the student has already completed fundamental coursework in the area in which she proposes to do her honors work. See Academic Distinctions.

Graduate Study
Majors may also apply to the Five-Year
Cooperative Degree Program at Georgetown University in Latin American Studies. This program enables the student to apply upper-level Latin American Studies courses taken at Wellesley toward the master's degree at Georgetown. A summer of study at the Universidad Catolica in Santiago, Chile, taken during an undergraduate summer, and a year of academic work at Georgetown are required to earn the master's degree at Georgetown in one year. Interested students should contact the directors of Latin American Studies or the Center for Work and Service.

Study Abroad
Qualified juniors are encouraged to spend a semester or a year in Latin America. Both the directors and the Study Abroad Office have information to help students select appropriate sites for study in Latin America. Wellesley offers several opportunities, including its own program in Puebla, Mexico, as well as exchange opportunities in Argentina. In addition, the Wellesley Internship Program in Costa Rica (WICR) offers funded summer internships to qualified students. To be eligible for study in Latin America, a student is expected to have completed a course at or above SPAN 241.

Mathematics has a fascinating dual nature. Many study it as an object of endless beauty, interest and intellectual challenge, while others are motivated by its applications to real-world problems.
Increasingly, mathematics is an essential tool for modeling phenomena in the physical, biological and social sciences. Mathematical literacy is the key to surviving and thriving in the world of technology. At its heart, mathematics is the study of patterns; it is a creative art as well as a logical system. Mathematics has always been a part of the liberal arts core at Wellesley College.
One way our students continue this tradition is by combining mathematics with a minor or a double major in another field such as economics, English, classics or chemistry. Mathematics is excellent preparation for a lifetime of discovering, learning, and applying new knowledge.
Most courses meet for three periods weekly or for two periods weekly with a third period approximately every other week.

wellesley.edu/Math/mathhome.html) has more detailed course descriptions and information for majors and minors.

Goals for the Major
The mathematics major offers to students a rigorous program of study in analysis, algebra, topology, geometry and various applied subjects.
These categories form the foundations of the discipline in both the pure and applied arenas.
During their mathematical studies, students learn how to execute sophisticated computations and to form arguments using appropriate laws of inference. Part of their training involves an understanding of mathematical grammar, syntax, diction and style and the ways in which abstracts concepts are accurately communicated in the domains of both speech and writing. The major is sufficiently broad and deep in scope that students are prepared thereafter to continue their studies in graduate school or to apply their skills in the private sector.

MATH 101 Reasoning with Data: Elementary
Applied Statistics

Staff
An introduction to the fundamental ideas and methods of statistics for analyzing data. Topics include descriptive statistics, basic probability, inference and hypothesis testing. Emphasis on understanding the use and misuse of statistics in a variety of fields, including medicine and both the physical and social sciences. This course is intended to be accessible to those students who have not yet had calculus.
MATH 102 Application of Mathematics without Calculus

Staff
This course explores several areas of mathematics which have application in the physical and social sciences, yet which require only high-school mathematics as a prerequisite. The areas covered will be chosen from subjects of linear equations, linear programming, probability, game theory, and stochastic processes. Students will solve problems on topics ranging from medical testing to economics, with the results demonstrating the value of mathematical reasoning. May not be counted toward the major.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 115 Calculus I

Staff
Introduction to differential and integral calculus for functions of one variable. The heart of calculus is the study of rates of change. Differential calculus concerns the process of finding the rate at which a quantity is changing (the derivative). Integral calculus reverses this process. Information is given about the derivative, and the process of integration finds the "integral" which measures accumulated change. This course aims to develop a thorough understanding of the concepts of differentiation and integration, and covers techniques and applications of differentiation and integration of algebraic, trigonometric, logarithmic, and exponential functions. MATH 115 is an introductory course designed for students who have not seen calculus before.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 116 Calculus II

Staff
The course begins with applications and techniques of integration. It probes notions of limit and convergence and adds techniques for finding limits. Half of the course covers infinite sequences and series, where the basic question is: What meaning can we attach to a sum with infinitely many terms and why might we care? The course can help students improve their ability to reason abstractly and also teaches important computational techniques. Topics include integration techniques, L'Hôpital's rule, improper integrals, geometric and other applications of integration, theoretical basis of limits and continuity, infinite series, power series, and Taylor series. MATH 116 is the appropriate first course for many students who have had AB calculus in high school.

Prerequisite: 115 or the equivalent

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 120 Calculus II-A

Staff
This course is a variant of 116 for students who have a thorough knowledge of the techniques of differentiation and integration, and familiarity with inverse trigonometric functions and the logarithmic and exponential functions. It includes a rigorous and careful treatment of limits, sequences, and series, Taylor's theorem, approximations and numerical methods, Riemann sums, improper integrals, L'Hôpital's rule, and applications of integration.

Prerequisite: Open by permission of the department to students who have completed a year of high school calculus.

Students who have studied Taylor series should elect 205. Not open to students who have completed 115, 116, or the equivalent.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

MATH 205 Multivariable Calculus

Staff
Most real-world systems that one may want to model, whether in the natural or in the social sciences, have many interdependent parameters. To apply calculus to these systems, we need to extend the ideas and techniques of MATH 115 and MATH 116 to functions of more than one variable. Topics include vectors, matrices, determinants, polar, cylindrical, and spherical coordinates, curves, functions of several variables, partial and directional derivatives, gradients, Lagrange multipliers, multiple integrals, line integrals, and Green's Theorem.

Prerequisite: 116, 120, or the equivalent. Not open to students who have completed MATH 216/PHYS 216.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 206 Linear Algebra

Kerr, Wang
Linear algebra is one of the most beautiful subjects in the undergraduate mathematics curriculum. It is also one of the most important with many possible applications. In this course, students learn computational techniques that have widespread applications in the natural and social sciences as well as in industry, finance, and management. There is also a focus on learning how to understand and write mathematical proofs and an emphasis on improving mathematical style and sophistication. Topics include vector spaces, subspaces, linear independence, bases, dimension, inner products, linear transformations, matrix representations, range and null spaces, inverses, and eigenvalues.

Prerequisite: 205 or MATH 215/PHYS 215 or, with permission of the instructor, 116, 120, or the equivalent.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 210 Differential Equations

Wang
Introduction to theory and solution of ordinary differential equations, with applications to such areas as physics, economics, and engineering. Includes linear and nonlinear equations and system solutions, existence and uniqueness theorems, and solution methods of power series, Laplace transform, and graphical and numerical methods.

Prerequisite: 205

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

MATH 214 Euclidean and Non-Euclidean Geometry

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A rigorous treatment of the fundamentals of two-dimensional geometry: Euclidean, spherical, elliptic, and hyperbolic. The course will present the basic classical results of plane geometry: congruence theorems, concurrence theorems, classification of isometries, etc., and their analogues in the non-Euclidean settings. The course will provide a link between classical geometry and modern geometry, preparing for study in group theory, differential geometry, topology, and mathematical physics. The approach will be analytical, providing practice in proof techniques. This course is strongly recommended for prospective teachers of mathematics.

Prerequisite: 205 or permission of the instructor

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

MATH 215 Mathematics for the Sciences I

Shultz
This course is tailored to the needs and preparations of students considering majors in the sciences. It presents techniques of applied mathematics relevant to a broad range of scientific studies, from the life sciences to physics and astronomy. The topics of study include complex numbers, ordinary differential equations, an introduction to partial differential equations, linear algebra (matrices, systems of linear equations, vector spaces, eigenvalue problems), and Fourier series. The course emphasizes mathematical techniques and presents applications from all the sciences. Some familiarity with vectors (e.g., dot products) is assumed.

Prerequisite: 116, 120, or the equivalent. Not open to students who have taken this course as PHYS 215.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0
MATH 220 Probability and Elementary Statistics

Maunson

This course is about the mathematics of uncertainty, where we use the ideas of probability to describe patterns in chance phenomena. Probability is the basis of statistics and game theory, and is immensely useful in many fields including business, social and physical sciences, and medicine. The first part of the course focuses on probability theory (random variables, conditional probability, probability distributions), using integration and infinite series. The second part discusses topics from statistics (sampling, estimation, confidence interval, hypothesis testing). Applications are taken from areas such as medical diagnosis, quality control, gambling, political polls, and others.

Prerequisite: 205. Open to students with a strong background in single-variable calculus (116, 120, or the equivalent) by permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling, fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 223 Number Theory

Trenk

Number theory is the study of the most basic mathematical objects: the natural numbers (1, 2, 3, etc.). It begins by investigating simple patterns; for instance, which numbers can be written as sums of two squares? Do the primes go on forever? How can we be sure? The patterns and structures that emerge from studying the properties of numbers are so elegant, complex, and important that number theory has been called "the Queen of Mathematics." Once studied only for its intrinsic beauty, number theory has practical applications in cryptography and computer science. Topics include the Euclidean algorithm, modular arithmetic, Fermat’s and Euler’s Theorems, public key cryptography, quadratic reciprocity. MATH 223 has a focus on learning to understand and write mathematical proofs; it can serve as valuable preparation for 303. Majors can fulfill the major presentation requirement in this course in 2009-10.

Prerequisite: 116, 120 or the equivalent, or CS 230 together with permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 225 Combinatorics and Graph Theory

Hirschhorn, Trenk

Combinatorics is the art of counting possibilities: for instance, how many different ways are there to distribute 20 apples to 10 kids? Graph theory is the study of connected networks of objects. Both have important applications to many areas of mathematics and computer science. The course will be taught emphasizing creative problem-solving as well as methods of proof, such as proof by contradiction and induction. Topics include: selections and arrangements, generating functions, recurrence relations, graph coloring, Hamiltonian and Eulerian circuits, and trees.

Prerequisite: 116, 120, or the equivalent, or CS 230 together with permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 251 Topics in Applied Mathematics

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.

Prerequisite: None

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

MATH 302 Elements of Analysis I

Chang, Songtak

Real analysis is the study of the rigorous theory of the real numbers, Euclidean space, and calculus. The goal is to thoroughly understand the familiar concepts of continuity, limits and sequences. We also study metric spaces, which generalize the familiar notion of distance to a broader setting. Topics include metric spaces; compact, complete, and connected spaces; continuous functions; differentiation and integration; limits and sequences; and interchange of limit operations as time permits.

Prerequisite: 205 and 206

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 303 Elements of Analysis II

Chang

A continuation of MATH 302. Topics chosen from the theory of Riemann integration, measure theory, Lebesgue integration, Fourier series, and calculus on manifolds. Offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: 302

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 305 Abstract Algebra

Trenk, Maunson

In this course, students examine the structural similarities between familiar mathematical objects such as number systems, matrix sets, function spaces, general vector spaces and modules. Topics include groups, rings, fields, homomorphisms, normal subgroups, quotient spaces, isomorphism theorems, divisibility and factorization. Many concepts generalize number theoretic notions such as Fermat's little theorem and the Euclidean algorithm. Optional subjects include group actions and applications to combinatorics.

Prerequisite: 205

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 306 Topics in Abstract Algebra

Diel

Topic for 2009-10: Modern Number Theory

This course offers an advanced treatment of number theory from an abstract algebraic point of view. Subjects covered will include unique factorization, congruence, quadratic and cubic reciprocity, Gauss and Jacobi sums, equations over finite fields, and the zeta function. Students who have taken 306 in Spring 2007 or 2008 may repeat this course for credit. Majors can fulfill the presentation requirement in this course in 2009-10.

Prerequisite: 305

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

MATH 307 Topology

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course covers some basic notions of point-set topology, such as topological spaces, metric spaces, connectedness and compactness, Heine-Borel Theorem, quotient spaces, topological groups, groups acting on spaces, homotopy equivalences, separation axioms, Euler characteristic and classification of surfaces. Additional topics include the study of the fundamental group (time permitting).

Prerequisite: 206 or by permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken 212.

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

MATH 309 Foundations of Mathematics

Songtak

This course will introduce students to aspects of set theory and formal logic. The notion of set is one of the fundamental notions of modern mathematics. In fact, other mathematical notions, such as function, relation, number, etc., can be represented in terms of set theoretical notions and their basic properties can be proved using purely set theoretic axioms. The course will include the Zermelo-Fraenkel axioms for set theory, the Axiom of Choice, transfinite arithmetic, Zorn's Lemma, ordinal numbers and cardinal numbers. We also study Godel's incompleteness theorem, which asserts that any consistent system containing arithmetic has questions that cannot be answered within the system.

Offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: 302 or 305, or at least two from 206, 214, 223, 225

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

MATH 310 Complex Analysis

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course offers a rigorous treatment of complex analysis of one variable. Topics include complex numbers and functions, analyticity, Cauchy's integral formula and its consequences, Taylor and Laurent series, the residue theorem, the principle of the argument and Rouche's theorem. Other subjects may include conformal mappings, asymptotic series and infinite products. The course will be conducted at the level of both theory and computation.

Prerequisite: 302

Distribution: Mathematical Modeling

Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

MATH 312 Differential Geometry

Kerr

Differential geometry has two aspects. Classical differential geometry, which shares origins with the beginnings of calculus, is the study of local properties of curves and surfaces. Local properties are those properties which depend only on the behavior of the curve or the surface in a neighborhood of point. The other aspect is global differential geometry: here we seek how these local properties influence the behavior of the entire curve or surface. The main idea is that of curvature. What is curvature? It can be intrinsic or extrinsic. What's the difference? What does it mean to have greater or smaller (or positive or negative) curvature? We will answer these questions for surfaces in three-space, as well as for abstract manifolds. Topics include curvature of curves and surfaces, intrinsic and second fundamental forms, equations of Gauss and Codazzi, the fundamental theorem of surfaces, geodesics, and surfaces of constant curvature.

Prerequisite: 206 or by permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken 212.

Mathematics

MATH 325 Graph Theory
Trenk
Graph Theory has origins both in recreational mathematics problems (i.e., puzzles and games) and as a tool to solve practical problems in many areas of society. Topics include: trees, connectivity, Hamiltonian cycles, directed graphs and tournaments, vertex and edge coloring, matchings, extremal graph theory. Students will be expected to experiment and formulate conjectures. Majors can fulfill the major presentation requirement in this course in 2009–10.
Prerequisite: 225 and either 302 or 305. Not open to students who have taken this course as a topic of 349.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling.
 Semester: Spring, Unit: 1.0

MATH 349 Selected Topics
Shultz
Linear algebra at this more advanced level is a basic tool in many areas of mathematics and other fields. The course begins by revisiting some linear algebra concepts from Math 206 in a more sophisticated way, making use of the mathematical maturity picked up in Math 305. Such topics include vector spaces, linear independence, bases, and dimension, linear transformations, and inner product spaces. Then we will turn to new notions, including dual spaces, reflexivity, annihilators, direct sums and quotients, tensor products, and multilinear forms. One of the main goals of the course is the derivation of canonical forms, including triangular form and Jordan canonical form. These are methods of analyzing matrices that are more general and powerful than diagonalization (studied in Math 206). We will also discuss the spectral theorem, the best example of successful diagonalization and its applications.

Requirements for the Major
Students majoring in mathematics entering in the fall of 2007 and later must complete MATH 115 and one of 116/120 (or the equivalent) and at least eight units of 200-level and 300-level courses. These eight units must include 205, 206, 302, 305, and two additional 300-level courses. Students entering before the fall of 2007 must complete MATH 115 and one of 116/120 (or the equivalent) and at least seven units of 200-level and 300-level courses. These seven units must include 205, 206, 302, 305, and one additional 300-level course. For students entering in the fall of 2006 and later, at most two of 206, 210, 215 may be counted toward the major. Credit for PHYS 216 satisfies the requirement that a mathematics major take 205, but does not count as one of the units of 200-level and 300-level courses toward the major.

Students expecting to major in mathematics should complete the prerequisites for 302 and 305 before the junior year. Students may wish to consult the chair of the Department of Mathematics or their current mathematics instructor in deciding when to take 302 and 305. Independent study units (MATH 350, 360, 370) may not count as one of the 300-level courses required for the major.

Students are also required to present one classroom talk in either their junior or senior year, usually in one of the courses specially designated as fulfilling this requirement. (See course listings with "Majors can fulfill the major presentation requirement in this course.") Usually two such courses are designated each semester. In addition, a limited number of students may be able to fulfill the presentation requirement in other courses.

In addition, a limited number of students may be able to fulfill the presentation requirement in other courses, with permission of the instructor.

Students expecting to do graduate work in mathematics should elect 302, 305, and at least four other 400-level courses, possibly including a graduate course at MIT. See the department Web page for course suggestions: www.wellesley.edu/math/Pages/Curriculum/outside_wellesley.html. They are also advised to acquire a reading knowledge of one or more of the following languages: French, German, or Russian.

Required for the Minor
The mathematics minor is recommended for students whose primary interests lie elsewhere but who wish to take a substantial amount of mathematics beyond calculus. Option I (five units) consists of: (A) 205, 206 and (B) 302 or 305 and (C) two additional units, at least one of which must be at the 200 or 300 level. Option II (five units) consists of: (A) 205, 206 and (B) three additional 200- or 300-level units. PHYs 216 satisfies the requirement that a math minor take 205, but does not count as one of the five units. For students entering in the fall of 2006 and later, at most two of 206, 210, 215 may be counted toward a mathematics minor. A student who plans to add the mathematics minor to a major in another field should consult a faculty advisor in mathematics.

Teacher Certification
Students interested in teaching mathematics at the secondary-school level should consult the chair of the mathematics department and the chair of the education department. Students interested in taking the actuarial science examinations should consult the chair of the mathematics department.

Placement in Courses and Exemption Examinations
The mathematics department reviews elections of calculus courses and places them in MATH 115, 116, 120, or 205 according to their previous courses and summer placement results. See the descriptions for these courses. If there is a question about placement, the department recommends that the student attend the course in which she is placed and contact the sectioning coordinator (contact information in Science Center 361) to discuss her placement. No special examination is necessary for placement in an advanced course.

Students may receive course credit towards graduation through the AP tests in mathematics and the IB Higher Level mathematics exam. See the department Web page for more information, www.wellesley.edu/math/Pages/prospectives.html. Students with scores of 4 or 5 on the AP Exam or an AB-subscore of 4 or 5 on the BC Examination, or a score of 5, 6, or 7 on the IB Higher Level Mathematics exam receive one unit of credit (equivalent to 115) and are eligible for 116 or 120. Those entering with scores of 4 or 5 on the BC Examination receive two units (equivalent to 115 and 116/120) and are eligible for 205. Students with a 5 on the AP examination in statistics receive one unit of credit (equivalent to 101). Neither AP credits nor IB credits may count toward the major or minor.

Transfer Credit
Students are encouraged to elect MIT courses that are not offered by the Wellesley College mathematics department.

Honors
The department offers the following options for earning honors in the major field: (1) completion of 302, 305, and four other 300-level courses, and two written comprehensive examinations or (2) two semesters of thesis work (360 and 370). An oral examination is required for both programs. To be admitted to the honors program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

139 Mathematics
Media Arts and Sciences

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Co-Directors: Matyas (Computer Science), Black* (Studio Art)

The Departments of Art and Computer Science offer an interdisciplinary major in media arts and sciences that explores the artistic, cultural, and scientific applications of new media technologies. The program focuses on media production that balances artistic sensibility with analytical reasoning within the rich tradition of the liberal arts environment. Areas of study include: digital imaging and design; Web-connected database architectures; three-dimensional visualization and modeling; digital composition in audio/video; analog and digital print and photographic processes; computer graphics and animation; human-computer interaction; and programming for networking environments.

Goals for the Major

The Media Arts and Sciences major provides a well-rounded understanding in both areas supporting it: art and computer science. Graduates of the program are expected to be able to analyze and produce multimedia applications that are both visually and functionally competent. They are also expected to be aware of the historical and contemporary trends that drive the creative application of digital media in our society. Importantly, they are expected to be critical thinkers of the use of digital media and their influence on the society. In the process, they are expected to have achieved competence in art theory, multimedia design and use of technological tools.

Approved Courses

Students majoring in Media Arts and Sciences are required to take at least 12 courses. Three of them are introductory and at least six are core. At least two of them must be at the 300 level. The following sections have specific information about courses that can count towards the major.

Introductory Required Courses

Students majoring in Media Arts and Sciences are required to take three introductory courses, one in art history, one in computer science and one in studio art. The approved courses are listed below.

ARTH 101 Introduction to the History of Art Part II: Renaissance to the Present
ARTS 105 Drawing I
ARTS 108/CAMS 138 Photography I
ARTS 109/CAMS 139 Basic Two-Dimensional Design

MIT Courses

The MIT Media Lab and the MIT Comparative Media Studies Program offer a large variety of courses that may be appropriate for a media arts and sciences major. These offerings vary per semester; please consult the MIT catalog at student.mit.edu/catalog/mMASa.html and student.mit.edu/catalog/mCMSa.html.

Olin Courses

The Olin College of Engineering offers the following courses that may be appropriate for a media arts and sciences major.

ENGR 2250 User-Oriented Collaborative Design
ENGR 3220 Human Factors and Interaction Design
Requirements for the Major

A major in Media Arts and Sciences requires 12 units of course work, at least eight of which must be above the 100 level and at least two of which must be at the 300 level. No more than one can be 350 or 360. In particular, to major in Media Arts and Sciences a student must take three required introductory courses, one each from studio art, art history and computer science and at least three required art/music core courses and at least three required computer science core courses. The approved courses are listed in the labeled sections above.

Flexibility has been built into the major to allow students to adapt their course of study to their interests, choosing an optional concentration either in Media Arts by adding two more art/music core courses, or in Media Sciences by adding two more computer science core courses. Majors are also encouraged to take at least one approved media culture course and an advanced media production course (e.g., a MAS individual study). In addition to other courses at Wellesley, students can take approved courses at the MIT's Media Lab and Comparative Media Studies program or at Olin College of Engineering. A Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) section can be found at the program's Web site: www.wellesley.edu/MAS/ along with a spreadsheet to help students plan their major. For more information students should contact the program directors.

Honors

The Media Arts and Sciences thesis offers a year-long opportunity to develop independent research and production with honors. Students interested in proposing a thesis must have a minimum 3.5 GPA in the major, and the support of a faculty advisor in the art or computer science departments. Normally, the honors process needs to obey the guidelines of the corresponding department (art or computer science). An interdepartmental review will occur at the end of the fall semester, to determine whether the student should continue her project as a 370 in the spring and convey its design to the student by December 18. In a case where it is recommended that the senior thesis not be continued into the second semester, a student would receive credit for 360 work on the completion of a schedule of work previously agreed to between the thesis advisor and the student.

The thesis proposal should be discussed with the primary faculty advisor during the spring prior to senior year. Proposals for thesis projects must be submitted in writing, detailing the scope for the project, research methodology, project timeline, and must be accompanied by an electronic portfolio of at least four Media Arts and Sciences/Studio Art projects. Proposals are due on August 25 before the beginning of the student’s senior year. (For students wanting to graduate in the fall, contact the program directors for adjusted dates.)

Advanced Placement Policy

Students may receive a maximum of one unit of college credit for a score of 5 on the Computer Science A or AB AP Exam. This unit can count towards the Media Arts and Sciences major.

Medieval/Renaissance Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Director: Ransomey (History)
Advisory Committee: Carroll (Art), Elkins (Religion), Lynch (English), Vega (Spanish)

The major in Medieval/Renaissance Studies enables students to explore the richness and variety of European and Mediterranean civilization from the Greco-Roman times through the Renaissance and Reformation, as reflected in art, history, literature, music, and religion. It offers a variety of interdisciplinary approaches and subject matters in the different fields that make up the major. At the same time, the requirements for the major encourage special competence in at least one field.

Goals for the Major

The Medieval/Renaissance major seeks to develop the following areas of knowledge and skills in its majors:

- An acquaintance with the richness and variety of European and Mediterranean civilization from the late Greco-Roman times through the Renaissance and Reformation (c. 300–1600 C.E.), as reflected in art, history, literature, music, and religion
- The opportunity to work across disciplines and make connections between the approaches and subject matters in the different fields that make up the major
- An in-depth understanding and special competence in at least one area of humanistic study during the period
- The ability to analyze and critique primary and secondary source material in a variety of humanistic disciplines
- The ability to express ideas clearly and cogently in both written and spoken language, and to conduct original research

ME/R 246 Monsters, Villains, and Wives

Lynch (English)

This course will select its monsters, villains, and wives from early English, French, and Anglo-Norman literature, ranging from the giant Grendel (and his mother) in Beowulf to the arch-villain Ganelon in The Song of Roland from Guinevere to the wife of the enigmatic Green Man in Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. We will finish by considering the survival of the magical villain in a modern-day fantasy classic like the medievalist J.R.R. Tolkien's Hobbit, or a volume in his Lord of the Rings trilogy, and in John Gardner's recasting of the Beowulf story, Grendel.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 247 Arthurian Legends

Wall-Randell (English)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The legends of King Arthur and the knights of the Round Table, with their themes of chivalry, magic, friendship, war, adventure, corruption, and nostalgia, as well as romantic love and betrayal, make up one of the most influential and enduring mythologies in European culture. This course will examine literary interpretations of the Arthurian legend, in history, epic, and romance, from the sixth century through the sixteenth. We will also consider some later examples of Arthuriana, on page and movie screen, in the Victorian and modern periods.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 248 Medieval Women Writers

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course explores a variety of texts by medieval women writers and the contexts in which and against which they were written. These texts raise questions about the role of the female body and about strategies of self-authorization which remain important today. The writers we will consider in depth are Marie de France, Heloise (and Abelard), selected medieval mystics, Margery Kempe, Julian of Norwich, and Christine de Pizan.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 344 Tales of Love

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Love becomes a central subject of literature in the Middle Ages and remains so in our own time. This course explores some canonic medieval tales of love and selected Renaissance dramatizations of the power of passion. Topics range from Tristan and Isolde’s transgressive love to the ill-fated wartime infatuation of Trolus and Criseyde.

Prerequisite: Open to seniors or by permission of the instructor. Preference given to Medieval/Renaissance Studies majors.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to seniors and juniors.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: By permission of the directors of the Medieval/Renaissance Studies program. See Directions for Election and Academic Distinctions.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ME/R 370 Senior Thesis

Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

For a Medieval/Renaissance Studies major, students must take at least eight units of course work from the preceding course listings. Of these, at least four must be above the 100 level in an area of concentration—a single department, a geographical location, a topic or theme. A major in Medieval/Renaissance Studies will normally select her major advisor from the department or area in which she is concentrating. Two units of course work must be at the 300 level, and under normal circumstances, both of these courses must be taken at Wellesley College. Each year at least one 200-level course and one seminar are offered which are especially designed to accommodate the needs and interests of majors. The two majors’ courses for 2009-10 are: ENG 324 Advanced Studies in Shakespeare. Hamlet versus King Lear: Which is Shakespeare’s Greatest Play? (for details, see the listing under English) and ARTH 332 Seminar. At the Crossroads of the Medieval Mediterranean: Southern Italy and Sicily, 1000–1300 C.E. (for details, see the listing under History of Art). Normally, credit/noncredit courses do not count for the major.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level, and the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Graduate Study and Careers

Majors who are contemplating postgraduate academic or professional careers in this or related fields should consult faculty advisors to plan a sequence of courses that will provide them with a sound background in the language and critical techniques essential to further work in their chosen fields. We make every effort to accommodate individual interests and needs through independent study projects (350s and senior theses) carried out under the supervision of one or more faculty members and designed to supplement, or substitute for, advanced seminar-level work.

Advanced Placement Policy

The Medieval/Renaissance Studies program does not accept AP credits to replace course work in the major.

Transfer Credit

Under normal circumstances, no more than two courses taken outside of Wellesley College will be counted toward the major.

Study Abroad

There are numerous opportunities for study abroad for those who wish to broaden their experience and supplement their research skills through direct contact with European and Mediterranean culture. Up to three courses in accredited programs abroad may be counted toward the major. By participating in the Collegium Musicum, students can learn to perform Medieval and Renaissance music; see the departmental entry for Music.
Middle Eastern Studies

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR AND MINOR

Director: Marlow (Religion)
Assistant: Aa’dani
Visiting Lecturer: Abdul-Aziz

Advisory Committee: Ehrin (Political Science), Geller (Religion), Kajnej (History), Malino (History and Jewish Studies), Marlow (Religion), Tumho (Art)

The major in Middle Eastern Studies is designed to acquaint students with the many facets of Middle Eastern civilizations through interdisciplinary study of the languages, literatures, histories, religions, arts, social and political institutions, and cultural patterns of the region known as the Middle East. Study of Middle Eastern communities living in diaspora may also be counted towards the major.

The Middle Eastern Studies program offers both a major and a minor.

Goals for the Major
- Introduce students to the histories, ecologies, social, political and cultural systems, and religious traditions and communities of the Middle East and North Africa
- Provide the necessary linguistic skills and methodological tools to pursue advanced and more specialized study
- Provide depth of study in a particular subfield or area (examples include modern Arabic literature; literature and film; Islamic Studies; history of religion in the Middle East; the Middle East in the twentieth century; North African Studies; Iranian Studies; women and gender in the Middle East)
- Refine the skills required in each of the contributing departments (Anthropology, Art, History, Political Science, Religion), including:
  - The abilities to formulate and test ideas and hypotheses
  - Adduce and evaluate evidence of various kinds
  - Identify, summarize and criticize arguments in primary and secondary textual and other materials
  - Write with clarity and precision.

ARAB 101-102 Elementary Arabic
Abdul-Aziz, Marlow, Aa’dani
An introduction to the Arabic language. The course takes a comprehensive approach to language learning and emphasizes the four skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Students are introduced to the principles of grammar, taught to read and write in the Arabic alphabet, and trained in the basics of everyday conversation. Through the use of a variety of written, video and audio materials, as well as other resources made available through the Web, the course emphasizes authentic materials and stresses the active participation of students in the learning process. Each semester earns 1.0 unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARAB 201-202 Intermediate Arabic
Abdul-Aziz
A continuation of ARAB 101-102. The course takes students to a deeper and more complex level in the study of the Arabic language. While continuing to emphasize the organizing principles of the language, the course also introduces students to a variety of challenging texts, including extracts from newspaper articles, as well as literary and religious materials. Students will be trained to work with longer texts and to gain the necessary communicative skills to prepare them for advanced-level Arabic. Each semester earns 1.0 unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.
Prerequisite: 101-102 or equivalent
Distribution: One unit of Language and Literature for 202 Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

ARAB 210 Arabic Literature in Translation (in English)
Aa’dani
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Exploration of some highly influential works of literature translated from Arabic. Students will have a chance to delve into literary works composed by authors from a large geographical area, extending from Morocco to the Middle East, from the turn of the nineteenth century to the present day. Our study of modern and contemporary Arabic literature will focus on a number of recurring themes, such as cultural and national identity, colonialism, religion, gender relations, and class conflict. Authors to be discussed include Naguib Mahfouz, Abdurrahman Munif, Ahlam Mosteghenemi, Leila Abourezk, Tahir Wattar, Mohammed Zafra, and Yusuf Idris.

ARAB 301 Advanced Contemporary Media Arabic
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An exploration of contemporary standard Arabic as used in audiovisual, Web-based and print media, including newspapers, magazines, Web sites, audiovisual commentaries, news reports, forums and popular television programs. Authentic Arabic press reports, current news broadcasts and other reading or listening materials will provide a basis for discussion and debate in class. Focus on strengthening listening and speaking skills, and developing the ability to express and support various opinions on political, cultural and other issues in contemporary Arab societies.
Prerequisite: 202 or equivalent
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

ARAB 305 Arabic Translation Workshop
Marlow
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Study of the techniques and problems involved in translating from Arabic into English. Although the focus will be on text-to-text translation of short stories, poems and other types of literary texts, students will also experiment with speech-to-speech translation, text-to-speech translation, and speech-to-text translation. The aim of these varied activities is to help students acquire a deeper understanding of the Arabic language and to further their proficiency in the four linguistic skills: reading, writing, speaking and listening. Students will also discuss a range of methods and options for tackling and translating challenging linguistic formulations and transferring meaning from the original context to the English-speaking context. Students will evaluate and critique their own translations as well as those of other students.

Requirements for the Major
The major in Middle Eastern Studies requires nine units. Students must demonstrate proficiency in Arabic (equivalent to at least two semesters at the second-year level). In certain cases, another Middle Eastern language (for example, Persian, Turkish, Hebrew) may be substituted for Arabic; a student whose area of concentration may render such a substitution appropriate should consult her advisor. No credit toward the major is given for the first year of language study. For students who are exempt from the language requirement, nine units are still necessary for the completion of the major. Students are required to concentrate in some area or aspect of Middle Eastern Studies (for example, Arabic language and literature; religion; the pre-modern Middle East; the modern Middle East; religion and politics in the Middle East) by taking four courses above the 100 level, including at least two at the 300 level, one of which must be a seminar. At least two courses should be taken in each of the Departments of History and Religion. Majors devise their own programs of study in consultation with an appropriate faculty member from the student's area of concentration. Courses in which an asterisk (*) also require the permission of the instructor if the course is to be counted for Middle Eastern studies.

In addition to Wellesley courses, students are encouraged to take relevant courses at Brandeis University, Ohio College, and MIT. These courses must be approved toward the major, in advance, by the corresponding department at Wellesley.

Requirements for the Minor
A minor in Middle Eastern Studies consists of five units, of which at least one should be at the 300 level (excluding 350). Units must be taken in at least two departments; only one course at the 100 level can be counted toward the minor. Second-year Arabic may be counted toward the minor.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the Committee may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. The music department offers both a highly regarded academic program and a wide range of outstanding performance activities, providing an ideal environment for students who seek to combine serious musical study with a traditional liberal arts curriculum. For those who wish to undertake focused exploration of music history, theory, composition, ethnomusicology, or performance practice, our academic curriculum includes programs for a music major or music minor. For students who wish to expand their knowledge of music without making it a central focus of their college education, numerous course offerings require no special background.

Goals for the Major
We continue to believe that our majors should develop a substantial awareness of the history, traditions, literature, and theoretical background of Western art music, understood within the broader context of world music practices. They should be able to work closely with the materials of music; to be fluent in analyzing and interpreting both written and heard music, and to have sufficient keyboard facility to decipher musical scores in different vocal and instrumental styles. We also aim to cultivate their intellectual breadth through the study of a wide range of critical and analytical approaches to music, enabling them to conduct individual research projects, and to develop competency in critical reading and writing. Moreover, we strive to enhance their knowledge and understanding of musical cultures different from their own, and to guide them in applying approaches deriving from the study of those less familiar cultures to more familiar musical repertoires.

MUS 101 Music of the Sphere

Barzel, Bhogal

NOT OFFERED in 2009-10. OFFERED in 2010-11. Did you know that "hocketing patterns," or rhythms that interlock, are important in European medieval music and African American funk from the 1970s? Or that the small variations in musical pitch that lend such expressive power to Indian classical music are barely present in the classical music of Western Europe? This course offers a cross-cultural listening encounter with musical expressions from around the globe. Using a case-study approach, we will consider the commonalities and differences among classical, jazz, and traditional music from many continents. Our auditory journeys will introduce you to various musical systems, instruments, composers, performers, and social settings for engaging with music. Open cars are the only prerequisite.

MUS 111X Introduction to the Language of Music

Russell

This course is designed to enhance understanding of how music works and to improve listening, reading, and general comprehension skills for students who can read music. While the focus is on the fundamentals of Western music (notation, rhythm, melody, scales, chords, form, and analysis), listening examples will be drawn from a variety of genres.

MUS 200 History of Western Music

Sholes

The first half of a year-long comprehensive survey of Western music history, MUS 200 considers significant forms and styles of earlier eras, from the liturgical and vernacular repertories of the Middle Ages to the music of the mid-eighteenth century. The course offers a strong historical component and encourages the development of analytical skills. As we examine compositions in many genres, we will pursue numerous avenues of inquiry, including close readings of verbal texts, evaluation of formal structures, harmonic analysis, assessment of melodic and rhythmic features, and investigation of the broader circumstances that surround and inform musical creation.

Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

MUS 201 History of Western Music II

Shades
A continuation of the survey of Western music history begun in MUS 200. MUS 201 examines the Classical and Romantic periods, as well as the music of the past 100 years.

MUS 209 A History of Jazz

Miller
Jazz, with a unique emphasis on artistic self-expression, has been nourished by a diversity of musical idioms (including ragtime, show tunes, brass bands, European classical music, and the blues). Shaped by brilliant innovators, whom we'll study in depth, the music has changed a great deal over a short time. Studying these changes offers a window into key aspects of U.S. social history. Through a selection of recordings and readings, we will follow the progression of jazz styles and address the interplay of African, Latin, European, and American influences. In addition to considering jazz in historical and cultural context, students will learn how to distinguish among basic styles (New Orleans, swing, bebop) and will become familiar with specialized terms and concepts central to understanding the music.

MUS 213/313 Twentieth-Century Techniques

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. A survey of the compositional techniques and styles of the twentieth- and twenty-first centuries. The course includes analyses of the post-tonal experiments of Debussy, Stravinsky, and Schoenberg; the high modernist serialism of Messiaen, Boulez, and Babbitt; the postmodernist minimalism of Glass, Reich, and Part; and the cross-cultural excursions of Crumb, Volans, Ligeti, and Dun. Analytic assignments (including aspects of set-theoretical practice) as well as short exercises in composition exemplifying various stylistic approaches are designated throughout the semester. This course may be taken as either 213 or, with additional assignments, 313.

Prerequisite: 122 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

MUS 222/322 Music, Gender, and Sexuality

Fontijn
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Music, Gender, and Sexuality offers the opportunity to identify from a historical perspective the boundaries of femininity, masculinity, race, religion, homosexuality, and transvestism in music making. Class discussions prompted by listening, video, reading, and writing assignments probe the nature of a wide variety of musical cultures in which biological destiny audibly intersects with gender paradigms. The course provides tools with which to consider music as an ideal site for a fuller expression of humanity that transcends these boundaries. Students at both levels meet together for classes; assignments for 322 students require score-reading and musical analysis.

Prerequisite: 222; open to all students; 322: 200 or 201 required.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O Offered in 2010-11.

MUS 224/REL 224 Hildegard of Bingen

Fontijn, Elkins (Religion)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This interdisciplinary course will focus on the music, dramatic productions, vision literature, and theology of the renowned twelfth-century abbess, Hildegard of Bingen. Attention will also be given to her scientific work on medicine, the manuscript illuminations of her visions, and the productions of her music popular today. Students may register for either MUS 224 or REL 224 and credit will be granted accordingly.

MUS 230 Opera: Its History, Music, and Drama

Matthews
This course offers a comprehensive chronological survey of the history and evolution of opera, from 1600 to the present time. Lectures will examine historical background, the sub-genres of operatic literature (opera seria, opera buffa, music drama), and complete operas by major composers representing a number of periods and styles (including Monteverdi, Mozart, Verdi, and Berg). We will also study libretti, relevant novels, and other source materials in order to establish connections between musical structure and dramatic expression. Two class meetings, with additional sessions required for viewing operas in their entirety.

MUS 240 Opera Workshop

Matthews

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course is appropriate for singers currently enrolled in voice lessons who wish to gain expertise in dramatic musical performance---i.e., the techniques that aid singing actors in the presentation of operatic repertory. All students will receive individualized vocal, musical, and dramatic coaching, and will have the opportunity to perform a scene or aria in an informal presentation at the conclusion of Winter Session. Emphasis will be placed on research of roles, character development, and actions appropriate to musical style, and the interaction of text, music, and movement. The class meets daily, and students are expected to study and rehearse individually with other students outside of class sessions. Note: Students may take this course no more than three times. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.

MUS 244 Tonal Counterpoint and Harmony

Johnson
A continuation of MUS 122, this course offers a basic study of two- and three-part counterpoint, with emphasis on its relationship to the harmony and melodic figuration of the seventeenth through nineteenth centuries. A review of the basic forms of tonal cadence structures and how these expand to produce the vast array of harmonic progressions typical of tonal music will be included, as well as comprehensive exercises in realizing figured-bass symbols. By the end of the semester, students will have completed a portfolio of two- and three-part exercises in counterpoint and a number of harmonizations of Bach chorale melodies in keyboard style, both with and without figured bass. A keyboard lab offers practice in playing assigned counterpoint exercises, cadence progressions, and figured bass in keyboard style.

MUS 250H Performing Ensembles for Credit

This course is open to qualified students by permission of the individual ensemble director. One-half unit of credit is granted for a full year (two consecutive semesters) of participation in any one of the department-sponsored ensembles, provided that the corequisite is successfully completed. A maximum of two units of credit toward the degree can be accumulated through 0.5 courses. Of the 32 units required for graduation, no more than four units in performing music may be counted toward the degree; thus students taking music lessons for credit during all four years at Wellesley cannot also receive degree credit via MUS 250H. No credit will be given for this course unless both semesters are completed satisfactorily. MUS 250H is graded on a credit/noncredit basis.
music
waveshaping,

An overview of the fundamental concepts, techniques, and architecture of electronic and computer music. Topics include the technology of acoustic and digital musical instruments, MIDI programming, sound-synthesis techniques (frequency modulation, sampling, linear synthesis, waveshaping, etc.), and the history of electronic music. Students will undertake brief compositional exercises, and learn basic programming and related technical skills.
Prerequisite: None

MUS 276 American Popular Music: Cylinders to Soul to Cyberspace
Barzel
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. In this course, we will consider the relationship between American popular music, American social movements, and the ever-changing methods and media used to record and play back musical sound. Through listening examples that correlate to significant cultural moments and developments in recording technology, the course will provide a dynamic exploration of Tin Pan Alley, rhythm and blues, rock, soul, funk, and other key genres of twentieth-century American popular music.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N.O. Offered in 2010-11.

MUS 299 Performing Music (advanced, with academic credit)
Staff
A one-hour private lesson per week. Students who have completed at least one year of MUS 199 are eligible promotion to 299. A student wishing to enroll in MUS 299 can be expected to demonstrate accomplishment distinctly beyond that of the MUS 199 student. Students are recommended for promotion by their instructors. A minimum of 10 hours of practice per week is expected. MUS 299 may be repeated without limit. One 200- or 300-level music course must be completed for each unit of credit granted for MUS 299. A music course already used to fulfill the requirement for MUS 199 may not be counted again for 299. One unit of credit is given for a full year of study. Not to be counted toward the major in music. For further information, including fees, see Performing Music: Private Instruction and Academic Credit. See also MUS 99, 199, and 344. Except by special permission, no credit will be given for this course unless both semesters are completed satisfactorily. Mandatory credit/no credit.
Prerequisite: 199 and recommendation from instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring

MUS 300 Seminar: Studies in History, Theory, Analysis, Ethnomusicology
Offered in both semesters with two modules presented consecutively in each semester. Students may select any or combination of the four topics offered each year. Open to music majors, minors, and other students with appropriate background.

Topic A: Exploring Bach's Cantatas
Graham
The 200-plus existing Bach cantatas constitute an enormously rich musical world and stand as one of the most remarkable achievements in Western music. Not only do they showcase Bach's extraordinary musical imagination, they offer the composer's interpretation of scripture, leading some to name him one of the greatest liturgical theologians of all time. This module will focus on the cantatas in their historical and biographical context, as well as on their literary, musical, aesthetic, and theological features. Particular emphasis will be placed on how Bach uses musical gesture and form to illuminate Lutheran texts. In addition to the sacred cantatas, as few of his secular cantatas will be explored, including BWV 211 ("Coffee Cantata") and BWV 208 ("Hunting Cantata").
Prerequisite: Open to music majors/minors and others with permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall

Topic B: The Sacred and Profane: Religious and Mystical Themes in the Musical Avant-Garde
Russell
This course will explore the rich fabric of modern classical music by examining diverse compositional treatments of religious ideas. We will discuss a selection of twentieth- and twenty-first-century works that address religious and spiritual themes. Emphasis will be placed on theoretical and historical analysis and close examination of composers' stylistic and aesthetic choices. Works by such composers as Messiaen, Reich, Cage, Peter Maxwell Davies, Lee Hyla, and Claude Vivier will be discussed in detail. Live performances of some works will be followed by discussion with the performers about the process of learning avant-garde music and the role of this music in today's concert life.
Prerequisite: Open to music majors/minors and others with permission of the instructor.

MUS 308 Conducting
Graham
Techniques of score preparation, score reading, baton technique, and rehearsal methods. The course will stress the development of aural and interpretive skills through class exercises, rehearsals, demonstrations of sonatas, tutorials, and individual projects designed according to each student's level and interests.
Prerequisite: One from 200, 201, 220, or 315, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring

MUS 315 Advanced Harmony
Tang
A study of chromatic harmony; including modulation, mode mixture, variation and development procedures such as harmonic and chromatic sequences, and the relationship between harmony and tonal form. Students will be introduced to basic Schoenbergian terminology and modes of analysis. As a final project, students will present a notebook of excerpts, compiled from the classical literature, exemplifying each of the topics presented in class.
Prerequisite: 244 and either 313 or 201
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall

MUS 344 Performance Workshop
Shapiro, with members of the Triple Helix Piano Trio
As an adjunct to private lessons with a member of the College performance faculty, the Performance Workshop offers intensive study of advanced interpretation and performance. The program gives students the opportunity to perform frequently in an informal setting before faculty and students, to receive constructive comment, and to discuss repertoire and interpretation. This is the only credit course in performance that can be counted toward the music major.
Prerequisite: A written recommendation from her instructor in Performing Music
Corequisite: Students must complete both 200 and 201 by the end of the first year of 344. If enrolled in the course for a second year, an additional 200- or 300-level course must be completed. Permission to elect subsequent units is granted only to a student who has fulfilled all corequisite requirements and whose progress in 344 is judged excellent; a maximum of four units of MUS 344 may be counted toward the degree.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring

MUS 350 Research or Individual Study
Directed study in analysis, composition, orchestration, theory, ethnomusicology, or the history of music.

Requirements for the Major
The Music major is a program of at least 10 units. The normal sequence of courses for the major is MUS 122, 244, 200 and 201 (history and analysis), 315, and a total of two semesters of 300 (of which there are four modular units per year). Also required are three additional elected units of 200- or 300-level work. Students who declare a music major in 2006-07 and after will also be required to participate in their choice of the department performing music ensembles for at least one academic year (i.e., two semesters). The study of composition (213/313) is highly recommended for majors.

The music department does not ordinarily allow courses taken credit/noncredit to count toward the major.

Students interested in majoring in music are strongly encouraged to begin the theory sequence with 122 in the fall semester of the first year. This allows them to enroll in the spring-term offering of 244, which is the prerequisite for 200 and the courses that follow sequentially. Starting on this sequence immediately affords the option of taking a wider variety of elective music courses in the junior and senior years, and also makes it easier for those studying abroad to complete the major comfortably. Students who plan to undertake graduate study in Western music history or theory are advised that knowledge of both German and French (beyond the introductory level) is essential, and proficiency in Italian highly desirable. Also of value are studies in European history, literature, and art. Basic proficiency in European languages will also benefit students who plan to undertake graduate study in ethnomusicology, as will studies in a language (or languages) relevant to a research interest outside Western Europe. In addition, we suggest participating in Yanvalou or another non-Western music ensemble and taking related courses in anthropology and area studies.

Music majors are especially encouraged to develop musicianship through the acquisition of basic keyboard skills, and through ear training, private instruction in practical music, and involvement in the various performing organizations of the Department of Music.

Requirements for the Minor

The music minor is a program of at least five units. One unit must come from theory (120, 122, 213/313, or 244), and another from history (101, 200, 201, 209, 209, 222/322, 225/322, 224, 230, 235/335, 275, or 276). One of the five units may come from earning one credit through performing music lessons (199, 299) or through completing two years in an ensemble (250H). In order to shape a program to suit diverse musical interests, the student minorning in music should plan to select the remaining two or three courses in consultation with her chosen advisor in the process of declaring her music minor. Not more than one academic course taken credit/noncredit may be counted toward the minor.

Group instruction in basic keyboard skills, including keyboard harmony, sight-reading, ear training, and score reading, is provided free to all students enrolled in any music course (including 101 with the instructor's permission and if space is available), and to MUS 99 students with the written recommendation of their private instructor. Ensemble sight-reading instruction on a more advanced level is also available for pianists.

Honors

The department offers a choice of three programs for honors, all under the catalog numbers 360/370; honors students normally elect the two units in succession during the senior year. Eligibility for these programs requires a GPA of 3.5 in the major. Under Program I, the honors candidate carries out independent research leading to a written thesis and an oral examination. Under Program II, honors in composition, the 360 and 370 units culminate in a composition of substance and an oral examination on the honors work. Prerequisites for this program are 315 and distinguished work in 313. Program III, honors in performance, culminates in a recital, a lecture-demonstration, and an essay on some aspect of performance. The prerequisite for Program III is 344 in the junior year and evidence during that year, through public performance, of exceptional talent and accomplishment; 344 must then be continued in the senior year, but now as a component of the 360/370 sequence, and not for separate course credit.

Performing Music Instrument Collection

The music department owns 40 pianos (which include 28 Steinway grands, two Mason and Hamlin grands, and numerous Steinway uprights), a Nauck practice organ, a harp, a marimba, a jazz drum kit, and a wide assortment of modern orchestral instruments. In addition, an unusually fine collection of instruments appropriate to early music performance is available for use by students. These include a Dometsch clavichord, a virginal, three harpsichords, a positive organ, a fortepiano, an 1823 Clementi grand piano, a Gothic harp, a lute, eight violas da gamba, a Baroque violin, and an assortment of Renaissance and Baroque wind instruments.

Of particular interest is the Charles Benton Fisk mean-tone organ (completed 1981) in Houghton Memorial Chapel, which is America's first major instrument constructed after seventeenth-century German prototypes. The chapel also houses a three-manual Aeolian-Skinner pipe organ. Galen Stone Tower contains a 32-bell carillon.

Performance Workshop (MUS 344)

The Performance Workshop will be directed in 2009-10 by Professor Shapiro with the members her ensemble, the Triple Helix Piano Trio. It offers advanced students an opportunity to perform frequently in an informal setting before fellow students and faculty, to discuss repertoire and interpretation, and to receive constructive comments.

Private Instruction

The department offers private instruction in voice, piano, fortepiano, organ, harpsichord, harp, violin, Baroque violin, fiddle, viola, violoncello, double bass, viola da gamba, flute (Baroque and modern), oboe, clarinet, bassoon, trumpet, French horn, trombone, tuba, recorder, lute, classical guitar, saxophone, percussion, and marimba; and private jazz instruction in piano, violin, bass, saxophone, flute, percussion, and voice. We will make every attempt to accommodate students wishing private instruction in instruments not currently taught.

All students planning to enroll for music lessons must take the music theory placement test. Information concerning auditions and course requirements for noncredit and credit study is given above under listings for MUS 99, 199, 299, and 344. Except for 344, auditions and the Placement Test are ordinarily given at the start of the first semester.

There is no charge for performing music to students enrolled in 199, 299, or 344 who: 1) have demonstrated financial need as determined by the Wellesley College Financial Aid Office; 2) are receiving financial aid from Wellesley College; and 3) are taking the normal length of lesson (45 minutes at the 199 level, one hour at the 299 level). All other 199 and 299 students, while still given the full lesson length, are charged an annual fee of $988 (calculated as the rate for one half-hour lesson per week of the academic year). Students who contract for performing music instruction under MUS 99 are charged $35 per hour charged to performing music students for the use of a practice studio. The fee for the use of a practice studio for fortepiano, harpsichord, and organ is $45.

Music lessons at Wellesley involve a full-year commitment: lesson contracts are binding for the entire school year. Performing music fees are payable by September 30; no refunds will be made thereafter.

For purposes of placement, the music theory placement test is given before classes start in the fall semester. All students registered for MUS 111, 111X, 122, or private instruction in 99 or 199 are required to take the test.

Arrangements for lessons are made at the department office during Orientation of the first week of the semester. Students may begin private study in 99 (but not 199 or 299) at the start of the second semester, if space permits.

Academic Credit and Corequisites for MUS 199 and 299

Credit for performing music at the 199 and 299 levels is granted only for study with the department's performance faculty, not with outside instructors; the final decision for acceptance is based on the student's audition. One unit of credit is granted for a full year (two semesters) of study in either 199 or 299; except by special permission, both semesters must be satisfactorily completed before credit can be counted toward the degree. While music performance courses (99, 199, 299, 344) may be repeated without limit, no more than four units of credit in these courses may be counted toward the Wellesley degree. More than one course in performing music for credit can be taken simultaneously only by special permission of the department.

An additional music course must be elected as a corequisite for each unit of credit in performing music. If a student must take MUS 111 or 111X as a result of the placement test, this course counts as the corequisite for the year.

148 Music
Group Instruction

Group instruction in classical guitar, percussion, viola da gamba, Renaissance wind instruments, and voice is available for a fee of $300 per year.

Performing Organizations

The following organizations, all directed by faculty members, are vital extensions of the academic program of the Department of Music.

The Wellesley College Choir

The College Choir, consisting of approximately 50 singers, has a rich history of dedication to great choral literature and inspiring performances. Endowed funds provide for annual collaborative concerts with men's choirs from such institutions as the Miami University of Ohio, Harvard, and Cornell. The choir regularly commissions and premieres new compositions as well as performs a great variety of repertoire for women's chorus. In addition to staging local performances of works for choir and orchestra and singing at annual college events throughout the year, the choir tours both nationally and internationally. Auditions are held during Orientation.

The Wellesley College Chamber Singers

A select ensemble of 12 to 16 vocalists, the Chamber Singers perform concerts on and off campus. The Chamber Singers are often invited to perform with local instrumental ensembles, on professional concert series, and as part of choral festivals. Specializing in music for women's voices, the repertoire ranges from medieval to contemporary literature.

Choral Scholars

As part of the Choral Program, students may audition to join the Choral Scholars. Open to all students and effective for the full academic year, those awarded the scholarships are singers and conductors who have a serious interest in choral music. The recipients will be expected to: participate in one or more of the choral ensembles; serve as section leaders and/or assistant conductors; meet weekly as a group for coaching and research; take voice or conducting lessons. Applications are available at the start of the fall semester.

The Collegium Musicum

The Wellesley College Collegium Musicum specializes in the performance of Western music from the Middle Ages to the early nineteenth century. This ensemble of singers and instrumentalists is open to Wellesley College students, faculty, staff, and members of the local community. The Collegium is also frequently joined by guest artists, who enrich the ensemble for special projects. Members of the Collegium enjoy the use of an extensive collection of historical instruments. Separate consort instruction is available in viola da gamba and Renaissance wind instruments for both beginning and advanced players on a fee basis ($300 for the 2009-10 academic year).

The Brandeis-Wellesley Orchestra

The Orchestra is comprised of students, faculty, staff, and associates of Wellesley College and Brandeis University. Unitting the high standard of excellence associated with these institutions, the Orchestra is dedicated to bringing inspiring performances of the great orchestral literature—past and present—to a new generation of musicians and audiences. The Orchestra gives four to five concerts a year; one concert features the winners of the annual Concerto Competition, which is open to students taking lessons and participating in department ensembles. Two-hour rehearsals are held on Tuesday evenings at Brandeis and Thursday evenings at Wellesley, and shuttle buses are provided. Membership is based on auditions held at the start of each semester.

The Chamber Music Society

The Chamber Music Society offers an opportunity for small ensembles to explore the chamber music repertoire of the last three centuries. A number of groups, which include singers and players of strings, winds, and keyboards, rehearse independently and also meet weekly with a faculty coach at no cost. Throughout the year, players present formal and informal recitals. Entrance is by audition.

Wellesley BlueJazz

Wellesley BlueJazz is a faculty-directed jazz ensemble of a dozen-odd students. Rehearsals encourage the development of fluency in jazz improvisation; previous jazz experience is not required. The ensemble performs several times each year and presents joint concerts with ensembles from Wellesley and other area colleges. Workshops on jazz improvisation with visiting guest artists are also offered. Auditions are held at the beginning of each year.

Yanvalou Drumming and Dance Ensemble

Yanvalou, an ensemble that explores the traditional musics of Africa and the Caribbean, offers participants the opportunity to perform with authentic instruments, and to experience a variety of cultures through their music. In collaboration with its dance troupe, Yanvalou presents several concerts during each academic year.

Neuroscience

AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR

Professor: Beltz (Director)
Associate Professor: Tetel
Assistant Professor: Conway, West
Senior Instructor in Neuroscience Laboratory: Paul

Neuroscience Advisory Committee: Cameron (Biology), Ducos (Physics), Hildreth (Computer Science), Keane (Psychology), Kolodny (Chemistry)

Neuroscience explores how the nervous system develops and how it functions to generate behavior, emotion and cognition. Neuroscience is highly interdisciplinary, integrating biology, psychology, chemistry, physics and computer science. Exploring the complexity of the nervous system requires analyses at multiple levels. Neuroscientists investigate how genes and molecules regulate nerve cell development and function (cellular/molecular neuroscience), explore how neural systems produce integrated behaviors (behavioral neuroscience), seek to understand how neural substrates create mental processes and thought (cognitive neuroscience) and use mathematics and computer models to comprehend brain function (computational neuroscience). In studying how the brain and nervous system function normally and during disease states, neuroscientists also hope to better understand devastating neurological and psychiatric disorders.

Goals for the Major

• Create a cohesive and supportive interdepartmental community
• Foster an excitement for neuroscience and an understanding of applications of neuroscience discoveries to everyday life
• Appreciate the ethical complexities involved in the pursuit and application of knowledge about the brain and cognition
• Cultivate an understanding of the relationships among disparate subfields that comprise neuroscience, including cellular and molecular, cognitive, computational and systems neuroscience
• Develop the ability to read and critically evaluate the neuroscience literature
• Acquire confidence and fluency with oral and written communication
• Generate a facility with the major experimental methods and techniques used by neuroscientists, including
  - electrophysiology
  - computational modeling
  - neurochemistry
  - neuropharmacology
  - neuroanatomy
  - genomics
  - behavioral approaches
• Master analytical and statistical methods critical to the evaluation of experimental data
• Encourage an environment supportive of student involvement in neuroscience research
We anticipate that fulfillment of these goals will provide the intellectual and technical skills necessary for the successful pursuit of graduate school, medical school and careers in neuroscience-related fields.

NEUR 100 Brain, Behavior, and Cognition: An Introduction to Neuroscience
Conway, Tetel, Paul
This course will provide a broad introduction to neuroscience, focusing on examples and approaches from cellular and molecular, cognitive, behavioral, systems and computational neuroscience. The lecture aspect of the course will be accompanied by a 70-minute practical in which students will engage directly in experimental neuroscience.
Prerequisite: Open only to first year students, or by permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

NEUR 200 Neurons, Networks, and Behavior with Laboratory
West, Paul, Helnay (Biological Sciences)
This course will build on basic concepts in neuroscience. Current issues will be examined within a broad framework that includes examples and readings in cellular and molecular, cognitive, behavioral and computational neuroscience. Topics such as sensory systems, learning, memory, and cognition will be covered. The accompanying laboratory is designed to expose students to basic methods and experimental approaches in neuroscience.
Prerequisite: 105 and BSC 110. Not open to first year students.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

NEUR 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: By permission of instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

NEUR 250H Research or Individual Study

NEUR 300 Capstone Seminar in Neuroscience
Belts, Conway
In this capstone seminar for senior neuroscience majors, students will give group presentations of articles on cutting edge areas of neuroscience research. The authors of these articles will be invited to campus to present their research and meet with the class. Some of the topics to be discussed include: developmental neuroscience, computational and systems neuroscience, cognitive neuroscience, learning and memory and neurodegenerative disorders. In addition, careers in neuroscience will be discussed.
Prerequisite: 200 or [NEUR 213/BISC 213], Open only to neuroscience majors.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

NEUR 306/BISC 306 Principles of Neural Development with Laboratory
Belts, Paul
This course will discuss aspects of nervous system development and how these relate to the development of the organism as a whole.
Topics such as neural induction, neurogenesis, programmed cell death, axon guidance, synaptogenesis and the development of behavior will be discussed, with an emphasis on the primary literature and critical reading skills. Laboratory sessions focus on a variety of methods used to define developing neural systems. Students may register for either NEUR 306 or BISC 306 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: 200 or [NEUR 213/BISC 213] or BISC 216 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

NEUR 315/BISC 315 Neuroendocrinology with Laboratory
Tetel
Hormones act throughout the body to coordinate basic biological functions such as development, differentiation and reproduction. This course will investigate how hormones act in the brain to regulate physiology and behavior. We will study how the major neuroendocrine axes regulate a variety of functions, including brain development, reproductive physiology and behavior, homeostasis and stress. The regulation of these functions by hormones will be investigated at the molecular, cellular and systems levels. Laboratory experiments will explore various approaches to neuroendocrine research, including the detection of hormone receptors in the brain and analysis of behavior. Students may register for either NEUR 315 or BISC 315 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: 200 or [NEUR 213/BISC 213], or both BISC 110 and BSC 203, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

NEUR 320 Vision and Art: Physics, Physiology, Perception, and Practice with Laboratory
Conway
This course will investigate the form and function of the human visual system by considering a unique product of this system: visual art. The course will examine the nature of the physical stimulus to which the visual system is responsive, the physiological mechanisms that capture this signal and convert it into perception, and how this process is revealed in the practice of art. As part of laboratory exercises investigating the resolution and sensitivity of your own visual system, a discipline called psychophysics, students will engage in making their own art and will learn to articulate the mechanisms by which they do so. The interdisciplinary nature of the course will require an advanced level of student participation, commitment, and self-directed learning.
Prerequisite: 100 or by permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

NEUR 332 Advanced Topics in Neuroscience Belts
Topic for 2009-10: Neuroscience and the Law
This course will examine how the field of neuroscience impacts legal decision-making, including aspects of neuroethics. Advances in neuroimaging and physiological techniques now allow us to assess mental states in a variety of circumstances.
With increasing frequency, these data are presented to the courts to challenge a defendant's competency or culpability in criminal cases, or to establish grounds for injury claims in civil suits. Legal proceedings often include evidence that an individual's brain is not functioning within the "normal" limits, or claims that brain-wave patterns can distinguish deceit from truth. Discussion topics will include an examination and assessment of current neuroimaging and neuropsychological techniques. Can these methodologies realistically define "normal" brain activity? Are neuroimaging methods that purport to reveal our thoughts or behavioral tendencies an encroachment on our civil liberties?
Ultimately, we will ask whether neuroscience discoveries can transform the law by redefining "free will" and "responsibility."
Prerequisite: 200 or [NEUR 213/BISC 213] or by permission of the instructor. Not open to first year students.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

NEUR 335 Computational Neuroscience with Laboratory
Wiest
The electrical activities of neurons in the brain underlie all of our thoughts, perceptions, and memories. However, it is difficult to measure these neural activities experimentally, and also difficult to describe them precisely in ordinary language. For this reason, mathematical models and computer simulations are increasingly used to bridge the gap between experimental measurements and hypothesized network function. This course will focus on the use of mathematical models and computer simulations to describe the functional dynamics of neurons in a variety of animals. Topics will range from single neuron biophysics to the analysis of circuits thought to underlie sensory perception and memory. Topics will be introduced by background lectures, followed by student-led presentations of primary literature and construction of a computer model of the system studied. Lab will introduce students to computer programming of mathematical models in MATLAB and the neuron-simulator NEURON.
Prerequisite: 200 or [NEUR 213/BISC 213] and calculus at the level of MATH 115, or by permission of instructor. No programming experience is required.

Requirements for the Major

For students who entered the College in the fall of 2007 or 2008, the major in neuroscience offers three areas of concentration: cellular and molecular neuroscience, cognitive neuroscience, and systems and computational neuroscience. Students are expected to achieve competence in two of these three areas. The major must include the following core courses: NEUR 100, 200 and 300 and PSYC 205. Majors must elect three 200-level courses from two of the three areas of concentration: Cellular and molecular neuroscience: BISC 219, 220, CHEM 211, 221 or 222; Cognitive neuroscience: PSYC 214, 215, 216, 217; Systems and computational neuroscience: CS 232, MATH 215, PHYS 216, 219, 222. Note that these 200-level courses have specific prerequisites that must be satisfied. Majors must also elect three 300-level courses from two of the three areas of concentration, at least one of which must be a laboratory course: Cellular and molecular neuroscience: NEUR/BISC 306, NEUR/BISC 315, NEUR 322, BISC 302, CHEM 306 (only when neuroscience-related topics); Cognitive neuroscience: NEUR 332 (F09), PSYC 304R, 314R, 315, 316, 318, 319, 328; Systems and computational neuroscience: NEUR 320, NEUR 335, CS 332.

Any other 300-level courses must be specifically approved by the Director. NEUR 250, 250H, 350, 350H, 360 and 370 do not count towards the minimum major. A minimum of eight courses towards the major requirements must be taken at Wellesley. Additional information is available on the Web at http://www.wellesley.edu/neuroscience/major_complete.html.

For students who enter the College in the fall of 2009 or later, the major in neuroscience is the same as for those entering in 2007 and 2008, but also includes BISC 110.

For students who entered the College prior to the fall of 2007, a major in neuroscience must include the following core courses: BISC 110, 111; CHEM 105 (or 120), and 211; PSYC 101 and 205, and [BISC 215]. Majors must elect two 200-level courses from among the following: one from BISC 219, 220, CHEM 221 or 222; and one from PSYC 214, 215, 216, 217. In addition, majors must elect two 300-level courses, at least one of which must be a laboratory course. Acceptable 300-level courses are BISC 302; CHEM 306 (only when neuroscience-related topics); CS 332; NEUR/BISC 306, 315; NEUR 300, 320, 332, 335; PSYC 304R, 314R, 315, 316, 318, 319, 328. Any other 300-level courses must be approved specifically by the Director. NEUR 250, 250H, 350, 350H, 360 and 370 do not count towards the minimum major. A minimum of six courses (a minimum of 6.75 units) towards the major requirements must be taken at Wellesley. Normally no more than three units in neuroscience taken at other institutions may be counted towards the major.

Transfer Credit

To obtain Wellesley credit for any neuroscience course taken at another institution, preliminary approval must be obtained from the director of the program prior to enrolling in the course. In general, courses taken at two-year colleges will not be accepted. These restrictions apply to courses taken after enrollment at Wellesley. Transfer students wishing to obtain credit for courses taken prior to enrollment at Wellesley should consult the program director.

Honors

Senior thesis (NEUR 360/370) projects may be supervised by members of the various departments associated with the major. Students considering the senior thesis option are advised to consult with the director of the program during the fall of their junior year.

Graduate Study

Students wishing to attend graduate school in neuroscience are strongly encouraged to take CHEM 211/212, CS 112, MATH 115/116 and physics through PHYS 106 or PHYS 108.

Peace and Justice Studies

A STRUCTURED INDIVIDUAL MAJOR

Faculty Director: Rosenwald (English)
Co-Director for Experiential Education: Kazanjian
Lecturer: Kazanjian

Peace and Justice Studies Advisory Board:
Candland (Political Science), de Warren (Philosophy, Kapteyn (History), Kazanjian (Peace and Justice Studies), Kodera (Religion), Murphy (Political Science), Rosenwald (English), Skeath (Economics)

The Peace and Justice Studies program provides a program of study that integrates the many areas of intellectual inquiry relating to the historical and contemporary search for a peaceful and just society and world.

Goals for the Major

• Give students exposure to, and let them understand, some canonical concepts and findings in the field, including two fundamental approaches to conflict resolution/transformation: the mainstream integrated approach, and the nonviolent direct action approach associated with Mohandas Gandhi and Martin Luther King, Jr.
• Let students see how these frameworks can be applied at local, national, and international levels, and give them some facility in distinguishing which tools and findings transfer across levels, which do not, and why;
• Have students develop disciplinary skills in one of the disciplines that contribute to peace studies;
• Have students take part in field-based experiential education that is linked to the student, her specific discipline, and peace studies in general.

PEAC 104 Introduction to the Study of Conflict, Justice, and Peace
Rosenwald (English)

An interdisciplinary introduction to the study of conflict, justice, and peace. The course engages students in developing an analytical and theoretical framework for examining the dynamics of conflict, violence, and injustice and the strategies that have been employed to attain peace and justice, including balance of power, cooperation, diplomacy and conflict resolution, law, human rights, social movements, social justice (economic, environmental, and race/class/gender), interpersonal communication, and religiously inspired social transformation.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PEAC 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 104 and one 200-level course in the general field of Peace and Justice Studies or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PEAC 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: 104 and one 200-level course in the general field of Peace and Justice Studies or permission of the instructor.

PEAC 259 Peace and Conflict Resolution

Wood (Writing Program)

Topic for 2009-10: Rhetorics of Peace and War.
This course examines the role of language in promoting and sustaining peace and war. We begin with agonistic rhetoric, focusing on calls to war: How have leaders historically convinced citizens to enter war? How has this exigency shaped a particular kind of rhetoric? We then turn to questions more relevant to peace: How do minorities make their voices heard? How does a speaker create will in a people? How can we move past polarizing language and work to reconcile positions in intractable conflicts? We will address these questions primarily through critical examination of speeches—ancient, recent past, and present—with an eye toward their form, context, and impact. Our exploration will take us from Thucydides to the women's suffrage movement to African-American sermonic rhetoric to Kennedy/Nixon/Reagan/Clinton/Bush/Obama.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PEAC 324 Grassroots Development, Conflict Resolution, and the Gandhian Legacy in India

This three-credit half-term course focuses on understanding the historical development of the Gandhian philosophy of nonviolence and on how Gandhian strategies have been adapted by grassroots community-based organizations to address the challenges facing India and the world today. The course involves both experiential and classroom learning. During this course we will meet with women's organizations, peace organizations, environmental action groups, and community health activists in rural and urban communities in the North of India. In addition, we will take part in a seminar series on intercultural and interreligious conflict resolution at the Mulviya Centre for Peace Research at Banaras Hindu University. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.

Prerequisite: Two 200-level courses in related fields. Application required.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Winter Session
Unit: 0.5

PEAC 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors.

Requirements for the Major

A major (eight units) in Peace and Justice Studies and the concentration should be designed in consultation with the program directors. Students must elect a concentration of at least four units above the 100 level. Concentrations will normally be in one department, but may be constructed across departments. In either case, the student must demonstrate the intellectual coherence of the concentration. In cases where the student's chosen concentration is in a discipline other than those of the directors, a second advisor in the student's field of concentration must also be arranged. The major must include two 300-level courses. The major consists of:

1. Two required courses: PEAC 104 (Introduction to the Study of Conflict, Justice, and Peace) and PEAC 259 (Peace and Conflict Resolution).
2. Six courses through which students are expected to develop proficiency in two areas:
   a. the social, political, historical, and cultural factors that lead to conflict, violence, and injustice;
   b. the various strategies and techniques of peacemaking and justice-seeking at the level of nation-states, social groups and communities within nation-states, and interpersonal and individual relationships;
   Students are also expected to develop expertise in a particular international, national, regional, or local conflict situation.
3. Students majoring in Peace and Justice Studies are expected to include an experiential education component in their course of study. This component should be discussed with the program directors and may include: Wintersession, summer or year-long internships, course-related experiential education programs, or community service projects.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Department of Philosophy

Professor: Congleton (Chair), Melhuyn*; Menkiti
Associate Professor: de Warren, McGowan
Assistant Professor: de Bros, Marshall*; Wearing

One of the marks of philosophy, and one of its strengths, is that it identifies and examines assumptions that we make in our ordinary lives or that are made in other areas of study. Many would also accept a definition of philosophy as the attempt to answer, or at least to better understand, very basic questions about the universe and our place in it. A striking thing about these assumptions is that many of us live as if we were aware of them even though we have never even asked about them. We accept one belief and dismiss another without asking what it takes for a belief to be worthy of acceptance. We decide whether an act is right or wrong without even knowing what the difference is between right and wrong. A famous passage by the philosopher David Hume, written when he was about 25, expresses the impulse to philosophize: "I am uneasy to think. I approve of one object and disapprove of another; call one thing beautiful, and another deformed; decide concerning truth and falsehood, reason and folly, without knowing upon what principles I proceed." The clarity, depth and rigor encouraged in philosophy courses are useful not only in philosophy, but also in any other area of study, and it is a major that is welcomed by graduate programs in many fields, as well as by employers and professional schools.

Goals for the Major

Majoring in philosophy will acquaint one with important developments in ancient and early modern philosophy and how these developments influence contemporary philosophical debates. Moreover, because philosophy is in the business of critically evaluating the reasons offered to support hypotheses, factual claims and evaluative judgments, majoring in philosophy will develop or sharpen the following skills:

- The interpretation of dense and challenging texts
- The ability to formulate and consider alternatives to commonly accepted views
- The construction and defense of coherent, well-considered positions
- The ability to offer reasoned responses to the ideas and objections of others

PHIL 103 Self and World: Introduction to Metaphysics and Epistemology
Marshall, McGowan

This course introduces basic philosophical methods and concepts by exploring a variety of approaches to some central philosophical problems. Topics covered include the existence of God, the relation between reason and faith, skepticism and certainty, the relation between mind and body, and the compatibility of free will and causal determination. Readings are drawn from historical and contemporary texts. Discussions and assignments encourage the development of the student's own critical perspective on the problems discussed.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 104/ASTR 104 The Stars and the Sages: Philosophy and the Cosmos de Warren and French (Astronomy)

This First Year Seminar explores the changing views of the universe from the ancient Greeks, through the emergence of the scientific revolution to the startling advances in cosmology during the twentieth century, and includes visits to the Special Collections Library and observations from the Whitten Observatory; no particular competence in mathematics is required. We begin with readings from Plato, Aristotle and ancient Greek astronomers and their concern to understand and the inherent rationality of the universe. We next turn to the discoveries of Copernicus, Kepler, Galileo, and Newton. Our exploration of philosophy and astronomy will then address Einstein’s theories of special and general relativity, evidence for the Big Bang, and contemporary perplexity regarding the presence of dark matter and dark energy. Students may register for either PHIL 104 or ASTR 104 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Only open to first-year students.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 106 Introduction to Moral Philosophy
de Bros, Menkiti

A study of central issues in moral philosophy from ancient Greece to the present day. Topics include the nature of morality, conceptions of justice, views of human nature and their bearing on questions of value, and competing tests of right and wrong.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 201 Ancient Greek Philosophy
Congleton

Study of writings of Plato and Aristotle that are particularly influential still today, including Plato’s Symposium and Republic and Aristotle’s Nicomachean Ethics. In addition to studying the “essentialist” approach to nature and to ethics that Aristotle accepted from his teacher Plato, we will consider differences between Plato and Aristotle. For Plato, this will include his “theory of forms,” his presentation of Socrates and the dialogue form of his writings. For Aristotle, it will include his development of the philosophical vocabulary that became standard for subsequent Western philosophy up until the Renaissance. We will discuss how Plato’s and Aristotle’s views relate to contemporary questions such as “stereotyping” in social thought, whether women and men are or are not essentially different, and whether scientific and ethical reasoning are fundamentally the same or different.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 202/AFR 202 Introduction to African Philosophy
Menkiti

Initiation into basic African philosophical concepts and principles. The first part of the course deals with a systematic interpretation of such PHIL 203 Philosophy of Art
de Warren
What makes an object an art object? How does art reflect on the human condition? Why is there art rather than not, expression rather than silence, a gesture rather than stillness? A philosophical approach to art is primarily interested in clarifying the problem of aesthetic value, the special activities that produce art, and the claim to truth which finds expression through artistic creation. The aim of this course is to explore these questions, among others, by examining the positions of major philosophers and twentieth-century artists.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 204 Philosophy and Literature
Merkiti
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course considers the questions: what sort of object is the literary text and what are the ontological issues raised by acts of literary interpretation? It also examines the complex relationship between fiction and fact, and between fiction and morality. The treatment of commitment to self and others, of self-knowledge and self-identity, and of individual and social ideals will also be explored. We end the course by looking at poetry—how it has meaning despite an inbuilt element of ambiguity and how it succeeds not only in shaping, but also healing the world.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 206 Normative Ethics
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Can philosophers help us to think about moral issues, such as what to do about poverty and hunger, or racism and sexism? What is the good life and how could we know that it is good? We will look at the attempts of some contemporary philosophers to provide answers, or at least guides to finding answers, to these and similar questions. We will compare and contrast several approaches to evaluating an action: placing major weight on its consequences, or on whether it conforms to a moral rule, or whether it is the sort of thing a virtuous person would do.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 207 Philosophy of Language
McGowan
This course will explore a variety of philosophical issues concerning language: the different ways in which spoken language functions and conveys information, the alleged difference between speech and action and how it relates to freedom of speech issues (e.g., pornography and hate speech), the general problem of how words get attached to their referents, and criticisms of traditional conceptions of meaning and reference.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 208 Theories of Knowledge
Weering
We usually assume that we know a lot about the world around us. But how can we be sure that our beliefs reflect what the world is really like? In this course, we will investigate the nature of knowledge and the conditions under which we can be said to have any. We will explore answers to the following questions: What distinguishes knowledge from mere opinion? What makes someone justified in holding a particular belief? What is the connection between what we do believe and what we should believe? How is self-deception possible? We will conclude by examining the contributions of feminism and cognitive science to the discussion of these questions.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy, and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 209 Scientific Reasoning
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This is a reasoning course that emphasizes the practical importance of critical thinking. Topics covered will include the basic forms of scientific inference, the basics of probability, issues of data collection, the difference between correlation and causation, and the theoretical and practical difficulties associated with establishing causal claims. Students will also gain an appreciation of the political and ethical importance of critical thinking by evaluating cases of sexism and racist science.
Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 210 Philosophy of Business
Coneglan
This course looks at philosophical aspects of U.S. corporate business and of the role of the corporate executive, beginning with the form of the corporation in the early U.S. and following the evolution of its powers to the present day. We will also follow related phenomena, including the transition of the U.S. from a rural to an urban industrial society, the emergence of the urban wage laborer and unions, the emergence of government regulations, such as the Sherman Antitrust Act, and the transformation of the U.S. into a consumerist nation, including the expanding role of marketing. We will consider assumptions involved in some current ways of talking about corporations and executives, including assumptions about gender, economics and poverty.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 211 Philosophy of Religion
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Religion is a ubiquitous phenomenon of human existence. What distinguishes religion as a set of beliefs, practices and worldview? Is there a specific religious claim to truth and meaning? What is the relationship between philosophical reflection and religious speculation? Indeed, what is religion? This course undertakes a critical and philosophical study of central topics in religion including the distinction between the sacred and the profane, the problem of evil, the relation between faith and reason, immortality and salvation, the significance of sacrifice and arguments for the existence, but also for the death, of God. Readings will draw from the rich heritage of philosophical discourse, including: Plato, Augustine, Pascal, Kant, Feuerbach, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Bataille and Levinas.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 213 Social and Political Philosophy
de Bres
Why should we obey the government? Are there limits to what the state may demand of us? Does social justice require equality? Is taxation—or wage labor—cheat? This course addresses these and other questions of social and political morality, through the lens of the major theories of Western philosophy. Topics will include Plato and Aristotle on the best form of government, Locke on individual rights, Rousseau on popular sovereignty, Mill on freedom of speech, Marx on equality and Rawls and Dworkin on distributive justice. We will study each of the theories in its historical context, as well as apply them to contemporary issues such as affirmative action, censorship, and welfare policy.
Prerequisite: Open to seniors without prerequisite and to juniors and sophomores who have taken one course in philosophy, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 215 Philosophy of Mind
Weering
What is a mind? How is it related to a person's brain and body? These two questions have driven centuries of work in the philosophy of mind, and we will take them as our starting point. After considering a variety of answers, we will pursue several topics that challenge our best accounts of the mind: consciousness, mental representation, the emotions, free will, and the possibility of thinking machines. Our goal will be to connect central philosophical perspectives on these issues with contributions from psychology, cognitive science, and neuroscience.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy, psychology, or cognitive science, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0
PHIL 216 Logic
McGowan, Wearing
An introduction to formal logic. Students will learn a variety of formal methods—methods sensitive only to the form of arguments, as opposed to their content—to determine whether the conclusions of arguments follow from their premises. Discussion of the philosophical problems that arise in logic, and of the application of formal logic to problems in philosophy and other disciplines. Some consideration of issues in the philosophy of language.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 217 Philosophy of Science: Traditional and Feminist Perspectives
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will survey various issues in the philosophy of science surrounding the debate over scientific realism. Issues include: What constitutes adequate evidence? Exactly what does accepting a scientific theory involve? Does science discover the single objective way that the world is or does it partially construct the world around us? How do cultural attitudes (e.g., gender) affect scientific practice?
Prerequisite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 221 History of Modern Philosophy
Marshall
A study of central themes in seventeenth- and eighteenth-century philosophy, concentrating on Descartes, Hume, and Kant. More limited readings of such figures as Spinoza, Locke, Ann Conway, Leibniz, and Berkeley. Among the topics: the relationship between mind and body; the limits of reason; determinism and freedom; the bearing of science on religion.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students in their second semester and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 222 American Philosophy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The development of American philosophy from colonial times to the present. Among the topics: European justifications of colonization and conquest; the spiritualist metaphysics of Berkeley and Jonathan Edwards; philosophical underpinnings of the revolution and the republic; slavery and abolition; transcendentalism (Emerson, Thoreau); justice and civil disobedience; feminism. We will concentrate in particular on pragmatism, America's unique contribution to world philosophy, with readings from Peirce, James, Dewey, Quine, Richard Rorty, and Cornel West. The course is intended for students of history, literature, and American Studies as well as for students of philosophy.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 224 Existentialism
de Warren
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will study basic themes in existentialism by focusing on the theoretical and theatrical works of key existentialist writers such as Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, Antonin Artaud, Samuel Beckett, Albert Camus, and Eugene Ionesco. In taking the human condition as its primary question, existentialism redefines the meaning of theory as a philosophical reflection or "seeing" of the human condition, as well as the significance of theatre as a "seeing" or "manifestation" of features of the human condition that otherwise remain hidden from view. Special emphasis will be placed on the themes of boredom, death, faith, anxiety, suffering, freedom, and inter-subjective relationships.
Prerequisite: One philosophy course or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 225 Phenomenology and Hermeneutics
de Warren
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Phenomenology attempts to reclaim the richness of human experience for philosophical analysis. An important movement of twentieth-century philosophy, phenomenology represents an original approach to traditional philosophical questions. By investigating the nature of "lived experience," animates the various ways in which the world is meaningful for human beings. As an introduction to the phenomenological movement, including the hermeneutic turn of phenomenological philosophy, this course will focus on the work of Husserl, Heidegger, Levinas, and Merleau-Ponty.
Prerequisite: One philosophy course or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 230 Nineteenth-Century Philosophy
de Warren
This course will study selected themes in nineteenth-century philosophy. Readings from Kant, Hegel, Marx, Nietzsche, Schopenhauer, and Nietzsche will address central issues such as the status of reason, the irrational and the unconscious, modernization and the meaning of history, and the significance of religion and art for human existence. Other important figures of nineteenth-century thought such as Darwin, Comte, Mill, and Schleiermacher may also be addressed.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 233 Environmental Philosophy
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of concepts of the natural world and our place in it, from the pre-Socratics and the Book of Genesis to the deep ecologists and ecofeminists of the present day. Readings in the history of philosophy (Aristotle, Descartes, Spinoza, Nietzsche, Husserl, and Heidegger, among others), in Emerson and Thoreau, and in contemporary nature writers and natural scientists. Discussion of ethical issues and of Third-World critiques of Western environmentalism.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 234 Existentialism
de Warren
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will study basic themes in existentialism by focusing on the theoretical and theatrical works of key existentialist writers such as Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, Antonin Artaud, Samuel Beckett, Albert Camus, and Eugene Ionesco. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 235 Democracy
de Bres
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course provides an introduction to past and present work on the normative theory of democracy, and discusses how that work bears on some important issues in current affairs. We will explore significant historical contributions to democratic thought; consider contemporary work on issues such as procedural versus substantive accounts of democracy; democratic deliberation; democratic participation, legislative representation and constitutionalism; and address present public debates concerning campaign finance reform, democracy at the supra-state level and the "exporting" of democracy overseas.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy or political science, and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 236 Introduction to Global Justice
de Bres
An introduction to recent work in political philosophy on the ethics of international relations. The course will begin with a survey of some of the main theoretical approaches to the topic: realism, cosmopolitan egalitarianism, political liberalism, utilitarianism and nationalism. We will then consider how these different approaches might be applied to some specific moral controversies in international politics, such as those relating to global poverty, human rights and humanitarian intervention, immigration, climate change, and global governance.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students who have taken one course in philosophy or political science, and to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 239 The Owl of Minerva: Kant and German Idealism
de Warren
Perhaps no other period in the history of philosophy since its Greek origins has witnessed as much creativity and substance as the years spanning the bloom of German Idealism (1781-1832). Beginning with Kant's "Copernican Revolution" of the Critique of Pure Reason, this course critically explores the diverse veins of German Idealism and Romanticism: Fichte, Schelling, F. Schlegel, Novalis, Hölderlin, and Hegel. Themes will include: the relation between philosophy and poetry; the problem of idealism and the reality of the external world; the constitution of self-consciousness in its relation to Others; the relation between nature and aesthetics; the emergence of language as a primary philosophical concern; the relationship between faith and knowledge; and the significance of historical consciousness and the formation of culture. In addition to exploring the impact of German Idealism on nineteenth-century English Romanticism, we will also consider engagements with the legacy of German Idealism among contemporary European and American philosophy.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0
PHIL 245 Agency and Motivation
McIntyre
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of the capacities important to moral agency, drawing on work in philosophy as well as research in social psychology, evolutionary biology, and cognitive science. Topics to be examined include: theories of motivation; the moral significance of sympathy and empathy; guilt, shame, regret, and other traits central to moral accountability; differing conceptions of free will and the nature of autonomy; and issues involving self-control and self-knowledge.
Prerequisite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors without prerequisite.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 293 Medical Ethics
Merkit
A philosophical examination of some central problems at the interface of medicine and ethics.
Exploration of the social and ethical implications of current advances in biomedical research and technology. Topics discussed will include psychosurgery, gender surgery, genetic screening, amnio-centesis, and euthanasia.
Prerequisite: Open to all students without prerequisite.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 300 Seminar in Modern Philosophy

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy above the 100 level.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 301 Seminar in Early Modern Philosophy: Spinoza, Mind, and Nature
Marshall
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar will investigate the thought of Baruch Spinoza, a sevteenth-century Dutch rationalist. Our focus will include Spinoza's mechanistic view of mind, itself, and the relationship between the individual and society. We will explore Spinoza's striking claim that mind and body are one, his views on the possibility of action against one's better judgment, and his reflections on the nature of human virtue and well-being.
Readings will include several of Spinoza's works, a few excerpts from his contemporaries, and the interpretive work of some recent commentators.
Prerequisite: PHIL 221 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 310 Seminar, Ancient and Medieval Philosophy
Conlon
Topic for 2009-10: Plato and Aristotle on Government and Politics. We will consider
Plato and Aristotle's views on government and politics by discussing primarily the following
Some comparison will be made with medieval continuations of Plato and Aristotle's "essential-ists" approach as illustrated by excerpts from the twelfth century philosophers Ibn Rushd and Maimonides. We will also give some attention to the emergence of contrasting modern views as illustrated in selections from John Stuart Mill's Considerations on Representative Government and On Liberty. We will be interested in what these texts can contribute to our own thinking about "democracy," considering such questions as whether highly educated citizens should have responsibilities toward citizens with little education, and what Aristotle's notion of "deliberation" might contribute to our thinking about political discourse.
Prerequisite. Previous study of Plato's Republic or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Historical Studies
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 313 Seminar, Metaphysics
McGowan
Topic for 2009-10: Constructionism. This course will survey various ways in which we make facts about our world. That certain facts are constructed (e.g., speed limits and check-mates) is uncontroversial. Substantive philosophical issues arise, however, when delineating the precise manner in which such facts are constructed and drawing a defensible line between that which is constructed and that which is not. Constructionist speech, the social construction of gender and certain global constructionist the-

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: One 200-level philosophy course or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 326 Philosophy of Law
Merkit
A systematic consideration of fundamental issues in the conception and practice of law such as the nature and function of law, the limits of law, the nature of judicial reasoning, and the relationship of law to morality. We will assess how alternative theories of law explain rights, duties, liability and responsibility. We will also focus on philosophical issues raised in court cases associated with liberty, privacy, justice, responsibility, causation and punishment.
Readings include selections from legal theory and a variety of contemporary court decisions.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors without prerequisite and to sophomores who have taken one course in philosophy.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 340 Seminar, Moral Philosophy
de Bres
Topic for 2009-10: Well-Being and Morality. Some of the oldest and most perplexing questions in ethics concern the nature of well-being and its relationship to our moral duties.
What is it that makes a life good for a person? What role does well being play in morality? What role should it play in social policy? What difficulties arise in measuring welfare across time and across persons? This seminar will consider a range of recent answers to these questions, including those of Sumner, Sen, Hurka, Raulton, Parfit, and Broome, and Scanlon. We will also consider the ancient antecedents of these views, and discuss how contemporary empirical work on the sources of happiness might shed light on them.
Prerequisite: Open to seniors without prerequisite and to juniors and sophomores who have taken one course in philosophy, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 342 Seminar, Political Philosophy
de Bres
NOT OFFERED 2009-10.

level course in philosophy, political science, international relations or economics, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 345 Seminar, Advanced Topics in Philosophy of Psychology and Social Science
Ewing
Topic for 2009-10: Language and Thought.
This seminar will investigate three ways in which language and thought might be related: the "language of thought" hypothesis, that thinking itself must take place in a language; the Sapir-
Whorf hypothesis, that speaking a particular language, be it Chinese, Hungarian, or Swahili, influences how you perceive and think about the world; and the hypothesis that language "sets us apart" from other creatures by making possible thoughts that could not be entertained unless we spoke a language. We will examine arguments and evidence for and against each of these proposals, with the goal of understanding the role(s) of language in our mental lives.
Prerequisite: One course in philosophy, psychology, or cognitive and linguistic science, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHIL 349 Seminar, Speech Acts
McGowan
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar will survey various philosophical issues and applications of speech act theory. Particular attention will be paid to utterances that enact facts about what is permissible for others, the role of authority in this, and indirect speech acts.
Recent applications of speech act theory to free speech (e.g., hate speech and pornography) will also be discussed.

Department Information

The philosophy department divides its courses and seminars into three subfields:
(A) the history of philosophy: [150], 201, [220], 221, 222, [223], 224, 225, [226], 230, 300, 301, [302], [303], 310, [311], [312], [319], 323 (when the topic is appropriate), 239, 349 (when the topic is appropriate);
(B) value theory: 106, 202, 203, 204, 206, 210, 211, 213, [214], [227], [232], 233, [234], 235, 236, 249, [303], 310, [312] (when the topic is appropriate), 323 (when the topic is appropriate), 326, [332], 340, 342, 349 (when the topic is appropriate);
(C) metaphysics and theory of knowledge: 103, 202, 207, 208, 209, [211], 215, 216, 217, [218], [232], 233, [234], 239, 245, 300 (when the topic is appropriate), 301, [302], [304], 313, [314], 323 (when the topic is appropriate), [327], 345, 349

Requirements for the Major

The major in philosophy consists of at least nine units. PHIL 201 and 221 are required of all majors. In order to assure that all majors are familiar with the breadth of the field, every major must take two units in each of subfields B and C. Majors are strongly encouraged to take a third unit in subfield A. Students planning graduate work in philosophy should take PHIL 216 and acquire a reading knowledge of Latin, Greek, French, or German. In order to assure that students have acquired some depth in philosophy, the department requires that each major complete at least two 300-level units; these units must be in different subfields of philosophy and at least one of the 300-level units must be a philosophy seminar (as opposed to 350 Independent Study, or 360 or 370 Honors Thesis).

Requirements for the Minor

The minor in philosophy consists of five units. No more than one of these units may be at the 100 level; PHIL 201 or 221 is required of all minors; at least one of the five units must be at the 300 level.

Honors

Honors in the Philosophy major may be earned by writing a thesis or a set of related essays, and passing an oral examination.

To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition her/him on her/his behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. Members of the department also prefer to see the following criteria satisfied by the end of the junior year:
1. 201 and 221 completed
2. at least six philosophy courses completed
3. at least one 300-level seminar that demonstrates the ability to work independently completed with a grade of A or A–.

Transfer Credit

The department participates in exchange programs with Brandeis and MIT. Both schools have excellent philosophy departments, and students are encouraged to consult the respective catalogs for offerings.

Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics

PERA Professor of the Practice: Belgiovin (Chair and Athletic Director)
PERA Associate Professor of the Practice: Bauman, Dix, Webb
PERA Assistant Professor of the Practice: Berry, Kroll, Makerney, McPherson, Mohammed, O'Meara, Salapek, Spillane, Veil

PERA Instructor of the Practice: Koesler
Instructor: Babington, Cameron, Chun, Gifford, Grande, Harkless, Hayden-Rockett, Kallanby, Kerr, Liang, Magill, Owen, Pujol-Jensen, Steck, Ulissey, Weaver, Wilson

The Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics is the academic department within the College charged with developing students' knowledge and skills in physical activities. This base of knowledge and skills is considered an essential component of the liberal arts education at Wellesley College and is required of all students for completion of their undergraduate degree.

PE 121 (Fall and Spring) Physical Education Requirement

To complete the College degree requirement in physical education, a student must earn eight physical education credit points. Students are strongly urged to earn the eight credit points by the end of the sophomore year. These credit points do not count as academic units toward the degree, but are required for graduation. There are no exceptions for the degree requirement in physical education and athletics.

Requirements for Completion

While most students fulfill the physical education graduation requirement by taking two or more physical education classes, students may also earn credit points for participation on one or more of Wellesley's 13 varsity athletic teams or for participation in a department-approved, College-sponsored recreational program (maximum two credits). Qualified students may also earn physical education credit for pre-approved independent study programs (maximum four credits).

If a student has a temporary or permanent medical restriction, the student, the physical education and recreation department and Health Services will arrange an activity program to serve the student's individual needs. Incoming transfer students are awarded partial credit toward the physical education requirement dependent upon year and semester of admission. Typically, students admitted as sophomores will be expected to complete four credit points at Wellesley. Students admitted as juniors or as a Davis Scholar will be considered as having completed the degree requirement.

No student is exempt from the physical education and athletics requirement.
A. Physical Education Instructional Classes (maximum credits: unlimited)

Physical education activity classes are scheduled either for a semester (12 weeks) or a term (6 weeks). Semester courses are worth four credit points while term courses are worth two credit points.

All classes are graded on a credit/noncredit basis.

CR—Credit for course completed satisfactorily.

NC—No credit for course not completed satisfactorily. Inadequate familiarity with the content of the course or excessive absence may result in an NC grade.

Students may take a given physical education class only once for credit. Students are encouraged to continue to enroll in physical education classes after they complete the PE 121 requirement to continue to enroll in physical education classes after they complete the PE 121 requirement to support their own individual fitness and wellness.

The course combines the study of biomechanics and anatomic kinesiology. It focuses on the effects of the mechanical forces that arise within and outside the body and their relationship to injuries of the musculoskeletal system. In addition to the lectures, laboratory sessions provide study for hands-on learning and introduce students to the practical skills involved in evaluating injuries, determining methods of treatment and establishing protocol for rehabilitation. An off-site cadaver lab reinforces identification of anatomical structures. Academic credit only.

Enrollment and eligibility for earning credit points for intercollegiate athletics is limited to those students who are selected to the teams by the head coach. Notices of organizational meetings and tryouts for these teams are distributed each year by head coaches.

C. Recreation: Intramural Crew, Dance or Sport Clubs (maximum credits: two points)

The college offers students the opportunity to engage in a variety of recreational activities through a partnership between Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics and Student Activities. Activities that include at least 10 hours of formal instruction under the guidance of a qualified instructor—such as dorm crew, class crew, and some dance and sport clubs—are worth two credit points. Offerings and notice of organizational meetings and participation for these clubs are available through Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics and Student Activities.

While the College encourages students to take advantage of many recreational opportunities, students may earn credit for recreational activity only once, for a maximum of two credit points. Students must fulfill the remainder of the graduation requirement either through physical education course work or varsity athletics.

Professor: Berg (Chair—Fall), Ducat (Chair—Spring), Stark

Associate Professor: Hoy, Lannert, Quivers

Visiting Lecturer: Boyer

Senior Instructor in Physics Laboratory: T. Bauer, Wardell

Instructor in Physics Laboratory: Caplan

A major in physics involves the study of the universal principles underlying phenomena ranging from the behavior of subatomic particles to the structure of the universe. It also entails the applications of these principles to the phenomena we observe every day and to the technology used to explore the world and address people's needs. Important components of the major are modeling, problem-solving, and developing the critical thinking skills necessary to address fundamental questions about nature. To acquire these skills our majors engage in active inquiry in the classroom, teaching laboratories and research. In addition to preparing students for graduate study in physics or engineering, a major in physics is an excellent basis for a career in other sciences, business, public policy, medicine, law and the arts. Physics majors will also be prepared with fundamental intellectual tools to support their lifelong learning in a rapidly changing world.

Goals for the Major

The Wellesley physics major is designed to give students an effective and engaging sequence of experiences to prepare them for graduate study or any of the subsequent paths listed above. Physics courses for the first two years have laboratory components that provide hands-on training in investigating the physical world and exposure to modern equipment and analytical tools. There is also a two-term mathematical methods sequence that focuses on the link between mathematics and physics that is central to the modeling process. Our core upper-level courses cover advanced work in four fields fundamental to the understanding of the many special topics within the discipline.

Most courses meet three times weekly. If indicated, there is an additional three-hour laboratory session weekly.

PHYS 101 Einstein’s Century: Physics in the Last 100 Years

Instructor: Stark

In 1905, Albert Einstein published three seminal papers in the history of modern science, introducing the theory of special relativity, launching the field of quantum mechanics, and helping establish the atomic nature of matter. We will use Einstein’s contributions as a springboard for an introductory exploration of the nature of light, matter, space, and time. PHYS 101 is designed for the student who may not have a strong science background, but would like an introduction to the major themes of physics in the last 100 years. In addition to lectures and demonstrations we will have readings that draw from the biographical and historical contexts in which these ideas developed. We will make use of basic high school algebra, and some trigonometry, in our work. Not to be counted toward the minimum major or to fulfill entrance requirement for medical school.
PHYS 103 The Physics of Marine Mammals

Ducat

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Sperm whales can dive thousands of feet, stay submerged for over an hour, and resurface rapidly; no other mammal can do that and survive. Many marine mammals thrive in arctic waters, sense the world around them using sound, and move with phenomenal efficiency. In this course, we will learn the physics underlying the remarkable abilities of these aquatic mammals. Marine mammal characteristics and the associated scientific topics include: diving and swimming (ideal gas law, fluids, and forces); metabolism (energy, thermodynamics, and scaling); and senses (waves, acoustics, and optics). This course represents a naturally interdisciplinary approach in connecting biology, chemistry, and engineering principles to the physics we will study as we learn about these animals. The course also emphasizes the development of modeling and problem-solving techniques. Whale watch. Not to be counted toward the minimum major or to fulfill entrance requirement for medical school.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 104 Fundamentals of Mechanics with Laboratory

Boyce (Fall), Quiviers (Spring)

This course is a systematic introduction to Newtonian mechanics, which governs the motion of objects ranging from biological cells to galaxies. Primary concepts such as mass, force, energy, and momentum are introduced and discussed in depth. We will place emphasis on the conceptual framework and on using fundamental principles to analyze the everyday world. Topics include: Newton's Laws, conservation of energy, conservation of momentum, rotations, waves, and fluids. Concepts from calculus will be developed and used as needed. Laboratories introduce experimental approaches to these topics. Students with a strong background in mathematics or previous experience in physics should consider PHYS 107. May not be taken in addition to 107. May be counted toward the minimum major only if followed by Physics 108.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement; Corequisite: calculus at the level of MATH 115.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 106 Fundamentals of Electricity, Magnetism, and Optics with Laboratory

Quiviers (Fall), Boyce (Spring)

This second semester of classical physics concentrates on the fundamental forces of electricity and magnetism. The electric and magnetic forces are entirely responsible for the structures and interactions of atoms and molecules, the properties of all solids, and the structure and function of biological material. Our technological society is largely dependent on the myriad applications of the physics of electricity and magnetism, e.g., motors and generators, communications systems, and the architecture of computers. After developing quantitative descriptions of electricity and magnetism, we explore the relations between them, leading us to an understanding of light as an electromagnetic phenomenon. The course will consider both ray-optics and wave-optics descriptions of light. Laboratory exercises will emphasize electrical circuits, electronic measuring instruments, optics, and optical experiments. PHYS 106 does not normally satisfy the prerequisites for 202 or 203 and does not count toward the minimum major.

Prerequisite: 104 and calculus at the level of MATH 115.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 107 Principles and Applications of Mechanics with Laboratory

Stark (Fall), Lennert (Fall), Berg (Spring)

Newtonian mechanics governs the motion of objects ranging from biological cells to galaxies. The fundamental principles of mechanics allow us to begin to analyze and understand the physical world. In this introductory calculus-based course, we will systematically study the laws underlying how and why objects move, and develop analysis techniques for applying these laws to everyday situations. Broadly applicable problem-solving skills will be developed and stressed. Topics include: forces, energy, momentum, rotations, gravity, and waves, and a wide range of applications. Laboratories focus on hands-on approaches to these topics.

Prerequisite: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Calculus at the level of MATH 115. Not open to students who have taken 104.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 108 Principles and Applications of Electricity, Magnetism, and Optics with Laboratory

Quiviers (Fall), Ducat (Spring)

The electromagnetic force, one of the fundamental interactions in nature, is responsible for a remarkably wide range of phenomena and technologies, from the structures of atoms and molecules to the transmission of nerve impulses and the characteristics of integrated circuits. This introductory course begins with the study of Coulomb's law of electrostatics and progresses through investigations of electric fields, electric potential energy, magnetic fields, and Faraday's law of magnetic induction. The course culminates in the study of light, where the deep connections between electricity and magnetism are highlighted. Geometrical optics and an introduction to interference effects caused by the electromagnetic wave nature of light are covered. Laboratories, a central part of the course, provide students with hands-on experiences with electronics and electronic and optical instruments.

Prerequisite: 107 (or 104 and permission of the instructor), and MATH 116 or 120. Not open to students who have taken 106 or 110.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 115/CS 115 Robotic Design Studio (Wintersession)

Berg, Turbak (Computer Science)

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. In this intensive course, students are introduced to engineering principles while designing and assembling robots out of LEGO® parts, sensors, motors, and tiny computers. Fundamental robotics skills are learned in the context of studying and modifying a simple robot known as Sciborg. Then, working in small teams, students design and build their own robots for display at a robot exhibition. These projects tie together aspects of a surprisingly wide range of disciplines, including computer science, physics, math, biology, psychology, engineering, and art. Students may register for either PHYS 115 or CS 115 and credit will be granted accordingly. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean’s Office approval.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science
Semester: N/O
Unit: 0.5

PHYS 202 Introduction to Quantum Mechanics and Thermodynamics with Laboratory

Berg

The development of quantum mechanics represented one of the most fundamental revolutions in our understanding of the natural world. Quantum mechanics forms the basis for our knowledge of atoms, molecules, and solid-state systems as well as of nuclei and fundamental particles. Thermodynamics deals with the concepts of heat and temperature and the connection to properties of matter and to processes in nature and constructed systems. This course introduces both of these important branches of physics and looks at their links by investigating such phenomena as atomic and molecular heat capacities, and the statistical basis for blackbody radiation and the second law of thermodynamics.

Prerequisite: 108, MATH 116 or 120; Corequisite: MATH 215 (PHYS 215)
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 203 Vibrations, Waves, and Special Relativity with Laboratory

Boyce

A wide range of physical systems exhibit vibrational and wave motion. Because of this universality, learning about fundamental characteristics of waves and vibrations provides insight into a tremendous number of phenomena such as the motion of strings and springs, the design of musical instruments, molecular spectra, oscillations in solids, liquids and gases, sound, and electromagnetic radiation as well as the behavior of fundamental particles. There will be an emphasis on optical applications as clear and elegant examples of wave phenomena. We will also study particular research applications such as Fourier Transform Spectroscopy and Nuclear Magnetic Resonance. The course culminates with an introduction to Einstein's Theory of Special Relativity, with a focus on explaining how this theory radically alters classical notions of space and time.
PHYS 216 Mathematics for the Sciences II
Stark
When laws of nature are written in advanced mathematical forms, gradient, divergence, and curl are frequently encountered. In this course, we study these mathematical operations in the broader context of differential and integral vector calculus, with an emphasis on their physical meanings. Fourier transform and partial differential equations, which are used throughout the physical sciences, are also discussed. The course ends with an introduction to numerical methods, which is widely used in most modern scientific and engineering fields when analytical solutions to algebraic or differential equations do not exist. We use MATLAB, a popular high-level programming language. Part of the course is similar to MATH 205, but topics closely related to physics—the theorems of Gauss and Stokes, spherical and cylindrical coordinates—are discussed in depth.
Prerequisite: MATH 215/[PHYS 215]. Not open to students who have taken this course as MATH 216.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 219 The Art of Electronics
Berg
We are increasingly surrounded in our lives by boxes filled with electronics, but for most people (including many scientists) the inner workings of these boxes remain obscure and mysterious. This course is intended to remove much of this mystery. The approach is practical, aimed at allowing experimental scientists to understand the electronics encountered in their research. The emphasis is on designing and building circuits. Topics include diodes, transistor amplifiers, op amps, and digital electronics including microprocessors and microcontrollers. Applications to robotics will be explored. Two laboratories per week and no formal lectures.
Prerequisite: 106 or 109 or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 222 Medical Physics
Dudas
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course covers applications of physics to two important areas of medical science: the mechanisms of the human body and the design of modern diagnostic and treatment techniques. We will use principles of physics from mechanics, fluids, electricity and magnetism, thermodynamics, acoustics and optics to model aspects of human structural design and performance such as respiration, circulation, muscle and nerve operation, heat regulation, hearing and vision. We will also study the principles underlying modern medical technology, such as ultrasound imaging, computer aided tomography (CT scans), magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), positron emission tomography (PET scans) and applications of lasers in diagnosis and surgery.
Prerequisite: 104/107 in addition to BISC [213] or 106/106X, or 108, Mathematics at the level of MATH 115 or higher, or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 250 Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open by permission to students who have taken 107.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 250H Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open by permission to students who have taken 107.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

PHYS 302 Quantum Mechanics
Launert
This course provides a comprehensive development of the principles of non-relativistic quantum mechanics, the fundamental theory of electrons, atoms, and molecules. Quantum mechanics governs the building blocks of all matter, and yet fundamentally challenges our physical intuition, which is based on the behavior of everyday macroscopic objects. Topics include the postulates of quantum mechanics, Schrödinger equation, operator theory, quantum mechanics, and spin.
Prerequisite: 202, 203, and PHYS 216/[MATH 216]
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 305 Statistical Mechanics and Thermodynamics
Quivers
Modern statistical mechanics builds from the quantum nature of individual particles to describe the behavior of large and small systems of such particles. In this course, we will derive the fundamental laws of thermodynamics using basic principles of statistics and investigate applications to such systems as ideal and real atomic and molecular gases, radiating bodies, magnetic spins, and solids. We will study Bose-Einstein and Fermi-Dirac statistics and learn about exciting new developments, such as Bose-Einstein condensation and ultra-cold Fermi gases. We will cover additional applications of statistical mechanics in the fields of biology, chemistry, and astrophysics.
Prerequisite: 202 and PHYS 216/[MATH 216]
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 306 Advanced Classical Mechanics
Stark
The basic laws of Newtonian mechanics are revisited in this course using advanced mathematical tools such as differential equations and linear algebra. Special attention is paid to central forces, planetary orbits, oscillations, and rigid body dynamics. In addition, Hamilton-Lagrange mechanics, an alternative to Newtonian mechanics, nonlinear dynamics, and chaos are introduced.
Prerequisite: 203 and PHYS 216/[MATH 216].
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 311/ASTR 311 Elements of Astrophysics
W. Bauer (Astronomy)
Astrophysics is the application of physics to the study of the universe. We will use elements of mechanics, thermodynamics, electromagnetism, quantum mechanics, special relativity, and nuclear physics to investigate selected topics such as planets, the life stories of stars, and galaxies, dark matter, and the origin of the universe. Our goal is to develop insight into the physical underpinnings of the natural world, and to develop a "universal toolkit" of practical astrophysical techniques that can be applied to the entire celestial menagerie. These tools include scaling analysis, numerical solutions to complex problems, and other research approaches advanced in professional literature.
Students may register for either ASTR 311 or PHYS 311 and credit will be granted accordingly. Normally offered in alternate years.
Prerequisite: PHYS 202 and 203
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 314 Electromagnetic Theory
Launert
Richard Feynman once said, "From a long view of the history of mankind—seen from, say, ten thousand years from now—there can be little doubt that the most significant event of the nineteenth century will be judged as Maxwell's discovery of the laws of electromodynamics. The American Civil War will pale into provincial insignificance in comparison with this important scientific event of the same decade." In this course we will study the classical theory of electromagnetic fields and waves as developed by Maxwell. Topics include boundary value problems, electromagnetic radiation and its interaction with matter, and the connection between electromodynamics and relativity.
Prerequisite: 108, 306, and PHYS 216/[MATH 216].
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PHYS 349 Applications of Quantum Mechanics with Laboratory
Launert
Quantum mechanical techniques such as perturbation theory and the numerical solutions to the Schrödinger equation will be developed. Applications to problems in atomic, molecular, and condensed matter physics will be studied both theoretically and experimentally.
Prerequisite: 302 or CHEM 333
Distribution: Mathematical Modeling or Natural and Physical Science
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

PHYS 350 Research or Individual Study

MATH 215 Mathematics for the Sciences I

Requirements for the Major
MATH 215 and PHYS 216 are additional requirements. 219 and 349 are strongly recommended.
One unit of another laboratory science is recommended.
All students who wish to consider a major in physics or a related field are urged to complete the introductory sequence (107 and 108) as soon as possible, preferably in the first year. A strong mathematics background is necessary for advanced courses. It is suggested that students complete MATH 115 and 116 or 120 in their first year and the MATH 215-PHYS 216 sequence no later than their second year. All students majoring in physics are urged to develop proficiency in the use of one or more computer languages.

Requirements for the Minor
A minor in physics (six units) should ordinarily include: 104 or 107, 108, 202, 203, 302 and one other unit at the 300 level (350 cannot be counted as the other 300-level unit). MATH 215/PHYS 215 and PHYS 216/MATH 216 are also required.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100-level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Teacher Certification
Students interested in obtaining certification to teach physics in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should consult the chairs of the education and physics departments.

Transfer Credit
In order to obtain Wellesley credit for any physics course taken at another institution, during the summer or the academic year, approval must be obtained from the chair of the department prior to enrolling in the course. There is a limit of one physics course for which transfer credit may be given. In general, courses from two-year colleges will not be accepted at any level. These restrictions normally apply only to courses taken after matriculation at Wellesley. Transfer students wishing to obtain credit for physics courses taken prior to matriculation at Wellesley should consult the chair of the department.

Advanced Placement and Exemption Examinations
If a student has a strong physics background (AP, IB physics credits or the equivalent) and wishes to be exempted from our introductory courses for the purpose of enrolling in a higher-level physics course, she must pass an exemption examination administered by the department. Sample examinations are available from the department. Students may not receive more than two units of credit for the introductory physics sequence. For example, a student who enrolls in both PHYS 107 and 108 will not also receive AP or IB credit.

Engineering
Students interested in engineering should consult the course listings in Extradepartmental and enroll in EXTD 160, Introduction to Engineering Science. This course is intended to be a gateway experience for possible subsequent engineering studies such as the engineering certificates from the Olin College of Engineering. The Special Academic Programs section contains a description of these certificates that represent groups of engineering courses at Olin designed to complement a major at Wellesley. Students also have opportunities to take courses at MIT via the Wellesley-MIT exchange program.

Department of Political Science
Professor: DeSombre, Euben (Chair), Joseph, Just, Krieger, Moon, Murphy, Paarlberg, Rich
Associate Professor: Burke, Cardiland, Scherer
Assistant Professor: Goddard, Han
Instructor: Gittan
Senior Lecturer: Wasserspring
Visiting Lecturer: McKissack

Political Science is the systematic study of politics. It is the academic discipline that analyzes how power is defined, who does or should have power in society, how those with power use or ought to use it, how those with less power challenge it, and the effect of power on people's lives. Political Science courses explore a wide range of questions regarding the concepts and norms central to the study of power and politics (e.g., authority, domination, gender, freedom); the structure and operations of law and institutions (e.g., the U.S. Supreme Court, United Nations, non-governmental organizations); the historical, sociological and cultural factors involved in political and economic development; social movements and processes (e.g., women's movements, immigration); comparative political systems (e.g., democracy, communism); political trends and transformations in various regions (e.g., East Asia, South Asia, Latin America); and analyses of current affairs in the many realms and contexts in which politics take place.

Goals for the Major
Our curriculum is specifically designed to achieve several goals:
• Provide majors with a broad background in the discipline of political science through the study of the four subfields that comprise it: American politics and law, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory.
• Help students develop the capacity to think critically about themselves and local, national and global politics.
• Train students to become informed and reflective citizens of a democracy, as well as knowledgeable about the global dynamics which influence the shape and content of political life.
• Facilitate the acquisition of particular skills and tools, including the ability to read complex texts closely; write clearly and well; think critically and analytically; generate and test hypotheses; take and defend a position against the strongest counterarguments.

Introductory Courses
POL 100 Introduction to Political Science
Paarlberg, Wasserspring, McKissack
Politics is a struggle for power—and questions about power are at the heart of political science. How is power gained? How is it lost? How is it organized? How is it used? How is it abused? This course introduces students to the concerns and methods of political scientists and to the major subfields of the discipline: American politics, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory. The course is centered on several major books in the field, some describ-
American Politics and Law

POLI 200 American Politics
Burke, McKissick, Rich

The institutions, processes, and values that shape American politics. The origins and evolution of the U.S. Constitution, and the institutions it created: Congress, the executive branch, the presidency, the federal court system and federalism. Analysis of "intermediary" institutions including political parties, interest groups, elections, and the media. Study of enduring debates over values in American politics, with particular attention to conflicts over civil rights and civil liberties.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

POLI 210 Political Participation and Influence Just

It is no secret that some people have a lot of resources (money, knowledge, status) and others have little. This course examines the political consequences of inequalities in different political arenas from the ballot box to the courts, from the legislature to administrative agencies. Does the same elite group always come out on top or are there ways that disadvantaged actors can be effective? Beyond voting and organized activities, is direct action a useful tool of political influence? How do social movements, such as gay rights or environmentalism shape policy agendas? What role do the media play in amplifying or constraining the power of political actors? Will the Internet change the power equation in the United States?

Prerequisite: One unit in political science.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POLI 212 Urban Politics
Rich

Introduction to contemporary urban politics. Study of policy-making and political leadership in the areas of public education, city bureaucracies, housing, welfare, fiscal management, and economic redevelopment. Consideration of population shifts, racial and ethnic conflicts, and the impact of federal policy on urban planning.

Prerequisite: One unit in Political Science, Economics, or American Studies.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POLI 215 Courts, Law, and Politics
Burke

Fundamentals of the American legal system, including the sources of law, the nature of legal process, the role of courts and judges, and legal reasoning and advocacy. Examination of the interaction of law and politics, and the role and limits of law as an agent for social change.

Prerequisite: 200 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

POLI 311 The Supreme Court in American Politics

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Analysis of major developments in constitutional interpretation, the conflict over judicial activism, and current problems facing the Supreme Court. Emphasis will be placed on judicial review, the powers of the president and of Congress, federal-state relations, and individual rights and liberties.

Prerequisite: 215 or one other unit in American Legal Studies, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 313 American Presidential Politics
Rich

Analysis of the central role of the president in American politics and the development and operation of the institutions of the modern presidency. The course will focus on sources of presidential power and limitations on the chief executive, with particular emphasis on relations with the other branches of government and the making of domestic and foreign policy.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POLI 314 Understanding How Congress Works

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the institution of the United States Congress, including the people who comprise it and the way it operates. Students examine the way this institution constrains and shapes the behavior of individuals and groups involved in the policymaking process. Topics include congressional elections, the structures and dynamics of legislator-constituent relations, and the influence of the public, parties, and interest groups in policymaking. The course considers whether Congress is representative and if and how it achieves democratic goals. Includes in-class simulations that offer students experience of the legislative policymaking process and the pressures of public office.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 315 Public Policy and Analysis
McKissick

The first part of the course will examine how domestic public policy is formulated, decided, implemented, and evaluated, at both the federal and local levels. Both moral and political standards for making policy will be examined. Factors that promote or impede the development and realization of rational, effective, and responsive public policy will be reviewed. The second part of the course will be devoted to student research and presentations on selected policy topics, including public schools, public transportation, homelessness, the environment, and drug enforcement.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POLI 316 Mass Media in American Democracy
Just

Focus on the mass media in the American democratic process, including the effect of the news media on the information, opinions, and beliefs of the public, the electoral strategy of candidates, and the decisions of public officials. Discussion of news values, journalists' norms and behaviors, and the production of print and broadcast news. Evaluation of news sources, priorities, bias, and accessibility. Attention to coverage of national and international affairs, as well as issues of race and gender. Questions of press freedom and journalistic ethics are explored.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

POLI 317 Health Politics and Policy
Burke

The American system of health care is distinctive. Financing is provided through voluntary employer contributions, tax subsidies, individual payments and an array of public programs, principally Medicare and Medicaid—but despite the variety of funding sources, Americans, unlike citizens of other affluent democracies, are not guaranteed health care coverage. How did the American approach to health care develop? How is it different from that of other affluent nations?
POLI 318S Religion and Politics in Contemporary America

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the relationship between religion and politics. From the founding of the United States to President Bush’s faith-based initiative, the role of religion in American political behavior has been the subject of great debate. Special attention will be paid to how religion serves as a form of political socialization, often informing political participation, voting behavior and political attitudes. Relevant policy and legal decisions will be reviewed. First Amendment topics such as the separation between church and state, religious freedom and the Establishment Clause will also be addressed.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 319S Seminar. Campaigns and Elections

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Exploration of the issues in campaigns and elections: Who runs and why? Do elections matter? The impact of party decline and the rise of campaign consultants, polls, advertising, and the press. Candidate strategies and what they tell us about the political process. How voters decide. The “meaning” of elections. Attention to the rules of the game (the primaries, debates, the Electoral College), recent campaign innovations (talk shows, town meetings, infomercials), third party candidacies, and prospects for political reform. Course work includes campaign participation.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or by permission of instructor.
Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 320S Seminar. Inequality and the Law

Burke
Analysis of statutory and constitutional law regarding inequalities based on gender, race, class, sexual orientation, and disability, and the effect of this law on society. Do anti-discrimination laws reduce social inequalities? To what extent have the legal rights won by groups such as African Americans, women, and people with disabilities been translated into social practice? Focus on the Equal Protection and Due Process clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment, statutes such as the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the Americans with Disabilities Act, and recent Supreme Court decisions. Examination of the role of law and litigation in public policies regarding school desegregation, employment discrimination, marriage and family life, housing, and welfare.

Prerequisite: 215 or 311, and permission of instructor.
Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POLI 324S Seminar. Gender and Law

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Analysis of how law in the United States is used to confer rights, create obligations and define the identities of women. The course explores the historical and modern approaches used by the Supreme Court to address gender disparity in society, including labor law, reproductive rights, family law, sexual discrimination in the workplace, and gay rights. The course also analyzes the relationship between the feminist movement, social policy-making, and the Supreme Court. The last part of the class will examine whether the gender of legal actors (litigators, lawyers, and judges) makes a difference in their reasoning or decision-making.

Prerequisite: 215 and by permission of instructor.
Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 331S Seminar. Political Organizing: People, Power and Change

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Fulfilling the democratic promise of equity, inclusion and accountability requires an “organized” citizenry with the power to articulate and assert its interests effectively. Organizing is about identifying, recruiting, and developing leadership; building community around leadership; and building power from community. Students will engage with social, economic, and political problems as participants in political organizing by mapping power and interests, developing leadership, building relationships, providing and mobilizing resources to create organizations and promote political change. Community, electoral, union, and social movement organizing will be explored.

Prerequisite: 200 or equivalent; or by permission of instructor.
Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 334S Disability in American Society: Politics, Policy, and Law

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The preamble of the Americans with Disabilities Act declares that 43 million Americans are disabled, but some believe the number is a ridiculous overestimate while others consider it a vast understatement. What exactly is “disability”? How is this concept used in American public policy and law? What is life like for Americans with disabilities? This course examines the politics of disability in the United States, paying particular attention to the perspectives of people with disabilities and to the history of the disability rights movement.

Prerequisite: One course at the 200 level in American studies, economics, education, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, or sociology.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POLI 339S/EDUC 339 Seminar. The Politics of Urban Public Schools

Rich
This seminar examines recurrent issues in public school management and governance. Critical questions include the changing demographics of inner-city schools, the evolving role of school boards, big-city mayors, urban superintendents, teachers unions, and school finance. We will discuss alternatives to public schools (parochial, private, and charter schools), high-stakes testing, and district-state relations. The seminar will also analyze the increasing intervention of state and federal governments in local school administration and the role of the courts in curriculum controversies, student life, and security. Students may register for either POLI 339S or EDUC 339 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: One 200-level education course or one 200-level American politics course.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

POLI 355S Seminar. Interest Groups in American Politics

McKissick
This seminar examines the paradox of interest groups in American politics, focusing on their twin capacity to facilitate democratic government on the one hand and undermine it on the other. We will consider interest groups in the context of notions about democratic theory, examine seminal empirical research on how groups are organized and mobilized in the pursuit of political objectives, and explore what groups do, and to what consequence, as they operate within the (sometimes changing) institutional constraints of the American political system. Our examination of these topics will move between matters of theory and evidence as we assess the complex role(s) that interest groups play in American politics.

Prerequisite: 200 or 210 or by permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0
POL 1.381/ES 381 U.S. Environmental Politics
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. This course examines the politics of environmental issues in the United States. The course has two primary goals: First, to introduce students to the institutions, stakeholders, and political processes important to debates over environmental policy at the federal level. Second, to develop and practice skills of analyzing and making decisions relevant to environmental politics and policy. Drawing on the literature of environmental politics and policy, this course will consider how environmental issues are framed in political discourse, various approaches to environmental advocacy and reform, and the contested role of science in environmental politics. The course will be organized around environmental case studies, including endangered species conservation, public lands management, air and water pollution, and toxics regulation. Students may register for either POL 1.381 or ES 381 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: ES 102, ES 214, POL 200, or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.0

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10, OFFERED IN 2010-11. Examines the basic legal instruments and their historical development in addressing international environmental issues. Under what conditions have states been able to cooperate to improve the global environment? Negotiation of compliance with, and effectiveness of international environmental law, and specific environmental issues in which international environmental law operates will be addressed.

Prerequisite: 221 or 222 or permission of instructor.

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

POL3 326 Seminar, Small Wars in Theory and Practice

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course introduces advanced students to an important and understudied category of conflict: small wars. This survey of important small wars from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries traces their impact on both grand-strategic planning and international relations theory, and is grounded in major themes ranging from the Hobson-Lenin thesis of imperialism to Kenneth Waltz's neorealism. The interplay of theory and cases will highlight the strengths and weaknesses of contemporary approaches to this old yet present category of conflict. Case studies include the South African War (1899-1902), Italy's invasion of Ethiopia (1935-36), U.S. military intervention in Vietnam (1965-73), Operation Allied Force in Kosovo (1999), the Russian Federation's twin campaigns in Chechnya (1994 and 1999), and the Second Gulf War in Iraq (2003 to the present).

Unit: 1.0

POL3 322S Seminar. People, Agriculture, and the Environment Pauhberg
An examination of linkages between agricultural production, population growth, and environmental degradation, especially in the countries of the developing world. Political explanations will be sought for deforestation, desertification, habitat destruction, species loss, water pollution, flooding, salinization, chemical poisoning, and soil erosion—all of which are products of agriculture. These political explanations will include past and present interactions with rich countries, as well as factors currently internal to poor countries. Attention will be paid to the local, national, and international options currently available to remedy the destruction of rural environments in the developing world. This course may qualify as either a comparative politics or an international relations unit for the political science major, depending upon the student's choice of research paper topic.

Prerequisite: 204 or 233. Not open to students who have taken [POL3 332]. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.

POL3 351S Global Governance NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Explores the challenge of global institutions in the new century within a larger historical context. Considers the function and role of the League of Nations, the International Labor Organization, the United Nations, the Bretton Woods institutions, the GATT and the World Trade Organization. Special emphasis on comparing and contrasting international organizations in the three major periods of institution building: post-World War I, post-World War II, and post-Cold War. Discusses radical, liberal internationalist and realist approaches.

Prerequisite: One unit in international relations. Not open to students who have taken [POL3 351]. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POL3 354S: The Rise and Fall of Great Powers Gedda
Power transitions are among the most dangerous moments in international politics. Scholars argue that when new great powers rise, they threaten the interests of other states, provoking balancing coalitions, arms races, and even major power war. When a great power declines, it can precipitate examplar international institutions, and undermine the existing world order. In this seminar, we will undertake a theoretical, historical, and contemporary examination of rising and declining great powers, looking at historical case studies (such as the rise of Germany, Japan, and the United States), as well as contemporary cases (the decline of Russia, American hegemony, and the posited rise of China, India, and the European Union).

Prerequisite: POL3 221. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

POL3 379 Weapons, Strategy, and War NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the interrelationships among military technology, strategy, politics, and war. How have these forces shaped warfare from the introduction of gunpowder to the present? How, in turn, have developments in warfare influenced societies and politics? The course emphasizes select cases from World Wars I and II and the development of nuclear weapons strategy. How, for example, did the development of chemical weapons affect the battlefield? What ethical choices, if any, guided the strategic bombing of civilians in World War II? How did nuclear weapons change ideas about fighting war? The class concludes with an examination of the "war on terror" and its implications for strategy and politics.

Prerequisite: POL3 221. Recommended: POL3 224

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

POL3 384S Seminar. Power, Conflict, and Diplomacy NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. International politics is mostly talk. Diplomats cooperate, coerce, and deter, all under the shadow of power and war. This course examines the role of diplomacy and negotiations in international politics. We explore whether actors behave rationally in crisis situations, such as in the Cuban Missile and Berlin Crises. The course analyzes the role of rhetoric and identity in negotiations. How is it that actors might use rhetoric to persuade or coerce at the bargaining table? Considerations include how the course will use primary materials, such as transcripts of the Cuban Missile Crisis, in addition to interpretive texts, to examine negotiations over issues of alliance politics, conflict resolution, and crises on the brink of war.

Prerequisite: One unit in international relations. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department Web site.

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

POL4 241 Modern Political Theory Grattan
Study of the development of Western political theory from the seventeenth to nineteenth centuries. Among the theorists read are Machiavelli, Hobbes, Locke, Rousseau, Burke, Mill, and Marx. Emphasis on the logic of each theorist's arguments and on their different understandings of the following concepts and relationships: human nature; individual and society; morality, political economy, and the state; reason, authority, and sovereignty; equality, justice, and freedom. Attention is paid to the historical context within which each theorist writes, and especially to how their works respond to and treat questions of class, race, gender, and colonialism. Attention is also paid to how their works influence and/or challenge contemporary assumptions, visions, and movements across the ideological spectrum.

Prerequisite: None

Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0
POL 424 Contemporary Political Theory Krieger
Study of several twentieth-century traditions that raise fundamental questions about the human condition, processes of historical and personal transformation, and our capacity to understand them. Exploration of contemporary political and social theories, including existentialism, contemporary variants of Marxism, postmodern theory, alternative theories of power, and the ethics of war. Prerequisite: One unit in political theory, social theory, or political philosophy, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

POL 428 Power and Politics Euben
An examination of the nature and functioning of power in politics, with an emphasis on the following questions: What is the nature of power and how has it been exercised in political life, both past and present? Who has power and who should have it? Is power primarily wielded by political leaders and bureaucrats, or has the development of new technologies decentralized power? Do the powerless understand and exercise power differently from those who traditionally hold it? Are power and violence inextricably intertwined or are they opposites? Authors include Thucydides, bell hooks, Hannah Arendt, Marx, Nietzsche, Foucault, Dahl, Michnik, and Vaclav Havel. Prerequisite: One unit in political science, philosophy, or history, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

POL 340 American Political Thought Grattan
Examination of the development of political thought in the United States, emphasizing the historical and ongoing contestation over America's political ideals and institutions. Moving chronologically, we pay special attention to the following questions: Were the revolution and founding acts of idealism, pragmatism, or power? In what ways, if any, are American ideas of equality, freedom, and democracy exceptional? What constitutes progress in America? Throughout the course, we consider how arguments about race, class, gender, and nationality reflect not only marginalized experiences and discourses but also broader challenges to and aspirations for American democracy. This course draws on primary and secondary sources in political theory as well as history, literature, and film. Prerequisite: One 200-level unit in political theory, American politics, or American history, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Historical Studies Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

POL 342S Seminar, Marxist Political Theory NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Study of the fundamental concepts of Marxist theory, including alienation, the materialist conception of history, class formation, and class struggle. Particular attention will be paid to Marx's theory of politics. The applicability of Marxist theory to contemporary political developments will be assessed. Study of contemporary Marxist theory will emphasize issues of class, race, and gender. Prerequisite: Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy or Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

POL 343S Seminar, Democracy and Difference Krieger
An examination of liberal democracy and contemporary theoretical challenges introduced by diversity and difference. Does liberal democracy, with its emphasis on individual rights, separation of powers, representative assemblies, and the principle of a limited state, remain a durable model? How does the consideration of cultural diversity and difference, understood by reference to gender, race, ethnicity, language, religion, nationality, and sexual orientation, affect our understanding of citizenship, equality, representation, recognition, and community? Study of communitarian thought, multiculturalism, and feminist critiques of democracy. Prerequisite: One 200 level unit in political theory, or permission of instructor. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

POL 344S Seminar, Feminist Political Theory Euben
An examination of feminist theory, beginning with early liberal and socialist feminisms and continuing on to radical, post-structuralist and postcolonial feminist theories. Particular attention to the complexity of theorizing about "what women are and need" in the context of a multicultural society and a postcolonial world. Consideration of feminist perspectives on law and rights, body image and eating disorders, pornography, racial and sexual differences, non-Western cultural practices such as veiling, and methodology. Authors include J.S. Mill, Alexandra Kollontai, Audre Lorde, Chandra Mohanty, bell hooks, Catharine MacKinnon, Susan Okin, Wendy Brown, Joan Scott, and Judith Butler. Prerequisite: One 200-level unit in political theory, philosophy, or women's and gender studies; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

POL 343S Seminar, Race and Political Theory Grattan
What role has race played in the production of Western political thought since modernity? How have Black writers sought to reconstruct Black identity, culture, and history toward the ends of greater freedom and social justice? How do their efforts reflect not only the marginalized experiences of Blacks, but also conceptualized resources for politics and political theory more generally? Is thinking race counterproductive to thinking democracy? These questions are addressed through a consideration of the following themes and movements: the legacy of slavery in the United States; the Haitian Revolution; pan-Africanism; Black Freedom and Black Power; and decolonization. Key concepts include domination and liberation, violence and justice, historical and prophetic narrative, the politics of mourning, race consciousness, and cosmopolitanism. Authors include Toni Morrison, Michel-Rolph Trouillot, W.E.B. Du Bois, C.L.R. James, James Baldwin, Malcolm X, Angela Davis, bell hooks, Frantz Fanon, and Paul Gilroy. Prerequisite: One 200-level unit in political theory or Africana Studies. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

POL 346S Seminar, Comparative Political Theory: Modern Western and Islamic Theories of Politics Euben
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of the relationship—contrasts, overlaps, cross-pollination—between Western and Islamic theories about the nature and dilemmas of modern politics with a special emphasis on the following questions: Does modern politics require secularization or a return to the "fundamentals" of tradition, religion, and community? Which fundamentals and by whose authority? What is the relationship, if any, between democracy, Islam and the West? How do women and questions of pluralism fit into these debates and categories? Is there such a thing as a distinctive Western or Islamic perspective in a world stamped by colonialism, imperialism, and globalization? Authors include Machiavelli, Ibn Khaldun, al-Afghani, Kant, Fazlur Rahman, Rifat Hassan, Jeremy Waldron, Abul Aela Maududi, and Sayyid Qutb. Prerequisite: One 200 level unit in political theory, philosophy, or a course in Islam in history or religion. Enrollment limited; interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

POL 347S Seminar, Politics, Literature, and the Concept of Empire
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. What does it mean to be an "empire"? In this seminar, we will explore this question through specific historical examples (including Greece, Rome, Britain and France), using a variety of literary and philosophical texts (Herodotus, Virgil, Machiavelli, Conrad, Kipling, Fanon, Said). Particular attention will be given to questions about freedom, power, rights and obligations. In conclusion, we will examine contemporary sources to assess whether or not the term "empire" may be applied to the United States today. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor. Interested students must fill out a seminar application available in the political science department office or on the department web site. Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

Research or Individual Study
Individual or group research of an exploratory or specialized nature. Students interested in independent research should request the assistance of a faculty sponsor and plan the project, readings, conferences, and method of examination with the faculty sponsor. These courses are offered at the 250 (intermediate) and 350 (advanced) levels and for one or 0.5 unit of credit.

POL 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open to all students by permission. Distribution: None Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

168 Political Science
Honors
In the political science department, the only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the Honors Program, a student must have a minimum 3.5 grade point average in work in the major above the 100 level. Students who fall slightly below this minimum requirement may petition for an exemption if they present a particularly strong proposal and if they have the strong support of a potential thesis advisor. Majors who are interested in writing a senior honors thesis are urged to discuss their ideas and plans with a potential faculty advisor as early as possible in their junior year. The deadline for submitting an honors’ thesis proposal is the second Monday in April; all students will normally be expected to submit their proposals by this date.

Graduate Study
Students considering going to graduate school for a Ph.D. in political science should talk with their major advisors about appropriate preparation in quantitative methods and foreign languages.

Transfer Credits
Ordinarily, a minimum of five units for the major must be taken at Wellesley, as must the courses that are used to fulfill at least two of the four subfield distributions and the seminar requirement. The department does not grant transfer credit at the 300 level for either the major or for College distribution or degree requirements.

Although Wellesley College does not grant academic credit for participation in internship programs, students who take part in the Washington Summer Internship Program may arrange with a faculty member to undertake a unit of 350, Research or Individual Study, related to the internship experience.

Advanced Placement Policy
Students may receive units of College credit if they achieve a grade of 5 on the American Government and Politics or the Comparative Politics AP Examinations. Such AP credits do not count toward the minimum number of units required for the political science major or for the American or comparative subfield distribution requirements for the major. If a student does receive a unit of College credit for the American politics exam, she may not take POL 200 (American Politics). Students who are uncertain whether to receive a College AP credit in American politics or to take POL 200 should consult with a member of the department who specializes in American politics/law or comparative politics.

Department of Psychology
Professor: Akert, Cheek, Hennessey, Keane, Lucas4; Norem, Schiavo, Wink (Chair), Zimmerman4
Associate Professor: Genero, Gleason
Assistant Professor: Pyers*, Theran, Wilmer
Senior Lecturers: Brachfeld-Child, Carl

Psychology is the scientific study of behavior and mental processes, including cognition, emotion, and motivation. The Wellesley psychology department is empirically oriented and places a strong emphasis on using scientific methods to investigate aspects of human nature such as how the mind works, how culture and environment interact with individuals over the course of their development, and how we understand ourselves, others, and social interaction.

Goals for the Major
• Students will receive an overview of the major areas of psychology, including major historical controversies, developments, theoretical perspectives, and empirical findings in various areas of psychology.
• Students will understand the kinds of questions psychologists ask about human nature, emotion, motivation, cognition and behavior, the tools they use to answer those questions, and the perspectives and assumptions that distinguish psychology as a discipline from related fields such as anthropology, sociology, and biology.
• Students will understand the role that research plays in the development of psychological theory and the knowledge base of the field and will become critical consumers of psychological literature and research. They will be equipped to work with data and understand numerical presentation and interpretations of data.
• Students will have an opportunity for hands-on experience in translating psychological questions into hypotheses that can be explored empirically, in designing studies to explore those hypotheses, in analyzing data, and in preparing research reports according to the conventions of the field.

PSYC 101 Introduction to Psychology
Staff
An introduction to some of the major subfields of psychology, such as developmental, personality, abnormal, clinical, physiological, cognitive, cultural, and social psychology. Students will explore various theoretical perspectives and research methods used by psychologists to study the origins and variations in human behavior.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 205 Statistics
Cheek, Genero, Hennessey
The application of statistical techniques to the analysis of psychological experimental and survey data. Major emphasis on the understanding of statistics found in published research and as preparation for the student's own research in more advanced courses. Three periods of combined lecture-laboratory.
Prerequisite: 101, NEUR 100, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. [Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement.] Not open to students who have taken or are taking ECON 103/SOC 190, MATH 101, MATH 101Z, POL 199, QR 180, or [QR 199], except for psychology and neuroscience majors, with permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 207 Developmental Psychology

Gleason, Staff

Behavior and psychological development in infancy and childhood. An examination of theory and research pertaining to personality, social, and cognitive development. Lecture, discussion, demonstration, and observation of children. Observations at the Child Study Center required.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 208 Adolescence

Brechfeld-Child

Survey of contemporary theories and research in the psychology of adolescents. Topics will include the physical, cognitive, social, and personality development of adolescents.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 210 Social Psychology

Aker, Carli

The individual's behavior as it is influenced by other people and the social situation. Study of social influence, interpersonal perception, social evaluation, and various forms of social interaction.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 212 Personality

Noven

A comparison of major ways of conceiving and studying personality, including the work of Freud, Jung, behaviorists, humanists, and social learning theorists. Introduction to major debates and research findings in contemporary personality psychology.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 213 Abnormal Psychology

Wink, Theran

An examination of major psychological disorders with special emphasis on phenomenology. Behavioral treatment of anxiety-based disorders, cognitive treatment of depression, psychoanalytic therapy of personality disorders, and biochemical treatment of schizophrenia will receive special attention. Other models of psychopathology will also be discussed.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken [224].

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 214 Evolutionary Psychology

Lucas

Evolutionary Psychology is the scientific study of human nature as shaped by natural selection. It is grounded in evolutionary biology and the psychological sciences with connections to disciplines ranging from neuroscience to anthropology and economics. Topics covered will include adaptive solutions to major life challenges including survival, mating, family relations, and group living (e.g., cooperation, aggression, and status).

Prerequisite: 101 or NEUR 100, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 215 Memory

Kane

Introduction to the study of human memory. Examines processes underlying encoding, storage, and retrieval of information. Will review theoretical models focusing on distinctions between different forms of memory, including short-term and long-term memory, implicit and explicit memory, episodic and semantic memory. Factors contributing to forgetting and distortion of memory will also be discussed.

Prerequisite: 101 or NEUR 100, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 216 Psychology of Language

Carper (Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences)

Introduction to the study of the psychological processes underlying language. An examination of theory, methods, and current research in language abilities, including speech perception, word and sentence comprehension, and language acquisition in children. Examination of the relationship between language and thought and the evolutionary and biological bases of language behavior.

Prerequisite: 101 or NEUR 100, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 217 Cognition

Keane

Cognitive psychology is the study of the capabilities and limitations of the human mind when viewed as a system for processing information. An examination of basic issues and research in cognition focusing on attention, pattern recognition, memory, language, and decision making.

Prerequisite: 101 or NEUR 100, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 218 Sensation and Perception

Wilen

In a split-second, a curling of lips across a crowded room is registered by one's eyes and translated effortlessly into a vividly three-dimensional, full-color perception of a baby's smile. This and other sensory and perceptual feats, unmatched by any computer, are this course's focus. Topics include consciousness, attention and information, perceptual learning and development, visual memory, faces, 3D depth, color, motion, and brain bases of sensation/attention/perception. Emphasis is given to abnormal and illusory perception, such that resulting from brain damage/stimulation or artistic sleight of hand. This course shows that our perception, far from being a "copy" of the outside world, incorporates many predictions and educated guesses. Frequent in-class demonstrations will provide insights into course concepts.

Prerequisite: 101, AP score of 5 or permission of instructor. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 219 Biological Psychology

Norem

Introduction to the biological bases of behavior. Topics include structure and function of the nervous system, sensory processing, sleep, reproductive behavior, language, and mental disorders.

Prerequisite: 101, AP credit or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken [BISC 213/NEUR 213]. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 250: Research or Independent Study

Prerequisite: By permission of instructor

Distribution: None

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 250H: Research or Independent Study

Prerequisite: By permission of instructor

Distribution: None

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 0.5

PSYC 299 Practicum in Psychology

Staff

Participation in a structured learning experience in an approved field setting under faculty supervision. Does not count toward the minimum major in psychology. Mandatory credit/noncredit, except by permission of instructor.

Prerequisite: Open by permission to junior and senior PSYC majors. Two units above the 100 level that are most appropriate to the field setting as determined by the faculty supervisor (excluding 205).

Distribution: None

Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

PSYC 300/CLSC 300 Seminar, Topics in Cognitive and Linguistic Sciences

Lucas

Topic for 2009-10: Cooperation and Competition. According to traditional models of rationality, rational agents should act in ways that will maximize their self-interest. And the study of evolution teaches us that individuals are in competition for survival. Nonetheless, we have all experienced acts of apparent selflessness and societies could not function without cooperation among their members. How, then, can cooperative and selfless behaviors be explained? In this course, an interdisciplinary approach to the problem will be taken. Evidence and theories from the psychological, economic, and neurobiological literatures will be examined. Cross-cultural, developmental, and cross-species differences will be explored as well as the evolutionary origins of cooperation and competition and the role of cooperation in language. Students may register for either PSYC 300 or CLSC 300 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken one of 215-219, LING 114, PHIL 215, CS 111 or permission of instructor.

Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0
PSYC 303 Psychology of Gender
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of different theoretical approaches to the study of sex and gender, the social construction and maintenance of gender, and current research on gender differences. Topics will include review of arguments about appropriate methods for studying sex and gender and its legitimacy as a research focus; gender roles and gender socialization; potential biological bases of gender differences; and the potential for change in different sex-typical behaviors. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken 200-level units excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

PSYC 304R Research Methods in Evolution and Human Behavior
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to research methods appropriate to an evolutionary approach to the study of human nature. Student projects investigate topics across diverse areas of psychology, focusing on the psychological processes that our ancestors evolved to cope with survival and reproductive challenges. Possible topics include cooperative behavior, mate choice, adaptive aspects of language, and gender differences in cognition. Group projects with some individual exercises. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students. Prerequisite: 205 and one of the following: 212, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218 or 219. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement. Semester: N/O Unit: 1.25

PSYC 305 Seminar. Advanced Statistical Methods and SPSS
General
Building on introductory statistical concepts and data analysis applications, this course provides an in-depth understanding of hypothesis testing and probability for use in psychological quantitative research. Topics include factorial analysis of variance, correlation, regression, and basic psychometric techniques. Prerequisite: 205. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement. Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

PSYC 307R Research Methods in Developmental Psychology
Glasen
An introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of human development. Individual and group projects. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students. Observations at the Child Study Center required. Prerequisite: 205 and 207. Not open to students who have taken [207R]. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement. Semester: Fall Unit: 1.25

PSYC 308 Systems of Psychotherapy
Wink
This course examines theory, research, and practices in three schools of psychotherapy: psychodynamic, cognitive-behavioral, and humanistic. Topics to be covered include underlying assumptions of normalcy/pathology, theories of change, methods/techniques, and relationship between therapist and client. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken 224 and one other 200-level unit, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: Spring Unit: 1.0

PSYC 310R Research Methods in Social Psychology
Aker
An introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of social psychology. Individual and group projects on selected topics. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students. Prerequisite: 205 and 210. Not open to students who have taken [210R]. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement. Semester: Spring Unit: 1.25

PSYC 311 Seminar. Environmental Psychology
Schiavo
Exploration of the interaction between the physical environment and an individual's behavior and feelings. Emphasis on relevant topics such as territoriality, personal space, and crowding. Some attention to children and to environmental issues, such as conservation and psychological consequences of natural disasters. Specific settings, such as urban environments, playgrounds, and homes, are studied. Small groups of students will use observation, interview or questionnaire techniques to pursue small-scale research topics. There will be individual oral reports. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0

PSYC 312 Seminar. Applied Psychology
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Analysis of psychologically-based programs and interventions in applied settings such as organizations, social service agencies, health-care facilities, social support groups, environmental and community change agencies, etc. Consideration of the psychological theories, methods, and research findings which provide the foundation for these programs. Students will participate in relevant settings or activities. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

PSYC 312R Research Methods in Personality Psychology
Noren
An introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of personality psychology. Student projects investigate individual and group differences in personality traits, values, goals, and dimensions of self-concept. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students. Prerequisite: 205 and 212. Not open to students who have taken [212R]. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement. Semester: Fall Unit: 1.25

PSYC 314R Research Methods in Cognitive Psychology
Keane
Introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of human cognition (i.e., how people take in, interpret, organize, remember, and use information in their daily lives). Individual and group projects. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students. Prerequisite: 205 and one of the following: 213, 216, 217, 218, 219. [BISC 213/NEUR 213]. Not open to students who have taken [214R]. Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement. Semester: Spring Unit: 1.25

PSYC 316 Seminar. Language Acquisition
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Children around the world acquire their first language, spoken or signed, with seemingly little effort. By the end of their first year, they are saying their first words, and a mere two years later they are speaking in full sentences! We will discuss the various factors that play into children's rapid acquisition of their first language. Towards figuring out how children learn language, we will talk about early speech perception, word learning, the acquisition of phonology, morphology, syntax, and pragmatic knowledge. In addition, we will cover topics such as language development disorders (e.g., autism), the critical period hypothesis, sign language, bilingualism, and language and thought. Over the course of the semester, we will understand the empirical methods that guide the study of child language. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, including 207 and excluding 205, or permission of instructor. LING 114 may be substituted for either 200-level unit. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

PSYC 318 Seminar. Brain and Behavior
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Selected topics in brain-behavior relationships. Emphasis on psychopharmacology. Topics include principles and mechanisms underlying action of drugs, major neurotransmitter systems, major classes of psychoactive drugs, and psychological disorders and medications. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, including one of the following: 219 or [BISC 213/NEUR 213], and excluding 205. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: N/O Unit: 1.0

PSYC 319 Neuropsychology
Koziara
An exploration of the neural underpinnings of higher cognitive function based on evidence from individuals with brain damage. Major neuroanatomical systems will be reviewed. Topics include motor and sensory function, attention, memory, language, and hemispheric specialization. Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, including either 219 or [BISC 213/NEUR 213], and excluding 205. Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis Semester: Fall Unit: 1.0
PSYC 323 Research Methods in the Psychology of Human Sexuality

Check
An introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of individual and group differences in sexual attitudes and behavior. Students study archival and new survey data to investigate topics such as sexual motivation and attraction, sexual self-esteem and identity, intimacy in romantic relationships, and gender and cultural differences in sexuality. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students.
Prerequisite: 205 and 208 or 219. Not open to students who have taken 327.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

PSYC 324R Research Methods in Abnormal Psychology

Theran
An introduction to research methods appropriate to the study of abnormal psychology. Topics will include affective and personality disorders, substance abuse, and stressful life events. Individual and group projects. Laboratory. Each section typically limited to 10 students.
Prerequisite: 205 and 224 or 213. Not open to students who have taken [224R]
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.25

PSYC 326 Seminar. Child and Adolescent Psychopathology

Theran
Description, etiology, and developmental patterns of behavior problems of children, adolescents, and their families. Topics include theories of child and adolescent psychopathology, externalizing problems such as conduct disorder and attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder, internalizing problems such as depression, anxiety, and children's experiences of trauma, and developmental disorders such as mental retardation, risk and protective factors for child psychopathology, and child and family interventions.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 327 Seminar. Psychology of Human Sexuality

Check
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of psychological approaches to individual and group differences in sexual attitudes and behavior. This course draws upon theory and research from the fields of personality psychology and social psychology. Topics include: sexual motivation and attraction; sexual self-esteem and identity; intimacy in romantic relationships; and gender and cultural differences in sexuality.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken 323R.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 328 Seminar. Genes, Brains and Human Variation

Wilmer
Why do only some people have a great sense of pitch, a keen memory for names or faces, or a remarkable ability to locate "Where's Waldo"?

And why are some people only average or even below average in these areas? We will critically evaluate a broad range of perceptual and cognitive abilities (and disabilities) by drawing upon the fields of cognitive neuroscience, behavioral genetics, development, and human variation. We will address three types of question: What broad combination of nature and nurture, and what specific genes and experiences, contribute to differing levels of ability? What are the neural and cognitive bases of such abilities? What are their real-world consequences?

Prerequisite: Two 200-level units, excluding 205, of which should be 218, 215, 216, 217, 218 or 219, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 329 Seminar. Psychology of Adulthood and Aging

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of how individuals develop as they age throughout the life course. Particular emphasis on experiences associated with entry into adulthood, middle age, and older adulthood. Topics include: age-related changes in personality, emotion, and cognition; work and relationships (including marriage and parenting); life’s transitions (e.g., divorce, menopause, and retirement); influence of culture and history on crafting adult lives. Different models of the life course will be discussed.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 330 Psychology of Law

Carli
This course will document biases in jury decisions, inequalities in sentencing, factors that contribute to criminal behavior, and other contemporary research findings in the psychology of law. Students will review research on jury selection, the reliability of eyewitness testimony, factors affecting the perceived innocence or guilt of defendants, the use of hypnosis and lie detector tests, blaming victims of crime, method of interrogation, and issues surrounding testimony from children in abuse cases. This course will explore both theory and research on the psychology of law and will include case analyses. A fundamental goal of the course is to allow students to apply their psychological knowledge and critical-thinking skills to the analysis of legal decisions and outcomes.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken [230].
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 333 Clinical and Educational Assessment

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Current approaches to the psychological appraisal of individual differences in personality, intelligence, and special abilities will be investigated through the use of cases. Tests included in the survey are: MMPI®, CPI®, WAIS®, Rorschach®, and the TAT®. Special emphasis will be placed on test interpretation, report writing, and an understanding of basic psychometric concepts such as validity, reliability, and norms. Useful for students intending to pursue graduate study in clinical, personality, occupational, or school psychology.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 338 Social Influence

Key
This course focuses on a major topic in social psychology: attitude formation and change. Techniques of social influence that we encounter in everyday life will be explored, with a particular emphasis on advertising. The findings of empirical research and theory will be used to understand persuasive messages. Topics include how emotion, gender and culture are used to maximize the effectiveness of advertisements, and how stereotypes are both perpetuated and refuted in advertising.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken 210 and one other 200-level unit, excluding 205, or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken [249].
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 339 Seminar. Narrative Identity

Check
Narrative psychology explores the human propensity to create and use stories about significant figures and events in the process of identity formation. Topics will include an exploration of mermaids and related figures as cultural images, metaphors for personal transformation, and archetypal symbols of the collective unconscious. The Little Mermaid and La Sirene of Haitian vodou will be examined as representations of men's fear of, and attempts to control, women's spirituality and sexuality. The personality theories of Jung and Reich provide the framework for the seminar.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 340 Organizational Psychology

Carli
An examination of key topics, such as social environment of the work place, motivation and morale, change and conflict, group dynamics, work group dynamics, leadership, culture, and the impact of workforce demographics (gender, race, socioeconomic status). Experiential activities, cases, theory, and research.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 341 Seminar. Psychology of Shyness

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of psychological approaches to understanding shyness and the related self-conscious emotions of embarrassment and shame. Topics include: genetics of shyness, evolutionary perspectives on shyness in animals, adolescent self-consciousness, and individual and group differences in social behavior.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level courses, excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0
PSYC 342 Seminar. Psychology of Optimism and Pessimism

Noren

An examination of the ways in which expectations influence and are influenced by thoughts, feelings, motivation, and behavior. There are a variety of psychological constructs that fall under the general rubric of optimism and pessimism, and research has shown that they relate to physical and mental health, achievement, personal relationships, and even longevity. This seminar will explore those relationships, with an emphasis on understanding both the costs and the benefits of personal and cultural optimism and pessimism.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors with 212 or 210 and one other 200-level course, excluding 305.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 343 Seminar. Social Imagination

Gleason

An examination of the uses and types of imagination in both childhood and adulthood. This course will touch on the mechanics of mental imagery and discuss the ways in which imagery is manifest in cognition and particularly in management of social relationships. Emphasis will be placed on the connections between imagination and emotion, such as in children's enactment of scary or nurturant pretend play. How imagination affects interpersonal interactions will be considered, as will other topics such as children's creation of imaginary companions, imagination as pathology, and individual differences in imagination, imagery of individuals deprived of particular senses, and the influence of imagination on memory.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level courses, excluding 205.
Distribution: Epistemology and Cognition or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 344 Seminar. Selected Topics in Developmental Psychology

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken 207 and one other 200-level course, excluding 205.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 347 Seminar. Culture and Social Identity

Gero

Examines the social and developmental aspects of identity with a special focus on ethnicity. The social construction of culture, interpersonal functioning, ethnic group differences, and expectations will be explored as they relate to identity development. The course includes a case study component.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units excluding 205, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 348 Advanced Topics in Personality and Social Psychology

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
An exploration of the interface between personality and social psychology. Areas of research that are best understood by considering both personality dispositions and social situations will be examined. Topics include: conformity, romantic relationships, and social anxiety.

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken 210 and 212, or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 349 Seminar. Nonverbal Communication

Aker

An examination of the use of nonverbal communication in social interactions. Systematic observation of nonverbal behavior, especially facial expression, tone of voice, gestures, personal space, and body movement. Readings include scientific studies and descriptive accounts. Issues include: the communication of emotion; cultural and gender differences; the detection of deception; the impact of nonverbal cues on impression formation; nonverbal communication in specific settings (e.g., counseling, education, interpersonal relationships).

Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors who have taken two 200-level units, excluding 205.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 350 Research or Individual Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 350H: Research or Independent Study

Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 0.5

PSYC 360 Senior Thesis Research

Prerequisite: Completion of a research methods course by the end of the junior year, and by permission of department. See Academic Distinctions.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

PSYC 370 Senior Thesis

Prerequisite: 360 and permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

Requirements for the Major

Psychology is a broad field, and the major is designed to allow students to gain breadth and depth of knowledge in the field. To that end, students take 200-level courses that represent different areas of the field, but develop depth by taking a 200-level content course that then leads, along with statistics, to a corresponding research methods course in which they learn firsthand about how knowledge is developed within specific subareas of the field. For example, a student may take social psychology (210), followed by the research methods in social psychology course (310R), but she will also have taken at least two other 200-level courses, including one from the 214-219 set of courses that historically have focused on somewhat different research questions than has social psychology.

The psychology major consists of at least 9.25 units, including 101, 205 (Statistics) and a research-methods course plus at least three additional courses at the 200 level and two additional courses at the 300 level of the 200-level courses, at least one must be a course numbered 207-213 (courses on developmental, social, personality, and abnormal psychology) and at least one must be numbered 214-219 (courses on cognition, memory, language, sensation and perception, and biological psychology). Independent study courses (250 and 250H) count toward the major, but not toward the required three 200-level courses. Only one independent study course (350, 350H) or thesis course (360, 370) can count as one of the two 300-level courses required in addition to the research-methods course. PSYC 299 does not count as one of the nine courses for the major. At least five of the courses for the major must be taken in the department.

Statistics: 205 is the only Wellesley statistics course that will count toward the fulfillment of the major. In order to obtain Wellesley credit for a statistics course taken at another institution during the summer or academic year, approval must be obtained from the department prior to enrolling in the course. Transfer students wishing to obtain credit for statistics courses taken prior to enrollment at Wellesley should consult the chair of the department.

Research Methods Requirement: The department currently offers seven research methods courses: PSYC 304R, 307R, 310R, 312R, 314R, 323R and 324R. Research methods courses taken outside of Wellesley will not fulfill this requirement. In order to be eligible for Senior Thesis Research (PSYC 360), students must complete the research methods course by the end of the junior year.

Requirements for the Minor

The psychology minor consists of five units, including one course at the 300 level and including 101. PSYC 299, 350, and 351 do not count as one of the five courses for the minor. At least three of the courses for the minor must be taken in the department.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student should have a grade point average of at least 3.67 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; students with a slightly lower average who have a strong interest and commitment to research are welcome to submit applications. See Academic Distinctions.

Advanced Placement Policy

The unit given to students for advanced placement in psychology does not count towards the minimum psychology major or minor at Wellesley, but it does fulfill the PSYC 101 requirement. If an AP student with a score of 5 completes PSYC 101, she will receive the appropriate psychology credit, but will receive no AP credit. Advanced-placement credit for statistics does not exempt students from or fulfill the PSYC 205 requirement. An AP student with a score of 5 in statistics must still take 205, but can receive AP credit.

Interdepartmental Majors

Students interested in an interdepartmental major in neuroscience or cognitive and linguistic sciences are referred to the section of the catalog where these programs are described. They should consult with the directors of the neuroscience or cognitive and linguistic sciences programs.
Quantitative Reasoning Program

Director/Senior Lecturer: Taylor
Lecturer: Polito
Advisory Committee: Brahauer (Geosciences), Ducas (Physics), Flynn (Chemistry), Genero (Psychology), Hawes (Education), Keene (Psychology), McGowan (Philosophy), Shuchat (Mathematics), Stark (Physics), Swingle (Sociology), Wolfson (Chemistry)

The ability to think clearly and critically about quantitative issues is imperative in contemporary society. Today, quantitative reasoning is required in virtually all academic fields, is used in most every profession, and is necessary for decisionmaking in everyday life. The Quantitative Reasoning Program is designed to ensure that Wellesley College students are proficient in the use of mathematical, logical, and statistical problem-solving tools needed in today's increasingly quantitative world.

The Quantitative Reasoning Program provides a number of services to the academic community. It oversees the administration of the Quantitative Reasoning Assessment (described below) and staffs QR 140, the basic-skills course, and some overlay courses. The Program also provides tutorial support to students and instructors of quantitative reasoning overlay courses. Finally, the Quantitative Reasoning Program provides curricular support to faculty interested in modifying existing courses or designing new ones so that these courses will satisfy the overlay component of the quantitative reasoning requirement.

The Quantitative Reasoning Requirement

All students must satisfy both components of the quantitative reasoning requirement: the basic-skills component and the overlay course component. The basic-skills component is satisfied either by passing the Quantitative Reasoning Assessment given during Orientation or by passing QR 140, the basic-skills course that builds mathematical skills in the context of real-world applications. Students are required to satisfy the basic skills component in their first year so that they may enroll in the many courses for which basic quantitative skills (including algebra, geometry, basic probability and statistics, graph theory, estimation, and mathematical modeling) are a prerequisite.

The overlay component is satisfied by passing a quantitative reasoning overlay course or by scoring a 5 on the AP Statistics exam. Quantitative reasoning overlay courses emphasize statistical analysis and interpretation of data in a specific discipline. The Committee on Curriculum and Instruction has designated specific courses in fields from across the curriculum as ones that satisfy the quantitative reasoning overlay requirement. These courses (listed below) may also be used to satisfy a distribution requirement. See the Statistics section of the catalog for more information about some of these quantitative reasoning overlay courses.

QR 140 Introduction to Quantitative Reasoning
Polito, Taylor
In this course, students develop and apply mathematical, logical, and statistical skills to solve problems in authentic contexts. The quantitative skills emphasized include algebra, geometry, probability, statistics, estimation, and mathematical modeling. Throughout the course, these skills are used to solve real-world problems, from personal finance to medical decision-making. A student passing this course satisfies the basic skills component of the quantitative reasoning requirement. This course is required for students who do not pass the Quantitative Reasoning Assessment. Those who pass the assessment, but still want to enroll in this course must receive permission of the instructor.
Prerequisites: Permission of the instructor required for students with a score of 9.5 or above on the Quantitative Reasoning Assessment.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

QR 180 Statistical Analysis of Education Issues
Taylor
What factors explain individual and group differences in student achievement test scores and educational attainment? Do inequities in public elementary and secondary schools matter in terms of student achievement and future employment? This course explores the theories, statistical methods, and data used by social scientists and education researchers in examining these and other education issues. Students collect, analyze, interpret, and present quantitative data. They begin with descriptive statistics and work up to inferential statistics, including hypothesis testing and regression analyses.
Prerequisites: Fulfillment of the basic skills component of the Quantitative Reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have taken or are taking ECON 103/SOC 190, MATH 101, MATH 101Z, POL 101, PSYC 205, or [QR 199].
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement.
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

Overlay Course Component

The following courses satisfy the overlay course component of the quantitative reasoning requirement. In order to register for a course on this list, a student must first satisfy the basic skills component of the quantitative reasoning requirement by passing either the quantitative reasoning assessment or QR 140.

Note that this list is subject to change. Check individual department listings for information about when each course is offered.

[174] Quantitative Reasoning
Department of Religion

Professor: Elkins (Chair), Geller, Hobbs, Kodera, Marini, Marlow

In a liberal arts college, the study of religion constitutes an integral part of the humanities and social sciences. Recognizing religion as an elemental expression of human life and culture, past and present, the department offers courses in the major religious traditions of the world. These courses examine both the individual and the collective dimensions of religion and approach their subject from a variety of perspectives including historical, textual, theological, and social scientific.

Goals for the Major and the Minor
- Significant study of one of the world's major religious traditions or a coherent theme, belief, and/or practice studied across two or more of those traditions;
- Exposure to at least one methodological approach to the study of religion, such as textual study, moral and metaphysical inquiry, theoretical reflection, or cultural studies;
- Appropriate language training, especially for students pursuing Departmental Honors.

REL 104 Study of the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament

Silver

Critical introduction to the Hebrew Bible/Old Testament, studying its role in the history and culture of ancient Israel and its relationship to ancient Near Eastern cultures. Special focus on the fundamental techniques of literary, historical, and source criticism in modern scholarship, with emphasis on the Bible's literary structure and compositional evolution.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

REL 105 Study of the New Testament

Hobbs

The writings of the New Testament as diverse expressions of early Christianity. Close reading of the texts, with particular emphasis upon the Gospels and the letters of Paul. Treatment of the literary, theological, and historical dimensions of the Christian scriptures, as well as of methods of interpretation. The beginnings of the break between the Jesus movement and Judaism will be specially considered.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

REL 108 Introduction to Asian Religions

Kodera

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An introduction to the major religions of India, Tibet, China, and Japan with particular attention to universal questions such as how to overcome the human predicament, how to perceive ultimate reality, and what is the meaning of death and the end of the world. Materials taken from Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, and Shinto. Comparisons made, when appropriate, with Hebrew and Christian Scriptures. Normally alternates with REL 109.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken REL 109.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

REL 109 Religions of the Silk Road

Marlow

An introduction to the major religious communities and traditions of East, South and West Asia, with particular attention to their contacts and interactions as facilitated by trade, travel and pilgrimage from antiquity until roughly the fifteenth century. The framework for our study of these religious cultures will be the "Silk Road," which stretched from Eastern China to the Mediterranean Sea and linked together the many communities that thrived across Eurasia throughout the preindustrial era. In addition to Buddhism and Islam, the course will cover Confucianism, Daoism, Jainism, Hinduism and Zoroastrianism, as well as Manichaeism and Nestorian Christianity. Readings are drawn from foundational sacred texts, and the accounts of merchants, travelers and pilgrims. Additional attention to the material cultures and artistic works produced by the religious communities of the Silk Road. Normally alternates with REL 108.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken REL 108.
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

REL 200 Theories of Religion

Marini

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

REL 203 Prophets and Prophecy in Ancient Israel

Silver

Examination of texts in the Hebrew Bible bearing on the phenomenon of prophecy: narrative descriptions of prophetic behavior and literary texts that purport to be the words of the biblical prophets themselves. Consideration of prophetic behavior in its ancient Near Eastern context and in relation to the unique cultural, social and political conditions in ancient Israel. Particular attention to the relationship between poetry and political critique and on the transition from orally delivered oracles to written prophetic texts.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

REL 205 Wisdom Literature in the Hebrew Bible and Early Judaism

Silver

The worldview of ancient Israelite wisdom literature: its philosophical, ethical and cosmological systems, and broader cross-cultural contexts. Also the adaptation of individual ethical doctrines to the governance of the political collective during the great Judean reform movement of the seventh century B.C.E., and the breakdown of this system in the wake of the Babylonian Exile. Special attention to scribal responses to the Problem of Evil and their ideas on the relationship between the created cosmos and divine intentionality.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

REL 209 Women, Sexuality, and Patriarchalism in the New Testament

Hobbs

The world from which Christianity emerged was largely patriarchal and sexist, with a variety of attitudes towards sexual behavior and marriage. The Christian movement itself took several different approaches toward each of these issues, which found their way into the New Testament collection and thus became the foundation for a multiplicity of stances in later centuries. This variety in the documents will be examined, with special attention to their roots and their results. Normally alternates with REL 211.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

REL 211 Jesus of Nazareth

Hobbs

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Historical study of Jesus, first as he is presented in the Gospels, followed by interpretations of him at several subsequent stages of Christian history. In addition to the basic literary materials, examples from the visual arts and music will be considered, such as works by Michelangelo, Grunewald, I.S. Bach, Beethoven, and Rouault, as well as a film by Pasolini. The study will conclude with the modern "quest for the historical Jesus." Normally alternates with REL 209.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

REL 215 Christian Spirituality

Elkins

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of historical and contemporary writings that exemplify varieties of Christian spirituality. Historical texts include Augustine's Confessions, Thomas à Kempis's The Imitation of Christ, Teresa of Avila's Autobiography, John Bunyan's The Pilgrim's Progress, and The Way of the Pilgrim. Contemporary authors include Martin Luther.
REL 217 Woman in Christianity

Elkins

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Martyrs, mystics, witches, virgins, reformers, and ministers: a survey of women in Christianity from its origins until today. Focus on women's writings, both historical and contemporary. Special attention to modern interpreters—feminists, Third World women, and women of color.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring

REL 226 The Virgin Mary

Elkins

The role of the Virgin Mary in historical and contemporary Christianity. Topics include Mary in the Bible and Apocryphal writings, her cult in the Middle Ages, artistic productions in her honor, theological debates about her, and her appearances at Guadalupe, Lourdes, and Fatima. Attention also to the relation between concepts of Mary and attitudes toward virginity, the roles of women, and "the feminization of the deity." Normally alternates with REL 221.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken REL [316].
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring

REL 230 Ethics

Marcini

An inquiry into the nature of values and the methods of moral decision-making. Examination of selected ethical issues, including self-interest, freedom, collective good, capital, war, racism, and environmental pollution, globalization, and religious morality. Introduction to casuistry and ethical theory as tools for determining moral choices. Normally alternates with REL 200.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall

REL 245 The Holocaust and the Nazi State

Geller

An examination of the origins, character, course, and consequences of Nazi anti-Semitism during the Third Reich. Special attention to Nazi racist ideology, and how it shaped policies that affected such groups as the Jews, the disabled, the Roma and the Sinti, Poles and Russians.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0
Afro-Germans, homosexuals, and women. Consideration also of the impact of Nazism on the German medical and teaching professions.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

REL 246 Jewish Civilization
Geller
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Historical survey of the Jewish community from its beginnings to the present. Exploration of the elements of change and continuity within the evolving Jewish community as it interacted with the larger Greco-Roman world, Islam, Christianity, and post-Enlightenment Europe and America. Consideration given to the central ideas and institutions of the Jewish tradition in historical perspective.
Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken REL [140].
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 248 The Dead Sea Scrolls
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of the documents and archaeology of the Dead Sea Scrolls. Survey of major text genres, such as law, community organization, scriptural interpretation, prayer, amulets and coded treasure maps. Focus upon key archaeological matters, including the physical geography of the Dead Sea region, the “Esarne” settlement structure, art and architecture, ritual baths, religious artifacts, and objects of daily use—weaponry, cosmetics and writing tools. The scrolls and material culture will be examined in their own right and in terms of their relationship to the broader history of Judaism in the Roman Era, Rabbinic Literature, and the New Testament. Normally alternates with REL 242.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 250 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students and sophomores only.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

REL 250H Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students and sophomores only.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 0.5

REL 251/SAS 251 Religion in South Asia
Shakla-Bhatt (South Asia Studies)
An examination of the religions in South Asia as expressed in sacred texts and arts, religious practices, and institutions in a historical manner. Concentration on the origins and development of Hindu traditions, Buddhism, Jainism, and Sikhism, as well as integration of Islam and Christianity in the religious landscape of South Asia. Interactions among the diverse communities of the region will also form a major theme. Students may register for either REL 251 or SAS 251 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

REL 253 Buddhist Thought and Practice
Kodera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of Buddhist views of the human predicament and its solution, using different teachings and forms of practice from India, Southeast Asia, Tibet, China, and Japan. Topics including the historic Buddha’s sermons, Buddhist psychology and cosmology, meditation, bodhisattva career, Tibetan Tantricism, Pure Land, Zen, and dialogues with and influence on the West. Normally alternates with REL 257.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 254 Chinese Thought and Religion
Kodera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Continuity and diversity in the history of Chinese thought and religion from the ancient sage-kings of the third millennium B.C.E. to the present. Topics include: Confucianism, Taoism, Chinese Buddhism, folk religion, and their further developments and interaction. Materials drawn from philosophical and religious and literary works. Normally alternates with REL 255.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 255 Japanese Religion and Culture
Kodera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Constancy and change in the history of Japanese religious thought and its cultural and literary expression from the prehistoric “age of the gods” to contemporary Japan. An examination of Japanese indebtedness to, and independence from, Korea and China, assimilation and rejection of the West, and preservation of indigenous tradition. Topics include: Shinto, distinctively Japanese interpretations of Buddhism, neo-Confucianism, their role in modernization and nationalism, Western colonialism, and modern Japanese thought as a crossroad of East and West. Normally alternates with REL 254.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 257 Contemplation and Action
Kodera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An exploration of the relationship between the two polar aspects of being religious. Materials drawn from across the globe, both culturally and historically. Topics include: self-cultivation and social responsibility, solitude and compassion, human frailty as a basis for courage, anger as an expression of love, nonviolence, western adaptations of eastern spirituality, meditation and the environmental crisis, Readings selected from Confucius, Gautama Buddha, Ryokan, Mahatma Gandhi, Abraham Heschel, Dag Hammarskjold, Simone Weil, Thomas Merton, Thich Nhat Hanh, Henri Nouwen, Beverly Harrison, Benjamin Hoff, Reuben Habito, and others. Normally alternates with REL 253.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 259 Christianity in Asia
Kodera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. History of the Christian tradition in South and East Asia from the first century to the present. Emphasis on the Christian impact, both positive and negative, on Asian societies; why Asia rejected Western Christianity; and the development of uniquely Asian forms of Christian belief, practice and sociopolitical engagement. Topics include: Thomas’s supposed “apostolic mission” to Korea, India in the first century; the Nestorian “heretics” in China; syncretic churches of Jews, Muslims and Christians in sixteenth-century China; the two sixteenth-century Jesuits (Francis Xavier and Matteo Ricci); Spanish colonialism and the Roman Catholics of the Philippines; the 26 martyrs of Japan (1597); the Taiping Rebellion; Uchimuras “No Church Christianity”; Horace Allen in Korea; Kitamori’s “Pain of God Theology”; Endo’s “Silence of God”; India’s “untouchables” and Christianity; Mother Teresa of Calcutta; the Three Self Movement in the People’s Republic of China; Korea’s Minjung Theology; and the rise of Asian-American Christianity.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

REL 260 Islamicate Civilizations
Rollman (History)
Historical survey of Muslim-majority societies and the diverse cultural forms produced within them from the seventh century to the beginnings of the modern period. Topics include literary and artistic expression, architecture, institutions, philosophical and political thought, religious thought and practice. Critical attention to the concept of “civilization” and its uses and drawbacks for understanding the complex historical and cultural processes under study in the course. Normally alternates with REL 262.
Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken REL [160].
Distribution: Historical Studies or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

REL 261 Cities of the Islamic World
Marlow
An exploration of the religious and cultural history of selected cities across the Islamic world from late antiquity to the present. Examines and critiques the concept of “the Islamic city” while focusing on the study of particular cities, including Damascus, Baghdad, Cairo, Istanbul, Isfahan, Samarqand, Lucknow and Lahore. Topics include: migration, settlement, and the construction of new cities; conversion; the emergence of “holy cities” as centers for pilgrimage, religious education and Islamic legal scholarship; sacred space and architecture; religious diversity in urban environments; and the impact of colonialism on urban life. REL 281/SAS 211 Sacred Arts of South Asia

Shukla-Blunt (South Asia Studies)

Cultural life in South Asia is vibrant with aesthetic expressions of religion in its diverse traditions—Hindu, Muslim, Buddhist, Jain, Sikh, and Christian. This course introduces students to one of the most powerful avenues for transmission of religious knowledge in the traditions of South Asia—the aesthetic experience derived through a variety of forms. In addition to visual messages sent through architectural motifs and paintings, teaching of religious doctrines through narratives in drama, dance, and musical performance is common across religious boundaries. The course will introduce theories of aesthetic experience and religious knowledge from the subcontinent and relate them to contemporary theories of performance. Students may register for either REL 281 or SAS 211 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

REL 290 Kyoto: Center of Japan's Religion and Culture (Winter session in Kyoto)

Kodera

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Hands-on observation and critical analyses of religion and culture in Kyoto, Japan's capital for over a millennium. Topics include: Shinto and Buddhism in traditional Japanese art and culture, such as "tea ceremony," calligraphy, poetry, theater and martial arts. Shinto and Japan's appreciation of nature; Japan's selective memory of the Pacific War and Japan's growing nationalism; today's Buddhist clergy as specialists of the world of the dead, in sharp contrast to the earlier (pre-seventeenth century) focus on meditation and acts of mercy for the living; "new religions" in contemporary Japanese society and politics; Japan's assimilation of Western religions, as manifested in youth culture; the complicity of religion in the resurgence of nationalism and xenophobia; the contemporary Japanese fascination with the "other world." Kyoto will be the center of operation with possible side trips to Nara, Hiroshima, and perhaps Tokyo. Length: Two and a half weeks in Japan, with three days of orientation on campus prior to departure. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.

Prerequisite: At least one unit in Asian religion; though not required, preference given to students of Asian religions and of East Asian Studies. Application required.

Related Courses
For Credit Toward the Major
Students wishing to take related courses for their major or minor outside the department must obtain approval of their advisor in advance. Majors and minors are encouraged to take courses in other departments and programs, including Jewish Studies, Middle Eastern Studies, Medieval and Renaissance Studies, South Asian Studies, and East Asian Studies.

Requirements for the Major
The major consists of a minimum of nine units, at least two of which must be at the 300-level, including a seminar, and no more than two 100-level courses. A maximum of three courses taken outside the department may be counted toward the major, no more than two of which may be taken at an institution other than Wellesley.

The major requires both a concentration in a specific field of study and adequate exposure to the diversity of the world’s religions and cultures. To ensure depth, a major must present a concentration of at least four courses, including a seminar, in an area of the student’s choosing in consultation with and approved by her departmental advisor. This concentration may be defined by, for example, a particular religion, cultural-geographical area, genre, period of time, or theme. To promote breadth, a major must complete a minimum of two courses, also to be approved by her departmental advisor, devoted to religious cultures or traditions that are distinct both from each other and from the area of concentration. All majors are urged to discuss their courses of study with their advisors before the end of the first semester of their junior year.

Requirements for the Minor
The minor consists of a minimum of five courses, including at least one seminar and no more than two 100-level courses. Three of the five courses, including a seminar, should be within an area of concentration chosen by the student in consultation with and approved by her departmental advisor.

For some students, studies in the original language of religious traditions will be especially valuable. Majors and minors interested in pursuing language study should consult their advisors to determine the appropriateness of such work for their programs.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.
Department of Russian

Professor: Hodge
Associate Professor: Weiner (Chair)
Lecturer: Epsteyn
Visiting Lecturer: Pankenier

Since its founding in the 1940s by Vladimir Nabokov, the Russian Department has dedicated itself to excellence in literary scholarship and undergraduate teaching. Our four faculty members specialize in different areas of Russian language and literature and incorporate a broad range of cultural material—history, music, and visual art—into their courses. Numerous activities both inside and outside the classroom are designed to enrich students’ appreciation of the achievements and fascinating traditions of Russian civilization. At the same time, we give our students critical skills that will serve them outside the Russian context.

Goals for the Major
- Be able to speak, read, and understand Russian very well
- Be a close and attentive reader of Russian literary texts
- Be able to write a persuasive argument in both English and Russian
- Have a good grasp of the history of Russian literature from 1800 to the present
- Possess a broad understanding of important aspects of Russian culture, including film, fine arts, music, history, social customs, folk beliefs, and popular culture

RUSS 125/WRIT 125 Great Short Stories from Russia (in English)
Pankenier
Russian literature has given the world some of the best stories ever told, and this course surveys two centuries’ worth of them. Someone once quipped that all of twentieth-century Russian literature came out of Nikolai Gogol’s “Nose.” And so we begin with “The Nose” and other ridiculous stories by Gogol. We will go on to read some of the finest short stories of Chekhov, and the Nobel Prize-winner, Ivan Bunin. The grotesque realism of Isaac Babel’s stories and the magical realism of Vladimir Nabokov’s also lie within the scope of this course. We will conclude with the late- and post-Soviet stories of Tatiana Tolstaya and Liudmila Petrushevskaya.

knowledge of Russian language or literature is required. This course satisfies the requirements for Writing 125 and counts as a unit toward the major in Russian Language and Literature. Three periods.
Prerequisite: None. Open only to first-year students.

RUSS 251 The Nineteenth-Century Russian Classics: Passion, Pain, Perfection (in English)
Pankenier
Survey of Russian fiction from the Age of Pushkin (1820s–1830s) to Tolstoy’s mature work (1870s) focusing on the role of fiction in Russian history, contemporaneous critical reaction, literary movements in Russia, and echoes of Russian literary masterpieces in the other arts, especially film and music. Major works by Pushkin (Eugene Onegin, “The Queen of Spades”), Lermontov (A Hero of Our Time), Gogol (Dead Souls, “The Overcoat”), Pavlova (A Double Life), Turgenev (Fathers and Sons), Tolstoy (Anna Karenina), and Dostoevsky (Crime and Punishment) will be read. Taught in English. Two periods.

RUSS 255 Soviet and Russian Film (in English)
TRA
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. The masterpieces of Russian film from the 1920s to the present day will be screened, analyzed, and discussed. Students will explore the famous themes and techniques developed by legendary Russian/Soviet filmmakers, including Eisenstein, Vertov, Tarkovsky and Mikhailov. We will treat these films as works of art, examining the ways in which directors, like authors of novels and other literary genres, create a fictional world. Guest lecturers will comment on specific issues. Taught in English. Two periods.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.

RUSS 260 Witches and Devils: From Slavic Folklore and Fairy Tales to Modern Literature (in English)
Pankenier
Witches, devils, and vampires continue to populate the modern imagination, but where did such beliefs originate? Slavic folklore and fairy tales uniquely preserve the richness of older traditions and thus offer a window into a past that still exerts an influence today. First we will study Slavic folklore to uncover the power of folklore and understand the layering of belief systems. We will then read Afanasiev’s Russian Fairy Tales from various critical perspectives and discuss Propp’s groundbreaking analysis of their basic structure in Morphology of the Folk tale. Throughout the course, we will examine literary works, art, film, and music that return to Folk themes, culminating with a closer analysis of the use of folk elements in Bulgakov’s The Master and Margarita, a Faustian novel of witches and devils.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

RUSS 272 Politically Correct: Ideology and the Nineteenth-Century Russian Novel (in English)
Hodge
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2011-12. Is there a “politically correct” set of responses for artists active under a repressive regime? We examine various Russian answers to this question through an intensive analysis of the great ideological novels at the center of Russia’s historic social debates from the 1840s to the 1860s. The tension between literary realism and political exigency will be explored in the fictional and critical works of Herzen, Turgenev, Chernyshevsky, Goncharov, Dobroliubov, Dostoevsky, and Pisarev. Representative works from the nonliterary arts will supplement reading and class discussion. Taught in English. Two periods.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2011-12.
Unit: 1.0
RUSS 276 Fedor Dostoevsky: The Seer of Spirit
(Weiner)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Probably no writer has been so detested and adored, so demonized and defined, as Dostoevsky. This artist was such a visionary that he had to reinvent the novel in order to create a form suitable for his insights into the inner life and his prophecies about the outer. To this day readers are mystified, outraged, enchanted, but never unmoved, by Dostoevsky’s fiction, which some have tried to brand as “novel-tragedies,” “romantic realism,” “polyphonic novels,” and more. This course challenges students to enter the fray and explore the mysteries of Dostoevsky himself through study of his major works.
Taught in English. Two periods.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

RUSS 277 Lev Tolstoy: Russia’s Ecclesiast
(Weiner)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. An odyssey through the fiction of the great Russian novelist and thinker, beginning with his early works (Sevostopol Stories) and focusing on War and Peace and Anna Karenina, though the major achievements of Tolstoy’s later period will also be included (A Confession, The Death of Ivan Ilich). Lectures and discussion will examine the masterful techniques Tolstoy employs in his epic explorations of human existence, from mundane detail to life-shattering cataclysm. Students are encouraged to have read the Maude translation of War and Peace (Norton Critical Edition) before the semester begins.
Taught in English. Two periods.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

RUSS 286 Vladimir Nabokov (in English)
(Weiner)
An examination of the artistic legacy of the great novelist, critic, lepidopterist, and founder of the Wellesley College Russian Department. Nabokov’s works have joined the canon of twentieth-century classics in both Russian and English literature. Students will explore Nabokov’s English-language novels (Lolita, Pnin, Pale Fire) and the authorized English translations of his Russian works (The Defense, Despair, Invitation to a Beheading). Taught in English. Two periods.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.
Unit: 1.0

RUSS 301 Advanced Russian I
Epstein
Topic for 2009-10: Moscow. Students will become experts in one of the great overarching themes of Russian culture: Moscow. We will read and discuss texts, view films, listen to music, and compose essays on the theme of Russia’s historic capital. The course includes study of grammar, vocabulary expansion with strong emphasis on oral proficiency and comprehension. At the end of the semester, each student will write a final paper and present to the class her own special research interest within the general investigation of Moscow’s history, traditions, culture, and art.
Taught in Russian. Three periods.
Prerequisite: 201-202 or the equivalent
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

RUSS 302 Advanced Russian II
Epstein
Topic for 2009-10: Children and Laughter in Russia. Students will enter the world of Russian children’s folklore, literature, songs, film, and animation. From lullabies to folktales, from Pushkin’s skazki, animal fables by Krylov, didactic stories by Tolstoy we will move on to examine the contribution of Soviet authors from the early 1920s to the present (V. Mayakovsky, K. Chukovsky, S. Marshak, D. Kharm, M. Zoschenko, A. Gaidar, N. Nosov, E. Uspensky, G. Oster) and their effect on the aesthetic development and ethical upbringing of children in Russia. The course emphasizes oral proficiency, extensive reading and weekly writing assignments. Students will create and present a final project on their own special research interest.
Taught in Russian. Two periods.
Prerequisite: 301 or the equivalent
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring

RUSS 333 Nineteenth-Century Russian Narrative Poetry: Tales of Mystery and Adventure (in Russian)
(Weiner)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. Students will immerse themselves in the famous poetry of Derzhavin, Zhukovskiy, Pushkin, Baratynsky, Kozlov, Lermontov, and Nekrasov, analyzing ballads and verse tales devoted to the natural and the supernatural. Exotic “Oriental” cultures as well as high and low Russian culture serve as the backdrop for these dramatic verse narratives. Russian painting, music, and history will enrich our discussions of Russian Romanticism in the poetry.

CPLT 284 Magical Realism

Department Information
Students majoring in Russian Language and Literature must take at least eight units in the department above RUSS 102, including:
1. language courses through 302;
2. RUSS 251;
3. two 200-level courses above 251; and
4. one unit of 300-level coursework above 302 other than 350, 360, and 370.
RUSS 101 and 102 are counted toward the degree but not toward the Russian major.
Thus, a student who begins with no knowledge of Russian would typically complete the following courses to major in Russian: 101 and 102,
Requirements for the Minor
A student minoring in Russian must take at least five units in the department above RUSS 102, at least one of which must be at the 300 level.

Honors
Students may graduate with honors in Russian either by writing a thesis or by taking comprehensive examinations. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. Students electing to take comprehensive examinations have a series of noncredit-bearing weekly tutorials on four special topics in Russian literature or culture (or both) over the entire course of their senior year; these topics must be chosen under the guidance of the chair and will normally be related to the coursework the student has completed; at the end of the student's final semester at Wellesley, she takes six written examinations over the course of one week: four on her special topics, and two language examinations. Students who wish to attempt either honors exercise should consult the chair early in the second semester of their junior year. See Academic distinctions.

Study Abroad
 Majors are encouraged to enroll in summer language programs to accelerate their progress in the language. Credit toward the major is normally given for approved summer or academic-year study at selected institutions in the U.S. and Russia. Major credit is also given for approved junior-year abroad programs.

Russian Area Studies
Students interested in an interdepartmental major in Russian Area Studies are referred to the following and should visit the Russian Area Studies Web pages at www.wellesley.edu/ Russian/RAStashome.html. Attention is called to Russian area studies courses in history, economics, political science, anthropology, and sociology.

Russian Area Studies
AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Director: Tumarkin (History)
Advisory Committee: Hodge (Russian), Kohl (Anthropology), Tumarkin (History), Weiner (Russian)

Sir Winston Churchill called Russia "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." The Russian Area Studies program explores Russia and the former Soviet Union, a vast region stretching from Poland to the Pacific Ocean, a land of extremes: anarchy and totalitarianism; super-growth and stagnation; stability and dramatic volatility. The world's largest producer of oil and gas, Russia has also given the world one of its most glorious literary and musical canons. The Russian Area Studies program is based on the premise that the region is best explored through an interdisciplinary study of its culture, history, politics, and language. The program prepares students for a range of careers, including work in government, business, academia, and the arts.

Goals for the Major
• an informed understanding of Russia's and Eurasia's place in today's world, the goals and values espoused by its leadership, and the challenges the region faces
• a learned appreciation of the vast diversity of the broad Eurasian space, which for millennia has been inhabited by a multitude of peoples
• an understanding of how those peoples and cultures have interacted over time
• a familiarity with the basic structures and dynamics of Russian and Eurasian historical development, including the nature of autocracy, dictatorship, and empire
• a proficiency in the Russian language sufficient for advanced study of its rich literary canon
• a familiarity with enough classic Russian literature and other cultural works for an understanding of the major themes in Russian culture of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries
• experience in critical reading, writing essays and oral communication
• a critical knowledge of methods used by scholars of literature, history and the social sciences

RAST 212/ES 212 Lake Baikal: The Soul of Siberia
Moore (Biological Sciences) and Bishop (Russian)
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. The ecological and cultural values of Lake Baikal—the oldest, deepest, and most biotically rich lake on the planet—are examined. Lectures and discussion in spring prepare students for the three-week field laboratory taught at Lake Baikal in eastern Siberia in August. Lectures address the fundamentals of aquatic ecology and the role of Lake Baikal in Russian literature, history, art, music, and the country's environmental movement. Laboratory work is conducted primarily out-of-doors and includes introductions to the flora and fauna, field tests of student-generated hypotheses, meetings with the lake's stakeholders, and tours of ecological and cultural sites surrounding the lake. Students may register for either RAST 212 or ES 212 and credit will be granted accordingly. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's office approval.
Prerequisite: ES 101 or BISC 111, RUSS 101, and permission of the instructor. Preference will be given to students who have also taken HIST 211. Application required.
Distribution: Natural and Physical Science Seminar: N/O. Offered in 2010-11. Unit: 1.25

RAST 350 Research or Individual Study
Prerequisite: Open by permission to juniors and seniors.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

RAST 360 Senior Thesis Research
Prerequisite: By permission of director. See Academic Distinctions.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

RAST 370 Senior Thesis
Prerequisite: 300 and permission of department.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring Unit: 1.0

Professor: Cushman (Chair), Hertz, Imber, Levitt
Visiting Professor: Turner
Assistant Professor: Radhakrishnan, Rutherford
Lecturer: Swing

Sociology is the systematic and scientific study of social life, including informal and formal organizations and the multiple ways that people collectively give meaning to their behavior and lives. The scope of sociology ranges from the analysis of passing encounters between individuals in the street to the investigation of broad-scale global social change. Sociology brings a unique perspective to the study of institutional and collective forms of social life, including the family, human rights, mass media and popular culture, social movements, migration, the professions, and global systems and processes. Research is conducted across many cultures and historical periods in order to illuminate how social forces such as class, gender, race, and ethnicity, age, group membership, and culture shape human experience. Sociologists use multiple methods including surveys, interviews, participant observation, and material and textual analyses.

Goals for the Major
• To develop in students an appreciation for the sociological imagination, which is the ability to see the interrelationships between personal biography, history, and social structure.
• To teach students basic sociological concepts and research methods that will allow them to analyze and understand aspects of social life independently, with intellectual originality and rigor.
• To develop the capacity for analytical and reasoning skills through hands-on experience with both qualitative and quantitative data.
• To help students think critically about "taken-for-granted" information and knowledge about social life and provide assessments based on sociological analysis.
• To introduce students to the major ideas of classical and contemporary sociological theory and to apply these theories to the interpretation of social life on a global scale.
• To teach students to be careful analysts, eloquent writers, and articulate speakers.
• To provide students with the analytical, interpretive, and research skills that will serve as a foundation for graduate school, professional school, or any career.
• To foster a climate of open intellectual exchange by organizing public lectures and seminars and strongly encouraging collaborative student-faculty research.

SOC 102 The Sociological Perspective: An Introduction to Sociology

Rutherford

Thinking sociologically enables us to understand the intersection of our individual lives with larger social issues and to grasp how the social world works. Students in this course will become familiar with the background of sociology and the core analytical concepts employed by sociologists. Students will also gain familiarity with the major substantive topics explored by sociology, with focused attention given to the study of cultural formation, social identities, social control, social inequality, and globalization.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall

SOC 103 Social Problems of Youth: An Introduction to Sociology

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Perspectives on the creation of and response to the problems of young people. The problem of generations and relations between young and old. Perceptions of personal freedom and social responsibility with respect to public issues that directly affect youth including alcohol, tobacco, drugs, gambling, guns, and sexuality.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/X

SOC 105 Doing Sociology—Applying Sociological Concepts to the Real World

Levitt

The goal of this course is to learn to analyze real life situations using sociological tools. The course is organized around a series of exercises that will teach students different analytical techniques and explore sociological theories and concepts. Projects may include reading novels, analyzing films, working with census data, interviewing, conducting surveys, participant observation, debating, and a small independent research project. Each project will focus on a subfield in the discipline and will serve as a platform from which students can explore basic theories, analytical categories, and methods. Students will work individually, in pairs, and in small groups.
Prerequisite: Open to first-year students only
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring

SOC 108 Thinking Global: An Introduction to Sociology

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. How are your personal problems related to larger issues in society and the world? In what ways do global economic and political shifts affect your personal trajectory as a college student in the United States? In this course, you will come to understand sociology as a unique set of tools with which to interpret your relationship to a broader sociopolitical landscape. By integrating classic readings in the discipline of sociology with the principles of global political economy, we will analyze and contextualize a range of social, economic, and political phenomena at the scales of the global, the national, the local, and the individual.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O

SOC 138 Deviance and Conformity: An Introduction to Sociology

Cuba

Why are some behaviors, differences, and people considered deviant or stigmatized while others are not? This introductory sociology course examines several theories of social deviance that offer different answers to this question. We will focus on the creation of deviant categories and persons as interactive processes involving how behaviors are labeled as deviant, how people enter deviant roles, how others respond to deviance, and how those labeled as deviant cope with these responses.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 190/ECON 103 Introduction to Probability and Statistical Methods

Levine (Economics), McEwan (Economics), Swingle, McKnight (Economics)

An introduction to the collection, analysis, interpretation, and presentation of quantitative data as used to understand problems in economics and sociology. Using examples drawn from these fields, this course focuses on basic concepts in probability and statistics, such as measures of central tendency and dispersion, hypothesis testing, and parameter estimation. Data analysis exercises are drawn from both academic and everyday applications. Students must register for a laboratory section which meets an additional 70 minutes each week. Students may register for either SOC 190 or ECON 103 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: One course in sociology or ECON 101 or 102 and fulfillment of the basic skills component of the quantitative reasoning requirement. Not open to students who have taken or are taking MATH 220, PSYC 205 or POL 199.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis. Fulfills the Quantitative Reasoning overlay course requirement. Does not satisfy the laboratory requirement.
Semester: Fall, Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

SOC 200 Classical Sociological Theory

Rutherford

A survey of the origins of sociology through the works of the classical founders of the discipline. Focused attention is given to the writings of Marx, Weber, and Durkheim, with emphasis on learning to read and interpret primary texts. Students will understand foundational sociological concepts as used by classical theorists and will also apply these concepts to understand contemporary social life. Students will also explore the development of the canon of classical sociological theory with special emphasis on the place of women and African Americans in the history of that canon.

Prerequisite: One 100-level unit. Required of all majors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 201 Contemporary Sociological Theory

Cashman

An overview of important twentieth-century social and cultural theories, and critical sociologist’s focus on functionalist analysis, social conflict theory, dramaturgical theory, theories of modernity, and cognitive sociology. Class lectures and written work will focus on the application of sociological theories to the interpretation of a wide range of empirical phenomena.

Prerequisite: 200. Required of all majors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 202 Introduction to Human Rights

Cashman

Human rights is one of the most powerful approaches to social justice in the contemporary world, yet it is a rapidly developing and changing system. This course offers a critical analysis of human rights as a social, cultural, and legal system. It explores the historical and philosophical origins of the contemporary human rights system and its growth and development as a global social movement over the last few decades. This includes the diversification of rights to include social, economic and cultural rights and the collective rights of indigenous peoples. The course examines the ongoing controversy between human rights' claims to universalism and in contrast to assertions of cultural difference. Special topics include the role of non-governmental human rights organizations, humanitarianism as an ideology, debates on military humanitarian interventions, the emergence of violence against women as a human rights issue, and the forms and types of justice in societies that have experienced large-scale violence.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 204 Social Problems

Silver

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course investigates why certain problems become matters of significant public and policymaking concern while others do not. We do not focus on a pre-defined list of social problems, but rather on the process by which some issues capture more public attention than others. Our discussions analyze the actions of those institutions involved either in calling public attention to or distracting public attention away from particular problems in our society. This course enables students to acquire a perspective on social problems that they are unlikely to gain from other sources, such as journalism or politics.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 205/WGST 211 American Families and Social Equality

Hertz

American families are undergoing dramatic changes in social, political, and economic arenas: the rise of the dual-worker family, the increasing number of single mothers, the demands of family rights by gay and lesbian families, and the growing numbers of couples having children at older ages. The new economy poses real challenges for American parents as the social and economic gaps between families continue. As women dedicate a greater proportion of their time to the workplace, more children are cared for outside the home. How do children view parents' employment? How do families function when they have only limited hours together? What does fatherhood mean in these families? Using a provocative blend of social science, novels, and memoirs, we will examine how gender, race, ethnicity, and social class shape the experience of family life in the contemporary United States. Students may register for either SOC 205 or WGST 211 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken WGST 211. (Waive 211.)
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 209 Social Inequality: Class, Race, and Gender

Rutherford, Silver

This course examines the distribution of social resources to groups and individuals, as well as theoretical explanations of how unequal patterns of distribution are produced, maintained, and challenged. Special consideration will be given to how race, ethnicity, and gender intersect with social class to produce different life experiences for people in various groups in the United States. Consideration will also be given to policy initiatives designed to reduce social inequalities and alleviate poverty.

Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring, Summer
Unit: 1.0

SOC 217 Power: Personal, Social, and Institutional Dimensions

Culpepper

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The study of power extends far beyond formal politics or the use of overt force into the operation of every institution and every life. How we are influenced in subtle ways by the people around us, who make controlling decisions in the family, how people get ahead at work, whether democratic governments, in fact, reflect the "will of the people." This course explores some of the major theoretical issues involving power (including the nature of dominant and subordinate relationships and types of legitimate authority) and examines how power operates in a variety of social settings: relations among men and women, professions, corporations, cooperatives, communities, nations, and the global economy.

Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of the instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 221 Globalization

Levit

McDonald's, Starbucks, and the Gap are now common features on the street corners of Europe, South America, and Asia. Arnold Schwarzenegger enjoys unprecedented popularity in the Far East while Americans are fascinated by karaoke and Indian films. Does this globalization of production and consumption mean that people all over the globe are becoming the same? In this course, we will explore the globalization of social organization. We will examine the different ways in which economic, political, and cultural institutions are organized in the increasingly interdependent world in which we live, compare them to those in the past, and explore their consequences.

Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 231 The Sociology of Art, Media, and Culture—Comparative Perspectives

Levit

In this era of globalization, many aspects of social life span national boundaries. In his book, Imagined Communities, Benedict Anderson stressed the role of the media in creating nations. How does the relationship between art, culture, and society change when communities cross national borders? What role does the media play in creating new kinds of publics? This course examines the globalization of the artistic and cultural worlds and how artistic products change in response. We will look at high and popular cultural forms of painting, music, film, and writing. We will explore the interactions between artists, their audiences, and the curators, editors, and music industry moguls who are the gatekeepers of the culture industry.
SOC 233 Gender and Power in South Asia
Radhakrishnan
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
How do issues of gender continue to figure into the political agendas of contemporary South Asia? In this course, we will address the gendered dimensions of contemporary social, political, and economic debates in South Asia, while coming to grips with changing roles and representations of South Asian women. Topics to be covered will include women's movements, the legal system, contemporary regional politics, the new economy, and popular culture.
Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 234 Gender and International Development
Radhakrishnan
As theoretical approaches to studying gender have shifted in the academic world, practical approaches to international development have changed to reflect them. In this course, we will focus on the relationship between theories of gender and their translation into policies and programs designed to ameliorate the lives of the world's poorest over the past several decades. In so doing, we will discuss the major trends in feminist theorizing, particularly in the postcolonial world, as well as the shifting paradigms of local and global organizations in designing and implementing "local" development projects. Topics to be addressed include microfinance, water distribution, land reform and economic liberalization in Asia, Africa, and Latin America.
Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 245 Asian Societies
Turner
This course examines modern Asian societies in comparative-historical perspective. The main emphasis will be on: cultures, including religion; changes in gender and sexual relationships; changing political structures with special reference to citizenship and human rights; and finally the impact of globalization on Asia. The course will not cover every country that can be considered as "Asian" and it presupposes no prior knowledge of Asian society and history. Asian societies will be examined through the lenses of some of the most important classical and modern anthropologists and sociologists in the study of Asia: Max Weber, Edward Said, Gunmar Myrdal and Clifford Geertz as well as modern writers such as Robert Bellah, Robert Hefner, Benedict Anderson and Anthony Reid.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 249/AMST 249 Celebrity, Fame and Fortune
Inker
A critical examination of the concept of status in sociological and social-scientific thinking. Focus on the historical rise of fame and its transformation into celebrity in the modern era. The relationship of status and violence. The meaning of sudden changes in good and bad fortune as attributes of status, including contemporary examples such as lottery winners, disgraced politicians, and media-driven attention to the powerful and pathetic. Fame and celebrity among women and minorities. The psychopathologies of leadership and conformity in political, religious, and educational institutions. Students may register for either SOC 249 or AMST 249 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One 100-level unit or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 251 Sociology of Race
Radhakrishnan
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
Racial categorization is an abstraction, yet its effects on our individual and collective lives are acutely real. How can we understand the mechanisms of racial domination in our society? In this class, we will focus on the development of a sociological conception of race by examining race comparatively in societies around the world. We will question and examine our own notions of race made in the United States, even as we explore institutions of racial domination in other parts of the world. Case studies will include the penal system in the United States, apartheid and post-apartheid states in South Africa, Brazil's "racial democracy," Chicago's Black Metropolis, and caste systems in India and Japan, among other examples.
Prerequisite: Any 100-level social science course or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 253 The Sociology of the Body
Turner
The sociology of the body is a relatively recent development in modern sociology. The course will explore the many ways in which the question of the body trudges into our daily lives: Modern consumerism employs the body as a dominant mode for articulating the desire for goods, and in the process, the body itself becomes a commodity. The exploitation of women's bodies raises the question of whether the gendered body is "socially constructed." In addition, developments in modern medicine, specifically microbiological revolutions, have raised the issue of the "posthuman body" and the development of cloning. Stem-cell research and regenerative medicine have suggested to some that human longevity has no natural limits, and hence, we could "live forever." The course will examine a range of substantive topics: gender and sexual identity; illness and disease; dance and performance; body and consumerism; body and sport; medical interventions and the old age; the body and religion; body, cognition and emotions; human vulnerability and human rights.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 277 Masculinities
Cushman, Inker
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
An examination of the complexities and transformations of male identity and manhood, beginning with basic biological accounts and exploring the historical, philosophical, political, economic, psychological, cultural, and ideological nature of the idea of maleness and masculinity. Topics include: the social construction of masculinity; men and war; feminist perspectives on patriarchy, male-domi- nance, and pornography; the feminized male and metaromosexual; social movements that challenge traditional masculine identities; heterosexism and male bonding and friendship; male stereotyping and manliness.
Prerequisite: Open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 301 Methods of Social Research
Swingle
Focus on quantitative methods of data collection and analysis. Beginning with modes of data presentation, students will practice with existing data sets to describe and explain social variation in different populations. Building on this extension of basic statistics (SOC 190/ECON 103 or [QR 199]), this course will be devoted primarily to an examination of the logic of survey analysis from the development of hypotheses and construction of a survey instrument to the analysis and reporting of results. Discussion sessions and exercises will address issues of sampling, validity, and reliability; models of causation and elaboration; data coding, cleaning, and analysis. The course will also review multiple methods of research, content analysis, triangulation, and case studies.
Prerequisite: 190/ECON 103, [QR 199] or permission of instructor. Required of all sociology majors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 302 Seminar, Advanced Topics in Human Rights
Cushman
This course focuses on central human rights problems and issues in contemporary global society from a social science perspective. The seminar is topical and the following issues will be examined: humanitarianism, genocide and genocide prevention, global slavery, sex and organ trafficking, stateless peoples, and the persistence of torture in the modern world. The seminar will rely on case studies of each of the topics and aims to provide students with a concrete sociological understanding of these global social problems.
Prerequisite: 202 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 303 Comparative Perspectives on Religion and Politics
Levitt
This course examines the relationship between religion and politics in the United States and around the world. How does religious shape political participation in different contexts? How do different countries manage religious pluralism and the relationship between church and state? How do global religious movements influence religious life in local contexts? The course will be organized around comparative case studies from around the world chosen to highlight the effect of history, demography, and economic development on religious and political life. At the end of the semester, we will compare what we have learned to the U.S. context.
SOC 304: Seminar in Advanced Sociological Theory
Tanner
This seminar continues the themes and issues raised in classical and contemporary sociological theory. Topics will vary each semester around a basic core of themes, including sociological theories of modernity and postmodernity, cultural sociology, social inequality, and the sociology of the future. Special attention is given to theories which help to explain social and cultural phenomena in the twenty-first century such as terrorism, the rise of new forms of power and autonomy, globalization and new forms of social inequality, and social environments of risk and danger.
Prerequisite: Open to junior and senior sociology majors only. Only SOC 300 and SOC 201 are required.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 306/WGST 306 Seminar. Women and Work
Hertz
The biggest force for change in the U.S. economy has been the growing diversity of the American labor force. The first half of the course emphasizes the impact of gender and racial diversity on the nature of work in America. We will discuss four key aspects: the dynamics of gender and race in the workplace; the tensions between work/family and gender equity; the struggle to integrate women into male-dominated occupations and professions; and the challenges for women in leadership roles. The second half of the course will focus on women as critical to the "new" global workforce in selected regions. We will discuss: women's migration and domestic work; the paradox of caring for others while leaving one's children behind; women in global factories; and women's activism in their home communities. Students may register for either SOC 306 or WGST 306 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One course in ANT, SOC, ECON, or WGST (WGST 200 level) or permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have taken WGST 306.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 309 Seminar. Topics in Inequality
Topic A for 2009-10: Critical Intersections: Race, Class, Gender, and Nation
Radhakrishnan
In an increasingly borderless world, does the nation still inspire a sense of community and belonging? How are nations built and sustained? In this course, we tackle these questions through the vocabularies of feminism, critical race theory, and postcolonial critique. By focusing on the mutual constitution of race, class, and gender, we will think about the nation as a tenuous patchwork of meanings that work together in different ways across various historical and spatial contexts, such as the US, India, and South Africa.
Prerequisite: At least one course in the social sciences or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

Topic B: Language, Power, and Society
Rutherford
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Language is critical in the formation of social groups and struggles for power and prestige among groups. This course will survey language diversity in American sociolinguistics and American sociolinguistics as class, ethnicity, race, gender, religion, age and region. Examination of language policy issues that illuminate the ways that dominant usages of language reinforce structured differences in social power and prestige among cultural groups. Political uses of language both legitimize and challenge key aspects of the social order, with particular attention to discursive attempts by both liberals and conservatives to appropriate the American narrative in staking their territory on contested issues.
Prerequisite: At least one course in the social sciences or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 311/WGST 311 Seminar. Family and Gender Studies: The Family, the State, and Social Policy
Hertz
Analysis of problems facing the contemporary U.S. family and potential policy directions for the new millennium. Discussion of the transformation of the American family including changing economic and social roles for women and expanding varieties of family types (such as single mothers by choice and lesbian/gay families). Sexuality, teen pregnancy, contraceptive issues, day care, the elderly, divorce, welfare, the impact of work on the family, equality between spouses, choices women make about children and employment, and the new American dreams will be explored. Comparisons to other contemporary societies will serve as a foil for particular analyses. Students are expected to work in groups to analyze the media's portrayal of family/gender stories and selected legal cases. Students may register for either SOC 311 or WGST 311 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One 200-level course in family or gender in SOC, ANTH, HIST, POL, PSYC or WGST, or by permission of instructor. Not open to students who have taken WGST 311.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SOC 314 Medical Sociology and Social Epidemiology
Imber
Definition, incidence, and treatment of health disorders. Topics include: differential availability of health care; social organization of health delivery systems of patients, professional staff, and others; attitudes toward terminally ill and dying; movements for alternative health care.
Prerequisite: One 200-level unit of permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SOC 321 Globalization: A Research Seminar
Levitt
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course uses the topic of globalization to teach students to carry out research. Following a basic introduction to the topic, each student will design and carry out a research project of her own. She will learn how to define research questions, identify and carry out appropriate methodologies, use various types of data sources, collect and analyze data, and write a final report. Course readings are tailored to students' questions. Interview and field-work based projects are strongly encouraged. Enrollment limited to 15 students.
Prerequisite: 100-level sociology course or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SOC 334 Consumer Culture
Rutherford
How and why does consumerism exercise great influence on global culture today? How are our institutions and relationships shaped and transformed by the forces of commodification and consumerism? Are there any realms of life that ought to be free from the market-driven forces of commodification? Can consumerism offer a positive means of cultural critique to processes we wish to resist? In this seminar, we explore the history of consumer culture in the U.S. and globally, with special attention to understanding the effects of commodification upon the self, human relationships, and social institutions. We will consider both classical and contemporary critiques of commodification and consumerism, as well as arguments for the liberatory dimensions of consumer society.

SOC 344/AMST 317 Greed in America
Cushman
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. OFFERED IN 2010-11. A sociologically grounded examination of acquisitiveness in American society, examining the history of social thought on the "sin of avarice" and the "virtues of thrift and self-control," as a backdrop for understanding the ongoing tension between morality and acquisition of material wealth in the United States from its earliest history to the present. Focus on the moral critique of greed; the representation of greed in popular culture; and the cultural contradictions of American capitalist society in which the profit motive competes with values and norms of restraint and temperance. Students will read classical and contemporary theoretical and social science texts—Adam Smith, Karl Marx, Max Weber, Thoist Veblen, R.H. Tawney—and apply the insights to the interpretation of acquisitiveness in American life. Students may register for either SOC 344 or AMST 317 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: Open to juniors and seniors only. Permission of the instructor required. Enrollment is limited and preference is given to sociology and American studies majors.
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis or Historical Studies
Semester: N/O. Offered in 2010-11.

SOC 365/ENG 365 Images of the American City Cuba and Bregan (English)
This course considers how literary representations and sociological studies of urban life variously respond to the astonishing growth of cities in the twentieth century, helping to shape the new emergent and highly contested cultural meanings of the city. In considering the interplay between mind and urban forms, we'll explore the relationship between the individual and the urban environment. The course will address both the slum and efforts to gentrify them, into the mapping, and the legibility of the cityscape. We'll also discuss a wide range of sociological perspectives on the city and diverge. Authors may include Stephen Crane, Georg Simmel, Robert Park, Ann Petry, James Baldwin, Anselm Strauss, Paul Marshall, Kevin Lynch, Anna Deaver Smith, and Elia Anderson. Students may register for either SOC 365 or ENG 365 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Requirements for the Minor
A minor in sociology (six units) consists of: any 100-level unit, SOC 200, and four additional units, one of which must be a 200-level unit, excluding 350. The plan for this minor option should be carefully prepared; a student wishing to add the sociology minor to the major in another field should consult a faculty advisor in sociology.

Honors
The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

South Asia Studies
AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
AND MINOR
Director: Sabin (English)
Assistant Professor: Shukla-Bhatt
Visiting Lecturer: Bard
Affiliated Faculty: Candland* (Political Science), Kodera (Religion), Marlow (Religion), Pand† (Women's and Gender Studies), Radhakrishnan (Sociology), Rao* (History), Sabin (English)
The major and minor in South Asia Studies are designed to equip students with a set of methods and scholarly approaches for study of South Asia. The region includes Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, the Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. Majors and minors gain knowledge of an important region of the world and develop facility in three significant methods: language; aesthetic, cultural, and literary interpretation; and behavior and social analysis.

Goals for the major and minor are to expose students to exemplary models of interdisciplinary learning and critical inquiry in the arts, humanities, and social sciences; provide a broad understanding of South Asian cultures and societies and their complex interrelationships; delineate the influence and impact of South Asia beyond its borders; enable students to make connections among disciplines in sharp critiques; and offer students the opportunity to become critical thinkers, cogent writers, and skillful researchers on a range of questions in South Asian life, through coursework, independent study, and honors work.

HNUR 101-102 Elementary Hindi/Urdu
Sabin-Bhatt
An introduction to the most widely spoken language in the South Asian subcontinent, which is also used extensively for international and international communications. Learning this language provides a linguistic passport to things South Asian. The language—often referred to as "Hindustani"—is written in two different scripts: the Perso-Arabic based Urdu, and the Sanskrit based Devanagari (Hindi). Students will learn to converse in the language and to read and write in both scripts. Conventional teaching materials will be supplemented by popular songs and clips from contemporary Indian cinema and television, the two internationally popular media that use this language. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.
Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have taken the course as SAS 101-102.
Distribution: None
Semester: Fall, Spring

Unit: 1.0

HNUR 201-202 Intermediate Hindi/Urdu
Bard
Intermediate Hindi/Urdu will build on the reading, writing, and speaking skills acquired in Introductory Hindi/Urdu (HNUR 101-102). The readings, drawn from simple literary texts as well as from social and journalistic writings, will reinforce the grammar learned in the introductory course and introduce new grammar.
topics. The writing exercises—mainly in essay formats—will stress usage of idioms and sentence constructions by students. The class will be conducted in Hindi/Urdu with a part of every class dedicated to conversation on the theme of the day in the language. Each semester earns one unit of credit; however, both semesters must be completed satisfactorily to receive credit for either course.

Prerequisite: 101-102 or equivalent. Not open to students who have taken the course as SAS 201-202.

Distribution: One unit of Language and Literature for 202

Unit: 1.0

SAS 211/REL 281 Sacred Arts of South Asia Shukla-Bhatt
Cultural life in South Asia is vibrant with aesthetic expressions of religion in its diverse traditions—Hindu, Muslim, Buddhist, Jain, Sikh, and Christian. This course introduces students to one of the most powerful avenues for transmission of religious knowledge in the traditions of South Asia—the aesthetic experience derived through a variety of forms. In addition to visual messages sent through architectural motifs and paintings, teaching of religious doctrines through narratives in drama, dance, and music is common across religious boundaries. The course will introduce theories of aesthetic experience and religious knowledge from the subcontinent and relate them to contemporary theories of performance. Students may register for either SAS 211 or REL 281, and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None

Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy

Semester: Spring

Unit: 1.0

SAS 251/REL 251 Religions in South Asia Shukla-Bhatt
An examination of the religions of South Asia as expressed in sacred texts and arts, religious practices, and institutions in a historical manner. Concentration on the origins and development of Hindu traditions, Buddhism, Jainism, and Sikhism, as well as integration of Islam and Christianity in the religious landscape of South Asia. Interactions among the diverse communities of the region will also form a major theme. Students may register for either SAS 251 or REL 251, and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None

Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy or Historical Studies

Semester: Fall

Unit: 1.0

SAS 302 Traditional Narratives of South Asia Shukla-Bhatt
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will explore traditional narratives from South Asia that have had significant cultural impact in the region. We will examine classical epic texts, hagiographical literature of diverse religious traditions, and regional folktales in translations not only as channels for transmission of cultural values, but also as sites of debate and sometimes even conflict through their contested interpretations. Examples of contested texts, such as the epic Ramayana, told in elite Hindu, Dalit, Jain and Buddhist traditions, will be explored. Along with texts, performative traditions of these texts and their use in identity politics will be discussed.

Prerequisite: Two units at the 200 level in South Asia Studies, or by permission of the instructor.

Distribution: Language and Literature or Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy

Semester: N/O

Unit: 1.0

SAS 303 South Asian Models of Religious Pluralism Shukla-Bhatt
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This seminar will explore in a historical manner the development of pluralistic discourses, ideologies, and interactions in South Asia. While remaining focused on South Asia, we will consider more generally the implications of this history for other religiously diverse societies. Readings will range from ancient texts, such as the Upanishads, Dharmapada, medieval writings of Sufi, Sikh and bhakti traditions, to historical documents about policies of Mogul emperor Akbar, and modern writings on pluralism, including Gandhi's. We will also study the relationship of religious diversity to violence, and modern projects, by Diana Eck and others, to promote sustainable models of religious pluralism. Final projects will give students the opportunity to develop their own model for religious pluralism in a specific part of the world.

Prerequisite: Open by permission of the instructor.

SPAN 247 The Multiple Meanings of Family in Spain and Latin America

Gaschó-Vera

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. The institution of the family is among the most enduring and cohesive of social associations in the Spanish-speaking world, and at the same time it is among the most vulnerable. This course will explore and challenge the traditional notion of family as "sacred" by examining varying cross-cultural ideas and perspectives about family loyalties, continuities, crises, and modifications on both literal and symbolic levels. We will also consider the creation of family-like bonds in the context of race, class, gender, religion, and nation. Readings will include novels as well as short stories and memoir. Authors: Gabriel García Márquez, Clarice Leslieper, Juan Rulfo, Jorge Luis Borges, Silvina Bullrich, Camilo José Cela, Víctor Perera, and María Aparcar Escandón. Films: El Cachorro, Como agua para chocolate, and Ali Familia. Artists: Goya, Charlot, Botero, Orozco, and Kahlo.

SPAN 248 Spain and the United States: Five Hundred Years of Close Encounters
Ramos
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An exploration of the historical, intellectual, creative and artistic connections between Spain and the U.S. from Columbus’ diaries to the present. The United States and Spain, so far apart geographically, have intersected at decisive moments in history for more than 500 years. Despite the relatively high level of familiarity each society has with the other, mutual misunderstandings have been frequent. This course explores the roots of this by looking closely at a few specific episodes in history and culture that have shaped reciprocal perceptions. The class offers readings and materials drawn from history, architecture, and literature and concludes with an analysis of the role of Wellesley College in the long-running intercultural dialogue.

SPAN 304 Seminar, All about Almodovar: Spanish Cinema in the Transicion
Gascon-Vera

 NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. An examination of the culture of Spain of the last two decades seen through the eyes of filmmaker, Pedro Almodovar. We will study those films and literary texts that depict the development of Spain as a country in transition from a repressive dictatorship to democracy and postmodernism. Themes of freedom, homosexuality and cross-dressing, family, violence, and the transfiguration of death and love in our contemporary society will be analyzed. Films will range from Almodovar's first, Pepi, Lucy and Bo'n to his most recent productions, with special attention given to Mujeres al borde de un ataque de nervios and Tacones lejanos.
Prerequisite: Open to senior and junior majors

Unit: 1.0

SPAN 307 Seminar, The Clothed and the Naked in Colonial Latin America
Gazdzislyte

In this seminar, we will study the colonial period of Latin America, focusing on the cultural notions of "clothing" and "nakedness." The course will be divided into three parts dedicated to: Native American texts and art (mythologies, codices, maps); European texts (Bible, Aristotle, Montaigne); and accounts of the conquest told from various points of view (Columbus, Ixtlilxochitl, Cabeza de Vaca, Catalina de Erauso). We will analyze how clothing and nakedness were used to symbolize changing power relationships between various protagonists: indigenous/white, female/male, and colonizer/colonized. Topics will include: notions of dress in distinct cosmological systems, clothing and gender in early colonial chronicles, clothing and its absence in the construction of the individual, and collective notions of the self and the Other.

Prerequisite: Open to senior and junior majors
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SPAN 315 Seminar. Luis Buñuel and the Search for Freedom and Morality
García-Vera
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Students will read the scripts and view the films most representative of alternative possibilities of freedom expressed by Luis Buñuel. The course will focus on the moral issues posed in his films and will start with a review of the historical motivations of the Buñuel perspective: Marxism, Freudianism, and Surrealism, as depicted in selected films of Buñuel, from his first, An Andalusian Dog (1928) to his last That Obscure Object of Desire (1977).
Prerequisite: Open to senior majors or by permission of the instructor.

Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

SPAN 318 Seminar. Love and Desire in Spain's Early Literature
Vega
Medieval Spain, at the nexus of the Christian, Jewish, and Islamic cultures, witnessed a flowering of literature dealing with the nature and depiction of love. This course will examine works from all three traditions, stressing the uses of symbolic language in the linguistic representation of physical desire. Texts will include Ibn Hazm, The Dove's Nest; the poetry of Yehuda Ha-Levi and Ben Sahl of Seville; the Mozarabic khuras, the Galician cantigas d'amor; Juan Ruiz, The Book of Good Love; Diego de San Pedro, Cárden de Amor; and Fernando de Rojas, La Celestina.
Prerequisite: Open to senior and junior majors
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SPAN 320 Seminar. Topics in Cross-Cultural Hispanic Studies
Vega
An analysis of the study abroad experience in a Spanish-speaking country, framed within the student's academic trajectory. Based upon personal observations, shared readings, and selected films, students will weigh the validity of concepts that promote a unified identity for Spanish-speaking peoples ("Hispanicity," "Hispanidad," "Latino," and "La Raza"), and will examine the cultural, historical, and intellectual evolution of these notions. Participants will carry out individual research projects focusing on a cultural issue or creative current experienced firsthand abroad.
Prerequisite: Study abroad experience in a Spanish-speaking country, open to seniors only.
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

SPAN 323 Seminar. Modern Mexico
Hull
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. A study of post-Revolutionary Mexico focusing on works by writers, artists, filmmakers and activists occupying with what it means to be modern. We will explore the political and historical context of one-party rule, technological innovations in the thirties and forties, the student movement of 1968, the emergence of women into the public sphere, the 1985 earthquake, and the Zapataist rebellion of 1994. We will analyze the writings of leading intellectuals (Paz, Fuentes, Poniatowska, and Monsiváis), poetry in Spanish and indigenous languages, essays, works of fiction, crónicas, murals, photographs, communiqués and manifestos. Attention to enduring cultural icons such as the Virgin of Guadalupe and Cantinflas, as well as to the realities faced by workers on the Periférico highway in Mexico City and in the maquilas along the U.S.-Mexico border.

SPAN 327 Seminar. Latin American Women Writers: Identity, Marginality, and the Literary Canon
Agosín
An examination of twentieth-century women writers from Latin America. Perspectives for analyses will include questions of identity (national, ethnic/racial, religious, sexual, gender), the extent to which Afro-Hispanic, Indigenous and non-Christian writers constitute distinct, marginalized groups in Latin American literature, and a comparison of issues regarding identity in selected canonical and noncanonical works by Gabriela Mistrál, Remedios Varo, Elena Poniatowska, Nancy Morejón, Rosario Aguilar, Giocanda Belli and Victoria Ocampo.
Prerequisite: Open to senior and junior majors
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

SPAN 328 Seminar. Chile: Literature and the Arts
Agosín
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. From 1971 to 2003, Chile, one of South America's longest democracies, has experienced traumatic cultural, political, and social change. From the election of Salvador Allende (1971-1973) through the Pinochet dictatorship, during these turbulent times an unprecedented cultural life was manifested in literature, theatre, and the visual arts. In this seminar, we will explore the cultural changes experienced in Chile during three decades, the ways in which writers understood the complex web of creativity, as well as the specter of censorship. We will analyze how historical figures were revived through writers such as Gabriela Mistral, Rosamund del Valle, Pablo Neruda, and Salvador Allende. Narratives, journalistic essays, theatrical and visual productions will be examined vis-a-vis the social and political history in which the topics were created.

Department Information
Courses are normally conducted in Spanish; oral expression is stressed.

The department reserves the right to place new students in the courses for which they seem best prepared regardless of the number of units they have offered for admission.

SPAN 101-102 and 201-202 are counted toward the degree but not toward the major.

Requirements for the Major
A minimum of eight units exclusive of 101-102 and 201-202 must be presented for the Spanish major. Also required are at least two 300-level units, including a seminar during the senior year. Both of the 300-level courses counted toward the major must be taken at Wellesley. SPAN 350, 360, and 370 do not count toward the minimum requirement of two 300-level courses for the major.

The major in Spanish incorporates considerable flexibility in designing a program of study, but must include the following elements: foundational work, breadth, depth and historical perspective. To ensure oral and linguistic competence, as well as a basic understanding of how to approach and interpret texts, the major normally includes one of the following two units: SPAN 241 (Oral and Written Communication) or SPAN 242 (Literary Genres of Spain and Latin America). Qualified students may begin the major at a level higher than 241 or 242. To attain breadth, majors must take at least one literature and/or culture course in each of the following areas: (1) Spain (244, 248, 252, 254, 256, [258], 260, 262, 272, 300, 302, 304, 318, 320, 324) and (2) the Americas (245, 247, 253, 255, 257, 259, 265, 267, 269, 271, 273, 275, 279, 301, 303, 307, 320, 327, 329). In order to achieve depth, Spanish majors must take two units in a special field of study of their choice, such as a particular genre, cultural movement or theme (252, 253,
AN INTERDEPARTMENTAL MAJOR
Program Director: Hussey

Senior Lecturer: Arciniegas
Lecturer: Lopez, Roach
Visiting Lecturer: Howland
Director of Theatre: Hussey
Production Manager: Loewit
Advisory Committee: Ko (English), Masson (French), Genero (Psychology)

The Theatre Studies major is both an academic field of study and a practical application of that study. The purpose of the major is to provide students with a theoretical knowledge and appreciation of the history and literature of the theatre. In addition, students are instructed and given hands-on experience in production and promotion of theatrical events. The theatre is one of the oldest art forms in existence, and students learn valuable information about the way various disparate societies have evolved throughout the ages. Students are expected to work on productions as performers and technicians. The theatre department actively tries to cultivate well-rounded theatre students who are knowledgeable in all areas of theatre.

Goals for the Major
• The ability to break down and score a scene, conduct a rehearsal and produce a play
• An understanding of the development of dramatic literature from the Greeks to the present, and ability to identify major movements within that chronology
• Knowledge of current theatre technologies
• Problem solving independently, and within an ensemble
• Basic construction skills and attention to detail in execution
• Competence to compete with conservatory-trained graduates for graduate school or casting/hiring opportunities within the industry

THST 203 Plays, Production, and Performance

Hussey
This course studies the principles and practice of the related arts that make up the production of a play in the theatre. Students will analyze the dramatic script in terms of the actor, the director, the scenic, costume, and lighting designers and the technicians. Practical applications of acquired skills integrate the content of the course. Each student participates in the creation of a fully realized "miniproduction" given as a public performance at the end of the term. Emphasis is placed on artistic and intrapersonal collaboration within the companies.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.25

THST 204 Introduction to Acting

Arciniegas
This course is intended for any and all levels of experience. Students are introduced to the fundamentals of contemporary stage performance, as devised by such stage theoreticians as Constantine Stanislavsky, Lee Strasberg and Sanford Meisner. Instruction focuses on the proper methods for breaking scenes down into component units or "beats," staging them for clarity of purpose, and performing them truthfully in the immediate present before a live audience. Students perform in every class with a rotating roster of partners, emphasizing group learning and mutual support in the pursuit of an individual acting aesthetic. Performance material is drawn from the work of contemporary playwrights researched by the students or recommended by the instructor.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

THST 205 Advanced Scene Study (Historic Periods)

Arciniegas
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
This course is intended to give the advanced theatre student experience in the performance styles of other periods. Focusing on Classical, Elizabethan, Restoration, and Victorian dramatic literature, students trace the development of the Western European theatrical tradition in practical terms. Particular emphasis is placed upon developing the performance skills necessary for remaining faithful to the acting style of the period while ensuring relevance and accessibility to a contemporary audience.
Prerequisite: 204
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

THST 206 Directing and Dramaturgy

Hussey
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10.
This course studies the creative skills of the director in conjunction with the analytical skills of the dramaturge. Particular emphasis will be placed on communicating on a "moment-to-moment" basis with an actor. Students will be encouraged to develop their own unique "directional vision." Students will be expected to provide probing intellectual questions to each other while collaborating. Dramatic material will be drawn from a variety of world literatures with emphasis placed on women playwrights. Students will be given opportunities to work each week with professional actors in a guest-artist "lab" format.

THST 207 Stagecraft for Performance

Losovitz

This course studies the craft and theory of the production arts in the theatre. The course will cover the process and will analyze the designers' function in the production: creating working drawings, problem-solving, and use of theatrical equipment and alternative media for the realization of sound, set, and lighting designs. There will be additional time outside of class scheduled for production apprenticeships.

Prerequisite: 203 or permission of instructor.
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

THST 208 Introduction to Stage Management

Losovitz

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course examines the role and duties of a stage manager in the collaborative process and the stage manager's relationship to the director, designers, and actors. Students will learn to write rehearsal reports, call cues, assemble rehearsal schedules, call scripts, etc. Students will also be taught the importance of technical script analysis. Emphasis will also be placed on a number of transferable skills, including leadership, organization, delegation, effective communication, and attention to detail. In addition, students are strongly encouraged to complete a THST 250H by stage managing either a Wellesley College Theatre or an Upstage production during the academic year in order to complement the material learned in class.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 0.5

THST 209 Introduction to the Art of Scenic Design

Howland

Think outside the box! Learn visual communication skills in this basic art of scenic design course. After reading assigned plays, students will learn how to develop their concepts through analysis of the action of the play. Visual research, sketches and basic drafting skills will be developed in addition to the idea of a basic "concept" for each script. In addition to teaching artistic and technical skills, this course will emphasize the importance of collaboration with the director and fellow designers.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

THST 210 Echoes of the Homeland

Hussey, Lopez, Roach

Have you ever wondered what is lost in the process of assimilation into American culture? In this interpretation class, students are introduced to the literature of Hispanic, Celtic, and African American cultures. Through prose, poetry, and drama, stories and characters are brought to vivid life. Students will hone their interpretive skills while exploring issues of identity, immigration, and the female experience. Material will be taken from folklore, mainstream literature, and emerging writers of today. Students will also have the opportunity to write about their "homeland" as part of a final exercise.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

THST 212 Representations of Women on Stage

Lopez

This course looks at specific examples of the representation of women on the dramatic stage during various eras in a variety of cultures, focusing primarily on what a public and popular art says and implies about women: their "nature," their roles, their place in the society reflected. Consideration is given to the male dominance in both playwriting and performance in historic cultures. Texts will be chosen from a broad spectrum of dramatic world literature.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

THST 214 Inside Out: A Study of Character Through Voice and Movement

Raine

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will give students the tools and skills to develop a character either from the outside in, using movement, or from the inside out, using the voice. Utilizing the techniques of Kristin Linklater, students will move towards "freeing their natural voice" and developing range, color, and texture for effective stage use. Concurrently, students will work on "freeing their bodies" and using physicality to flesh out a character. Class work will focus on both individual and group work with particular attention given to layering voice and movement with text to create vivid, fully realized characters. Not offered every year. Subject to Dean's Office approval.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 0.5

THST 220 Classic Plays and Players

Lopez

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course, taught by playwright Melinda Lopez, surveys dramatic texts as realized in performance (including the plays of Shakespeare). Films and video recordings of live performances approximating the original production style will be utilized along with modern interpretations. Class discussion will also incorporate analysis and comparison of women and minority groups who have shaped and created the theatre as actors, directors, designers, and producers. Analytical and critical writing skills are emphasized in the development of written critiques. Students will contrast and compare contemporary events with the events in dramatic texts and will incorporate that knowledge into class projects, such as adaptations, research papers, or original plays. Guest artists from the theatre world occasionally visit to illuminate other perspectives.

Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: N/O
Unit: 1.0

THST 221 Introduction to Playwriting

Raine

This course will teach basic playwriting skills implemented through in-class exercises and at-home writing assignments. This hands-on, practical approach will require writing one short play each week. Emphasis is on experimentation, innovation, risk taking, and process. A spirit of fun, innovation, and creativity will dominate this workshop format. Each class meeting will incorporate reading student work aloud with commentary from the instructor and the class. Students will listen, critique, and develop the vocabulary to discuss plays, structure, story, and content. Each student will begin to connect her dramatic voice and theatrical passion. Students will ultimately write a one-act play as the capstone experience for this class. Mandatory credit/ noncredit.

THST 306 The Director's Art

Hussey

Intended for the serious directing student, this course will focus on seeing, analyzing and critiquing the work of the director. Significant attention will be paid to the collaboration between directors, designers, and actors. The pragmatic aspects of mounting a production will be analyzed using the performances attended by the class as raw material for discussions. Students will attend five productions paid for by theatre studies classes in New York and four in Boston. Particular emphasis will be placed on the students determining how successful the productions are in engaging the audience and fulfilling the intention of the playwright. As a final presentation students will produce and direct their own 10-minute play presented at a festival for the Wellesley community.

Prerequisite: 203 or 206
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Spring
Unit: 1.0

THST 315 Acting Shakespeare

Arciniegas

This course focuses on the study and practice of skills and techniques for the performance of scenes and monologues and the realization of theatrical characters from Shakespeare's texts. Speeches and scenes will be performed for class criticism. The class will be subdivided by instructor according to skill level. Students are expected to rehearse and prepare scenes outside of class time.

Prerequisite: 203, 204, and 205 or permission of instructor after audition.

Requirements for the Major

Students majoring in Theatre Studies must take a minimum of nine units. For students entering Wellesley in the fall of 2009 or later these must include THST 203 and either THST 220 or 212. For students who entered prior to fall of 2009, these must include THST 203 and either THST 220 or 212 or ENG 281. Two of the nine must be at the 300 level. At least five of the nine must come from within the theatre studies department. The remaining four may be drawn from any related department (see list above). Developments in the theatre arts are a result of stage experiments, and because the theatre performance is an expression of theatre scholarship, it is expected that students planning a major in theatre will elect to complement formal study of theatre with practical experience in the extracurricular production program of the College and related on-campus producing organizations. Students may also remain on campus over the summer or Wintersession (depending on housing availability) to gain experience with Wellesley Summer Theatre Company (the professional wing of the academic department) for credit. All students are encouraged to participate in 250 and 350 individual study offerings in order to pursue their particular area of theatrical interest.

Early consultation with the director is essential, because some of the relevant courses are not offered every year and careful planning is necessary. In addition to working with the director of the theatre program, students will be encouraged to consult with other members of the faculty familiar with the interdepartmental theatre major.

Exchange and Study Abroad

Students majoring in theatre studies may elect to take at least one resident semester of concentrated work in the discipline to supplement and enrich their work at Wellesley. They may attend the National Theatre Institute at the Eugene O'Neill Theatre Center, another institution in the Twelve College Exchange Program, or one of the many London programs offering intensive study in their discipline. On occasion a student may elect to take a relevant course in the program at MIT.

Honors

The theatre program offers a variety of opportunities for honors. After consultation with the director, the candidate will devise a proposal that incorporates both the academic and the practical aspects of the thesis. Normally the candidate completes the research and writing segment of the thesis in the first semester. In the second semester, the candidate produces the practical/theatrical component for public performance. Applicants for honors should have a minimum 3.5 GPA in all work in the major field above the 100 level, the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Department of Women's and Gender Studies

Professor: Bailey, Hertz, Reverby

Associate Professor: Creed (Chair)

Adjunct Associate Professor: Marshall

Assistant Professor: Cheng, Galabruen, Mata

Women's and Gender Studies is an interdisciplinary field of study that places gender and its intersections with race, social class, sexuality and ethnicity at the center of rigorous academic inquiry. These structural forces shape the individual and collective lives of all persons across diverse cultures and times as well as provide analytical categories for critically examining the worlds in which we live. The Wellesley Women's and Gender Studies major offers particular attention to the lives and experiences of women and girls via the critical scholarship of the humanities, sciences, and social sciences. Department faculty endeavor to provide intellectually rich student-centered learning environments via limited class sizes, collaborative research opportunities, and summer internship support.

Goals for the Major

• Studying "gender" within a critical and theoretical interdisciplinary and cross-cultural framework

• Building specialized knowledge in one of the following concentrations: global feminism; families and work; health care, science and bioethics; gay/lesbian/transgender/susitability studies; body politics; ethics and rights; gender and cinema; public policy; intersectionalities of race, class, gender, and sexuality; Asian-American women.

• Learning how to craft a feminist critical inquiry framework

• Benefiting from a unique capstone experience in their senior year where they can explore a provocative topic in Women's and Gender Studies with either their peers or a faculty member.

WGST 108 The Social Construction of Gender

Not Offered in 2009-10. This course discusses the ways in which gender is socially constructed through social interactions and within social institutions. The relationship among gender, race, ethnicity, and social class will be stressed. The processes and mechanisms that construct and institutionalize gender will be considered in a variety of contexts: political, economic, religious, educational, and familial.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 108].

Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis

Semester: N/O  Unit: 1.0

WGST 108/WRIT 125 The Social Construction of Gender

Marshall

This course discusses the ways in which gender is socially constructed through social interactions and within social institutions. The relationship among gender, race, ethnicity, and social class will be stressed. The processes and mechanisms that construct and institutionalize gender will be considered in a variety of contexts: political, economic, religious, educational, and familial. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts toward the major in women's and gender studies. Includes a third session each week.

WGST 120 Introduction to Women's and Gender Studies

Cheng, Galarneau, Mata, Revery

Introduction to the interdisciplinary field of women’s and gender studies with an emphasis on an understanding of the “common differences” that both unite and divide women. Beginning with an examination of how womanhood has been represented in myths, ads, and popular culture, the course explores how gender inequalities have been both explained and critiqued. The cultural meaning given to gender as it intersects with race, class, ethnicity, and sexuality will be studied. This course also exposes some of the critiques made by women’s studies scholars of the traditional academic disciplines and the new intellectual terrain currently being mapped.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have previously taken [WGST 120].
Distribution: Language and Literature or Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

WGST 211/SOC 205 American Families and Social Equality

Hertz

American families are undergoing dramatic changes in social, political, and economic arenas: the rise of the dual-worker family, the increasing number of single mothers, the demands of family rights by gay and lesbian families, and the growing numbers of couples having children at older ages. The new economy poses real challenges for American parents as the social and economic gaps between families continues. As women dedicate a greater proportion of their time to the workplace, more children are cared for outside the home. How do children view parents’ employment? How do families function when they have only limited hours together? What does fatherhood mean in these families? Using a provocative blend of social science, novels, and memoirs, we will examine how gender, race, ethnicity, and social class shape the experience of family life in the contemporary United States. Students may register for either WGST 211 or SOC 205 and credit will be granted accordingly.

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have previously taken [WGST 211].
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

WGST 206 Migration, Gender, and Globalization

Cheng

This course will explore the dimensions, debates, and histories which pertain to economic migration. Contemporary economic migration must be placed within the context of globalization and, more specifically, the effects of neoliberal economic policies (including “free trade” agreements) have had globally. Building on the work of feminist theorists who have argued that both neoliberalism and migration are gendered phenomena, we will focus our readings and discussions on using gender as a critical category of analysis for understanding the ways in which globalization has fundamentally altered wealth, production, and movement throughout the world.

Prerequisite: WGST 108 [WOST 108], WGST 120 [WOST 120], or a course on gender in anthropology, history, sociology, psychology, or political science. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 212].

WGST 216 Women and Popular Culture: Latinas as Nannies, Spitfires, and Sex Pots

Mata

This course proposes an analysis of popular cultural productions and the ways in which they represent Chicanas and Latinas. Cultural productions go beyond just entertaining an audience; they help to inform how we see ourselves and the world around us. These productions often support traditional stereotypes about marginalized groups. The course will encourage students to question the ways in which Chicana/Latinas are reduced to stereotypes that reinforce hierarchies of race and gender. By critically reading popular cultural productions as analyzable cultural texts, we will ask: How do cultural productions perpetuate the “otherness” of Chicana/Latinas? What role does sexuality play in the representation of the Chicana/Latina subject? In what ways do cultural productions by Chicanas/Latinas resist/challenge negative images?

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have previously taken [WGST 216].

Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

WGST 212 Feminist Bioethics

Galarrueto

How would bioethics differ if it took seriously the experiences and needs of women and other marginalized social groups? This course engages the works of feminist theorists and practitioners in philosophy, religion, law, medicine, public health, and the social sciences—works that develop more inclusive bioethics theories and practices in the service of the health and well-being of all persons and communities.

Feminist bioethics is both critical and constructive in its attention to moral frameworks, principles, norms, and values related to the conditions for human health including health care’s professions, practices, and institutions. Also addressed are gender, race, and class disparities in health status, clinical care, and biomedical research.

Prerequisites: WGST 108 [WOST 108], WGST 120 [WOST 120], or PHIIL 249 or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 217].
Distribution: Religion, Ethics, and Moral Philosophy

WGST 214 Women, Reproduction, and Health Galarrueto

This multidisciplinary course introduces a broad range of concepts and issues related to contemporary women, health, and health care in the United States. Conventional indicators of women’s health, recent research in economic inequality and poverty, and the women’s health movement help us understand women’s health status beyond simple morbidity and mortality. The course incorporates foi on reproductive health (including midwifery and new technologies), relational violence (with attention to his- torical responses and prevention efforts), and HIV/AIDS (including global inequities in risk, incidence, and treatment).

Prerequisite: None. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 214].

WGST 218 Feminist Film and Philosophy

Marshall

NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course focuses on childhood and the teen years in the United States. How do we become gendered? What are the experiences of children and teens in families, schools, and peer groups that contribute to that process? What is the relationship between pop culture and the gendered lives of children and teens? How does gendering vary by race/ethnicity and social class? We will explore the core issues in the field, including the importance of including the voices of children and teens, the ways in which gender is constructed in social interactions, the intersections of gender, sexuality, and peer status, and the importance of collective and individual agency.

WGST 219 Gender in the Workplace
Marshall
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. Women now make up almost half of the U.S. workforce; 75 percent of employed women work full-time and 62 percent of mothers of infants are employed. This course explores the experiences of women and men in the changing U.S. workplace. The course will address key issues related to gender, race and class in the workplace, with a focus on: the social organization of work—the nature of work, division of labor, social inequality—and its consequences for women and men, and gendered organizations and processes of gender discrimination, including sexual harassment.
Prerequisite: WGST 108 [WOST 108], WGST 120 [WOST 120], or SOC 102. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 219].

WGST 220 American Health Care History in Gender, Race, and Class Perspective
Reverby
Traditional American medical history has emphasized the march of science and the ideas of the "great doctors" in the progressive improvement in American medical care. In this course, we will look beyond just medical care to the social and economic factors that have shaped the development of the priorities, institutions, and personnel in the health-care system in the United States. We will ask how gender, race, and class have affected the kind of care developed, its differential delivery, and the problems and issues addressed.
Prerequisite: WGST 108 [WOST 108], WGST 120 [WOST 120], WGST 102, or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 220].
Distribution: Historical Studies

WGST 222 Women in Contemporary American Society
Reverby
This course examines the transformations and continuities in the lives of women in the United States since World War II. We will look critically at the so-called "happy days" of the 1950s, the cultural and political "revolutions" of the 1960s and early 1970s, and the shifts in consciousness over the last five decades. The rise and changes in feminism and the women's movement will receive special attention. Emphasis will be placed on the differing communities of women and how they have balanced the so-called "private," "public," and "civic" spheres of their lives.

WGST 223/CAMS 240 Gendering the Bronze Screen: Representations of Chicanas/Latinas in Film
Mata
The history of Chicanas and Latinas on the big screen is a long and complicated one. To understand the changes that have occurred in the representation of Chicanas/Latinas, this course proposes an analysis of films that traces various stereotypes to examine how these images have been perpetuated, altered, and ultimately resisted. WGST 225 Politics and Sexuality
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This interdisciplinary course will provide an overview of key texts, topics, debates, and politics that inform the field of sexuality studies. Students will use critical theoretical discourses to discern how gender and sexuality inform social, political and historical ways of knowing and being. Because this field of inquiry has developed within the context of many different movements for social change, we will discuss sexuality with respect to its intersections with feminist and LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer) movements. We will place these alongside critiques of race, nationalism, fundamentalism, and uneven economic development, and will aim to articulate foundational questions about the relationship between power and sexual subjectivity.
Prerequisite: One 100-level course or permission of instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 225].

WGST 235 Cross Cultural Sexuality
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will examine and explore sexuality from cross-cultural perspectives, focusing on the production of sexuality in the context of different disciplines—literature, anthropology, history, and sociology. The course will address the intersections between sexual and sociocultural, political, and economic discourses. How is sexuality constructed in relation to ideological, social, and political considerations? How are "normative" sexual norms established, circulated, and maintained in different cultures and at different historical junctures? What, if anything, constitutes sexual otherness in different cultures? How is this negotiated in a global economy and how is it represented under variable conditions? How do different descriptions of sexual behavior interact with the discourses of identity politics and queerness as constituted in the United States?
Prerequisite: WGST 108 [WOST 108], WGST 120 [WOST 120], or WGST 222 [WOST 222]. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 235].

WGST 249/CAMS 241 Asian-American Women in Film
Creef
NOT OFFERED IN 2009-10. This course will serve as an introduction to Asian-American film, and begin with the premise that there is a distinct American style of Asian "Orientalist" representation by tracing its development in classic Hollywood film over the last 75 years. We examine the politics of inter racial romance, the pheno nomenon of the "yellow face" masquerade, and the different constructions of Asian-American femininity, masculinity, and sexuality. In the second half of the course, we look at the production of what has been named "Asian-American cinema" where our focus will be on contemporary films, drawing upon critical materials from film theory, feminist studies, Asian-American studies, history, and cultural studies. Students may register for either WGST 249 or CAMS 241 and credit will be granted accordingly.

WGST 306/SOC 306 Seminar. Women and Work
Hertz
The biggest force for change in the U.S. economy has been the growing diversity of the American labor force. The first half of the course examines the impact of gender and racial diversity on the nature of work in America. We will discuss four key aspects: (1) the dynamics of gender and race in the workplace; (2) the tensions between work/family and gender equity; (3) the struggle to integrate women into male-dominated occupations and professions; and (4) the challenges for women in leadership roles. The second half of the course will focus on women as critical to the "new" global workforce in selected regions. We will discuss: (1) women's migration and domestic work; (2) the paradox of caring for others while leaving one's children behind; (3) women in global factories; and (4) women's activism in their home communities. Students may register for either WGST 306 or SOC 306 and credit will be granted accordingly.
Prerequisite: One course in ANTH, SOC, ECON, or WGST [WOST] at the 200 level or permission of the instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken [WOST 306].

<td>Analysis of problems facing the contemporary U.S. family and potential policy directions for the new millennium. Discussion of the transformation of the American family including changing economic and social roles for women and expanding varieties of family types (such as single mothers by choice and lesbian/gay families). Sexuality, teen pregnancy, reproductive issues, day care, the elderly, divorce, warfare, the impact of work on the family, equality between spouses, choices women make about children and employment, and the new American dreams will be explored. Comparisons to other contemporary societies will serve as a foil for particular analyses. We will begin by situating the concerns of queer theory within the historical development of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender movements for social change around the world, and within institutional contexts, including those of higher education. We will read some of the works that have come to be framed by the rubric of queer theory, including those works by Foucault, Warner, Jarose, and Butler, and, more generally, works produced under the aegis of cultural studies, anthropology, history, literary studies, philosophy, performance studies, and gender and sexuality studies. Requirements for the Major

A major in Women’s and Gender Studies offers an opportunity for the interdisciplinary study of women from the perspectives of the humanities, sciences, and social sciences. Women’s and Gender Studies majors seek an understanding of the new intellectual frameworks that are reshaping thought about the meaning and role of gender in human life. Majors pursue knowledge of gendered experiences in diverse cultures and across time, examining the ways in which race, social class, sexuality, and ethnicity are constitutive of that experience.

A major in Women’s and Gender Studies requires nine units taken both within the department as well as through the related courses taught in other departments. Of these, two units must be 200-level courses (not counting 350, 350H, 360, or 370). Not more than two units can be 100-level courses.

Students are encouraged to enter the department through one of the three core units: WGST 108 (WOST 108) (The Social Construction of Gender), WGST 120 (WOST 120) (Introduction to Women’s Studies), or WGST 222 (WOST 222) (Women in Contemporary American Society). Majors must take one of these units as a required course. Apart from this one required unit (108, 120 or 222), majors must elect at least three other units offered within the Women’s Studies department, of which one should be a seminar. Courses at the 100 level are introductions to topics in Women’s and Gender Studies. They are taught from the perspective of each faculty member’s specialty. Courses at the 200 level are overviews to substantive areas. Courses at the 300 level provide in-depth examination of material covered in 200-level courses. Students majoring in women’s and gender studies must elect four of the nine units in such a way that they form a "concentration," i.e., have a focus or central theme in common. Such concentration should include relevant method and theory units in the area of concentration, and must be discussed with and approved by a women’s and gender studies faculty advisor. Priority in all courses above the 100 level will go to majors and minors. Students selecting 300-level courses must have one course listed in the department.

The Capstone Experience in Women’s and Gender Studies

All majors will be required to select a capstone experience, with the guidance of their advisor, from the following three options offered in 2009-10. Students should begin to think about which option would best fit their concentration when they declare the major. They must declare their option by the end of their junior year.

Option 1: WGST 312 [WOST 312] (Seminar. Feminist Inquiry). Each year the seminar will be a different special topic. For 2009-10, the topic is "Global Feminism" taught by Professor Cheng.

Option 2: WGST 313 [WOST 313] (Fieldwork in Women’s Studies).

Option three is the traditional senior honors thesis which requires two units during the senior year. See Academic Distinctions in this catalog for requirements. A thesis does not need to have an experiential component, but typically it is based on some original research. Option 2 must involve an experiential component.
Requirements for the Minor

A minor in Women's and Gender Studies consists of five courses, of which one must be chosen from among 108, 120, or 222, and of which one must be a 300-level course (not 350 or 350H) offered within the department. A total of at least three courses must be taken within the women's and gender studies department. Minors must devise a three-course “concentration” (see above) in consultation with a women's and gender studies faculty advisor (the chair or any of the four women's and gender studies faculty members). Not more than one unit can be a 100-level course.

Honors

The only route to honors in the major is writing a thesis and passing an oral examination. To be admitted to the thesis program, a student must have a grade point average of at least 3.5 in all work in the major field above the 100 level; the department may petition on her behalf if her GPA in the major is between 3.0 and 3.5. See Academic Distinctions.

Advanced Placement Policy

Women's and Gender Studies does not allow students to count AP credits towards the fulfillment of the major or minor.

The Writing Program

Director: Velenchik
Senior Lecturers: Iwanaga, Schwartz, Viti, Wood
Visiting Lecturer: Johnson

Writing is central to academic life at Wellesley and will continue to play an important role in most students' lives after they graduate, whether they choose majors in the sciences, the social sciences, or the humanities. WRIT 125 provides a common introductory experience in college-level thinking and writing for all students at Wellesley and is also assumed to provide the base for writing assigned in later courses. WRIT 125 courses are taught by faculty from many departments as well as by a team of writing professionals; all WRIT 125 faculty view writing as an important part of their own professional lives and are committed to helping Wellesley students learn to use writing as a powerful tool of thought and expression, a way to gain entrance to public discourse.

All WRIT 125 courses have the primary goal of helping students establish a useful writing process, from developing ideas through revision. All sections provide instruction in analysis and interpretation, in argument and the use of evidence, in the development of voice, and in the conventions of academic writing, including writing from sources. Students may choose to take a standard WRIT 125 course (meeting two periods a week and addressing a small, well-defined topic related to the instructor's expertise), or to study writing as part of an introductory course in another department. (These “combined courses” are designated with a slash in the course title; all carry one unit of credit, fulfill distribution and/or major requirements, and meet for at least three periods each week.)

All students are required to take WRIT 125 in either the fall or spring semester of their first year at Wellesley. Students who lack confidence in their writing are advised to take WRIT 125 in the fall and to select one of the sections designated for underconfident writers (12, 13, 14 in semester 1). Sections 10 and 11 are reserved for students who have chosen to enroll in the Wellesley Plus Program.

Students who wish to pursue the study of writing beyond WRIT 125 may select WRIT 126 (tutorial for students who need more help with writing), WRIT 225 (nonfiction writing), WRIT 290 (advanced research writing), or independent study in writing (WRIT 250 for a full unit or WRIT 250H for a half unit of credit) with a member of the Writing Program staff. Students should also be aware that many courses at Wellesley are taught writing intensively, offering the opportunity to study writing as part of their disciplinary study. Students wishing to pursue coursework in creative writing should consult the English department course listings.

PLEASE NOTE: Students may not take a second semester of WRIT 125 unless they have the written consent of the director of the Writing Program.

Semester I

WRIT 125 01, 02/ENG 120 Critical Interpretation
Chaisson (English), Fisher (American Studies)
A course designed to increase power and skill in critical interpretation by the detailed reading of poems and the writing of interpretive essays. This course satisfies both the WRIT 125 requirement and the critical interpretation requirement of the English major. Includes a third session each week.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Language and Literature
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

WRIT 125 03, 04/ARTH 100 Introduction to the History of Art
Part I: Ancient and Medieval Art
McNamara, Rhodes (Art)
A broad multicultural survey of the art of the ancient and medieval worlds. This team-taught course focuses upon major monuments and masterpieces, including the Egyptian pyramids, the temples and sculptures of Greece and Rome, the Buddhist shrines of India, the painted scrolls of China and Japan, the mosques of the Islamic Near East, and the Gothic cathedrals of Europe. Students in this section of ARTH 101 will attend the same twice-weekly lectures as the other ARTH 100 students, but their assignments will be different, and they will attend two special WRIT 125 conferences each week. Through writing about art, students in 100/125 will develop skills in visual and critical analysis. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Art History, Architecture, or Studio Art.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

WRIT 125 06/WGST 108 The Social Construction of Gender
Marshall (Women's and Gender Studies)
This course discusses the ways in which gender is socially constructed through social interactions and within social institutions. The relationship among gender, race, ethnicity, and social class will be stressed. The processes and mechanisms that construct and institutionalize gender will be considered in a variety of contexts: political, economic, religious, educational, and familial. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Women's and Gender Studies. Includes a third session each week.
Prerequisite: None
Distribution: Social and Behavioral Analysis
Semester: Fall, Spring
Unit: 1.0

WRIT 125 07/CAMS 115 Hitchcock, Auteur
Wood (The Writing Program)
What is it that draws filmmakers, critics, writers, and scholars back to the films of Alfred Hitchcock, time and time again? What shots and frame compositions tempt filmmakers to imitation and homage? What narrative themes seduce critics? What paradoxes puzzle scholars and writers? To what extent is Hitchcock the master of his own films—in the words of film theorists, an auteur as much as a director? To what extent did he collaborate with others—screenwriters, composers, actors, cinematographers, and yes, his own wife and daughter—to produce enduring works of art? In reading, viewing, analyzing, and writing about films from all periods of Hitchcock’s working life, this course will use these questions to shape our understanding of film and film theory. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Cinema and Media Studies. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisites: None
Distribution: Arts, Music, Theatre, Film, Video
Semester: Fall
Unit: 1.0

WRIT 125 O8/ECON 104 Contemporary Economic Issues Velenchik (The Writing Program and Economics)
This course is intended for students entering Wellesley with a background in economics at the level of AP or IB courses. We will use the basic principles of economics to analyze, and write about, current economic events and policy questions. Topics will include how moral hazard and asymmetric information contributed to the financial crisis of 2008, an evaluation of President Obama’s economic stimulus program, and the cases for and against a substantial increase in federal gas taxes. We will leave ample time to discuss what is happening in economic news during the semester. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Economics. Includes a third session each week.

Prerequisites: International Baccalaureate credit in Economics (a score of 5, 6, or 7) or Advanced Placement credit (a score of 5) in Microeconomics and Macroeconomics, and by permission of the instructor.

WRIT 125 09 The Nobel Prize in Literature Pankenier (Russian)
In this course, we consider the history of the Nobel Prize, beginning with Alfred Nobel and his attempts to rewrite his own legacy for the better. As we look back on a century of Nobel Prizes through literary examples, we analyze what biases, or critical approaches, frame the reading of literature. We also think about the mistakes and omissions evident in the history of the Prize and discuss what role politics plays in the evaluation of literature. In addition to historical writings on the Nobel Prize, official materials from the Nobel Committee, and acceptance speeches by Nobel laureates, readings will include fiction, drama, and essays by Slavic, Scandinavian, and English-speaking prize-winners, as well as writers from regions less well-represented in the history of the Prize.

WRIT 125P 10 The Maternal in Film Wood (The Writing Program)
Film theorist MaryAnn Doane observes that “in Western culture, there is something obvious about the maternal, which has no counterpart in the paternal”—and whatever it is that is obvious about motherhood is represented and played out in countless films. In this course, we will test Doane’s claim, examining multiple versions of “the mother” in Hollywood cinema, both classic and contemporary. Among the motherly archetypes we will consider are: the self-sacrificing mother of ’40s melodrama, the monstrous mother of the ’50s, women-who-could-never-be-mothers-of-film-now, the absent mother of the ’60s and ’70s, and (possibly), as we investigate race and immigration issues, mother as “other.” Writing assignments will ask students to analyze films using the techniques of film analysis to be taught in the course. A third class session each week will be devoted to technical aspects of writing, and an additional research and computing lab will be led by Clapp Library staff. The course will provide extra academic support to students who desire intensive preparation for the demands of writing at the college level. Registration in this section is restricted to students selected for the Wellesley Plus Program. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125P 11 The Wire and the American City Viti (The Writing Program)
The acclaimed HBO television series The Wire has opened up a new avenue for scholars, urban community members, and everyday viewers to consider the complex problems of the contemporary American city. In this course, we will look at the rich array of new writing by sociologists, legal analysts, and political scientists in relation to selected episodes of The Wire. Required readings from authors, including Randall Kennedy, Geoffrey Canada, William Julius Wilson, Kurt Schmoke, David Simon, and William Bennett as well as screenings of The Wire will serve as a springboard for argument and writing. This course emphasizes both writing and research skills. A third class session each week will be devoted to technical aspects of writing, and an additional research and computing lab will be led by Clapp Library staff. The course will provide extra academic support to students who desire intensive preparation for the demands of writing at the college level. WRIT 125 12 Wellesley and the World Johnson (The Writing Program)
Wellesley’s mission is to educate “women who will make a difference in the world.” In this course, we will study Wellesley’s place in the world, particularly its role in the history of American education, collegiate athletics, women’s rights, and politics and diplomacy. We will also study the world that is Wellesley, with special emphasis on the College’s historic buildings and unique landscape architecture. This section is appropriate for students who have not done much writing in high school or who lack confidence in their writing. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 13 Caught between Cultures: Identity, Choice, and the Hyphenated American Iwanaga (The Writing Program)
What happens when people identify with (or are identified as having) a particular ethnicity? In this course we examine how non-Anglo writers have contended with the issues they face living in this predominantly Anglo society: stereotyping, culture clashes, racism, and Old World parental expectations. Texts we will read and write about may include works by Julia Alvarez, Danzy Senna, Léthi Diem Thuy, and Velina Hasu Houston. This section is appropriate for students who have not done much writing in high school or who lack confidence in their writing. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 14 The International Short Story Iwanaga (The Writing Program)
Fiction may not be about real lives, but it certainly represents real life. As we read short stories by writers from a variety of countries, we will discover and discuss both what is particular and what is universal about their experiences, issues, and themes. Topics may include gender issues, parent-child relationships, work, and war. Students will do close readings of texts to discover the tools that writers use to reveal and develop their ideas. Formal assignments will ask students to analyze texts, while a few shorter assignments will offer students the opportunity to write creatively as well. For students who speak English as an additional language: Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 16 The Novels of Jane Austen Meyer (English)
Students will read a selection of the great novels of Jane Austen and use her work to learn skills for the close reading of fiction in general. We will study the details of Austen’s fictional technique. From what perspective are the novels told? How does the author reveal her attitudes toward her characters? At the same time, we will consider the broader questions raised by the novels. What values motivate Austen’s fiction? How does she comment on the larger social and historical culture? What views on such issues as slavery or the proper role of women? Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 17 The Living City on Page and Screen Ford (English)
The city is not just a setting but a character in its own right in the American literary and cinematic traditions. In this course, we’ll read and watch selected works of literature and film that tell stories in and about American cities: we will examine the ways in which these urban myths define particular ideas about gender, race, and identity in contemporary narrative. Characters like the hard-boiled detective hero and the femme fatale, urban experiences like race riots and existential angst, and images of fairy-tale and futuristic cities will all figure into our exploration of the role of the city in defining contemporary American culture. We will use writing assignments to make connections between the city's varied characters while developing rich and layered readings of individual texts. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 21 The Human Brain: A Case-Study Approach
Somers, Smith (Biological Sciences)
This course will explore a classic method for learning about the structure and function of the human brain. Much of what we know about how the brain works we have learned from "deficit," by investigating what has been lost when the brain is injured or diseased. We can also approach the subject of repair and regeneration of function by similar means. To learn about the human brain from "deficit," students will read, discuss, and respond to case studies of patients who have suffered injury to or disease of the central nervous system. The final project will involve students researching and writing a neurological case study. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

WRIT 125 22 The Art of Reading: An Introduction to Literary Theory
Forrest, J. (Italian Studies)
What is literary theory? What is its use? Where does it come from? These are just some of the questions that will be addressed in this course dedicated to the exploration of the most important theories for the interpretation of literary texts. Students will read essays on various methods of textual reading and will apply them to the interpretation of major texts of world literature. Through reading and writing assignments, students will consider how theories have represented a challenge to the traditional literary canon, and will develop the intellectual tools that will enable them to interpret other texts they will encounter in their future.

WRIT 225/ENG 206 Nonfiction Writing
Writing 225/ENG 206 is a changing topics writing workshop that will each year take up a particular nonfiction writing genre. Mandatory credit/noncredit.

Topic A for 2009-10: Creative Nonfiction
Schwartz, T. (The Writing Program)
"...all memoirs are false...The correct detail is rarely, exactly, what happened; the most truthful detail is what could have happened, or what should have."—John Irving

Creative nonfiction is a protean genre of writing, including narrative, dramatic, meditative, and lyrical elements of novels, plays, poetry and memoirs. In this course on writing creative nonfiction, we'll look at a range of forms so we can use the techniques in many different writing situations. We'll pay especially close attention to how writers of creative nonfiction can use fictional techniques to better express the truth about their lives. We'll also consider the ethical and artistic limits of transforming and embellishing personal experience in memoir. How does the implied contract between writer and reader differ between fiction and creative nonfiction?

WRIT 125 03ARTH 101 Introduction to the History of Art Part II: Renaissance to the Present
Rhodes, A. (Art)
A foundation course in the history of art. From Michelangelo to media culture, this course introduces the visual cultures of Europe, Africa, and the Americas, beginning with the Renaissance and using key issues and monuments as the focus of discussion. Students in this section of ARTH 101 will attend the same twice-weekly lectures as the other ARTH 101 students, but their assignments will be different, and they will attend two special Writing 125 conferences each week. Through writing about art, students in 101/125 will develop skills in visual and critical analysis. WRIT 125 04/GER 122 Hitler: The Man in History, Literature, and Film
Hansen, K. (German)
The figure of Adolf Hitler continues to horrify and fascinate those who have inherited the world he changed forever. This writing course explores the historical figure of Hitler and subsequent responses to him by contemporaries, historians, writers, and filmmakers. After reading Hitler's own words and biographers' accounts, we shall focus on representations of the man from Germany (Brecht, Thomas Mann) and elsewhere (Charlie Chaplin, Mel Brooks). This course is built around a series of writing projects that focus on the historical subject, Hitler, and his legacy. Assignments will prepare you to write a formal, analytical paper typical of many disciplines at Wellesley: a paper that uses research tools to make a clearly articulated argument and uses evidence to express original thought. Includes a third session each week. Students enrolled in German courses are encouraged to WRIT 125 05/ENG 122 Narrative Theory
Lee (English)
How are stories put together? How do they create the sense that they are told from a distinct perspective? How do they create anticipation and retrospection? How do we distinguish the telling from the tale? This course offers an introduction to narrative theory, or theories that explain the devices and structures that stories use in order to make meaning. We will read excerpts from major works of narrative theory (Bal, Genette, Barthes) and we will explore how their concepts yield a better understanding and appreciation of short stories (as well as novels). Authors may include Balzac, Joyce, Conrad, and Faulkner. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the English major. Includes a third session each week.

How can we get reliable knowledge of good education? We will use the works of earlier writers (e.g., Confucius, Plato, and Dewey) and contemporary writers in our investigation. WRIT 125 07/CHIN 105 Self and Society in Chinese Literature
Allen (East Asian Languages and Literatures)
How do individual voices establish their identities within and against the demands of the community? How does the drive to assert the individuality of the self balance the comfort and security of being part of a group? We will examine these questions through the lens of Chinese literature, from its beginnings in songs and kings' proclamations in the first millennium B.C.E., through modern writers' reaction against their literary inheritance in the early twentieth century. Our scope will be broad, from lyrical poems and essays on political philosophy, to love songs and bawdy plays. The works we will read continue to be read by much of the educated populace and constitute a heritage that writers today emulate, play off of, and rebel against. No prior knowledge of Chinese literature or language is required. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the major in Chinese. Includes a third session each week.

WRIT 125 09/CLCV 125 Dining in Ancient Greece and Rome
Gilhuly (Classical Studies)
Plato's Symposium provides one window into the culture of dining in antiquity, revealing how people gathered in ancient Greece to entertain and be entertained, to perform music and exchange ideas, to form political ties, and to share food and drink as well as other bodily pleasures. Written texts have provided a primary source of evidence for scholars investigating the social relationships and cultural symbols of ancient Greece and Rome. In this course, we will consider literary materials together with visual and archeological materials to understand these cultures. Writing assignments will ask students to assess and make arguments, based on the cultural records, about how these cultures expressed themselves through the distribution of food at the symposium in ancient Greece and the cena in Rome. This course satisfies the WRIT 125 requirement and counts as a unit toward the Classical Studies major. Includes a third session each week.

WRIT 125 10/RUSS 125 Great Short Stories from Russia
Pankenier (Russian)
Russian literature has given the world some of the best stories ever told and this course surveys two centuries' worth of them. Someone once quipped that all of twentieth-century Russian literature came out of Nikolai Gogol's "Nose." And so we begin with "The Nose" and other ridiculous stories by Gogol. We will go on to read some of the finest short stories of Chekhov and the Nobel Prize winner, Ivan Bunin. The grotesque realism of Isaac Babel's stories and the magical realism of Vladimir Nabokov's also lie within the scope of this course. We will conclude with the late and post-Soviet stories of Tairov Tolstaya and Ludmilla Petrushevskaya. No prior knowledge of Russian language or literature is required. WRIT 125 11 The Art of Fiction
Schwartz (The Writing Program)
This course examines the basic elements of short fiction, but it might also be titled "How Writers Write." In conjunction with reading and writing about short stories, we'll study commentator's about the art of fiction by writers, such as Flannery O'Connor, Henry James, Raymond Carver, Charles Baxter, and Lorrie Moore. We will approach these texts as a source of inspiration and instructions for our own efforts to master the writing process. In order to better appreciate a short story writer's technical and artistic strategies, we will occasionally try our hand at some fictional exercises. Note: This is not a fiction-writing course; the fiction writing exercises are assigned in conjunction with analytical papers.

WRIT 125 12 Romantic (and Unromantic) Comedy
Shelley (English)
"Boy meets girl" has long been a classic starting point in both literature and the movies. This course will focus on romantic comedy in American cinema, with significant looks backward to its literary sources. We'll view films from the classic era of Hollywood (It Happened One Night, The Lady Eve), the revisionist comedies of the 1970s and beyond (Annie Hall, My Best Friend's Wedding), and perhaps some of the decidedly unromantic comedies of recent years (Knocked Up). We'll also read one or two Shakespeare plays, and a Jane Austen novel, to get a sense of the literary precursors that established the paradigms within which cinematic comedy operates.

WRIT 125 16, 17 Athletes and Artists
Johnson (The Writing Program)
In studying the intersections of sport and art in America, we will analyze the ways in which athletes and artists have been represented in literature and film, and we will examine how writers and others use sport as a metaphor to find deeper meaning in it. We will also consider philosophical questions regarding the nature of art and of athletics and their proper role in our society. In addition, we will explore the relationship between athletics and the liberal arts, particularly in light of recent arguments that an increasing focus on athletics is undermining the academic mission of many schools.

WRIT 125 18 Electric Power and the Environment
Caplan (Physics)
In 1776, much of the energy used in the United States came from the muscles of humans and draft animals. Today, fossil fuels, nuclear fusion, and hydroelectric power provide most of our energy, much of which is used to generate electric power. As we see in recent years, energy production brings multiple problems, including air pollution, global warming, nuclear waste, accidents, grid failures, and blackouts. In this course, we will learn about and write about the technology that caused the change from muscle to electric power. In addition to readings, we will learn a great deal by using laboratory equipment. We will also examine recent proposals for safer, cleaner energy sources.

WRIT 125 19/ENG 123 Storytelling in the Middle Ages
Leff (English)
As modern readers, we are accustomed to reading privately (whether on screens or in books), but in the Middle Ages stories were often delivered orally, at court and in wealthy households. This course explores the cultural significance of telling stories in the Middle Ages through an examination of both popular stories and narratives that dramatize acts of storytelling. We will investigate the ways storytelling could entertain, edify, bring a community closer together, or serve as a means of social control. Readings will likely include selections from Chaucer’s Canterbury Tales and Boccaccio’s Decameron, saints’ lives, and a medieval romance. LaBotte (Biological Sciences)
Due to recent advances in genetic technology, it is now possible for individuals to make choices that will change the genetic makeup of the human population. Should parents who can conceive naturally undergo in vitro fertilization in order to select the sex of their child? Is it appropriate to terminate a pregnancy when the fetus has a genetic variation of unknown significance? Should gene therapy be used to cure disease by altering the genetic makeup of an individual? What are the risks associated with consumer-driven genetic testing and whole genome sequencing? We will analyze accounts of human genetic technologies from the popular press and the scientific literature and discuss the advantages and disadvantages of each.

WRIT 125 21 Wealth and Poverty in America: An Economist’s Perspective
Velechik (Economics)
America has become increasingly unequal over the past 30 years. Corporate executives’ earnings are hundreds of times those of their blue-collar employees. The middle class is on the precipice, according to Harvard Magazine: More Americans are millionaires than ever before, but more of us are poor as well. What is happening? Why? What does this change mean for our economy and society? This course will use primary data, government publications, and articles in both the popular and scholarly press as a basis for writing about the causes and consequences of these trends. WRIT 125 22 Defining Asian-American Literature
Ishwara (The Writing Program)
The question we will pose at the outset, and that we will revisit frequently, is “What defines Asian-American literature?” The writer’s ethnicity? The topic? Both? Neither? Authors studied may include Maxine Hong Kingston, Patti Kim, Jhumpa Lahiri, R.O. Butler, Peter Ho Davies, Sandra Tsing Loh, Monique T.D. Truong. Students will also read essays on the power of creativity and the imagination. As students refine their definitions of Asian-American literature, spurred on by texts that challenge their initial ideas, they will work toward defining American identity itself.

This course is designed to develop students’ skills in writing up the results of research in the social sciences, with emphasis on qualitative research, including interviews and oral histories, and research from secondary sources. In addition, the course will focus on adapting scholarly findings to a range of genres, audiences, and purposes. The course will serve students who have already taken Writing 125 and achieved a certain degree of proficiency in writing, but who wish to deepen and broaden their understanding of research, writing, and rhetoric in the social sciences.

Topic for 2009-10: Writing About Religion: Church and State in Conflict
Viti (The Writing Program)
In a footnote to his opinion in United States v. Carolene Products Company (1938), U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harlan Fiske Stone coined the now well-known phrase, "discrete and insular minorities," to describe those citizens most in need of the law’s protection. What happens when a religious minority challenges existing law through noncompliance and civil disobedience? We will focus on several landmark legal cases involving three discrete religious minorities, Jehovah's Witnesses, Seventh-day Adventists, and Christian Scientists, and the ways these religious sects have challenged, influenced and shaped American law and public policy.

Courses in Asian-American Studies

Asian-American Studies is an interdiscipli- nary and interdepartmental field at Wellesley. Distinct from, and yet interdependent on, East Asian Studies, South Asia Studies, and American Studies, it focuses on critical issues unique to the experience of the people of Asian and Pacific Islander heritage in North America since the mid-eighteenth century, and examines the growing globalization of this experience in transnational terms. Course work in this curricular field can enrich and enlarge concentrations in a variety of existing departments and programs.

Courses in Health and Society

The anthropologist, Mary Douglas, observed that “the human body is always treated as an image of society and there can be no natural way of considering the body that does not involve at the same time a social dimension.” Similarly, how we perceive our bodies, how they are treated by the health-care system, how medicine and health care shape how we see ourselves are critical questions we must all face. Courses in health and society include ones that examine the workings of the human body and mind and ones that take a broad look at the relationship between health and larger cultural and societal issues. These courses encourage students to confront the ethical, social, and political issues in the creation of health and science, and they allow students to consider the broad issues that link the body to the body politic. They offer valuable perspectives to students planning careers in the health field and benefit anyone confronting health care in today's complex world.

Although there is no departmental or interdepartmental major in Health Studies, these courses enrich and enlarge concentrations in a variety of disciplines. They also demonstrate how different disciplines contribute to understanding a topic (health) and an institution (the health-care system) that affect all our lives. Students who plan to apply for admission to medical school should consult the section on Preparation for Medical School in this catalogue.

Courses in Legal Studies

Law plays a central role in social organization, and legal and political institutions use law, doctrines, and procedures to establish collective values, mediate conflicts between individuals and groups, and resolve questions of state power. Legal materials provide a rich ground for developing reading and interpretive skills, and for promoting serious inquiry into visions of the good and the just, the dimensions and limits of private and public decision-making, and conflicts between consent and coercion. Finally, cross-cultural and historical analyses offer students opportunities to explore the ways in which legal institutions and practices help create diverse social identities and communities. Students wishing to explore a range of legal materials, analytical frameworks, and institutions are encouraged to select courses from several perspectives and disciplines.

There is no departmental or interdepartmental major in Legal Studies; however, coursework in this area can enrich and augment concentrations in a variety of disciplines. Students who plan to apply for admission to law school should consult the section on Preparations for Law School in this catalogue.

Courses in Statistics

Wellesley College offers statistics courses in a variety of disciplines. Some introductory statistics courses are intended as terminal courses (e.g., MATH 101) while others are prerequisites for more advanced research methods courses in the major (e.g., PSYC 205). The courses listed below all focus on descriptive and inferential statistics, but differ in their specific applications and use of statistical software. Students who wish to take one of the following statistics courses to satisfy the Quantitative Reasoning overlay requirement are advised to select the most appropriate course. appropriate course given their intended major(s) and minor. Students who scored a 5 on the AP Statistics exam have satisfied the Quantitative Reasoning overlay requirement but may be required to forgo that AP credit if a specific statistics course is required for their major. Please refer to the Quantitative Reasoning Program section for a complete list of Quantitative Reasoning overlay courses and see the full course descriptions under each department or program for details on the applications emphasized in each course.

Attention Called

ECON 103/SOC 190 Introduction to Probability and Statistical Methods
MATH 101 Reasoning with Data: Elementary Applied Statistics
MATH 101Z Reasoning with Data: Elementary Applied Statistics with Health Applications
MATH 220 Probability and Elementary Statistics
POL 199 How to Conduct Research in Political Science
PSYC 205 Statistics
QR 180 Statistical Analysis of Education Issues
SOC 190/ECON 103 Introduction to Probability and Statistical Methods

The following rules apply to these statistics courses: MATH 101 and MATH 101Z are not open to students who have taken or are taking CS 199, ECON 103/SOC 190, POL 199, QR 180, or PSYC 205. In addition, MATH 101 and MATH 101Z are not open to students who have completed MATH 205 except by permission of the instructor; such students should consider taking MATH 220 instead. MATH 101 and MATH 101Z are intended for students who do not anticipate taking further statistics courses in college. Students considering a major in economics, political science, sociology, or psychology are advised not to take MATH 101 and MATH 101Z; other courses are more appropriate for those majors.

ECON 103/SOC 190 (formerly QR 199) is a prerequisite for ECON 203 (Econometrics) which is required of economics majors, and for SOC 301 (Methods of Social Research) which is required of sociology majors. Economics or sociology majors or minors who have completed MATH 220 or PSYC 205 may not also take ECON 103/SOC 190, but must take an additional elective in economics or sociology to complete their major or minor. Students who have taken CS 199, MATH 101, MATH 101Z, POL 199 or QR 180 may only take ECON 103/SOC 190 if they are majoring or minoring in economics or sociology, and should consult the appropriate department chair.

POL 199 is not open to students who have taken or are taking CS 199, ECON 103/SOC 190, MATH 101, MATH 101Z, MATH 220, PSYC 205, or QR 180, except with permission of the instructor.

PSYC 205 is required of all psychology and neuroscience majors. Students who have not declared a psychology or neuroscience major may not enroll in PSYC 205 if they have taken or are taking CS 199, ECON 103/SOC 190, MATH 101, MATH 101Z, MATH 220, POL 199, or QR 180; students who have declared a psychology or neuroscience major must take PSYC 205 even if they have already taken one of these other statistics courses.

QR 180 is an elective statistics course for students interested in education policy issues. The course is not open to students who have taken or are taking CS 199, ECON 103/SOC 190, MATH 101, MATH 220, POL 199 or PSYC 205.

Courses in Urban Studies

The city as a unique social, cultural, political, economic, educational, environmental, and geographic locus has been one of the main themes of nineteenth- and twentieth-century thought. As we move into the twenty-first century, the problems and promises of urban life remain an enormous intellectual challenge for researchers and policy makers in many fields, and of great import to the health of our society and to that of other countries. These courses examine the city from many perspectives and allow students to use the city as a focus for interdisciplinary study. While there is no departmental or interdepartmental minor or major in urban studies, these courses complement and enrich concentrations in other fields, and may be useful for students interested in anthropology, architecture, economics, education, the environment, history, literature, politics, policy analysis, medicine, sociology, or other subjects. Students interested are strongly encouraged to take at least one course in the Department of Urban Studies and Planning at MIT. A special guide to MIT courses in Urban Studies and Planning is available on the Wellesley College urban studies conference. Students are also encouraged to engage in urban fieldwork and internships, opportunities for which are available through the Center for Work and Service.

Travel Directions

By Car
• From the West:
  Take the Massachusetts Turnpike (I-90) to Exit 14 (Weston). Go south on Interstate 95 (Route 128) for 1/2 mile to Route 16, Exit 21B. Follow Route 16 West for 2.9 miles to a stoplight (five-way intersection) in the town of Wellesley; go straight on Route 135 (West). At the third traffic light, take a left into the main entrance of the College. Take your first right to the new Davis Parking Facility.

• From the East:
  Take the Massachusetts Turnpike (I-90) west to Exit 16 (West Newton). Follow Route 16 West for 4.7 miles, using directions above.

• From the North:
  Take Interstate 95 South (Route 128) to Exit 21B (Route 16 West). Follow Route 16 West for 2.9 miles, using directions above.

• From the South:
  Take Interstate 95 North (Route 128) to Exit 21B (Route 16 West). Follow Route 16 West for 2.9 miles, using directions above.

By Airplane
Options from Logan International Airport:
• By car: From the airport, take the Ted Williams Tunnel to the Mass Pike (I-90) West. Then follow directions from the East.
• Take a taxi directly to Wellesley College. See Area Taxis. Allow at least an hour for the commute. The fare will be approximately $55.

Or
• Take the Logan Express bus, which picks up at all airline terminals, to Framingham. Allow at least an hour for the commute. Call 800-23-LOGAN or visit www.massport.com/logan/getti_typeo_logan.html for more information.

From Framingham, take a taxi to the College. See Area Taxis. Allow half an hour for the ride to Wellesley. The fare will be approximately $16.

Or
• Take the free shuttle bus to the MBTA subway stop. Take the Blue Line Inbound four stops to Government Center. Go upstairs and change to the Green Line. Ride an Outbound subway marked "RIVERSIDE-D" to Woodland, the second to last stop on the D Line. Subway fare is $1.25.

From Woodland, take a taxi to the College. See Area Taxis. The fare will be approximately $15.

Allow two hours for total commute.

By Train
Options from the Amtrak terminal at South Station:
• From South Station, take the Framingham/Worcester Commuter Rail to the Wellesley Square stop. The commute is approximately half an hour. One-way fare is $3.00 and is paid on the train. Exact change is not required.

Go up the stairs and turn left onto Crest Road; follow Crest a short distance. Take a right onto Central Street. Walk five minutes to the second set of lights. Cross the street to the entrance of the College. From there, allow 20 minutes to walk to your destination on campus.

Note: The Commuter Rail runs on a schedule that can be accessed by calling 800.392.6100 or 617.222.3200 or by visiting www.mbta.com. Please call ahead when making travel plans; the schedule varies on weekends and holidays. You may also take the Commuter Rail to Wellesley from Back Bay Station.

If you prefer, call a taxi from the Wellesley Square Commuter Rail stop. See Area Taxis. Fare will be approximately $4.

Or
• From South Station, take the MBTA Subway (Red Line) Inbound two stops to Park Street. Go upstairs and change to the Green Line. Ride an Outbound subway marked "RIVERSIDE-D" to Woodland, the second to last stop on the D Line. Follow the above directions from Woodland.

By Bus
• From Peter Pan and Greyhound terminals at South Station, use Commuter Rail directions above. Or
• Take a Non-Express Greyhound or Peter Pan bus to the Riverside terminal. From there, take a taxi to the College. See Area Taxis. Commute from Riverside will be about 30 minutes, although it may be longer during rush hour. Fare will be approximately $15.

Note: Express buses DO NOT stop at Riverside.

Student Records
Maintenance of the confidentiality of individual student educational records has always been important at Wellesley, as is a concern for the accuracy of each record. The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974, commonly known as the “Buckley Amendment,” helps protect the privacy of student education records. Under the provisions of the Privacy Act, every Wellesley student is assured the right to inspect and review all college records, files, and data directly related to her, with certain exceptions such as medical and psychiatric records, confidential recommendations submitted before January 1, 1975, records to which the student has waived her right of access, and financial records of the student’s parents. The student may also seek a correction or deletion where a record is felt to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the privacy or other rights of the student. The Privacy Act also protects the privacy of personally identifiable information maintained in student records, including the student account, by prohibiting the release of such information (other than those items defined below as “Directory Information”) without the written consent of the student, except to persons such as officials or teachers within the College who have a legitimate educational interest in seeing the information, officials of other institutions in which the student seeks to enroll, the student’s parents if the student is a dependent for tax purposes, and certain other persons and organizations.

The final regulations for the Act make clear that, in the case of students who are dependents of their parents for Internal Revenue Service purposes, information from the education records of the student may be disclosed to the parents without the student’s prior consent. It will be assumed that every student is a dependent of her parents, as defined by the Internal Revenue Code, unless notification to the contrary with supporting evidence satisfactory to the College is filed in writing with the Registrar by October 1 of each academic year. All correspondence relating to a student’s undergraduate performance is removed from a student’s file and destroyed one year after graduation.

Copies of the Privacy Act, the regulations therein, and the “Wellesley College Guidelines on Student Records” are available on request from the Office of the Registrar. Students wishing to inspect a record should apply directly to the office involved. Complaints concerning alleged noncompliance with the Privacy Act by the College, which are not satisfactorily resolved by the College, may be addressed in writing to the Family Policy Compliance Office, Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202-4605.

Students interested in placing limitations on the release of information should contact Student Financial Services.

Directory Information
The Privacy Act gives Wellesley the right to make public at its discretion, without prior authorization from the individual student, the following personally identifiable information: name; class year; home address and telephone number; college address and telephone number; college e-mail address; schedule of classes; major and minor field(s); date and place of birth; dates of attendance at Wellesley College; degrees, honors, and awards received; weight and height of student athletes; participation in officially recognized sports and activities; and previous educational institution most recently attended. In addition, student photographs are part of a College directory that resides on the Wellesley College Web site and they appear on class lists that are available to the members of the faculty. These photographs are accessible only to members of the college community.

The Privacy Act also allows individual students to place limitations on the release of any of the above information. A student who wishes to do this must inform the Registrar, Green Hall, in writing each year by July 15 for the following academic year.

In practice, College policies discourage the indiscriminate release of any information about individual students. College directories and lists are for use within the College community.
